Another insect, illustrated in Fig. 2 also gives this peculiar ticking sound. Although so small that one can hardly see the little white thing with the naked eye, yet it produces a sound that is audible for a long distance.

FIG. 2.

They are quite common amongst old rubbish and around old library books, and are given the common name of "book louse." Their food comes from still smaller insects or from decaying vegetable matter, and in this way they sometimes do considerable injury to the paper of old books. In such cases they may be easily exterminated by dusting with pyrethrum.—Prof. G. C. Davis, in Farm, Field and Stockman.

DOMESTIC LESSONS.

Mothers Should Begin Them When Their Daughters Are Quite Young.

There are the studies that must not be interrupted—social exchanges to be duly met; a certain amount of sewing and reading to be accomplished; out-of-door life in abundance, and enough sleep to insure health to be secured.

The most efficient, ambitious mother is often necessarily absorbed with other interests than adapting her spare moments to the intervals of her daughter's leisure; and the completion of house duties is imperative, and cannot wait for the hand of a novice.

How would it do to begin the housekeeping lessons when the daughters are five and six? Teach them to handle their toys nicely, and to arrange their play houses conveniently for dollie's comfort. As they get older, show them how to dust and how to sew, using doll's patterns; and, when the study hours begin to grow longer, let them, once or twice a week, do some genuine house work, like the thorough sweeping of their own room; or making a certain kind of bread; the coffee for breakfast; from time to time a staple dish—deserts will easily follow. During vacation, (with lots of fun in between) let them make out the programme of two or three days' work, submitted the day before to the mother, to be carried through by them, with the exception of emergencies.

Let them contribute a share in the hospitalities of their home. Who is a more attractive hostess than the accomplished daughter, gracefully and intelligently entertaining guests in the home of her parents? And how easily and naturally all her growing duties will fall into line, in the home that follows that of her maidenhood.—L. H. Trivett, in Rural New Yorker.

The Causes of Nightmare.

Nightmare is a condition of the nervous system in which the cerebrum is active, but there is no control of the lower part of the brain which presides over muscular action. A person can think and feel, but he cannot move. It seems to be a sort of temporary paralysis of the muscles of motion. It is sometimes caused by overheating the spinal cord—feather beds are not entirely out of fashion yet—and it is also caused by a pressure of a full stomach upon the aorta. A person should not go to bed immediately after eating a hearty meal; if he does, nightmare may be one of the results.—Dr. J. H. Kellogg.

How to Maintain Robust Health.

First, Sleep.—Give yourself the necessary amount of sleep, from five to eight hours. Avoid feather beds. Sleep in a garment not worn during the day. To maintain robust health sleep with a person as healthful as yourself or no one. Second, Exercise.—Not violent, but sufficient to produce a gentle perspiration, should be had each day in the open air.

Hopley—I just met my tailor. His bill is six months over-due.

Bentinck—That's nothing. I always take a cursory view of such things.

Worth's Revenge.

When Worth, the man dressmaker of Paris, began his career, he had for a customer one day a fastidious elderly lady, who was very much afraid at first that the man dressmaker would fit her dress himself. He never went into the room after she gave him the order. The lady was rotund and wanted classic lines, and she was willing to pay for them. When the dress went home it was glove-fitting, a perfect success. She flew in raptures to the man dressmaker.

"You dear, good man," she exclaimed, enthusiastically; "how did you give me such a perfect fit without trying the dress on?"

"Oh, that dress was easy enough," said the artist, nonchalantly. "I just took it down into the cellar and fitted it on a barrel I keep for the purpose." —London Citizen.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

Plainfield, N. J., March 31, 1891.

J. B. COWARD, City Clerk.

AN ORDINANCE

Locating the tracks of The Plainfield Street Railway Company and regulating the construction and operation of the same and granting permission to said company to use electric motors as the propelling power of its cars.

The inhabitants of the city of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. That tracks of the Plainfield Street Railway Company's railway be and they are hereby located pursuant to the route designated in their articles of incorporation in the following streets and avenues of the city of Plainfield, to wit:

Beginning at a point in Somerset street at the line of North Plainfield Township and running thereto southerly to Front street, thence through Front street easterly to Park avenue, thence through Park avenue to Sixth street, thence through Sixth street westerly to Plainfield avenue, thence through Plainfield avenue southerly to Seventh street, thence through Seventh street westerly to Monroe avenue, thence through Monroe avenue northerly to Fourth street, thence through Fourth street easterly to Grant avenue, and thence through Grant avenue northerly to Second street, thence through Front street easterly to Park avenue, thence through Park avenue southerly to North avenue, thence through North avenue northerly to Peace street.

And said street railway company is hereby given the right to construct, maintain and operate its street railway in said streets within the city of Plainfield. A detailed plan of construction shall be filed by said company with the City Clerk and be approved by said Common Council before any work is done under the permission herein granted.

Section 2. That the said company shall construct, maintain and operate a double track street railway in Front street from Grant avenue to Park avenue, and in the other streets and avenues and portions thereof above designated, the said company shall construct, maintain and operate a single track street railway to be laid upon the middle line of the street (except when by ordinance the Common Council shall otherwise expressly determine) with suitable turnouts and switches; provided that no turnout shall be more than one hundred and fifty feet in length, nor within five hundred feet of any other turnout on the same street and provided also, that every turnout shall be laid equally on each side of the middle line of the street.

Section 3. Said company shall keep in repair to the satisfaction of the committee on streets, the paving or other surface material of the portion of streets, roads and bridges occupied by its tracks, and in addition shall so keep in repair eighteen inches on each side of the portion of said streets, roads and bridges occupied by its tracks; or, if not so kept and maintained, the repairs thereto may be made by or under the direction of said Committee on Streets and to their satisfaction, and the expense thereof shall be paid, on demand by said company to said city; provided that the said committee on streets, or a majority of them, shall give at least ten days' notice, in writing, of their intention to make such repairs; the said notice to be served upon any officer or employe of said company who may be found at their office or depot.

Section 4. The said company and its officers, servants, agents or employes shall not, nor shall any of either of them be allowed to shovel, throw or place any snow, ice or slush alongside the said track or tracks, in any street or streets, in such manner as to obstruct other public travel therein; but, when removing such snow, ice or slush from said track or tracks, the said company or its said officers, servants, agents or employes shall cause the same to be immediately leveled between said track or tracks and the gutter lines on each side thereof; under a penalty of twenty dollars to be paid by said company, or by any of its said officers, servants, agents or employes so offending to said city, for each and every offense.

Section 5. The rails to be used for said railway shall be of steel, and shall be of the best and most approved quality and pattern of side bearing rails, of not less than 65 pounds to the yard, and the sleepers, ties, chairs and spikes shall severally be of the best quality of their respective kinds; and both material and workmanship shall be subject to the inspection and approval of the committee on streets; and said railway shall not be operated for the transportation of passengers, or fares be collected thereon, until such approval and acceptance by said Common Council, or a majority of them.

Section 6. The company shall, in laying its tracks, switches and turn-outs, conform in all cases, to the grade lines of the streets, as now established, or as they may be hereafter changed or established by the Common Council; and said company shall in case of any such change of grade, conform thereto, and alter such tracks, switches and turn-outs at their own expense, and without unnecessary delay, and under the direction of said committee on streets; or, in case of default, the said committee on streets shall make such a change, or cause the same to be made, and the expenses thereof shall be paid, on demand, by said company to said city; provided ten days' notice of the committee's intention to make such change shall be given, and served in the same manner as in case of repairs as aforesaid.

Section 7. In passing over the gutters of any cross street where the bottom of such gutters is or may be below the grade line of such railroad, the rails shall be securely laid and fastened upon iron bridges of the most approved pattern; and such bridges shall be extended on each side of the track or tracks to the gutter line of the street in which said track or tracks is or are laid; the bridges and work to be subject to the inspection and approval of said Committee on Streets, in every particular.

Section 8. During the construction of said railroad, no unnecessary hindrance or obstruction to ordinary travel upon any such street or streets, shall be permitted; and if any accident or other casualty shall happen or occur, at any time, to any person or property, or by reason or by reason of any work connected with such construction of said railroad or afterward because or by reason of any operation thereof, or through the carelessness or negligence of any of the company's officers or servants, agents or employes, the said company shall be liable therefor, and shall indemnify, and save said city harmless from all cost, loss or damage by reason thereof.

Section 9. No car belonging to said company shall be allowed to stand in or obstruct any cross street, or to stand upon any cross-walk, for any purpose or purposes whatsoever; nor to stand or remain in any one position, upon any street, for more than five minutes at one time, except when said car shall be unavoidably obstructed or detained without the fault or negligence of said company, or any of its officers, servants, agents or employes under the penalty of five dollars to be paid by said company to said city for each and every offense, and that cars stopping to take up or let off passengers at any street crossing shall in all cases do so upon the far side of such street crossing.

Section 10. The said city reserves the right to dig or excavate in or upon any such street in which said railroad shall be so constructed for the purpose of laying, examining, repairing or replacing any water or sewer pipe or other pipes or making or shutting of any connection therewith, or for the purpose of making any other public improvement, or of doing any other public work of any kind whatsoever; and the said company shall not have any recourse against said city therefor, for damages or otherwise, because of any detention or obstruction to the travel upon said railroad arising therefrom.

Section 11. If the said company shall fail to build or construct the whole of said railroad, with its said turnouts and switches in the manner aforesaid, and to put the same in full and complete operation for the transportation of passengers, within nine months next after the passage of this ordinance, or shall afterwards fail or neglect to operate the same as aforesaid, daily and every day for the space of three months, all the rights, powers and privileges, and every one of them, of said company, their successors or assigns, under and by virtue of this ordinance, shall thereupon cease and be determined, and this ordinance shall become null and void, so far as the grant of any such right, power or privilege to said company is concerned, and in either of such cases, the Common Council ex-parte may reserve the right to cause the said railroad, or any part or parts thereof, so constructed, to be removed from said street or streets, or any of them and to sell and dispose of the materials thereof by public auction, and, after paying all the expenses of such removal and sale and of repairing the said street or streets, and of restoring the same as nearly as possible to its or their original condition to pay the balance of the proceeds of such sale to the said company, or its successors or assigns; provided, that no notice of such sale shall be required to be given, other than an advertisement, signed by the City Clerk, and published in one or more newspapers printed and published in said city.

Section 12. That the cars shall be of the patterns known as the vestibule cars, they shall be lighted by electricity and properly heated in winter, and shall be similar in construction and design to the cars of the Rapid Transit Street Railway Company of the city of Newark, N. J. The company shall use upon its cars the Climax or other noiseless gearing, and shall have proper bells or gongs, and shall be run at a speed of not more than twelve miles an hour.

Section 13. That the cars to be used on said railroad shall be propelled by electricity supplied by overhead wires; that the poles necessary for the overhead electric construction shall be of steel or iron, they shall be placed between curb lines and sidewalk, opposite each other and shall be located as nearly as may be one hundred and twenty-five feet apart. The trolley wire shall be properly guarded so as to prevent other wires coming into contact therewith. The current used by said company to propel its cars shall not exceed five hundred volts.

Section 14. That the fares charged for the transportation of passengers over the said railway within the city of Plainfield, shall be as follows: Children under four years of age, free; children over four and under ten years of age and occupying seats required by other passengers, three cents; all others, five cents. School tickets shall be sold for three cents to all children actually attending school, and to all teachers engaged in teaching school within the city of Plainfield.

That said company shall maintain a system of transfers for a continuous ride within the city limits for a single fare, on all lines now or hereafter owned or operated by said company, and also to give and receive like transfers to and from all the lines of other street railways upon such equitable basis that can be agreed upon by said companies. And in case of failure of any two of said companies to agree upon any such equitable basis of transfer, the question shall be submitted to arbitrators, one to be chosen by each of the disagreeing companies, a like number by the Common Council of the city of Plainfield, and a fifth by the two chosen; the decision of a majority of such arbitrators to be final and conclusive and binding upon each of the companies.

Section 15. That no license fee shall be charged for the running of the cars of the said company for the period of five years from the date of the adoption of this ordinance; that for each and every year next following said first term of five years there shall be paid to the city a license fee of twenty dollars per annum for every car operated by said company.

Section 16. That the cars of the said company shall run upon the following minimum headway, between six A. M. and ten A. M. fifteen minutes; between ten A. M. and three P. M. thirty minutes between three P. M. and eight P. M. fifteen minutes between eight P. M. and midnight thirty minutes. The said headway to be reduced as the service requires. Said company shall run its cars in both directions along all portions of its route so that there shall be an equal number of trips each way daily.

Section 17. That when any improvements or other method for furnishing motive power for the propulsion of cars by electricity shall have been developed to be a practical success, by a commission consisting of one electrical engineer, to be selected by the Common Council, one by the said company, and the third by the two so chosen, such company shall within six months after the passage of a resolution by the Common Council requiring the same to be done, and notice thereof given to said company adopt such improvements or take down their overhead construction, and substitute therefor such improvements or new methods of propulsion; provided such commission may be appointed at any time the Common Council may by resolution require, and the said company shall appoint its representative within thirty days after the adoption of such resolution, or forfeit the permission hereby given; and if such commission shall report in favor of the adoption of such improvements or method for propulsion of cars by electricity hereby permitted, another commission or commissions may be appointed as often as the Common Council may require in the same manner and subject to the same conditions.

Section 18. In case such improvement is made, or the said company shall forfeit the permission hereby given by refusal to appoint a commissioner, the commission as in the last section provided for, the Common Council may order the poles and overhead construction of the said company taken down, and the said company shall within ninety days from the service of such order upon the President or any director of said company take down and remove such poles and overhead construction, and restore the pavement of the street or streets to its original condition within that time. In case the poles and overhead construction are not removed or the street restored to its original condition by any company within ninety days from the service of such order, the same shall be done by the Street Commissioner, at the expense of said company, and the company shall in that case pay all expenses of the same thereon on demand, and in case the city shall remove such poles and overhead construction, the same shall thereupon become and be the property of the city.

Section 19. That said company upon the final adoption of this Ordinance and before exercising any of the rights and privileges granted hereby shall as a condition precedent file with the City Clerk of the city of Plainfield a contract to be executed by said company and duly approved by the Corporation Counsel wherein said company covenant and agree with the inhabitants of the city of Plainfield to abide by and perform all the matters and things herein on the part of said company to be observed, kept and performed; that it will, at any and all times hereafter fully indemnify and protect the city of Plainfield of and from any and all suits, actions and proceedings that may be brought and maintained, or sought to be brought and maintained, by any person or corporation for, on account of or by reason of the construction or maintenance by said company, its successors or assigns of said electric system aforesaid, or the construction or maintenance of said electric system, or anything connected therewith, or any act of omission or commission by said company, its successors or assigns or any of its agents or servants, at any time or times, and shall whenever requested by said city, fully defend any and every such action, suit or proceeding.

Section 20. That said company shall also at the same time herein above specified for filing said contract file a bond to the city in the sum of twenty thousand dollars to be approved as to form by the Common Council and corporation counsel of said city, conditioned for the full and faithful keeping, observance and performance of the terms and conditions in this ordinance contained on part of said company to be kept, observed and performed. And in case the conditions of said bond be broken said company is granted permission to locate its tracks and maintain and operate its road or any of the terms or conditions of the said contract are violated, the city reserves the right to revoke the permission herein granted to remove the tracks of the said company and all the constructions made by it in the streets of the city by the said company, its successors or assigns.

Fees $30.00.

"OH, IF MOTHER WERE ONLY ALIVE!"

All through life she has known a mother's watchful care. She now is a young mother, and gains strength but slowly. She would "give worlds" to do everything for her precious baby, but cannot; the doctor is so strict, and does not sympathize with her, "as mother always did."

That baby has unfolded in the young mother's heart, new emotions. She has a living responsibility, and requires strength to enable her to perform a loving duty. At such a time, too much care cannot be taken, and the Vegetable Compound is indispensable.

SPRECKLES CAUGHT

The Great Sugar Refiner Surrenders to the Trust.

THE BUSINESS TO BE DIVIDED

There Will be No Difficulty Now in Maintaining Prices.

A Claim that the Philadelphia Refinery Will be Run Independently—Business Men Confident that the Object of the Deal is to Curtail Production—Claus Spreckles' Great Gains.

PHILADELPHIA, April 7.—After a fight of over three years Claus Spreckles and the Sugar Trust have come to an understanding by which there will be no further competition between them.

The negotiations, which have been going on for some time, now at New York and again at San Francisco, were virtually concluded in this city yesterday.

Theodore Havemeyer of New York, president of the Sugar Trust, went through the big refinery of Spreckles and made a careful examination of it, and it is understood that the agreement reached at San Francisco between Claus Spreckles and J. Craig Havemeyer was endorsed.

By this agreement Spreckels isn't to sell his sugar in that part of the country east of the Missouri river, and the Havemeyers are not to invade the territory west of the Missouri.

The Trust's refinery in San Francisco and that belonging to Spreckles are to alternate monthly in closing, and in this way it is expected that the production on the Pacific coast can be so regulated that there will be no difficulty in maintaining prices.

When asked what effect this agreement between his father and the Trust would have upon the Philadelphia refinery, Claus Spreckles, jr., while admitting the combination on the Pacific coast, said that it would not effect the refinery here.

Notwithstanding the assertion of Claus Spreckles, jr., that the Philadelphia refinery will not be affected by the deal, it is believed in the sugar trade that steps will be surely taken looking to the curtailment of its production.

Spreckles has received the greater part of the sugar crop of the Sandwich Islands and has made a large sum of money by the removal of the duty on raw sugar.

The large grocers fear the Trust and will look for a cut in profits.

THE OHIO ELECTIONS.

Republicans Carry Cincinnati and Democrats Win in Columbus.

CINCINNATI, April 7.—The municipal election resulted in the re-election of Mayor Mosby (Rep.) by a majority of about 400 and the entire Republican ticket. Theodore Horstman, Republican candidate for corporation counsel, ran ahead of his ticket. His majority will probably be about 9,000 when the returns are all counted. For board of legislation 21 Republicans and 9 Democrats were elected. The Democrats made their fight on the head of the ticket.

COLUMBUS, April 7.—The Democrats carried this city over the Republicans and Citizens' League by majorities ranging from 500 to 1,000, electing all the city officers except a member of the board of public works. The city council and board of education remain in the control of the Republicans, and the board of public works in the hands of the Democrats.

The New York Painters' Strike.

NEW YORK, April 7.—The demand of the journeymen painters for eight hours work per day at the rate of $3.00 per day, has been more successful than expected. According to the reports received at the strikers headquarters, all but twenty-five of the shops out of the eighty-five in which the demand was made have already yielded. The strikers are confident that all the shops will concede their demand. Hitherto the men have received $3 for eight hours work.

Mixed Results in Bridgeport.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 7.—The Republicans of this city are jubilant over the result of the city elections. William H. Marigold, Republican, was elected mayor over Zalmon Goodsell, Democrat, by 232 majority, and Fred C. Bommos, jr., Republican, was elected collector of taxes over William E. Grant, Democrat, by about 700 majority. The balance of the Democratic ticket was elected by majorities greatly reduced from those of previous years. The Democratic majority in this city is usually nearly 1,000.

Lucky Find in a Violin.

BORDENTOWN, N. J., April 7.—Casser Clement, a charcoal burner, bought a violin at an auction in Philadelphia the other day for 75 cents. He could not get any music out of the instrument, and took it apart, when to his surprise he discovered a roll of greenbacks, which footed up $1,700 of legal tender. Now the violin proves to be an excellent instrument, and Clement is called the luckiest man in Burlington County.

THE HUNS ARE ARMING.

Extra Guards Thrown Out at Morewood to Prevent Trouble.

MT. PLEASANT, Pa., April 7.—It was stated this morning by a member of General Wiley's staff, who was at Morewood all day yesterday, that the Hungarians in that vicinity were arming themselves and had been meeting in the houses in the locality. It is feared that they may make trouble, and extra guards have been thrown out and every precaution is being taken to prevent a conflict.

All is quiet on the streets, and if the Huns intend to make a raid they are keeping very quiet about it.

Captain Loar and eight deputies gave themselves up to-day and gave bail in the sum of $300 each on the charge of felonious shooting.

Sheriff Clawson arrested three of Thursday's rioters and they were held in $1,000 bail each. He has warrants for 25 others. The strikers and their friends say that they are being discriminated against, inasmuch as Captain Loar and his deputies, who are charged with felonious shooting, are only held in $300 each, while the strikers are held in $1,000 bail on a charge of rioting.

The coke operators say the backbone of the strike is broken, while the strikers claim that they are more determined than ever to win it.

BARNUM NOT DYING.

Reports of the Old Showman's Condition Are Exaggerated.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 7.—The condition of P. T. Barnum, which was reported to have become worse, is stated by those in charge at his residence to have undergone no change at all. Visitors at the house, however, make the statement that he has changed a great deal for the worse during the last three weeks, although he is not in a dying condition.

The old showman's trip to Denver last fall broke his health down very badly, and his present condition is such that it is feared he will never cross the threshold of Marina again. He is known to be failing and the announcement of his death would not be entirely unexpected to the residents of Bridgeport.

A LYNCHING RUMOR.

An Unconfirmed Report of the Killing of Twenty Italians.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 7.—A report reached this city last evening that 20 Italian miners had been lynched at Newcomb, Tenn. The dispatch stated that the cause of the lynching was a dispute over the New Orleans affair. As no confirmatory dispatch has been received here the story is not credited.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., April 7.—Pittston people say that a number of Italians are drilling in a hall in that place and maintain great secrecy about their actions. The sound of muskets when dropped on the floor of the hall is plainly heard.

Oarsman Shaw Drowned.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 7.—A sad accident happened at Harvard yesterday afternoon. Adelbert Shaw of Fishkill, N. Y., of the class of '94, who has been rowing as No. 4 in the University boat, was out in a single scull, when it was capsized and he was drowned. Shaw's feet were undoubtedly caught in the toe straps. He could not free himself and was drowned like a rat in a hole without being able to make even an attempt to swim.

Arranging for the Grand Cantonment.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 7.—Gen. J. O. Woodward of the Patriarchs Militant is here completing the arrangements for the Grand Cantonment to be held in this city in July. Special rates have been secured from all the railroads. At New York tickets to Syracuse and return will be sold for $4 and at Boston for $5. They will also be sold at reduced rates from all other points.

Action of the Pittsburg Exchange.

PITTSBURG, April 7.—At a meeting of the Pittsburg Oil Exchange it was decided to withdraw formally from the conference of oil exchanges, and deal in oil without conference restrictions. The conference included New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Oil City, Bradford and Titusville. This action is regarded by many as the first step toward dissolution.

Five Men Rescued from an Open Boat.

BANGOR, Me., April 7.—Capt. Lord of the schooner Eva Adell, which arrived here to-day, reports having rescued Capt. Moore and four sailors from an open boat off Boone Island. The men belonged to the schooner Nellie A. Walker, bound for Gardiner, Me., with coal, which foundered in a gale last Thurday.

The Vanderbilts and the Reading Road.

NEW YORK, April 7.—It is stated that the transfer of the control of the Reading property has gone so far that the Vanderbilts have summoned President McLeod to the Grand Central depot to receive instructions as to his future policy.

Foul Play Suspected.

SEYMOUR, Conn., April 7.—The body of an unknown man was found in a pond here last evening. From the appearance of the body foul play is suspected. An autopsy will be held.

WASHINGTON TOPICS

Detectives Sent to New Orleans to Investigate.

BLAINE WANTS ALL THE FACTS.

Senator Edmunds Talks About the Political Situation.

The Hearing With the Canadian Commissioners Postponed—Secretary Foster Says There Will be No Surplus Next Year. Simmons Denied a Writ—Gen. Pike's Funeral—The Big Cruisers.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—There is reason to believe that the government has decided to go to the bottom of the New Orleans affair, and with that end in view has sent to that city a number of the best trained detectives in its employ, who are to act in connection with the United States District-Attorney there and report to him.

The whole matter is to be carefully investigated, beginning with the assassination of Chief of Police Hennessey and ending with the killing of the accused men in the parish prison. The charges as to the existence of the Mafia in New Orleans, the charges as to the bribing of the jury, whose verdict stirred the people to violence, and the quarrels between rival detective agencies there are all to be weighed and reported upon by this experienced force in the government's pay.

This course has been determined upon, it is said, because Mr. Blaine realises that in the end, in order to deal with the claims of Italy in the premises, he must know the whole story. As the case now stands he knows next to nothing, except that Hennessey was killed and that the men accused of the crime shortly followed him. But all the rest is enveloped in mystery.

SENATOR EDMUNDS TALKS.

He Discusses the Farmers' Alliance and the Silver Question.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Senator Edmunds is out in an interview on the general political situation and the probable outcome of the continuance of the Farmers's Alliance movement and agitation of the silver question.

The attitude of the the two great parties in respect to each other and public affairs, he thinks, is unchanged.

What the effect of the Farmers' Alliance movement will be upon the next national election, no one, he thinks, can foresee with precision. When asked if he thought the silver question would be an issue in the next Presidential election, he said:

"I don't think it will be an issue between the Republican and Democratic parties, for I think that the Democratic party will hardly wish to make the silver question an issue to the extent of running any considerable risk of separating silver and gold as the coin money of the country, and certainly the great body of the Republican party, I am sure, will not. Up to the point of safety I have no doubt the Republican party will be in favor of using silver as money as it always has been. What the Farmers' Alliance platform, if it should nominate a candidate for President, will be on that topic I am quite unable to say."

Canadian Commissioners Disappointed.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—The Canadian commissioners have found that they will have to wait for the President's return from his trip to California before they can have a hearing on the reciprocity treaty The delay, however, is not the result of any serious differences of opinion between the respective negotiators, but is the result of the desire of President Harrison to be in Washington while the negotiations are on. The commissioners are disappointed and will leave Washington to-day, returning when the President is in a position to allow the negotiations to proceed.

No Writ for Bank Wrecker Simmons.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—In the Supreme Court of the United States Chief Justice Fuller denied the motion for leave to file an application for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of James A. Simmons, who was convicted of charges arising out of the troubles of the Sixth National Bank of New York. The court announced that the matter was within the jurisdiction of the Circuit Court, and that the remedy, if any, was by a writ of error.

Gen. Albert Pike's Funeral.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Pending the arrival of a sufficient number of members of the Supreme Council, no definite programme as to the funeral of Gen. Albert Pike can be announced. After the removal of the remains from the House of the Temple, they will lie in state in the Scottish Rite cathedral until the Masonic ceremonies are over.

The Big Cruisers.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—A dispatch from Denver stated that orders had been received by Admiral Brown at San Francisco directing that the cruiser San Francisco sail on Wednesday for Chili and the cruiser Charlestown return to Honolulu at once to guard American interests. Secretary Tracy, when shown the dispatch, said it was entirely erroneous that no such orders had been given.

Chicago's City Election.

CHICAGO, April 7.—To-day will be decided one of the most interesting municipal elections in the history of Chicago There are five candidates for mayor in the field, and considerable money has been wagered on each one.

A Prominent Baltimore Lawyer Arrested.

BALTIMORE, April 7.—Joseph A. Thomas, a well-known member of the Baltimore bar, has been arrested by order of Judge Phelps on the charge of forging a set of locks

MURDERED AND ROBBED.

A Young Man's Body Found on the Road Near Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, April 7.—What is believed to have been an assassination and robbery occurred at West Liberty, a hamlet two miles south of Pittsburg.

Early in the morning the body of John W. Gonsawlis was found on the road leading from West Liberty to Pittsburg. There was a pistol wound in his head and his pockets had been rifled of their contents. In the hand of the victim was found a revolver with three empty chambers. There is no clue to the cause of his death, but the officials are satisfied that Gonsawlis was murdered and robbed.

The victim spent the evening with Miss Maggie Smith, to whom he was engaged to be married, and had left West Liberty at 11 o'clock, intending to go to the home of his mother in Allegheny City. Before leaving his sweetheart he showed her a gold and a silver watch and $1,200 in cash, which he told her was to be used in setting them up in housekeeping when they should be married on the 15th of this month. He also exhibited the revolver which was found clutched in his hand.

Of his valuables none were found except his silver watch. The watch was almost buried in the mud, having been trampled upon. There was evidence of a desperate struggle. Mr. Gonsawlis was about 23 years of age.

NOT READY TO PLEAD.

The Indicted Railroad Directors Trying to Secure a Stay of Proceedings.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Notice has been served on District-Attorney Nicoll by the counsel for the 12 indicted directors of the New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company that a motion will be made to-day in the Supreme Court for a stay of proceedings on the indictments found against them.

The district-attorney was also notified that on the 16th of the month a motion would be made for removal of the case from the Court of General Sessions to the Court of Oyer and Terminer.

The notice of motion is accompanied by affidavits of President Charles P. Clark and John M. Bowers, biographical sketches of the 12 directors and a package of newspaper clippings of the proceedings before the coroner and the grand jury.

The directors have been notified to appear to plead to-morrow.

POLICE INTERFERED.

The Daily-Farrell Fight Stopped at the End of the Third Round.

PHILADELPHIA, April 7.—Jim Daily of this city and Pat Farrell of Pittsburg met last night under the auspices of the Quaker City Athletic Club for a purse of $500. The contest was to have been for six rounds, Queensberry rules. The police, however, interfered at the end of the third round and stopped further fighting.

The fight, while it lasted, was fast and furious, with Daily having much the best of it. Farrell was badly winded when the battle was interrupted. About 400 persons were present at the fight.

The referee awarded the fight to Daily

Accidentally Killed His Niece.

AMSTERDAM, N. Y., April 7.—George Mingus, aged 27, while playing with a dog at his home in this city, took a shotgun which he thought was not loaded, and endeavored to snap a cap on it for the purpose of scaring the dog. The gun was loaded, and little Mary Snyder, aged 11, a niece of George, who had suddenly run in front of the gun, received the heavy charge in the neck, killing her instantly.

Gompers Looking for Aid.

OSHKOSH, Wis., April 7.—President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, met the delegates of several labor organizations here and spoke to them about organizing a trades' assembly. After the speech an organization was effected and a charter will be applied for at once. Gompers's principal object in his Western trip is to get aid for the miners who are to strike for the eight-hour day May 1.

No Decrease in Chicago's Death Rate.

CHICAGO, April 7.—The total number of deaths for last week was 960. Two hundred and thirty-two were from pneumonia, and 75 directly the result of influenza. The number of deaths for the past week exceeds that of the previous week by 26, and up to noon there were 93 deaths, which shows no let-up on the dreadful and unusual mortality.

Big Failure in Connecticut.

BIRMINGHAM, Conn., April 7.—The Osborn & Cheeseman Company, manufacturers of brass and brass hardware, passed into the hands of a receiver. Its assets are nominally $750,000 and its liabilities $350,000. The failure was precipitated by the death of the president, George W. Cheeseman, last week.

Decision in Favor of the Call Boy.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Judge Barrett in the Supreme Court granted a certificate of reasonable doubt in the case of Cassin, the Hotel Vendome call boy, who was recently convicted of stealing $12,000 from two bookmakers, guests at the hotel.

A TERRIBLE RECORD

Italy Ordered the Execution of Two Hundred Natives.

AN INVESTIGATION AT ROME.

Abyssinian Merchants Murdered in Order to Secure Their Fortunes.

Rumor Has Parnell Married, but Not to Mrs. O'Shea—Gladstone Denies the Irish Leader's Assertions at Phœnix Park—Minister Porter Interviewed—Startling News from India.

ROME, April 7.—General Baldissera has testified before the commission of inquiry regarding the management of affairs in Africa that he executed 212 natives under instructions from the Italian government during his regime at Massowah.

The investigation now going on here is to bring out the facts respecting the outrages committed by Lieut. Livraghi, who, while chief of police at Massowah, caused prominent Abyssinian merchants to be murdered, in order to possess himself of their fortunes. Subsequent developments, and the above testimony of Gen. Baldissera, would indicate that throat cutting and brigandage have been carried out on a wholesale scale in Italy's possessions on the Red Sea, and this by the government's instructions.

THERE WILL BE NO DUEL.

The King of Roumania Will Retain Minister Vacaresco.

BUCHAREST, April 7.—The King of Roumania has refused to accept the Resignation of M. Vacaresco as Minister at Vienna.

M. Vacaresco offered his resignation in order to challenge the Prince of Reuss, the German Ambassador to Austria, for the affront which the latter's wife recently offered to the son of the Roumanian Minister at a ball given at the German Embassy in the Austrian capital. The German Ambassador refused to accept the challenge on the ground that his wife was justified in taking the course she did.

King Charles has arrived at his decision to retain Minister Varesco after a thorough inquiry into the quarrel.

IS PARNELL MARRIED?

A Sensational Rumor Afloat in London About the Irish Leader.

LONDON, April 7.—A sensational rumor is afloat in the lobby of the House of Commons to the effect that Parnell has been privately married since the O'Shea divorce proceedings, and not to Mrs. O'Shea.

Parnellites who have been questioned on the subject refuse to discuss it, but they say that the mystery of their leader's inner life, often referred to as tending to clear his character from the stain upon it, will shortly be explained.

Irishmen Swarming to America.

DUBLIN, April 7.—The tide of Irish immigration is unabated. Six liners during the past week took 1,946 persons, mostly of the farming class, but including a few mechanics, from Munster and Connaught. Two-thirds of the passage money of these people was paid by their American relatives. All the steamers of the Inman and White Star lines announced to sail have full lists of passengers, and everything indicates that for the next three months the number of immigrants will be fully equal to that of the corresponding period of 1890.

Startling News from India.

LONDON, April 7.—A dispatch has been received at Calcutta from Lieut. Grant, in which he says that he believes he is the only European that escaped the recent massacre in the Province of Assam. Another dispatch says the startling news has reached Calcutta that, emboldened by the recent success of the Manipuris, the Miranzais in the Kohat district of the Peshawer division of the Punjab, have arisen in insurrection.

Germany to Admit Our Pork.

BERLIN, April 7.—It is announced that the German government has definitely resolved to withdraw the embargo on American pork. The official notice will probably be delayed in view of negotiations still going on between the German government and the United States through Minister Phelps.

Following the United States.

LONDON, April 7.—The governments of England, France and Germany have instructed their agents in Brazil to apply to the government at Rio Janeiro for the same commercial advantages as have already been granted to the United States

Gladstone Declares It False.

LONDON, April 7.—In reply to a question as to whether Mr. Parnell's statement at the Phœnix Park meeting in Dublin, that he had received dynamiters at Hawarden was true, Mr. Gladstone telegraphs that the utterance is an absolute falsehood.

Minister Porter Surprised.

ROME, April 7.—Minister Porter, in an interview, showed evident surprise that Italy had executed her threat to recall Fava, but said that he was convinced of a speedy and amicable settlement of pending difficulties despite Fava's recall.

Capt. O'Shea and His Divorce Case.

LONDON, April 7.—Captain O'Shea states that there is a probability that the O'Shea-Parnell divorce suit will be reopened, and that, should such be the case, further revelations of a character injurious to Mr. Parnell will be made.

Two Boys Drowned.

SOUTH FRAMINGHAM, Mass., April 7.—Samuel Entwistle and Willie Dow, aged respectively 14 and 15 years, were drowned at Saxonville during the day by the overturning of their boat.

Fresh To-Day AND Dry To-Morrow.

A complaint often made about cakes and breads. This "peculiar dryness" is caused by the ammonia or alum in the baking powder.

The leavening power of Cleveland's Baking Powder is produced by cream of tartar and soda only, and food raised with it keeps moist and fresh for days.

Cleveland's is the only baking powder having this quality.

NINE PERSONS PERISH.

They Were Caught in a Fire Trap at Rochester, Pa.

ROCHESTER, Pa., April 7.—Nine persons were burned to death in a fire which occurred here shortly after midnight.

The fire broke out in a large frame building on New York street, which was used as a residence and several stores.

Six members of an Italian family who lived over one of the stores lost their lives. One daughter, aged 17, saved herself by jumping to the pavement below.

The girl who saved herself gave the names of the dead as follows: Battistino Teckio, her father; Anna Teckio, her mother; Vattorio Teckio, brother, 13 years old; Fannie and Ross Teckio, sisters; John Teckio, brother; Joseph Rampateni, a boarder.

The men and boys worked for the Rochester Tumbler Company. In addition to these are Mr. Keene and his son Walter.

The fire started in Keene's kitchen and the two were overpowered by the smoke. All the bodies have been recovered but only two, the Keenes, were recognizable. The rest were burned out of all recognition. Searchers found also $150 in gold in the ruins which belonged to the Italians.

THE M'KEE MURDER TRIAL.

Talk of a Duel Growing Out of the Sensational Case.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 7.—There is a new sensation in the McKee poisoning case. Mr. Dietz, the husband of Mrs. Julia A. Dietz, the principal witness against Mrs. McKee, has demanded a public apology in open court from Col. George Fry, one of the counsel for Mrs. McKee.

Col. Fry scored Mrs. Dietz severely in his argument for the defense. He went so far as to compare her actions and demeanor on the witness stand to a ballet dancer Mr. Dietz wrote a note to Col. Fry setting forth his demand for an apology. The excitement is great.

A reporter interviewed Mr. Dietz at the court house and Mr. Dietz said that if the Colonel did not apologize as demanded he will have to answer for it. Dietz and Fry have not met. Both are considered fighting men.

Two of the jurors in the case are sick, and the trial has been continued until Wednesday.

Carpenters in Convention.

WORCESTER, Mass., April 7.—The annual convention of the carpenters of Massachusetts is being held here. Henry R. Lloyd of Boston was chosen chairman and D. Maloney of Cambridge was elected secretary. There was a good attendance, over 50 unions being represented. Resolutions were adopted endorsing the eight-hour system.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

La grippe continues its ravages in New York.

The 25th anniversary of the G. A. R. was widely observed.

Zola has been elected president of the Societe des Gens de Lettres of Paris.

The Kaiser and Queen Victoria will meet at Darmstadt about the end of April.

The carriage manufactory of J. T. Hildreth at Brattleborough, Vt., was destroyed by fire. Loss, $15,000.

The Methodist Conference at Yonkers, N. Y., opposed the proposition to admit women by a vote of 178 to 58.

A dividend of 2 1-2 per cent. on the preferred stock of the New York & New England Railroad has been declared.

The spinners employed by the Jesse Eddy Manufacturing Company at Fall River, Mass., are on strike for an increase of wages.

Secretary Tracy arrived in Boston today, where he is to deliver an address before the Massachusetts Republican Club convention.

At a meeting at Binghamton, N. Y., last evening, arrangements were perfected for an organization to sustain Parnell against his enemies in Ireland.

The Albany, N. Y., telephone office was burned out for the second time, and it is claimed the fire was caused by the trolley wires used on the city railways.

The number of immigrants from Germany to America, in the months of January and February, 1891, has been 7,648, the highest for the same period in five years.

The Policeman Wants $50,000.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Henry Woods, a policeman, has brought suit against Henry Gladwell for $50,000 for the alienation of his wife's affections. The trial has begun in the Supreme Court. Gladwell is a wealthy paper manufacturer.

VanSlyck, 46 West 73rd street, New York, where she was visiting. Miss Taylor, who was quite ill, recently insisted on making a trip to Philadelphia against the advice of Dr. T. S. Davis. The result was additional cold that developed into typhoid-pneumonia.

Comic Opera at The Casino.

Only about one week ago, a proposition was made to bring the Amateur Opera Association of New York City to the Country Club Casino, to give "The Mikado", yet already most of the reserved seats have been taken.

This well-known organization is justly ranked with the best professional companies, and is under the direction of W. W. Thomas. The members have been organized eight years, and invariably are the first amateurs to produce a new opera. Their performance of "The Gondoliers", given while the English Company was playing at Palmer's Theatre, New York, and the Stetson Company was in Brooklyn, was said by the New York Herald to be far superior in every way to either of the latter companies, and the professional were advised to go and see the amateurs for points.

Special scenery and the Thomas Orchestra will be brought from New York for Thursday evening's performance at The Casino. Tickets may be obtained at Reynold's drug store, and at The Casino.

The cast will be as follows:

The Mikado	Mr. Chas. A. Hetzel
Nanki Poo	Mr. Geo. C. Pearce
Pooh Bah	Mr. J. Williams Macy
Koko	Mr. Chas. H. Parsons
Pish Tush	Mr. M. M. Cooper
Yum Yum	Mrs. Emma Henry-Thomas
Pitti Sing	Mrs. Alice Merserean
Peep Bo	Mrs. Lou Moore
Katisha	Miss Annie Lee

If the Doctors Say It's So, It's So.

The medical profession of the city had a dinner at The Albion, last night, and immediately after tendered proprietor F. E. Miller a vote of thanks for it all. The selection of the menu pleased their tastes, the service charmed their sensibilities, and the cooking solaced their digestion. The knew what was good and appreciated the getting of it. So they said so.

Those present were Drs. Jenkins, Tomlinson, Hedges, Fritts, Endicott, Long, Carman, Murray, Hancock, Paul, Manning, Simpson, Ailis and Griffen.

Dr. Dean's Dyspepsia Pills are unquestionably good. They are, in my opinion, all they claim to be. I have tried them and found in them what I needed. I believe they will cure Dyspepsia, and that is saying much for any medicine. I am glad, therefore, to give my testimony.

AFTER THE FIRE-BUGS.

The City Offers $500 Reward for Detection of Incendiaries.

The Plainfield Common Council held the first meeting in their new room last evening. All of the members were present.

The following communication was received from Mayor Gilbert, and by unanimous vote its recommendation was adopted:

The Honorable Common Council of the City of Plainfield.

GENTLEMEN:—In view of the frequent occurrence of fires which strongly indicate that incendiaries are again at work in our midst, I respectfully suggest the propriety of offering a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of any party who shall wilfully set fire to any building within the limits of the city.

Respectfully submitted,
A. GILBERT, Mayor.

Wm. H. Miner, Superintendent of the Boys' Club, was made a special policeman.

Frederick Wenzel was made pound-keeper.

Assessor Hubbard's petition for an increase of $90 in his annual salary was referred to the Finance Committee.

The following communication was also referred:

To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

We, the subscribers, property owners of Peace street, representing over fifty per cent. of the owners on said street, do agree to give to the city of Plainfield eight feet of our land on the southwest side of said street from Front street to Second street, and eight feet on the northeast side, from Front street to the Central Railroad.

Provided, first, that the street be opened and laid out from the northwest side of Front street to green brook or the city line, over the lands of the Young Men's Christian Association, and the estate of Mr. Dunlash.

Provided, secondly, that the subscribers who donate their land for this public benefit shall not be assessed benefits or pay damages, and that the city relay their pavements and set fences.

Cecelia Rossetter, 40 feet.
Mary TenEyck, 60 feet.
Mary L. Force, 125 feet.
S. A. MacDonald, 200 feet.
Chancelor Roll, 60 feet.
A. M. Frazee, 100 feet.
A. T. Thompson, 40 feet.
A. B. Summers, Jr., 40 feet.

Plainfield, N. J., March 27, 1891.

A further petition, from residents on other thoroughfares, asking that Peace street be widened 16 feet, re-named Broadway, and extended to the brook, was filed.

O. B. Leonard, Secretary of the Board of Health, reported that $800 would be needed from the city the coming year.

O. T. Waring applied for permission to erect five dwelling houses at East Sixth and Sycamore streets. The Committee on Fire and Buildings was given power to grant the request.

A long list of local merchants asked that traveling auctioneers opening their sales in town, and flooding the city with inferior goods at the expense of the local dealers who pay taxes on stock and buildings, be charged a license fee of $50, or prohibited from selling altogether. The matter was referred to the Committee on Laws and Ordinances.

The Committee on Streets were given power to lay a crosswalk across Park avenue, between Front and Second streets.

The Committee on Fire and Buildings were given power to permit Frank L. C. Martin to erect a bicycle repair shop opposite the Bicycle Club-house, and to permit F. A. Dunham to erect a frame dwelling on Madison avenue between Sixth and Seventh streets.

S. F. Kimball was made a member of Alert Hose Company. Frank Hand and John Kisterling were made members of No. 2 Engine Company.

Tunis J. Carey presented a bill of $1,080 for services which he never performed. It was referred to the Salary Committee.

Old rubber hose was ordered exchanged for new cotton hose, and alterations in Alert Hose house were authorized, to prepare for the storing of the new hose wagon the company is about to buy.

A resolution accepting Sanford avenue was referred to the Corporation Counsel.

Mr. Corgill, an electrical expert from Boston, made a speech showing the trolley system to be the only reliable and satisfactory method of electrical rapid transit. He proved it to be comparatively noiseless and safe.

Councilman Spangenberg, at the request of Mayor Gilbert, introduced an ordinance compelling all owners of dogs, whether male or female, to muzzle the creatures the year 'round, when on the streets. The ordinance was referred to the Committee on Laws and Ordinances.

The following resolution, introduced by Councilman Rushmore, was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That a Committee of Three be appointed by the President, to draw up a memorial to the Central Railroad of New Jersey, the object of said memorial being to lay before the officials of the railroad the actual necessity that the freight station be removed from its present location, said memorial to bear the signature of each member of this Council, together with that of the Mayor of the city. Further, be it

Resolved, That the said Committee be instructed to present the aforesaid memorial in person to the President and other officials of the railroad company, and urge on him the importance to the city and company alike, of the needed reform.

President Smith appointed Councilman Ginna, Spangenberg and Rushmore, as such committee.

Ordinances changing the grades of East Third street, between Church and Richmond, and North avenue between Richmond and Terrill road, were adopted on first and second readings, and ordered engrossed and advertised.

At 11 o'clock the Council adjourned to Monday night.

I was a sufferer from catarrh for fifteen years, with distressing pain over my eyes. I used Ely's Cream Balm with gratifying results. Am apparently cured.—E. C. Warren, Bulland, Vt.

FIRE-ESCAPES FOR THE SCHOOLS.

And Dr. Carroll is to Deliver the Commencement Address.

The Plainfield public school buildings are to be provided with fire-escapes immediately. At last night's meeting of the Board of Education the matter was brought up by Dr. Probasco, who reported that fire-escapes were not only a proper safeguard to make voluntarily but were required by law. He had procured legal opinion, and had learned that the construction of fire-escapes was obligatory. The Building Committee were given power to construct the escapes as soon as possible.

In this connection the following resolution was adopted:

WHEREAS, by an act of 1880, the trustees are obliged to provide fire-escapes for all the school buildings over one story in height, thus increasing largely the expenses for the coming year,

Resolved, That a requisition be made upon the Assessor and collector to assess and collect the sum of 50-100 per cent. on the taxable valuation of real and personal property in the district, as also the sum required for bonds and interest as made up.

H. K. Carroll, LL. D., of North Plainfield, was invited to deliver the address at the annual commencement exercises of the High school.

Miss Page was engaged as teacher in the Irving building. Louis F. Wadsworth was appointed to take the school census.

Fire.

A frame dwelling house at 163 South Second street, owned by Patrick Moran, was discovered to be afire at about 3:30 this afternoon.

An alarm was sent in from box 45.

The department responded, and saved the house from utter destruction, but the roof was destroyed, and the upper story was burned out.

The fire originated either in the attic, from the chimney, or in the roof, from a locomotive spark.

The house was a double one. The end in which the fire started was vacant. The other was occupied by a family named Fitzgerald, whose household goods were saved.

The damaged house faces the railroad track, and is but a few doors below Plainfield avenue.

To Help One Another.

The Scott's Press Works Mutual Aid Society elected the following officers last evening, at a meeting held in Wetumpka Lodge rooms:

President—Lewis H. Brown.
Vice President—George H. Carpenter.
Treasurer—Henry C. Normer.
Secretary—John Wilson.
Board of Directors—David S. Pope, William Gloak, Thomas Cardiner, Thomas Todd, William Newmiller, James McKenzie, Daniel J. Randall, David Jones and David Allen.

The society starts with a handsome check from Mr. Scott, and a membership of about 175. Its object is to provide aid for sick and disabled members and benefits for their families in case of death.

The Masons' Clerks Win.

The boss masons yielded to-day to the demand of the striking hod-carriers for an increase of 25 cents per day, and received the strikers back to work.

Iron Works Shut Down.

PHILADELPHIA, April 7.—The proprietors of the Pencoyd Iron Works have shut down the puddling department, throwing a large number of men out of employment. The trouble arose from the refusal of the firm to accept the scale of prices adopted by the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers.

The Election in Hartford.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 7.—The Democrats made large gains in the vote for Councilmen, a heavy vote being polled. The Democrats will have a majority of 13 on joint ballot, and will choose a recorder of the city court, a city attorney and prosecuting attorney.

Cunningham Won the Prize.

DETROIT, Mich., April 7.—George Cunningham completed his sleeping fast and won the prize of $500. He was the only one of the six contestants to keep awake the entire 168 hours. Physicians think he can hardly escape serious mental impairment.

A Broker's Death Foretold.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 7.—The Stock Exchange was closed all day owing to the death of Col. Deane the well known broker. It is said that Deane's death at a certain day and hour was prophesied by a customer named Voght, who has disappeared. Voght claimed that he was commanded by God to invest in certain stocks through Deane. This he did and lost money by the investment.

A Woman Expelled from a Church.

PLEASANTVILLE, N. J., April 7.—Mrs. Bradbury, wife of Shoedealer Bradbury, has been expelled from the Baptist Church for intimacy with John Mick. Mick has fled, being threatened with tar and feathers. He confessed.

The Secretary Finished His Trip.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—The War Department officials deny the story printed that Secretary Proctor has been called home on important business from the Pacific coast. They say he has finished his trip to California and, naturally, is coming home; that is the whole story.

1,093 SIGN IT.

ENTHUSIASTIC ENDORSEMENT OF THE PRESS' PETITION TO REMOVE THE FREIGHT HOUSE.

Commuters of Plainfield and North Plainfield Unite in a Prayer to President Maxwell That a Safe and Attractive Approach to the Station be Provided on the South Side.

THE PRESS' petitions that the freight house be removed, have been signed by the Mayor, all the Councilmen and every commuter and property owner in this city who could get the chance. Over the brook Mayor Place and numbers of his good citizens have also signed, and to-day the petitions endorsed by 1,093 names of the best people of city and borough, are sent to President Maxwell.

To add weight to these petitions, the Common Council last evening appointed a committee consisting of Messrs. Ginna, Spangenberg and Rushmore to draw up a memorial to the Central R. R., of N. J., to-lay before the officials of the road the actual necessity that the freight station be removed from its present location. This memorial is to be signed by the Mayor and every member of the Council, and is to be presented in person by the committee who are to urge upon the President the importance to the city and company alike, of the needed reform.

These are THE PRESS' petitions:

"To the President and Board of Directors of the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

"GENTLEMEN:—The undersigned citizens of Plainfield and patrons of your road, would respectfully present to your attention the following condition of things, and request for it all a thorough consideration, followed—at the earliest possible moment—by such remedial action as will be most consistent with your ideas of policy, justice, and frugality, most conducive to our comfort and safety, and that would add most to the attractiveness of Plainfield's main station.

"The only blot upon our fair city today and the greatest obstruction to its growth, is your freight house and yard. We beg of you to remove it, not only because it is so distasteful to our sight and so repugnant to the eye of the stranger within our gates, but because it daily menaces the limbs and lives of almost every inhabitant of Plainfield. Of our city's population but a handful, comparatively, live on the North side of the track. The masses then, if they have only a minute to spare, climb a steep and muddy bank on the South side and jump across the track in front of a 'coaler' to catch their train. If they have two minutes to spare they pick their way through the dirty freight yard and dodge between the shifting cars or climb over them. If they have three minutes to spare they pass down under the bridges to the North side of the track, and travel around the block to reach the station.

"This latter way you will say is the only safe and proper proceeding. But it takes time which we do not always have; and again, those of us who ride do not dare to go that way, for just as we passed under the bridge our train or another would rush over the horses' heads with a noise that would cause them to run away and kill us or ruin themselves forever.

"In spite of this handicap you keep upon us, we yet lead in the race for growth and increase of wealth. Still you are hurting us without helping yourselves. Your freight facilities are not adequate where they are and you own many sites further from the city's centre and out of your patrons' way. As to its convenience for shippers and receivers, that is only a question that affects a few truckmen who can as well drive a few blocks further; though, when you think of it, wherever you move you bring yourself so much nearer to somebody. The question we are presenting to you affects the whole community—its well-being and prosperity.

"It is because there are no macadamized streets leading to such new sites as you have in mind, we can safely promise the city will build them. Talk it over, at least, won't you?

"Very Sincerely Yours," and over a thousand others. The other petition reads as follows and is signed by Mayor Place of North Plainfield, ex-Mayor VanWinkle, ex-Councilmen Squires, Serrell, Myers, Marsh and many more.

The undersigned citizens of Plainfield and North Plainfield, patrons of your road, respectfully but urgently petition you to remove the freight sheds and side tracks from the vicinity of the passenger station quickly as possible. These sheds and the freight trains which obstruct a direct approach to the station on the south side, occasion great inconvenience and danger to us daily, whether we crowd into North avenue or pass through the obstructions. To go around under your bridges on Park avenue and Peace street, is daily becoming more perilous and is a waste of valuable time, morning and evening. A neat passenger station and pretty park, with safe and wide approaches from Fourth street, will make Plainfield more comfortable to us, and attractive to passers by, and will add much to the prosperity of the city, and therefore benefit your road.

Residents of the north side are put to great inconvenience and considerable peril from overcrowding upon North avenue and Park avenue, and this danger will be very much less, both to carriages and pedestrians, when freight wagons shall be directed by your honorable company, to some more appropriate convenient and accessible freight house and yard.

The desire for this change is very general and very earnest, and we trust our appeal will receive your early and favorable attention, in order that these troubles shall not continue a day longer than absolutely necessary. It is indeed miraculous that so few accidents have occurred, when the risks are so imminent every day. Narrow escapes are constantly occurring, and a calamity may happen any day which will cost your road far more than the expense of these changes for which we now petition you most urgently.

"Mr. Wilkinson's Widows."

"Men and Women" possesses the distinction of being the only new piece offered during the theatrical year, that has run until this period of the season. In consequence, however, of arrangements made many months ago, the management of Proctor's Theatre, New York, have been compelled to interrupt the phenomenal run of the play. The farewell performance took place on the 28th of last month. On Monday evening, the 30th, "Mr. Wilkinson's Widows", the new comedy by William Gillette, author of "The Private Secretary" and "All the Comforts of Home", was produced at Proctor's Theatre. The new comedy is an adaptation of an amusing trifle, that enjoyed much favor recently in Paris. In eliminating much of the racy wit that made the plot palatable to French taste, Mr. Gillette has added considerable humor of a more agreeable nature. So that where the scenes lack in the riskiness of the original they will atone by the grotesque for which Mr. Gillette's pen is celebrated. The new comedy has made an instantaneous hit. The company is composed of most capable people. The play has had a most auspicious debut. Truly, Mr. Gillette has written another success. There is not a dull moment in the play. Its characters are natural, its situations ludicrous, and its dialogue sparkling. The performance is a sparkling, fizzing triumph from end to end. In short, "Wilkinson's Widows" is a victory of laughter, and should be witnessed by all persons with sad hearts. It is undoubtedly an emphatic success. The usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees will be given. "Wilkinson's Widows" cannot help but have a long run, as all productions have had at Proctor's Theatre, Twenty-third street, New York.

The Story of Her Own Life.

A novel that has been published only two or three weeks, but that has already found a brisk sale, is "A Social Meteor", whose title page bears the name of "Clement R. Marley". This signature is on its face a sobriquet, and there is every reason to believe the book is from the pen of Mrs. Mollie Haskins, of New York, formerly Miss Mollie Clementine Runyon, daughter of ex-Chancellor Runyon, of Newark, niece of Mrs. Wm. Stanbury of Scotch Plains, and cousin to various Plainfield people of the Runyon and VanWinkle families. She has many friends in this city. In the sobriquet the author has adroitly held to her real name, as will readily be seen by comparing the two. Mrs. Haskins wrote the book some years ago, it is understood, but for one reason or another has kept it from the public until now. Numbers of her friends knew that she was at work upon a novel while it was in process of composition, and to them particularly many of the events described therein are by no means pure fiction. Not a few are said to have taken place within the confines of Newark and Plainfield. The characters, too, are some of them drawn quite closely to the life, with friends and acquaintances as models. Street & Smith, New York, are the publishers.

Will Play Both Plainfield Teams.

The Westfield Athletic Club has completed its arrangements for the coming base-ball season. Great care has been exercised in the selection of a team. The signing of Martin, the Plainfield Crescents' shortstop, has aroused the wrath of the Plainfielders, and caused a corresponding feeling of joy among the Westfield contingent. The schedule of games includes matches with the New York Athletic Club, St. Louis College, Cuban Giants, Newark Stars, Crescents of Plainfield, the female base-ball players, and other prominent ball clubs. The members of the Athletic Club have made up a team of amateurs and have challenged the Plainfield Bicycle Club to play a series of three games during the summer. The ball grounds are to be put in shape immediately, and the Club hopes to have one of the finest diamonds in the State.

A Grand Army Jubilee.

Twenty-five years ago yesterday Major B. F. Stephenson, who had served during the War in the 14th Regt. of Illinois Infantry, mustered in the first organized post of the Grand Army of the Republic, at Decatur, Ill. To celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of this muster and the great prosperity which has attended the order during its first quarter of a century the two posts of this city held commemorative services last evening, when an enjoyable time was had at the rooms of both Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, and Major Anderson Post, No. 109. The Winfield Scott Post's celebration took the form of an open camp-fire. Major W. D. W. Miller presided.

THE COWHIDE BOOTS WON.

Wearers of Patent-Leather Booted by the Borough's Farmer Element.

Here is the way that sprightly New York paper, The Daily Continent, treats the recent exciting legislation in the North Plainfield Borough Council:

"The New York merchants and brokers who have their homes in North Plainfield, N. J., have suffered a signal defeat at the hands of the farmer element of the borough's population.

"For years these factions have been warring over the disposition of road money. The amount appropriated each year is $3,000, the bulk of which the wealthy New Yorkers have continually secured for the macadamizing of handsome pleasure drives through the aristocratic Washington Park, in which they live.

"The main highways have suffered gross neglect, though the farmers and other taxpayers suffering thereby have been very persistent in pushing their claims. After being utterly ignored for six continuous years, they have at last secured recognition.

"When the newly-elected Council organized Friday night, it was discovered that the farmers had won over to their side Councilman Benjamin A. Heyeman, Jr., a prominent young business man of this city. Through his deciding vote, Greenbrook road, one of the most important inlets and outlets to the borough, was ordered paved.

"The work will require two-thirds of the entire year's appropriation. Hitherto the road has been utterly impassable during the winter months, and because of its condition the brick works and other industries in the outskirts, as well as the farming people, have been shut off from civilization six months in the year.

"The passage of the ordinance to pave the road was accompanied by exciting debate and bitter personalities. The farmers, who were present in large numbers, exhibited cowhide boots, thickly covered with mud knee deep, proof positive of the condition of the road, and made caustic comparison of them with the untarnished patent-leather foot wear of their metropolitan opponents."

CAN PROVE HIS INNOCENCE.

The Accused Man Says There Is Not the Slightest Foundation for the Charge.

On Friday, March 27, THE PRESS published, under the heading "Is It a Woman's Daring Plot?", the story of a young woman who was threatening to bring suit against a young man to recover $50,000 damages for a gross wrong which she claimed he had committed. The publication of the story aroused a great deal of speculation concerning the identity of the parties, and caused considerable of a sensation in certain circles. The people interested are still manifesting considerable curiosity over the probable outcome of the matter, and for their benefit THE PRESS now states that the young woman seems to have withdrawn her complaint altogether. In its article of March 27 THE PRESS intimated that the threatened suit was a blackmailing plot, and more thorough investigation strengthens that belief. The young man emphatically denies every charge made against him, and his friends have no doubt of his ability to establish his innocence. Not only this, but it is claimed there is proof that the same scheme was tried by the same woman in the town in which she lived previous to the removal of her family to Plainfield. The question of THE PRESS, "Is It a Woman's Daring Plot?", seems to be effectually answered in the affirmative. There appears to be no chance whatever of the plot succeeding in anything but vindication for the young man and disgrace for the young woman.

A Great Society Man.

Louis R. Blackford is believed to be the busiest man in Plainfield, and all on account of his enthusiasm on the subject of secret societies. He belongs to more organizations than any other man in town and what is more, never in any way gets their work or rituals confused. He is a prominent member of Jerusalem Lodge, F. & A. M.; an officer in the Noah Dove Encampment, Independent Order of Odd Fellows; holds a chair in Unity Lodge, Knights of Pythias; is content to be a lay member of Wetumpka Lodge, Knights of Honor, and yet has time to be a whooping brave in the Improved Order of Red Men. In addition to all these he is Treasurer of one Endowment Insurance Association, pays his dues regularly in the Junior Order of American Mechanics, attends every meeting of the Legion of Honor, and hopes to get rich by an endowment from the Iron Hall in a few years. In all, nine societies share his love and devotion, but none of them has reason to complain of any lessening of regard. Besides all this, Mr. Blackford is a prominent Democratic politician, and presided at the last Convention of the party in Somerville, when Speaker of Assembly Bergen and Senator W. J. Keys were nominated. He is prosperous and happy, and is about as popular a man as there is in North Plainfield. His friends and society brethren want him to go in for a political position. If he ever should consent to a nomination for any office, his Republican opponent would have a very rocky turnpike to travel towards election.

TEMPERANCE NOTES

THE DRINK WOLF.

A Striking Illustration of the Temperance Situation To-Day.

The following is an extract from Miss Willard's speech at the Congregational church, Washington, D. C., February 15, 1891:

"Some men went out hunting in an eastern state in the earlier days. It was their first experience; they had a hound with them and soon a wolf was started. The men had not bargained for this and were considerably alarmed; not so the dog; he sighted the game and bounded in pursuit. His was a valuable hound and the men feared they might lose him, but he followed fast and followed faster after the wolf. Pretty soon he was deep in the woods and the men came along as best they could, far in the rear. They tried to call off their dog, but he pursued the trail. They said it would have been better to come up on the other side, to have surrounded the wolf in some way, to have waited until they had a stronger force. They yelled to the dog (wasting a good deal of time and strength that way), but on and on he went. Then they cursed him with curses loud and deep, but he was too far ahead of them to hear or heed. He knew nothing except the trail, and he cared for nothing save to kill the wolf. The yelp of that dog disturbed the men as he ran on crying out the louder, and finally, when they caught up with him, he was in the desperate grip, tooth to tooth, blood for blood, life for life. He was desperately wounded, but the throat of the wolf was severed, and the dog victor; that wolf would haunt the chicken coops no more.

"Thinking upon this story, I am reminded of a wolf that prowls around the homesteads of this land. The great hunt is going forward. There are loud halloos and vast confusion; and behold! there is a hound that has broken from the leash of centuries and taken to the trail; its yelp is in a clear soprano key; it follows fast and follows faster; men are afraid that harm may come to it; they think another way might be better than this; they wonder if some how the territory of the wolf cannot be hedged in; they fear that harm will come to combinations with which their ambitions are bound up; they are for calling off the dog; but it has scented the game; its nose is on the trail down close; its steps are swifter than the wind; it knows only one thing—to follow the wolf. No mortal man can stop it. You cannot persuade—you cannot coax—you cannot frighten; the dog has gone beyond your reach, beyond your voice. Voters of this audience, you well know what I mean:—the liquor traffic is that wolf; the W. C. T. U. has started in pursuit; wherever the wolf goes, there we shall follow. He is entrenched in social custom, away we follow after him with the total abstinence pledge. He is barricaded in the people's ignorance; away we go after him into the public schools with a 'Thus saith nature, thus saith reason,' against the drink habit. He is fortified by law; away we go after him into the legislatures. His favorite thicket and hiding place is politics; away we go to national and state conventions, and no matter how much of contradiction we have to endure, no matter how much galling fire of harsh criticism, not easy for gentle hearts to bear, be it remembered that there is now on track of the liquor wolf a hound that does not know how to be afraid, that has not sense enough to retreat, that makes of this great chase a thing of life and death, and will follow the wolf until his death wound has been given, and his last drop of blood sprinkles the snows of a whiter civilization."—Union Signal.

DIRE EFFECTS OF ALCOHOL.

It Serves Only to Paralyze and Hasten Dissolution.

It is a common belief that the use of alcohol will prolong the life of a dying man, but it is a great mistake. It serves instead to shorten his hours by drawing upon the little remaining fund of vitality. Alcohol can do no good except in such a case as this: When a man seems to be dying and really is not dying it may serve as a spur to get him past the critical moment, just as the sharp cut of a whip might enable a horse to reach the top of a hill when his flagging energy made him in danger of falling backward. A person may be suffering from some preverse inhibitory action of the nerves when a stimulant of this kind will start up the action of the heart, and so save his life. But the after effects of alcohol upon the heart are always paralyzing. Its first effects are as an irritant to the stomach, and this temporarily quickens the action of the heart by reflex action, but the further effects are always adverse. Alcohol is never good for a person in a fainting fit or in a collapse, for as soon as the alcohol is absorbed it tends to increase the weakness.

The paralyzing influence of alcohol may be illustrated by putting a drop or two upon the lips. It paralyzes the nerves of sensation which normally are extremely sensitive in the lips, so that if an instrument for testing the tactile sensibility be applied the person is unable to determine whether one or two points are in contact at a distance apart of which he should have full knowledge. Alcohol does that very same thing for the nerve centers. A better way to get up healthful stimulation is to apply heat over the heart. In a prolonged surgical operation, if we see that a person is likely to die from loss of blood, we apply hot fomentation over the heart, or perhaps introduce large quantities of hot water into the bowels, and this will rally a sinking patient. I know of no other means which will act so quickly. Another very efficient means is to apply heat to the spine. Alcohol is used sometimes, but there are other remedies which are a great deal more useful, because there are none of the after narcotic effects which are sure to attend the use of alcohol.—Dr. J. H. Kellogg, Battle Creek, Mich.

Here's our card.

It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are not straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public esteem accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for telling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of Shoes.

PURSUED BY SAURIANS.

The Timely Arrival of Another Deadly Enemy Saves Us.

IN THE WINTER of 1889-90 the rainfall of south Florida was somewhat remarkable, and all of the rivers, lagoons and low swamps became greatly changed in appearance owing to the quantities of water rushing toward the sea. The extreme southern part of the peninsula was especially flooded, and many of the low-lying mangrove swamps had the appearance of forest trees growing in the middle of the sea.

We were spending the winter along the coast, making occasional brief excursions into the interior to obtain whatever of scientific interest that we could find, or to enjoy a few days' sport in hunting the wild game.

James Walton was a fellow student with myself, and through the advice of a physician we had both exchanged books of natural history for study in the field. South Florida opened up a field that was rich in every department of science, and when we were engaged in studying the flora or fauna of that region we never failed to make observations and discoveries that interested and instructed.

In the course of time, however, the continually rising waters forced us from dry land, and we had to construct a rude platform for our home. This was built by driving heavy stakes in the ground, and then putting a log platform on the top of the stakes. The water never rose quite up to the top of this platform, but once or twice it reached within several inches of it.

The platform, with our rude shanty on it, was situated close to a huge mangrove swamp, and near enough to Jupiter inlet to give us a distinct view of the ocean. We could thus reach salt and fresh water birds and fish with but little difficulty.

Shortly after the holidays the water reached its highest mark, and we found ourselves living, as it were, right in the midst of a large sea, and with here and there forests of trees growing out of it. With our little canoe we could paddle far up into the interior, and we frequently spent days in exploring the submerged country.

One day James and I entered a little cove in one of the large mangrove swamps, or lakes, as they really were, some two or three miles from the camp. We shot a few wild ducks to replenish our stock of provisions. After paddling around for some time we startled up a flock of wild birds, which scurried out of the brakes so rapidly and suddenly that we could not get a good glimpse of them. To prevent any great prize from escaping, we shot indiscriminately into the flock, and brought three down.

The three birds were wounded and their cries soon attracted the other birds of the swamp. They proved to be pelicans and they made desperate efforts to get beyond our reach. We picked up two of the screaming creatures, and then started for the third.

Before we reached the last one our attention was attracted by a ripple in the water, and then by the black head of an alligator moving rapidly toward the screaming bird. The winter had been a hard one, and the voracious saurians had become bold and desperate in their hunger. Otherwise the big fellow would never have ventured out in broad daylight and attempted to steal the game right from under our nose.

"Paddle for the bird," James shouted, as he saw the alligator. "We can beat that fellow."

Out of fun and a wild desire for ventures we entered the race and paddled our best. The alligator, nothing daunted by our approach, increased his speed few large ones out nor hold the distance between us. Several of the small ones dropped out of the race, but five of the larger ones steadily gained on us.

We gave a sigh of relief when we rounded the last point of land and saw our elevated log cabin in the distance. But there was no sign of help there, and our hearts failed us. The guides were either sleeping or out hunting. A groan of despair followed our sigh of relief. The foremost alligator leaped toward us and snapped his jaws within five feet of the canoe. Another attempted to reach us, but failed. Then they settled down to work again, but we were so paralyzed with fear that our arms could make only ineffectual efforts to paddle rapidly.

"We're lost," groaned James, "unless we can frighten them."

Our guns not being loaded proved practically useless; but we both jumped up and tried to strike the saurians with the paddles. The creatures stopped for a minute and swam in a circle round the canoe. They knew that they had cornered their prey, and they seemed to be gloating over their coming feast. Our attempts to frighten them, however, were ineffectual, and when we struck one on the tail, he turned around and snapped savagely at the paddle. We saved the canoe by jumping back and giving the frail craft a slight lurch to one side.

Our brave fight would soon have terminated disastrously for us had not another creature appeared on the scene. There was a slight ripple in the water a short distance off, and then the huge fins of an ugly-looking shark glided through the water. The heavy floods had made the water in the inlet so deep that the finny monster had ventured far inshore after food. The noise of the battle had attracted his attention, and he was approaching the scene.

The five alligators waited expectantly for the new enemy, and when the huge shark turned over to seize one of the creatures the heavy saurians returned the attack. The battle was evidently a surprise to, both parties. The shark was unaccustomed to such tough-skinned enemies, and after the first encounter he regretted his rashness.

But it was too late to retreat then. The alligators, pressed on with hunger, surrounded the huge fish and soon tore him to pieces. The red blood dyed the water for many rods around, and the splashing of the heavy tails told the story of the fierce conflict going on. The shark was gamey to the last, and before he succumbed one of the huge saurians was floating on his back dead and another swimming painfully toward the mangrove swamps badly injured.

We lost no time in getting away from the scene of the conflict, and when we reached the camp we were completely exhausted. The remembrance of that race, and how the shark saved us, is always before our minds when we think of the sunny land of Florida.—George E. Walsh, in Yankee Blade.

IN THE MIDST OF A LARGE SEA.

Indigestion in the Falkland Islands.

It is popularly considered that that frightful enemy, indigestion, is a malady, to a great extent, consequent upon our high state of civilization. In the medical report on the health of the inhabitants of the Falkland islands, the assistant colonial surgeon observes that the bane of this remote territory is chronic indigestion. He attributes this fact to two reasons. In the first place to the enormous amount of tea and coffee consumed by the inhabitants; and, secondly, to the ignorance of the majority of the women of the most rudimentary laws of cooking.—N. Y. Journal.

DEER HUNTING IN THE ANDES.

South American Indians Seize Any Advantage Over Them They Can.

The manner in which the South American Indians hunt deer in the Cordilleras is very interesting and somewhat ingenious, says the Detroit Free Press. They first ascertain the locality in which the animals congregate to graze, and then the men, women, and old children of the tribe make extensive preparations to hem in the herd. In order to cause a stampede they blow horns, yell, and make other bewildering and outlandish noises. As a natural consequence the frightened deer quit their grazing places. They form in line in regular marching order, the elder males leading the way, followed by the females and young, while the rear of the column is brought up by the young bucks, who act as protectors to the centers.

The Indians now close in on them, seeing which the animals prepare to do battle for their lives. The hunters then proceed to prepare the instruments of destruction, consisting of large lances, resinous torches, and nooses fixed to long poles.

The worst enemy of the deer is the jaguar and wildcat, and their animosity to them is such that they have been known to leap over a hunter in order to attack either of these feline foes. The Indians knowing this, employ it to great advantage during these hunts. The women stuff a number of jaguar and cat skins, which are placed in prominent positions on the edge of precipices, in full view of the deer. Immediately the bucks make a violent effort to get at them, in order to hurl them into the abyss beneath, but are thus treated themselves by the wily hunters, who push them over the cliffs, where they are quickly hamstrung or otherwise disabled by the women, who are stationed below. After the first onslaught on the stuffed figures the remaining deer seem to recognize the fact that they have been tricked and huddle together, awaiting another attack.

Then the Indians throw lighted torches among them and a panic ensues. They make desperate efforts to escape, but the relentless hunters drive them over the crags until they see that a sufficient number have been captured—usually four or five hundred. They do not usually harm the females and fawns and also allow a few bucks to escape. Very seldom is a doe killed, and if a fawn is captured it is immediately liberated. The flesh is eaten by the Indians and also carried to the village to be sold, while the skins are either purchased by dealers or made up into various articles by those who assisted in their capture.

MENNONITES OF RUSSIA.

The Hardships of a Christian Sect Under the Czar's Government.

The Mennonites of Russia, as well as Hebrews, are complaining of the severities of the czar's government, and, but for the obstacles to their emigration, the whole body of them would probably come to this country. They are a Christian sect over three centuries old, and hold a baptismal doctrine not recognized by the orthodox Greek church, into which the government has tried to drive them.

The Russian Mennonites, who number only about 60,000, took up their habitation in southern Russia, near the sea of Azov, about a century ago, explains the New York Sun, having then left Prussia on account of the hardships to which they were subjected. They are a peaceful, intelligent, virtuous and industrious people and they have enjoyed rare prosperity in that region.

The main trouble of the government with them grows out of their religious principle of non-resistance and their refusal to render military service. For a long period of time they were exempt from service by the decrees of the czars, but this privilege was withdrawn twenty years ago. They then obtained permission to leave Russia within a specified time.

In 1873 they began to take advantage of it, and several thousand of them found refuge in this country. The first colonies went as farmers to Kansas and Minnesota, where they purchased land and got along finely. The czar seeing their determination modified his decree of conscription, and gave orders that, in time of war, they should be required only to render service in the military hospitals. The granting of this privilege and the expiration of the period during which they were allowed to emigrate stopped the mennonite movement to America. The whole body of them was desirous of leaving Russia, as they left Prussia a century ago.

Now again they are suffering hardships through the operation of the conscription law and through the czar's determination to bring them into the orthodox fold. If permission could be obtained by them to leave Russia they would follow those of their brethren who came here eighteen years ago.

Mapping the World.

Almost the whole of Europe has been covered by exact surveys. Even in the Balkan states, where the easygoing and unscientific Turk has done almost nothing to map the country that was long under his control, the work has been done for him by the enterprise of the Russians, Austrians and Germans, who naturally have taken a very great interest in mapping this mountainous and debatable quarter of Europe, says Goldthwaite's Geographical Magazine. The first country on the continent to undertake these minute surveys was France, in 1750, and the work has steadily progressed in various countries until almost the whole of Europe has been mapped in beautiful and elaborate detail. We find, however, that in a large part of Scandinavia, Spain and eastern Russia map-makers have not yet the advantage of these detailed surveys.

An Illuminated Cat.

An illuminated cat is among the curiosities of the patent office at Washington, D. C. It is made of pasteboard or tin painted over with phosphorus, and is intended to frighten away "rats and mice and such small deer" in the darkness of cellars and garrets.

Grandma—Hello, Enoch! Glad ter see yer. Dew take yer things right off.

Enoch—Cold night—ain't it?—Harper's Bazar.

Had Cause To.

"Yes," said Boggs unthinkingly, in conversation with the company who were making a call on himself and Mrs. Boggs, "I can remember events of long ago as if they were but yesterday. When I think of my boyhood days—of my escapades in schools, of many of my youthful and even later actions, and how I got married, I can't help smiling and thinking how many foolish things I've done."

And Boggs wondered why his wife treated him so coolly after the visitors had gone.—Boston Herald.

Can't Lose Their Checks.

In the Japanese theaters they do not issue return checks to those who desire to go out between the acts "to see a man." The doorkeeper stamps the seal of the theater on the right hand of each person passing out. Consequently, the familiar cry of "Please, mister, gi' me a check?" is never heard outside the doors of a Japan theater.

FEARFUL EXPLOSION.

A terrific blow-up.
What was the cause?
Over-tension—too high pressure of steam.
Have you ever stopped to think that this verdict might be written as an epitaph on the tombstones of thousands upon thousands of our people?
Over-tension—too high pressure of steam!
It not only fills thousands of graves annually, but crowds the mad-houses and insane asylums to overflowing; makes our private dwellings shelter the weakened nerves, the exhausted bodies, the ruined hopes, the blasted lives of young, middle-aged and old alike; builds mammoth hospitals in which every ward teams with suffering humanity—hospitals which are monuments to the wrecks of minds and intellects, the shattered brains and nerves, the ruined constitutions of millions.
Do you have any doubt of this?
Look to your own family, to your friends, to yourself.
Remember your father who died of overwork before he reached middle-age; remember your brother who from over-taxed strength, grew weak, pale, bloodless, enervated; remember your friend who, brain-tire and nerves strained to dangerous tension, with nerveless arm attempted suicide, and later became the inmate of an insane asylum: remember yourself—your oft recurring weak feelings, your tired, trembling limbs, your dull, head-feeling head, sleepless nights and restless, nervous days.
Recollect these things and understand that you are running under too high a pressure. It may be of business, physical overwork, pleasure or dissipation, the result will be the same—explosion of health, both nervous and physical, unless you receive help from some source, and remember that these symptoms and conditions are doubly dangerous in the Spring of the year.
To what source of help will you turn?
Naturally to that well-known remedy which you know will so surely and quickly cure nervous disorders—Dr. Greene's Nervura. It is pronounced by all to be a most wonderful nerve strengthener, a marvellous stomach remedy and the most perfect cure known for all those weakening and debilitating nervous diseases which result from mental or physical overwork &c. It is purely vegetable and harmless, and is for sale by all druggists at $1 per bottle.

GLAD TIDINGS OF HEALTH.

I suffered much pain, could not eat or sleep well, and felt miserable. I used Dr. Greene's Nervura, and took it but a few weeks before I was completely cured. I advise all who are complaining to use Dr. Greene's Nervura.

GEORGE W. LAMB,
17 to 27 North Water St., Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Dr. Greene, of 35 West Fourteenth St., New York, its discoverer, is the famous specialist in the cure of nervous and chronic diseases. The doctor has devoted special attention to the treatment of all forms of chronic diseases through letter correspondence, and will give by mail his opinion and advice in any case free of charge. The perfection of this system renders a complete cure almost assured, as his success in treatment by correspondence is wonderful and unequalled.

N. B. Send for symptom blank to fill out, or write Dr. Greene about your case, and a carefully considered letter, fully explaining your disease and giving you a perfect understanding of all its symptoms will be returned, free of charge.

P. T. BARNUM IS DEAD

The King of Showmen Passed Peacefully Away.

SURROUNDED BY HIS FAMILY.

The Funeral to Take Place Friday and Will be Without Ostentation.

To be Buried in Mountain Grove Cemetery, Bridgeport—An Effort to Induce the Family to Have the Obsequies Public—Sketch of His Great Career—His Estate Valued at $5,000,000.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 8.—P. T. Barnum, the great showman, is dead. He passed away at 6:23 o'clock last evening in the presence of his family and intimate friends.

Among the sorrowing group in the room when the end came were Mrs. Barnum, Rev. L. B. Fisher, Mrs. Thompson, his daughter, Mrs. Clarke of New York; Miss May Read, his niece; Mrs. Bushtelle, another daughter; Clinton H. Seeley, his grandson and principal heir; Benjamin Fish, Mrs. Barnum's brother; Dr. Hubbard, Mrs. Rikeman, the housekeeper, and the nurse.

Mr. Barnum's illness and confinement to the house began 21 weeks ago and during this period there have been frequent fluctuations in his condition. A few hours before his death Mr. Barnum suffered a good deal of pain and seemed to realize that he could not live much longer, but he spoke of his approaching end with calmness, and told his physicians when all hope was gone he wished to be given sedatives which would allay his pain and make his death as peaceful as possible.

At 3:30 Mr. Barnum sank into a comatose condition from which he never rallied, and when the end came it was peaceful and to all appearances painless. The physicians say that Mr. Barnum had no organic disease whatever, the enfeebled heart action, which has been noticed for the past few months, being due to a gradual failure of his mental powers, resulting from old age.

Mr. Barnum, in a general way, had prescribed directions for his funeral. He wished it to be of a strictly private character. He directed that the interment should be in Mountain Grove Cemetery, where several years ago he erected a massive granite monument of simple design.

The funeral will be held in the North Congregational church on Friday, and will be conducted by Rev. L. B. Fisher, the Universalist pastor, assisted by Rev. Charles R. Palmer, of the North Congregational church.

An effort will probably be made to induce the family to have the obsequies public, but the family, from present indications, will strictly adhere to the wishes of the deceased.

BARNUM'S BUSY LIFE.

Nearly Half a Century He Has Been Before the Public.

Phineas Taylor Barnum was born in Bethel, Conn., July 5, 1810. His father was a country innkeeper and a merchant in a small way. Phineas from the age of 13 to 18 years, was in many different businesses, part of the time in Brooklyn and part in New York City.

He gathered together a little money and came back to Bethel and started a little store. He took the agency for a lottery chartered by the State to build the Groton monument. He failed in business in 1829, got married and started a newspaper called the Herald of Freedom.

It was not long before he was in jail for libel. In 1834 he brought to New York a colored woman, Joyce Heth, said to be 161 years old and the nurse of George Washington. A post mortem showed she had added 80 years to her age.

But Barnum had got a taste of the show business and never afterward forsook it. He traveled through the South with one-horse circuses, which were generally unsuccessful. In 1841, without a dollar of his own, he bought out Scudder's Museum, renamed it, and managed to make it pay. He brought out Charles S. Stratton (Tom Thumb) then less than two feet high and weighing only 16 pounds.

He took the dwarf through the United States and Europe and made money. But it was in 1849, when he brought Jenny Lind over and got her to sing in Castle Garden, New York, that he first made a national reputation for himself. He paid her $1,000 a night, and the gross receipts of a tour of 95 concerts were $712,161.

Booming Bridgeport.

He retired from business in 1855, and devoted his attention to booming the town of East Bridgeport, Conn. In order to encourage a manufacturing company to establish itself there he indorsed their notes for nearly $1,000,000. The company failed and Barnum went into bankruptcy, but he had settled a fortune upon his wife and he started in the show business again.

He took charge of his old museum once more. It was then at the corner of Broadway and Ann street, New York. While there he astonished the vestry of Trinity Church by asking permission to stretch an advertising banner from his museum to the steeple of St. Paul's chapel.

This was the finest specimen of sublime nerve then known to the American people. On July 13, 1865, the museum burned down, and he got an unlimited quantity of advertising out of it by securing the publication of a most gaudy account of the way the orang-outang and the lion and other denizens of the tropical forests took the conflagration. He rebuilt it and again it burned.

In 1871 he established a traveling museum and added numerous features, like the hippodrome and elephant races, to the old circus. Never was a traveling show so advertised, and the country boys for weeks pored over his Advance Courier with more interest than that given to any yellow-backed novel.

He used to give temperance lectures from the ring and was himself a prominent feature in the street parade.

Four Times a Mayor.

Mr. Barnum was four times a member of the Connecticut Legislature and a mayor of Bridgeport. He presented that city with a public park.

He also gave a stone museum to Tuft's College, near Boston. His autobiography, several times rewritten, and a story called "Lion Jack" are among his literary achievements.

Mr. Barnum made his will several years ago. His estate will inventory $5,000,000, and it is understood that it will be equally divided among his heirs.

STAY FOR THE DIRECTORS.

New Haven Officials Want to be Tried in Oyer and Terminer.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Proceedings under the indictment against the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad directors were stayed by Judge Barrett in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, after hearing argument.

This stay is to operate against a trial pending a motion to change the place of trial from the General Sessions to the Oyer and Terminer, which will be argued on April 16.

Coke Strikers May Resort to Dynamite.

MT. PLEASANT, Pa., April 8.—A nervous feeling has been created by the report now in circulation that the strikers have in their possession large quantities of dynamite, and a reputable physician of Mount Pleasant has reported to headquarters that he was informed by a local labor leader that the strikers would use the dynamite if it became necessary. The militia officers concede that they would not have much show against the strikers if the latter resorted to the explosive, and they admit that the damage that could be done could not be estimated.

Parkerson Before the Grand Jury.

NEW ORLEANS, April 8.—The grand jury has begun the official inquiry into the killing of the Italian prisoners in the parish prison on March 14. Attorney-General Rogers has charge of the investigation. Among the witnesses were W. S. Parkerson and James D. Houston, two of the men who were on the committee which took charge of the "disposition" of the Italian prisoners.

State Comptroller Staub's Answer.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 8.—Counsel for State Comptroller Staub has filed an answer to the application for a writ of mandamus made by Executive Secretary Brainard. The answer avers that Brainard is not the executive secretary, and, therefore, there is no money due him. No date has as yet been set for argument of the application in the Superior Court.

Assaulted and Robbed.

BOSTON, April 8.—Eliot Barker, of Gloucester, was assaulted and robbed in this city of about $50 in cash and a bond for $1,000 of the Hudson & St. Lawrence Railroad Company. Suspected persons have been arrested for the robbery, but no trace has yet been found of the lost bond.

The Fitzsimmons-Hall Fight.

CHICAGO, April 8.—Pugilist Bob Fitzsimmons says that his coming battle with Hall will take place at Astoria, Oregon, in July for the $17,000. The loser is to get $2,000 and each man is to put up $1,000. Fitzsimmons is confident that he will win the fight.

Pugilist Farrell Dissatisfied.

PHILADELPHIA, April 8.—James Daly, who defeated Pat Farrell, says he has learned that Farrell is not satisfied with the contest and demands another match. This Daly is willing to make, and offers to fight Farrell for from $1,000 to $2,000 a side.

Sent a Bullet Through His Heart.

CAMDEN, N. J., April 8.—Pushing on the trigger of an old gun with his toe John Stow, a commission merchant of 116 Spruce street, Philadelphia, sent a bullet through his heart at his home in this city. Financial embarrassment is supposed to be the cause.

Harvard University Gets $30,000

DEDHAM, Mass., April 8.—Among other bequests in the will of the late Rev. Frederick Frothingham, which was filed to-day, is $30,000 to the Harvard University, Cambridge, to found an ecclesiastical history professorship in the Theological School.

EDMUNDS TO RETIRE

The Senator from Vermont Has Resigned.

ILL HEALTH THE GREAT CAUSE.

A Republican Leader in the Upper House for Twenty-five Years.

His Letter of Resignation Forwarded to the Governor of Vermont and Vice-President Morton—He Will Visit Washington Occasionally to Attend the Sessions of the Supreme Court—Sketch of His Career.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—When the United States Senate meets in December next Mr. George F. Edmunds, of Vermont, will not be present. His resignation is now in the hands of the Governor, to take effect Nov. 1.

The following is a copy of the letter tendering his resignation to the Governor of Vermont:

"SIR—Considerations entirely personal lead me to tender to you, as the Governor of the State of Vermont, my resignation of the office of Senator of the United States, the resignation to take effect on the 1st day of November, A. D. 1891.

"This action has been for some time in contemplation and is finally decided on and communicated to you at this time in order that there may be ample time to hear and consider the views of the people of our State in respect to the selection of my successor.

"In thus terminating my official relations with the State I beg to express to her steadfast, intelligent and patriotic citizens my profound gratitude for the long and unwavering confidence and support they have given me (covering an eventful period of a quarter of a century) in my efforts to promote and defend, so far as I have been able, their honor and welfare in common with that of all the people of the United States.

"In ceasing to be a Senator I am proud that I continue to be a citizen of our beloved Commonwealth, and that I may with my fellow citizens in private life continue to strive for the maintenance of those principles of liberty, equality and justice in government which have, without the shadow of turning, animated them from the foundation of the Republic."

Senator Edmunds also notified Vice-President Morton, the President of the Senate, of his resignation.

SENATOR EDMUNDS' CAREER.

Twenty-five Years a Republican Leader in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—To a reporter Senator Edmunds said: "I resigned from personal considerations. It is a pure matter of health. I cannot live in Washington during the winter. I suffer from throat trouble and the climate is too severe. I hold that a Senator should attend to his duties, and if I cannot remain in Washington constantly I prefer to resign. I shall spend the winters in Aiken, S. C., visiting Washington occasionally to attend the sessions of the Supreme Court when I have business before it. But it is safe to assert that I have retired from politics for good."

GEORGE F. EDMUNDS.

Senator Edmunds was appointed by the Governor of Vermont to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Senator Solomon Foote. He took his seat April 5, 1866. When the Legislature met he was elected to fill the remainder of the term ending March 4, 1869, and has since been four times re-elected. He was a member of the Electoral Commission of 1876, and since 1877 has been the chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Keen and incisive in debate, courtly and polished in manner, judicial in mind and strong in all the qualities which go to make up a leader of leaders, no man in public life will be so missed. He has been called the St. Jerome of the Senate because of his supposed austerity. There could be no greater mistake. He is as witty as Ingalls, as companionable as Vest and as mellow and attractive in his personal attributes as Allen G. Thurman, his old-time Senatorial crony.

The news of his resignation will be read with regret by his associates in the Senate, to whom the announcement will be wholly unexpected.

Will Hold Midnight Services.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The Supreme Council decided to hold the Masonic memorial services over Gen. Albert Pike at the Congregational church to-morrow at midnight. The religious ceremonies will take place at Ascension church Friday afternoon, Rev. Dr. Eliott officiating. Until the gentlemen who have been selected as pall bearers send their responses their names will be withheld from publication. The interment will be at Oak Hill cemetery.

Bold Escape of a Prisoner.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 8.—Jacob K. Knobles, bicycle and horse thief, has escaped from the Monroe County jail. While talking with his lawyer he rushed past him and the turnkey and out of the open door.

Died at the Age of 92.

ELIZABETH, N. J., April 8.—Ex-Alderman John D. Norris, Elizabeth's oldest male inhabitant, is dead, aged 92. He was one of the largest owners of real estate in the city, where he lived all his life.

Grandfather and Grandson Drowned.

DOVER, N. H., April 8.—Daniel Dixon and his grandson were drowned during the morning near the Dover Point bridge by the capsizing of their boat.

KILLED HIS COUNTRYMAN.

An Italian Murdered in the Public Market Place at Syracuse.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 8.—Niccola Davita, an Italian, was shot and killed in the public market place here last night by a fellow countryman named Antonio Guiglielmi. The men occupied adjoining fruit stands, and a feud is said to have existed between the two for the past two years.

At 10 o'clock last night the men had a quarrel, which ended in Guiglielmi drawing a revolver and shooting Davita through the head. When the latter fell Guiglielmi stood over him and fired three times into his prostrate body.

An officer rushed up at this moment and the revolver was turned upon him, but the officer was too quick for the murderer and knocked him down with a blow of his club and disarmed him.

Guiglielmi, who is one of the wealthiest Italians in the city, claims that Davita drew a knife on him and that he fired in self defense.

WARNING TO THE POLICE.

Philadelphia's New Mayor Tells the Blue Coats to Keep Out of Politics.

PHILADELPHIA, April 8.—In pursuance of the sentiments expressed in accepting the nomination for the office that the police keep out of politics, Mayor Stuart issued the following general order to the police department:

"All persons connected with the Bureau Police in any capacity serving as members of the Ward Executive committees or of the City Campaign Committee are requested to withdraw from the same within ten days, failing in this to present their resignations. Any violation of this order will be sufficient cause for immediate trial and dismissal from the service for disobedience of orders."

BARON FAVA IN NEW YORK.

He is Nervous and Badly Shaken Up—Will Sail on Saturday.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Baron Fava, Italian Minister at Washington, arrived at 10:30 o'clock last night and went to his old quarters at the Victoria Hotel.

He did not register, and his presence was learned by the merest accident from a gentleman who came on the train, and who stopped at the Victoria.

Baron Fava was nervous and badly shaken up. The hotel clerks denied his presence—even refusing to send cards or messages when informed that the whereabouts of the guest were known. Baron Fava sails Saturday, but by which steamer is not known.

More Rumors About Villard.

NEW YORK, April 8.—There was a report on Wall street that Henry Villard had had a row with the Deutsche Bank of Berlin, that his famous syndicate of German capitalists, which has backed his many enterprises, had broken up, and that Mr. Villard would resign the chairmanship of the Northern Pacific directory. No reliable information was obtained, but all the Villard stocks were heavily sold by insiders.

Waiting for Senator Quay.

PITTSBURG, April 8.—Much interest is hanging upon the visit of Senator Quay to Harrisburg, as he will be expected to settle a number of questions that are now vexing the legislative leaders. His son Dick says it is probable that his father will go from Washington to Harrisburg Friday and remain a few days. It is more likely, however, that he will not go there until early next week.

Special Convention of Strikers.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., April 8.—The Mine Workers sent out a call for a special convention of the strikers, organized and unorganized, of the entire region, to be held here next Friday. The purpose of the meeting is to map out a course to bring the strike to a successful end, and to secure the co-operation of the non-unionists. Seventy or eighty delegates will attend.

Judge Knapp's Charge.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., April 8.—Judge Knapp in his charge to the grand jury referred to the Guttenberg race track, and declared that the making of books on the races held there was in violation of the law and should be suppressed. He said that some day the law-abiding citizens may rise in their might and take the law into thir own hands.

Mrs. Young's Estate Valued at $2,250,000.

FALL RIVER, Mass., April 8.—The estate of the late Mary B. Young is estimated to be valued at about $2,250,000. Among the public bequests are: First Congregational Church, Fall River, $20,000, the income to go toward paying the pastor's salary; Tabor College, Fremont County, Iowa, $1,000 to create a scholarship.

Young Dempsey Defeated.

SPOKANE FALLS, Wash., April 8.—Geo. Webber of St. Paul defeated Young Dempsey of California in 17 rounds before the Athletic Club for a purse of $500. The men are lightweights. Dempsey broke bones in both of his hands and had to throw up the sponge.

The Doctors Puzzled.

ANSONIA, Conn., April 8.—A curious case is puzzling the physicians of this place. Robert Harrison has slept continuously since Sunday morning. The man is healthy and active when awake, and the doctors think the sleep is the result of an overworked body.

Two Dead and Three Dying.

PITTSBURG, April 8.—A natural gas explosion occurred in a Hungarian boarding house at Braddock, and 11 people were badly burned. Two are dead and three more are dying.

Five New Commissioners.

NEWARK, N. J., April 8.—Mayor Haynes appointed the following commissioners of public works: Thomas Harlan, Reuben Trier, Albert Hallis, Dr. Hendry and Jas. Smith, jr.

THE CZAR'S ESCAPE

A Supposed Assassin Arrested in St. Petersburg.

HE WAS A MYSTERIOUS GUEST.

A Revolver and a Globule Containing Poison Found in His Pockets.

Sensational War Rumors in Europe—The Situation Regarded as Threatening—Parnell Said to Have Married Mrs. O'Shea's Daughter—McCarthyites Make an Issue With the Government.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 8.—An attempt on the life of the Czar was frustrated yesterday.

The Czar and Czarina were reviewing the Imperial Guards at their quarters. An extremely select and limited number of spectators had been invited. A sallow-faced man of the southern type was admitted on a ticket, and took his place near where the Czar would stand.

His refusal to remove his overcoat excited suspicion. Upon being again requested he consented, and retired to the ante-room.

He was arrested, and a revolver and a globule of poison was found in his pockets.

He gave the name of Shameikin, and declared that the globule contained medicine.

ON THE VERGE OF WAR.

The Political Situation in Europe Regarded as Serious.

LONDON, April 8.—Advices received here from several of the principal capitals of Europe show that the political situation on the Continent is regarded as serious by the leading statesmen and diplomats.

Several significant moves have been made during the past few days. The action of the Russian authorities in doubling the strength of the Russian forces in Volhynia is gravely discussed in the capitals of the various countries.

The greatest activity prevails among the troops garrisoning the principal fortified places in France.

The Pesther Lloyd newspaper of Buda-Pesth publishes an article in which it is stated that semi-official advices received from Berlin represent that in the German capital the general European situation is regarded as extremely threatening.

DISPUTE OVER DAVITT.

The McCarthyites Want Him on the Royal Labor Commission.

LONDON, April 8.—The Irish party has declined to suggest any one instead of Michael Davitt to sit on the Royal Labor Commission, and will move an adjournment of the House of Commons to-morrow.

The McCarthyites will challenge Mr. Smith, the Government leader, to explain his declination of Mr. Davitt as commissioner. The Times suggests that the Speaker ought to allow a discussion on the subject.

Mr. Parnell makes the claim that a non-political outsider acceptable to both sections of the Irish party should be nominated on the Labor Commission in place of Davitt.

Still Another British Scandal.

LONDON, April 8.—The eager discussion of the Parnell story in the lobbies of the House of Commons was turned into another channel to-day by the circulation of a rumor that one of the leaders of the Tory party will shortly figure in the courts as a principal in a grave criminal offense, the heinous features of which eclipse any of the great scandals of recent years. It is alleged that the evidence against the offending member is very strong.

King Leopold Wants Stanley.

LONDON, April 8.—It is stated that King Leopold has requested Stanley to go to the Congo State to remedy the evils that have lately given rise to complaint both in Africa and in Europe. The death of Coquilhat has deprived Leopold of a valuable man at a critical time.

The Pope's Labor Encyclical.

LONDON, April 8.—The Catholic Bishop of Newport, England, has completed the translation of Pope Leo's forthcoming encyclical on labor and socialism. It will be published concurrently in Europe and America on the day of its issue in Rome, a date not far distant.

Latest Rumor About Parnell's Marriage.

LONDON, April 8.—The rumor is still flying that Mr. Parnell is married and that the lady in question is a daughter of Mrs. O'Shea, and that the marriage took place in secret because, among other reasons, the young lady was a ward in Chancery.

Close Vote in Chicago.

CHICAGO, April 8.—Returns from 504 precincts out of 513 show that Cregier (Dem.) is only 47 votes behind Hempstead Washburne (Rep.) and indicate that Cregier will be elected by a small majority. As Cregier ran ahead of his ticket, it is believed that the rest of the Republican ticket outside of mayor has been elected.

Secretary Foster's Assistant.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Ex-Representative Lorenzo Crounse, of Nebraska, has accepted the office of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury tendered him by Secretary Foster, and will be appointed by the President in a few days. Mr. Crounse is a personal friend of Secretary Foster. He will take the office vacated by General Batcheller, of New York.

Back in the Methodist Church.

BOSTON, April 8.—The Rev. Emory J. Haynes, for years one of the leading Baptist ministers of Boston, last night at a local conference formally changed his denomination and will be admitted into the New England Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Haynes was

JUSTICE SCORED.

A Convict, Tired of Waiting for the Courts, Surrenders Himself.

TRENTON, N. J., April 8.—Thomas O. Callahan was recently convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to three years in the State prison for killing one Matthew Hagan. His counsel took out a writ of habeas corpus to the Supreme Court, and pending the hearing of the appeal in June next Callahan was released on $10,000 bail.

Callahan, without consulting his counsel, went to the State prison yesterday and told keeper Patterson that he wished to begin his term of imprisonment as he had little hope of gaining relief by his appeal. The prison keeper refused to receive him, as Callahan had no commitment papers. He explained to Callahan that it would be necessary for him to deliver himself up to the sheriff of Mercer County, who would then have him regularly committed.

Callahan was disappointed that his surrender was not accepted. Hagan, the victim was a close friend of the murderer, and the crime was committed while Callahan was drunk. His defense was that the shooting was accidental. It is expected that the prisoner will be formally committed to-day or to-morrow.

CONNECTICUT'S TROUBLE.

Lawyers Decide to Carry a Case to the Supreme Court for Decision.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 8.—The political muddle is likely to be brought before the Supreme Court shortly. The term for which Judge Deming of the Common Pleas Court was elected expired March 31. He claimed to hold over and had continued to hold court.

In a minor case during the day the lawyers for the defense refused to put in any testimony and, on the conviction of their client, raised the question of want of jurisdiction and will carry it to the Supreme Court.

The Common Pleas Court has adjourned for lack of funds, the Legislature having adjourned without passing any appropriation bills.

Senator Colquitt Improved.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 8.—United States Senator Colquitt is not dangerously ill, as reported, but is in better condition than when he left Washington. He went to Hot Springs to recuperate.

Talmage Will Preach the Sermon.

BOSTON, April 8.—Rev. T. de Witt Talmage of Brooklyn will this year preach the anniversary sermon of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company.

THE BIG 6 SAY "NO!"

PLAINFIELD SHALL NOT BE BONDED IN THEIR REIGN.

They Are in Favor of Granting a Franchise at Once to a Private Corporation for the Construction of a System of Sewerage in Plainfield.

The Mayor, the Corporation Counsel, and all of the Councilmen excepting Mr. Johnston, met last night at the request of President Smith, in one of the committee rooms adjoining the council chamber.

A general discussion upon the question of water-works and sewerage, took place.

Several of the councilmen advocated the plan of the city building the sewers and owning them. This would necessitate the bonding of the city to the amount of $350,000.

But the "Big 6," true to their record, were for the people's interests, first, last and all the time.

They said that so long as they remained in office they would not sanction the bonding of the city to the amount of one cent.

Their plan is to grant a franchise at once to a private company to put a system of sewerage in the city at a reasonable rate to the citizens for the use of it.

Mr. Marx's Phonograph Will Speak.

A very special attraction at the Y. M. C. A. members' reception to be held to-morrow evening will be a phonographic exhibition to be given by Ernest Marx of Leland avenue. The machine to be operated is one of the latest patterns of the Edison phonograph, and it can be heard with fine effect at a distance of thirty feet. The instrument will be made to reproduce songs and recitations, comical and otherwise, various instrumental solos, and ventriloquism. S. A. Taggart, of the International Y. M. C. A. Committee, will be unable to be present. Members of the Association, sustaining, active, and associate, are urged to attend.

The Ball Season Will Open May 2.

Captain Joe Lufbery, second base of the Crescent League ball team, was in Plainfield yesterday looking over the arrangements for the coming season. The first game will be played three weeks from next Saturday, against New Brunswick's reconstructed nine. Six games have been booked with the Somervilles.

Gregg and Hammill will be the Crescent's pitchers, with Jones behind the bat. A new man named Davis will cover first base, Lufbery second and Lee third. The short stop is not yet decided on. McIndoe will be in the outfield. Berriman has been engaged for the season as umpire.

Electric Lights for Miles.

At the election held yesterday in Dunellen for Borough Commissioners, the regular ticket was chosen with very little opposition.

Besides the usual money voted for Borough purposes, $700 additional was voted for lighting the streets. This will be expended for electric lights, and a result will be an unbroken line of incandescent illumination out West Front street for miles.

The following are the Commissioners elected:

For three years—John Moynihan, John P. Apgar, P. M. Ising.

For two years—R. J. Swackhamer, Samuel Luckey.

For one year—C. Schepflin, P. W. Brakeley.

The Only Clothiers to Deal With, in Newark.

Any boy can have a safety bicycle for nothing if he is a good guesser. Every Monday morning McGregor & Co., the Newark clothiers, give a safety bicycle to the lad who during the past week has guessed nearest to the number of beans in a jar in their stores, 850 and 852 Broad street.

This is not a "paid puff" but is written because of an appreciation of the fact that McGregor & Co., are the most liberal people to their customers in Newark, and because of a personal knowledge of the fact that they make better clothing, better cut and better trimmed, and for less money, than all the other clothiers in that city without exception.

Dining Cars to Washington.

Pullman dining cars are now running between New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington via Royal Blue Line on the famous five-hour train, leaving New York daily, except Sunday, at 11:30 a. m., arriving at Washington 4:30 p. m., also on the fast express leaving New York daily at 3:30 p. m., arriving at Washington 8:55 p. m. On Sunday mornings dining car train leaves New York at 9 a. m., arrives at Washington 3 p. m. The fact that the cars are under the direction of the Pullman Company is a sufficient guarantee as to the quality of the service. Station foot of Liberty street.

One Hundred Feet More of Consent.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Consider me, also, as a petitioner (to the measurement of 100 feet) on East Fifth street between Broadway and Richmond, for the trolley system street railroad. I agree with the sentiments expressed in your issue of yesterday over the initials "E. C. M." F. M.

I FEEL it my duty to say a few words in regard to Ely's Cream Balm, and I do so entirely without solicitation. I have used it more or less half a year, and have found it to be most admirable. I have suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since I was a little boy and I never hoped for cure, but Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many of my acquaintances have used it with excellent results.—Oscar Getrum, 45 Warren ave., Chicago, Ill.

TO-MORROW EVENING'S OPERA.

A Cast That Includes the Best Vocalists of New York and Brooklyn. Will Sing "The Mikado" at The Casino.

The first operatic performance given at the Country Club Casino, will take place to-morrow evening. The opera will be Gilbert and Sullivan's ever popular "Mikado," and will be given by the Amateur Opera association of New York city under the direction of W. W. Thomas.

The work of this association according to press notices, is equal to any of the best professional companies, and this opera is one of their best efforts. Special scenery and the Thomas orchestra will be brought from New York.

The demand for seats for this opera has been extraordinary and only a few more reserved seats are left. Tickets may be obtained at Reynolds's drug store, or at the Casino.

Any one acquainted with the best singers of New York city and Brooklyn, will recognize among the following cast the names of many of the most noted in the field:

The Mikado	Mr. Chas. A. Hetzel
Nanki Poo	Mr. Geo. C. Pearce
Pooh Bah	Mr. J. Williams Macy
Koko	Mr. Chas. H. Parsons
Pish Tush	Mr. M. M. Cooper
Yum Yum	Mrs. Emma Henry-Thomas
Pitti Sing	Mrs. Alice Merserreau
Peep Bo	Mrs. Lou Moore
Katisha	Miss Annie Lee

Who Does He Mean in His Own Church?

Mrs. E. B. Grannis, President of the Christian League for the promotion of Social Purity, presided at the first annual meeting, held at the headquarters, 33 East Twenty-third street, Monday night. Dr. DeCosta thought "we have no civilization now," but he believed that "the time is coming when we shall look back to this age as an age of barbarism."

Dr. A. H. Lewis of this city traced the social evil back to about fifty centuries before the Christian era, and said: "We live in an age in which everything on earth is uncovered. Such an age must lift the veil and reveal the terribleness of this evil. There is no place where it does not exist. We have men who sit in our churches and say 'Amen' with the loudest whose property shelters the vilest scenes on which the eye could look." Mrs. Mary Bert, State President of the Y. W. C. A., spoke about the variation in different States of the laws fixing the age of consent. Miss Theresa Barcalow read the treasurer's report. Other addresses were made by M. Louise Thomas, Mr. A. C. Hatch, and Mrs. John S. Martin.

Mr. Chapman's Own Compositions Contribute Success.

The third and last concert of this season was given yesterday evening in Chickering Hall by the Musurgia Society under William R. Chapman, conductor of The Melopoia of this city. A well-known critic of New York says: "Mr. Chapman's programme was an exceedingly interesting one, to the merit of which two compositions of his own, 'Dreamland' and a 'Serenade,' contributed largely. These were both male voice choruses, composed for and dedicated to the Musurgia."

Growth of Local Methodism.

Last year—says the Rev. C. B. Mitchell, in his M. E. church paper—we reported 523 full members and 75 probationers. This year we report 607 full members and 101 probationers. During the year 35 have been dismissed by letter and 8 have died. We have received by letter and from probation into full membership, 127. Hence the net increase is 84 full members. With our 101 probationers we ought to have even a larger increase next year.

Further Particulars Wanted, of This.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—The spectacle of a woman in affluent circumstances persecuting a woman and her defenceless children to the extent of seizing their doll-houses and rocking-horses, to satisfy a debt of $500, after goods to the amount of $1,000 have been peaceably given for the same, must, to say the least, be highly interesting to the Christian community of Plainfield.

A Plainfield Seaman's Adventures.

Louis J. Miller, who lives opposite Judge Benton's home, on the road to Rahway, just within the Plainfield city limits, is a follower of the sea, and of course has many sailor's yarns to spin. His latest voyage, however, just ended, was the most adventurous he had yet experienced.

He was carpenter for the steamship El Callao, a Glasgow vessel, which goes on long trading voyages to the West Indies and all along the South American coast and up into Lower California. The first mishap of the voyage occurred off the island of Guadaloupe, where the vessel struck a rock when going at full speed. For hours the ship hung fast to the rock, but after an exciting tussle with the waves, which threatened to topple the steamer over, she was set afloat again, and, much to the surprise of the crew, was found to be apparently sound, without a leak. A short time later, however, the vessel grounded again, this time on a sand-bar in the mouth of a shallow South American river. Here again she was floated safely, but the shock had opened a bad hole in the planks where the rocks in the former collision had caused bad bruises but not quite a break, and the ship was soon filling rapidly. Both hand and steam pumps were set to work, and by a great deal of hard work the water was kept from gaining on the crew. As soon as possible the vessel was examined, and carpenter Miller succeeded in stopping up the hole through which the sea was pouring.

It was decided, however, to abandon contemplated extensions of the voyage and to return to New York for permanent repairs.

A few days before reaching New York harbor they met with the most serious adventure of all. They were caught in a most violent storm, and were tossed about at the will of the mighty waves. The life boats were smashed to pieces by the giant walls of water that swept over the vessel, and had the storm continued much longer the gallant craft must have gone to the bottom of the ocean.

With the other seamen carpenter Miller had to stay on deck and even go aloft during the storm to superintend repairs to shattered timbers. He and his men narrowly escaped being swept into the sea by the furious wave, and their arms were almost wrenched out of their sockets from holding fast as the tremendous waters struck them. They reached port, however, without losing a man, and carpenter Miller returned to Plainfield before shipping for another voyage. He reached home last Saturday, just in time to attend the funeral of his young son Christopher. Had it not been for the misadventures which compelled his vessel to return to New York for repairs he would never have seen even the face of his boy again on earth, even in death.

Mr. Miller is a German by birth, but is very proud and patriotic of his adopted country, the United States.

"I see many strange and interesting things in my travels," he says—"and become acquainted with many countries. But I find nothing like America anywhere, and I find no one whom I am so happy to meet as an American. It is always a glad time for the tars when old Sandy Hook again comes in sight, and the Jersey shore is at hand."

Death Ends a Wedding Anniversary.

Concerning the death of the late John Wilson Young, which occurred at the Muhlenberg Hospital, this city, just after midnight of Sunday, March 22, as exclusively told in THE PRESS at the time, the Bloomsbury correspondent of the Washington, Warren county, Star, writes as follows:

"Mr. Young was in some unknown way injured by the cars on the Central Railroad, at Plainfield, on the 8th inst. During the time he remained in the hospital he never rallied sufficiently to relate the particulars of his accident. His wife and parents watched over him night and day, hoping that they might see some favorable change, but, alas, the flower that had bloomed was for eternity, and after two weeks of intense suffering he died. Mr. Young was born at a place called 'The Hickory,' Hunterdon county, October 7, 1866. When he was but three years old his father moved to this place and resided in the house now occupied by the Misses Schooley and Thatcher. When he was old enough he was sent to school, and, being a bright scholar, attained a good education. When he was seventeen years of age his father purchased a farm and he was then taken from school and assisted his father to repair the same. At the age of twenty-one, having a desire to shift for himself, he enrolled his name at A. J. Rider's business college, at Trenton, and began the study of stenography, and made such rapid progress that he was enabled to secure his diploma after a period of five months. He spent the Summer of '88 with his parents here, and on Sept. 10, 1888, entered the office of the Pond Machine Tool Company at Plainfield, as chief stenographer, where he remained until the accident. On the 23d day of March, 1890, he married Miss Sadie Laver, of this place, and just after midnight of March 22, 1891, he died; being married just one year March 23. He was a dutiful son, a loving brother, and a kind and genial husband. The funeral services took place from the Presbyterian church, of which he was a member, on Thursday morning. Burial ceremony at Mt. Pleasant."

John B. Gough, the far-famed lecturer, excused himself to an audience because of a bad cold, then started for Egypt in the hope of getting rid of it. Egypt contains no remedy more certain in its result than Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

To Begin the New Grace Church.

The 107th Annual Convention of the Diocese of New Jersey will be held in Grace church, this city, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 5 and 6. Bishop Scarborough will preside, and read his annual address. It is expected that some 200 or 300 clerical and lay deputies will be in attendance.

During the afternoon of the 5th at 5 o'clock the corner-stone of the new Grace church will be laid, with appropriate ceremonies, on the site at the corner of Sycamore and Seventh streets.

THE ABDUCTED BOY FOUND.

Young Donovan Discovered by His Father at a Lonely Farm House.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 8.—Young Harry Donovan, who was kidnapped from his home in this city a short time ago, has returned to it with his father.

Mr. Donovan found his boy near Bay Shore, L. I., at a lonely farm house, many miles distant from any other dwelling. Mr. Donovan states that in company with his attorney and Miss Leete, the woman who aided the kidnapping, he visited Bay Shore yesterday. There he ascertained that Mrs. Rankin had disappeared with the boy, being assisted by a man named Howells.

It seems that this woman took the night train last Friday to New London with the boy, going to Greenport, where she took another train to Bay Shore.

Donovan says he has instructed his attorney to prosecute Mrs. Rankin for the purpose of sending her either to jail or to an asylum.

OUR UNPROTECTED COAST.

Senator Hawley Says $125,000,000 Should be Spent for Defense.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 8.—Senator Hawley addressed the Board of Trade here on the weakness of our coast defenses. He reviewed the deeds of the American navy in former times, and criticized the indifference of the people in recent years in the matter of adequate coast defense.

The recent complications with Italy showed, he said, the rapidity with which trouble might come. He pointed out the fact that Halifax was a continual menace to our unprotected coast, for England, in case of war, would assemble her fleet there and in a few days could bombard both New York and Boston.

He said the cost of effective coast defenses would be about $125,000,000 but this would be extended over a term of years and the investment would prove wise in all respects.

Smith Elected Mayor.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., April 8.—Everett Smith, the Republican candidate for mayor, was elected by a majority of over 400, a gain of 900 votes. The Republicans also elect three of the five supervisors and four of the five aldermen.

Death of Hon Russell Errett.

PITTSBURG, April 8.—Russell Errett, a prominent politician and journalist, died at 11 a. m., aged 74 years. Mr. Errett took an active part in the formation of the Republican party, and served three terms in Congress.

Refused to Accept Lower Wages.

READING, Pa., April 8.—Seyfern's rolling mill has shut down, owing to the refusal of the employes to accept a reduction of wages. Several hundred men are thrown out of employment by the shutdown.

To Examine the Treasury Vaults.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Secretary Foster appointed R. H. Thurston of Ithaca, N. Y.; F. A. Pratt of Hartford, Conn., and T. N. Eli of Philadelphia, a committee to examine the vaults in the United States Treasury, and to report a plan for improving the vault facilities of the department. The committee will begin its work at once.

Received by the President To-day.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—A large party of Brooklyn people are in Washington on a sight-seeing trip. They are mostly members of Dr. Talmage's congregation. They went to Mount Vernon, and were received by President Harrison at 1 o'clock to-day.

Closing the Kincaid Trial.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Judge Jere Wilson made the closing speech for the defendant in the Kincaid trial and District-Attorney Cole made the closing argument for the prosecution. The case will go to the jury this afternoon.

Judge Hamilton's Sidecessor.

AUGUSTA, Me., April 8.—Col. Edwin J. Cram has been appointed judge of the Biddeford Municipal Court by Governor Burleigh. The vacancy in this court was caused by the removal of Judge Charles Hamilton by the Legislature.

Small Change.

Small change, says the London Graphic, is evidently much appreciated in southwestern France. A farmer in the Dauphiny Alps recently sold some sucking pigs for one hundred and fifteen francs, and stipulated that he should be paid in centimes. The buyer assented, treating the demand as a joke. When, later, he offered to pay the money in ordinary cash, however, the farmer held to his bargain, and summoned the other before a magistrate, who decided that the exact terms of the agreement must be observed. The purchaser, therefore, had to count out eleven thousand five hundred single centime pieces for his debt of one hundred and fifteen francs.

A Pet Catamount.

A citizen of Albany, Ga., owns a pet catamount. It was captured while young, and has been reduced to a degree of docility which enables its owner to fondle and play with it, not without, however, a degree of consideration as to which way he strokes the cat's fur, for the natural ferociousness of his nature is, even after a year's imprisonment and training, easily aroused, and his snarls and the greenish glitter of his eyes at such moments makes him anything but an object of affectionate consideration from the average citizen. He is rapidly clearing his quarters of rats.

A Dreadful Threat.

A German poet having loaned a small amount to a friend found it very difficult to collect the same, as his friend failed to recollect the incident. Meeting his friend in need the poet said:

"If you don't pay me that seventeen pfennings which you owe me I shall have to resort to extreme measures."

"And what may they be?"

"I'll dedicate my next poem in your honor."

The friend turned pale and shelled out abruptly.—Texas Siftings.

Here's our Card.

It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are not straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public estimation accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for telling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of Shoes.

CURRENT POEMS.

Mr. Tupper Keats.

There is a little poet who is quite a friend of mine,
And the thought that he confides to me are really very fine,
But, with all his wondrous genius, he can never write a line,
Though he feels that he'd accomplish great things, may be,
If it didn't always happen when he goes upstairs to think,
Before he has a chance to dip his pen into the ink,
The little wife will holloa up, and cause his heart to sink:
"Mr. Tupper Keats, come down and mind the baby!"

Not a day but what she calls him, to his infinite disgust,
While his ink is all a-drying, and his pens are filled with rust;
And he'd rather not obey her, but the fact is that he must;
He don't forget the name I've told, for, may be,
You will see the richest honors heaped upon it, some fine day,
When the wee disturber of his peace is old enough to play,
And his little wife no longer runs out in the hall to say:
"Mr. Tupper Keats, come down and mind the baby!"

—Malcolm Douglas, in Puck.

Adversity.

Adversity! Thou art our friend, not foe,
And sent to raise, not crush, the better part in man;
Thy chast'ning hand wouldst haughty pride lay low,
And teach man's heart to humbly scan
His neighbor's faults, and not to breathe and fan
The flame, which turns adversity to woe.

He who has felt thy chastening rod
Has sympathy with misfortune and distress,
And would relieve a brother of his load,
Or hide his faults in a recess
Of silence, deep in his heart, where none would guess
That he a secret hid. True friendship's this.

Adversity! A refining fire thou art;
Thy flames consume the dross, and leaves behind
A metal pure, of honest ring, whose outward part
Reflects the trueness of the heart,
And trusty friendship shows, unselfish, kind,
A priceless gem, unknown to art.
—M. Muir Picken, in West Shore.

Learning.

Child! if thou wouldst with truth and honor live (Better, without, that thou shouldst cease to be),
Thy first best years, thy first fresh effort, give
To learning; all besides is vanity.

Learn, while the glorious sun in heav'n rides high,
And nature groans beneath his fervid scars;
Learn, when the silver moonlight floods the sky
Like veil of Artemis on clouds and stars.

Learn, ever learn, while yet thy youth is fair,
When womanhood is lovely in its strength,
When age, like frost, lies lightly on thy hair,
And when thy journey's end is near at length.

Learn! and thy sheaves of gathered learning bear
To brighter regions; thither shalt thou come
With songs of triumph; learning even there,
Amid the gladness of the harvest home.
—Margaret Thomas, in Youth's Companion.

The Looked-For Man.

He "is not fair to outward view;"
Oh, no!-quite plain is he,
With "commonplace"
Writ on his face
For all the world to see.

He ne'er has "faced the cannon's mouth;"
Or "sailed the raging main;"
Or "snatched a child,"
With courage wild,
Before a rushing train.

He is not rich, or bright, or young;
Yet, when he walks the street,
The fairest maids
Lift window-shades
And listen for his feet;

And if he stops, the proudest dame
Seems pleased—or heaves a sigh
If, walking fast,
She sees at last
The postman pass her by.
—Margaret Gilman Georgi, in Century.

Nature.

Fair is the world, 'tis sweet to be alive,
To breathe and think, endure and toil and strive;
Yea, e'en of tears and grief to bear the cross,
And all the years of waiting, pain or loss,
With the sweet recompense nature gives
Him who hears her voice, and with her lives

To lend the ear and lend the eye to all
Her varied gifts and rich, or great or small,
That through the years in more or less degree
To each life falleth, is to hold the key
To untold treasures, where the soul may glean
Healing of heartache, and a peace serene!
—Lisa A. Fletcher, in Good Housekeeping.

Both Satisfied.

"I would not be a horrid boy,"
Said Katie, with a frown;
"For boys, they always play so rough,
And muss my brand new gown."

"And I," said Johnny, as he pulled
And twisted Katie's curl,
"Would rather be a big, rough boy,
Than be a fraidy girl."

And both were right, 'tis plain to see;
In nature's equipoise,
Girls make the very best of girls,
And boys the best of boys.
—West Shore.

Nobody Cares.

A wearily wan little face,
A feeble, forlorn little smile,
Poor, faltering feet
That must pace their beat
For many and many a mile—
A star stealing out in the dusk;
A lamp that luridly flares;
In the wide city's whirl
Just a nameless girl—
Nobody cares!

* * * * * * *

A desolate, dearth-stricken room,
A pillow pushed up to the wall;
A flicker that shows
A face in repose;
Silence, and that is all;
Save just on the woe-begone cheek
That look which such ruptness wears,
That light on the brow—
Ah, who shall say how—
"Nobody cares!"
—Cornhill Magazine.

What and Where?

Mischievous Tommy,
He bears every day,
A homily simple
Beginning this way:
"Now, Tommy, you mustn't,"
And "Tommy, you must;"
And "Tommy, stop running,
You'll kick up the dust;"
And "Do not go swimming
Or you will get wet,"
And "Do not go rafting,
Or you will upset;"
And "Do not be wrestling,
You'll fracture your bones,"
And "Do not go climbing,
You'll fall on the stones;"
And "Do not be whistling,
You're not a mere bird,"
And "Good little children
Are seen and not heard—"

Which Tommy on hearing
Exclaims: "I leary me!
What can a boy do,
And where can a boy be?"
—Anna Hamilton, in St. Nicholas.

REPTILES OF THE PAST.

Degenerate Survivors of Those of the Long Ago.

Monsters Which Walked the Earth and Swam the Seas Ages and Ages Ago —Some Ancient Phenomenal Jumpers and Flyers.

"Reptiles as they are found in the world at the present day are but degenerate survivors of their kind as they existed in epochs long ago," said Prof. Cope to a writer for the Washington Star. "The first reptiles of the world made their appearance at the close of the paleozoic period, when the coal was in process of formation. They were all land animals. Among them there were no flying creatures, no marine swimmers, no gigantic types, and no especially herbivorous kinds.

"At the close of the coal-forming period there occurred a great emergence of land from the water and reptilian life rapidly spread and grew. The reptiles which had previously existed were all of one kind. Their remains are found in this country wherever the deposits in lagoons, lakes and estuaries have been calculated for their preservation. From this point of time, however, began what may appropriately be called the epoch of reptiles. The paleozoic period was brought to a close by a great upheaval, due to contraction of the earth's crust, by which the Alleghanies and the Ural system were uplifted. Then began what is called the 'mesozoic epoch,' during which the reptiles may be said to have run creation. That is to say, they were the highest order of beings at that time alive. What man is now the reptile was then—that is, lord of all existing things. Reptiles walked upon land, navigated the water, flew through the air, and, in short, pursued every avenue of existence that is zoologically conceivable.

"Early in the mesozoic epoch there appeared marine reptiles which, though derived from land species, became more and more aquatic through the necessity of living in water, developing, on that account, swimming organs, etc. Land reptiles also began to develop in huge proportions. Why they grew so big no one knows, but it may have been because they had no rivals in the struggle for existence; they had all they wanted to eat and naturally increased in bulk. At all events, no creatures are known to have ever existed in this world comparable in size to these reptiles of ages ago.

"What the mammals are in the scale of creation to-day the reptiles were in the mesozoic epoch. They swam the seas, climbed trees, and were most phenomenal jumpers. Some of them even flew. While some were herbivorous, living upon plants, others were carnivorous, preserving existence by devouring their vegetable-eating cousins. The vegetarian reptiles were enormous beasts, often as much as seventy feet in length. They afforded food for the carnivorous reptiles, which were smaller than the herbivorous kind, just as lions and tigers nowadays are smaller than oxen. Though bigger the vegetarian creatures usually had no armor nor weapons to defend themselves with. Their most powerful defense was a kick, which, delivered with a hind leg fifteen feet in length, was assuredly not by any means to be despised. The herbivorous reptiles of that epoch were mainly of three descriptions:

"First was the biggest of all animals known to the world from the beginning thereof to the present day. Its name was the 'camarasaurus.' It went on all fours and the vertebræ composing its backbone were hollow—mere shells in fact—filled with warm air from the lungs, just as is the case with the bones of some birds to-day. Undoubtedly it lived in the sea, walking along in water deep enough to cover its back. It fed upon the vegetation along shore and its neck was long and crane-like.

"Other herbivorous reptiles of the same period had enormously long hind legs on which they were able to wade far out into deep water after sea weeds and other food. These animals were particularly extraordinary in point of their dental equipment, inasmuch as each of them had about two thousand grinders to chew with, arranged in magazines of five hundred each, like cartridges.

"Another species of herbivorous reptiles lived upon land, but they were so powerfully armed that they were able to oppose a formidable defense against attack. Some of them had huge horns on their heads like bulls, while others bore similar weapons above their noses, like the rhinoceri of to-day. So well able were they to defend themselves that they lived and multiplied in the same regions with the most ferocious of the carnivorous monsters.

"Thus you will understand that there were three kinds of herbivorous giants in the mesozoic epoch. There was the 'camarasaurus,' which fed neck deep along the seashore, its hollow backbone serving as a float and its solid legs and tail for anchors, next was the kangaroo-like 'hadrosaurus,' which waded out upon its hind legs into deep water in search of food, and finally, there was the dangerous 'agathaumas,' with enormous horns.

"The so-called 'mesozoic epoch' was brought to a close by the cataclysm, due to contraction and consequently crumpling of the earth's crust, which upheaved the Rocky mountains and the Andes on this hemisphere and the Alps, Pyrenees, Balkans and Himalayas on the other side of the world. Incidentally to this tremendous alteration in the face of the earth all these giant reptiles were wiped out of existence. This event opened what is called to-day the 'tertiary epoch.' It is in the tertiary epoch that we live now. At the beginning of this epoch the only reptiles which survived were the snakes, lizards, turtles and crocodiles, all of them resembling closely those of their kind which exist to-day. Of the turtles it may be said that they represent the most ancient type of all vertebrates, resembling closely as they do the reptiles of their kind which existed so far back as the mesozoic era.

Her Birthday Present.

Little Nell—Sister will be down in a moment and I'm to entertain you till she comes, 'cause mamma said so. I guess I'll go on with my knitting.

Mr. Nicefello—What are you making, my little dear?

"It's a birthday present for sister, and she mustn't know anything about it till her birthday comes you know. You won't tell her, will you?"

"No, indeed. What is it for?"

"Oh, it's just a little bag, like mamma has, to put her watch in at night. Sister hasn't any watch, but I guess she can use it for her hair-pins, or her bangs, or her teeth or something."—Good News.

Playful Tommy.

Little Tommy was making a dreadful racket, playing that he was a locomotive, letting off steam, ringing a bell, etc.

"Tommy," said his aunt, getting in front of him, "you must stop this noise."

Tommy stood perfectly quiet for a minute and then said: "The engineer is waiting for the old cow to get off the track."—Texas Siftings.

Too Suspicious by Half.

Rev. Jonas Clutterby (to his seatmate on the train)—How fast we travel! But ah, young man, have you ever thought of the flight of time? Think of the fleeting hours of youth, the golden days that swiftly pass away? Have you ever counted the minutes—

Battersby (unregenerate and suspicious)—What are you trying to do? Sell me a watch?—West Shore.

He Talked Too Much.

Mr. Repplier (playing cribbage)—What a very fine crib-board, Miss Passee!

Miss Passee (playfully)—A gift from my very first sweetheart, Mr. Repplier, when I was only fifteen.

Mr. Repplier (with polite interest)—Indeed! That is quite the oldest crib-board I ever saw—that is—er—I mean——West Shore.

A Practical Illustration.

Mr. Houson Lotts—Now, take our home industries, for example. Suppose the supply falls off, what happens? Why, the demand grows stronger, and—

Neighbor's Boy—Mr. Lott, your wife says if you don't come home with those groceries right away she'll have to send out and borrow something for supper. —Puck.

Willing to Oblige.

Mr. John E. Gett (at an amateur musicale)—What's he singing?

Miss Van Clef—"Let Me Like a Soldier Die."

Mr. Gett—If I had my gun with me, he should be gratified.—Puck.

No Reciprocity.

Father—Tommy, why don't you go and see your little dead friend, Johnny Smith?

Tommy—Because he won't come and see me when I'm dead.—Judge.

Alas! Already?

"George, dear, will you love me when I'm old?"

"What a silly question, Penelope. Of course I do."—Harper's Bazar.

THE SEAT OF MOTION.

The Doctor—Let me feel your pulse, Mr. Cardaway — Suttenly, sah. It 'peah's t' beat d' hardes' jess whar d' brick done struck.—Judge.

Agricultural Item.

A.—I see by the papers that in Kansas the yield of corn is forty to the acre. Isn't that rather remarkable?

B.—Not at all; only it seems to me that item is upside down.

"Upside down? What do you mean?"

"Yes. My experience is that the yield is about forty acres to the corn. Get off my foot, please."—Texas Siftings.

A Modern Improvement.

"How's this, Dauber? You've painted Father Time with a mowing machine instead of a scythe?"

"That's all right. We artists of the modern school keep up with inventive progress."—Munsey's Weekly.

A Boomerang.

"That was a mean thing Bronson's wife did."

"What was it?"

"Taught their little boy one of his father's poems and now Bronson hears it all day long."—N. Y. Sun

Bound to Be a Success.

"Charley Sawyer's play is bound to be a success."

"Why are you so sanguine about it?"

"Well, you see, Charley has just decided not to play the leading role."—Judge.

An Eye to the Future.

"I don't see how you can be pleased at the idea of your brother marrying her. She's so fast and harum-scarum. She'll never make a good wife."

"Oh, but she'll make such a delightful chaperone!"—Life.

Enforced Abstinence.

"Do you play the banjo?"

"Not when there are any people around."

"Why not?"

"They won't let me."—Puck.

A Critical Case.

"Jimmieboy has swallowed one of my poems," said Rondow, in despair.

"That's all right," said the doctor. "Mush is good for children."—Puck.

FRESH YOUTHS OF ENGLAND.

They Are Considered to Be Altogether Too Familiar.

If England—as Lord Beaconsfield believed and maintained—is to be "saved by her young men," their countrymen of more mature age are justified in bestowing their serious consideration on any complaints of this kind. It is our duty to look after these future saviors of the country, says the London Telegraph, and whenever we notice in them a tendency to decline from the standard of our own well-known virtues and to discredit the admirable example which we have set them, the fact must be kindly but firmly pointed out to them. It would be indeed a bad omen for the national future if the youth of England were really losing that chivalrous respect for the weaker sex by which the manners of their fathers, and, we will add, their uncles, was so invariably distinguished; and, though we do not ourselves take as despondng a view on that point as prevails in certain quarters, we cannot deny that here are visible grounds for some uneasiness.

For instance, it is impossible not to notice a change for the worse in the new mode of address adopted by the young man of the present day toward young women not related to him, or for any other reason so closely associated with him as to justify a tone of exceptional familiarity. To overhear a casual conversation between two such young people of opposite sexes, however "gently born and bred"—to quote the laureate's description, introduced, by the way, with a rather offensive "but" of his city clerk in "Sea Dreams"—is to find food for very grave reflection. We would not lay too much stress on the fact that the youth's manner of accosting the maiden is undoubtedly calculated to make the bones of their great grandmothers stir in the silent tomb. We are quite willing to admit that these venerable ladies are just a little too much "out of the movement," and we profess no wish to revive the somewhat oppressive and excessive formality of the "sir" and "madame" days. There is, however, surely some medium between the ceremonious and the free and easy; and if the gentleman has ceased to bow to the ground in addressing the lady, that is no reason why he should take, speaking figuratively, to slapping her on the back.

The "hail-fellow-well-met" style between the two sexes has, however, unquestionably gained ground of late years, and it may be the too common male habit of talking to women with a freedom and familiarity not formally used toward them which is gradually leading young men to neglect those attentions and services which ladies expect from them. It must be difficult for a youth who is accustomed himself to treat his female partner of the lawn tennis-groun as a "chum" or a "pal" to make a sudded and complete change of attitude toward her when she becomes his partner of the ballroom. On occasion—and, indeed, on most occasions—he might very will be apt to forget that she had any more claim to precedence or preference, any more right to be waited upon and "looked after" by him, than would belong to a companion of his own sex.

ATTACKED BY A BUFFALO.

The Narrow Escape from Death of a Green Hunter.

Sir Samuel W. Baker in his latest book, "Wild Beasts and Their Ways," narrates an adventure which shows that a hunter's life may depend upon his attention to small details. Sir Samuel and Mr. Dick were shooting in Africa, when they saw a solitary bull buffalo on the opposite side of a small creek. The bull was evidently in a state of great excitement, for as the hunters drew near the creek he faced them, tore up the turf with his horns, and looked down the perpendicular bank, twelve feet high, as though meditating descent.

Dick, who carried a little rifle, a single barrel, which shot a small spherical ball, had by Sir Samuel's advice doubled his charge of powder.

"Aim at the back of the neck if the buffalo lowers his head," said Sir Samuel to his companion, throwing a hard clod of earth so that it fell into the water at the foot of the bank. The splash caused the animal to look down, exposing his neck. Dick fired. The bull convulsively turned round, and fell upon his side.

The two men waded across the creek at a shallow place, and ran to where the prostrate animal was lying apparently dead. Dick, standing in front of the bull's head, reveled in the delight of his first buffalo.

"Never stand at the head of a buffalo whether dead or alive!" exclaimed Sir Samuel, whose experience had taught him to be cautious. "Stand upon the side facing the back of the animal well away from its legs, as I am standing now."

Scarcely had he uttered the words when the bull sprang to his feet and, blundered forward straight at the astonished Dick, not three feet distant. He jumped backward to avoid the horns, but tripped and fell upon his back right in the path of the savage bull.

As quick as lightning Sir Samuel drew his long hunting-knife and plunged it behind the buffalo's shoulder. The animal fell to the blow. He had received his death-stroke.

If the hunting-knife had not been tempered steel, with a keen edge and a sharp point, the story would have had a tragical ending. The blade, a part of an old "Andrea Ferrara" Highland claymore, was eighteen inches long, two inches in breadth, doubled-edged, and as sharp as it was possible to make it.

Sir Samuel saw to it that it was always in the condition of a surgeon's lancet. He never left the camp for a day's shooting without first examining its point and edge. No servant was allowed handle it, and when it needed sharpening he himself honed it. When he struck the buffalo the sharp double-edge of the long knife divided the great artery of the heart.

"OH, IF MOTHER WERE ONLY ALIVE!"

All through life she has known a mother's watchful care. She now is a young mother, and gains strength but slowly. She would "give worlds" to do everything for her precious baby, but cannot; the doctor is so strict, and does not sympathize with her, "as mother always did."

That baby has unfolded in the young mother's heart, new emotions. She has a living responsibility, and requires strength to enable her to perform a loving duty. At such a time, too much care cannot be taken, and the Vegetable Compound is indispensable.

Royal Baking Powder Has no Equal.

The United States Official Report

Of the Government Baking Powder tests recently made, under authority of Congress, by the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., furnishes the highest authoritative information as to which powder is the best. The Official Report shows the ROYAL superior to all others in leavening power; a cream of tartar powder of highest quality.

STRANGE ABDUCTION

Novel and Outrageous Case of Kidnapping.

A POOR OVERSEER IN TROUBLE.

He Imprisons a Man in an Almshouse on an Alleged Forged Order.

The Scheme Exposed by the Steward of the Institution—Fictitious Names on the Commitment Papers—The Abduction Probably Instigated by a Relative—The Guilty Parties to be Prosecuted.

CAMDEN, N. J., April 9.—One of the most novel, bold and outrageous cases of kidnapping has just been brought to light at the meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders in Camden County. The case, which is a remarkable one in detail, was unearthed by Steward Adams of the Blackwood Town Almshouse. The story also discloses a big case of forgery, which may put Frank Stewart, an overseer of the poor, behind the bars.

Steward Adams said that last week Overseer of the Poor Frank Stewart of Gloucester brought a man named Henry Cheeseman, a well-to-do carpenter, who lives at 220 Broadway, Gloucester city, to the almshouse. After accepting the papers from the overseer Mr. Adams said that he went to the hospital, where he found the new inmate sitting on a cot weeping.

"What's the matter?" he asked of Cheeseman. "Nothing," was the reply. After a bit of questioning the steward learned that Cheeseman was a carpenter. He then told Adams that while working on a building last week Stewart came to him and said:

"Cheeseman, come with me."

"Where?" asked the carpenter.

"To the Blackwood Almshouse," was the answer.

"I don't want to go there," Cheeseman answered.

"It don't make any difference what you want or what you don't want. You have got to come with me. I've got a commitment for you," and he was forced to go with the overseer.

Steward Adams investigated the story immediately and discovered that Cheeseman had been kidnapped and removed to the almshouse. The papers under which he was committed were examined, and it was found that they had been made out by Squire Boncroft, of Gloucester City. The name of Freeholder Byers was attached as one of the witnesses, and the two other names were James Green and Daniel Kane. The latter two are fictitious. Freeholder Byers declared that his name on the commitment was a forgery.

Prosecutor Jenkins was present at the meeting, and he was instructed by the Board to look into the matter and take action against Stewart. Cheeseman says the abduction was probably done at the instigation of a relative. He corroborated the steward's story before the Board.

MOURNING FOR BARNUM.

The Funeral Will Take Place in Bridgeport To-morrow.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 9.—Both the North and South Congregational Churches have been tendered the family of the late P. T. Barnum for the funeral services. The South Church being the larger, the funeral will be held there to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Many public buildings are draped in mourning. Mayor De Forrest has called a public meeting of the Common Council to take appropriate action. Places of business are to be closed from 2 to 4 o'clock.

The Rev. Dr. Collyer will preach the sermon, and the St. John's Episcopal choir quartet will sing the hymns selected by Mr. Barnum.

The list of pall bearers chosen consists of William B. Hincks, Dr. I. De Ver Warner, Curtis Thompson, the Hon. Nathaniel Wheeler, Rowland B. Lacey, James A. Bailey, Bernard Peters, of the Brooklyn Times, and Jerome Orcutt.

Sudden Death of Gov. Fowle.

RALEIGH, N. C., April 9.—Gov. Daniel G. Fowle died here suddenly at midnight. Heart failure is supposed to have been the cause of his death. His term would not have expired until January 1, 1893.

Gen. Horace Porter Selected.

NEW YORK, April 9.—Gen. Horace Porter was selected to deliver the oration on the occasion of the breaking ground on April 27 for the memorial to Gen. Grant.

Passed the Census Bill.

ALBANY, April 9.—The Holcomb Committee bill providing for an enumeration of the inhabitants of the State was passed in the Assembly by a party vote.

THE VERMONT SENATORSHIP

Mr. Edmunds' Resignation Will Bring On a Spirited Contest.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., April 9.—Senator Edmunds' resignation was unexpected in Vermont, and was a surprise to his constituents. The appointment of his successor devolves on Governor Page, as the Legislature is not in session.

There promises to be a most interesting and spirited contest for the succession to the Senatorship. There will be several candidates for the office, including Hon. Henry Powers, Congressman Eliot, and Hon. Redfield Proctor, Secretary of War. The name of Judge Veazey, of the United States Interstate Commerce Commission, and ex-Gov. John W. Stewart may also be included in the list of possible candidates.

Senator Edmunds lives on the west side of the Green Mountains, from which section, under the unwritten political law of the State, his successor must be taken.

The political waters of Vermont will be stirred to their depths during the coming months.

SHE APPEALED FOR HELP.

A Prominent Society Woman Charged With Fraudulent Use of the Mails.

ROCKVILLE, Conn., April 9.—Mrs. Lillian M. Hall alias Clementine St. George Ray has been arrested charged with fraudulent use of the mails on a warrant issued by United States Attorney Hill of Hartford.

For some time past large quantities of mail matter have arrived at this office from all parts of the world addressed to Clementine St. George Ray in reply to a letter appearing in the Housewife and other journals making a pitiful appeal for financial assistance.

The mail matter was taken out by Mrs. Hall, who is a prominent society woman of Ellington, Conn.

FORCED TO SURRENDER.

The Morocco Workers of Lynn Declare Their Strike a Failure.

LYNN, Mass., April 9.—The great strike kept up so long by the morocco workers is over. The strikers decided to make an unconditional surrender, and the men were advised to seek work at the different factories, with the exception of that of John T. Moulton's, where the strike will be continued.

The men will sign an iron-clad agreement and take their old places if they can be secured.

This action is taken as the abandonment of the Knights of Labor by the workmen and the practical end of that organization's usefulness in this city.

Allen Tells Another Story.

DOVER, N. H., April 9.—James Hamilton Allen, who was at one time supposed to be William Wright, the supposed murderer of Carl Ruttinger on Staten Island, now says he knew William Wright in Glasgow, and also knew Fred Evans. At one time Allen said he did not know Evans, Wright or Ruttinger, but now he pretends to have had an acquaintance with all of them. The opinion seems to be that there was a conspiracy to defraud insurance companies, but the schemes are supposed to have fallen through. Allen is now in jail charged with larceny.

Making Six Dollars Out of Five.

TORONTO, April 9.—A clever method of making six dollars out of five has been discovered in the western part of this province, where it is said to have been practiced to some extent. Portions of five single dollar bills are cut out in such a manner as not to destroy their legal tender quality, and then the pieces are pasted together forming another bill. The Receiver General has issued instructions to banks with a view to breaking up the practice.

Big Strike of Natural Gas.

ST. MARY'S, O., April 9.—Natural gas in large volume was struck during the day near St. John. The well is now registering 4,000,000 feet a day and the gas is under high pressure. The strike has caused great activity among the oil and gas men of this district, and many leases have already been made.

New York's Annual Appropriation.

ALBANY, April 9.—The annual appropriation has been signed by the Governor. It appropriates $9,080,306.67, of which amount $280,725.07 is reappropriated. The net increase in this year's appropriation bill over that of last year's is $2,225.07.

Weavers' Wages Increased.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., April 9.—The weavers in the Blackstone Cotton Mills have been given an advance in wages of four cents a cut and the premium system has been abolished.

Mahan and Maher Matched.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 9.—The California Athletic Club has matched Billy Mahan, the Pacific coast lightweight champion, with Billy Maher, the Australian, for a finish glove contest to take place in June.

KINCAID NOT GUILTY

Last Chapter of the Sensational Washington Tragedy.

THE PRISONER CONGRATULATED.

He Left the Court Room Surrounded by Many Friends.

Great Gathering of Scientists at the Patent Centennial—The President Issues His Behring Sea Proclamation—Further Particulars of the California Trip—Gen. Spinola at Death's Door.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The jury in the Kincaid case brought in a verdict of not guilty.

When the jury came into the court room there was a large number of Kincaid's friends present. Judge Bradley reminded the spectators that he did not know the nature of the verdict, and cautioned them against making any demonstration in the court room.

When the foreman of the jury announced the verdict many of the defendant's friends rose from their seats, but the judge again cautioned them, and the verdict was received quietly.

Kincaid then walked up to the jury box, and heartily shook the hand of each juror, thanking them for their verdict. He then left the court room, and was soon surrounded by many of his friends, who warmly congratulated him on the happy termination of the trial.

His sister and a number of other ladies, who have been constantly in attendance during the trial, also expressed to Kincaid their sympathy and joy at the result.

100 YEARS OLD.

The Patent Office Centennial Celebrated with Appropriate Exercises.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—President Harrison stood on the stage of the Academy of Music and welcomed to the Capital a thousand inventors of more or less fame. Behind him sat Secretary Noble and Postmaster General Wanamaker, while near the footlights on the other side were half a dozen Justices of the Supreme Court, who had a few moments before filed through the stage entrance led by the Chief Justice.

Altogether the first day of the celebration of the beginning of the second century of the American patent system was a great success. The celebration is the outcome of a movement which was begun here last November.

The announcement that the year 1890 was the centennial led W. R. Seigler, an inventor of Waverly, N. Y., to suggest that the beginning of the second century should be appropriately observed. A call was issued by a number of enterprising citizens, and at a meeting which followed the idea of the celebration was taken up with enthusiasm. It was intended that the event should be something more than a mere social gathering.

"Its prime object," said James T. Dubois, the secretary of the meeting, in outlining the results to be gained, "is to secure a better appreciation throughout the country of the vast importance and usefulness of the Patent Office and the patent system in all that the suggestion implies."

There seems to be every indication that these comprehensive ideas will be realized.

THE PRESIDENT'S TRIP.

Full Particulars Will Be Given to the Public To-morrow.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Full particulars of the President's trip South and West will be ready to be given to the public to-morrow. Assistant General Passenger Agent Boyd, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, will submit his time schedule to the President to-day, and the exact length of stay in each place visited will then be determined. Mrs. Harrison has decided to go with the President, and perhaps Mrs. McKee and one or two other ladies will also go.

Secretaries Tracy and Noble and Postmaster General Wanamaker are the members of the Cabinet who have decided to go. One or two others may accompany the President. Whether Private Secretary Halford goes will be determined by the health of his wife. She has been ill for five months at Thomasville, Ga., and Private Secretary Halford has just been advised that the doctors were bringing her North. She has to be carried on a bed, but the doctors think her health is somewhat improved.

KEEP OUT OF BEHRING SEA.

The President Issues His Annual Proclamation of Warning.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The annual proclamation of the President has been issued calling attention to the provisions in the Revised Statutes regarding the Behring Sea seal fisheries, and which direct the President to warn all persons against entering such waters for purpose of violating the provisions of said section, and that he shall also cause one or more vessels of the United States to diligently cruise said waters and arrest all persons and seize all vessels found to be or to have been engaged in any violation of the laws of the United States thereis.

The proclamation concludes by declaring that all persons found to be or to have been engaged in any violation of the laws of the United States in such waters will be arrested and punished as above provided, and that all vessels so employed, their tackle, apparel, furniture and cargoes will be seized and forfeited.

General Spinola's Condition.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Gen. Spinola's condition is regarded as critical in the extreme, and his physician's feel less hopeful of their patient's recovery than at any time during the past week. His chances for recovery now are regarded as almost hopeless.

REPUBLICAN CLUB DINNER.

The Largest Meeting of the Kind Held in Boston in Years.

BOSTON, April 9.—The grand banquet of the new Republican Club of Massachusetts was held at Music Hall last night. There were 1,000 seated at the big tables, and as many more in the galleries about the hall. The principal guests were Secretary of the Navy Tracy, Senator Aldrich, Henry Cabot Lodge and Gen. Stewart L. Woodford. All the most prominent Republicans in the State were in attendance.

The event of the evening was Secretary Tracy's speech. He began by reviewing the work of the present administration in all its departments and comparing it with that of the Democratic administration which preceded it. Secretary Tracy declared he was ready to carry President Harrison's civil service rule into every branch of the naval service.

BLOWN TO PIECES.

Three Deaths Caused by the Explosion of Nitro-Glycerine Works.

PETROLIA, Ont., April 9.—Bradley's nitro-glycerine works, half a mile from this town, blew up last evening. How the explosion occurred will never be known, as the three workmen were instantly killed. The victims were Albert Bradley, James Chambers and D. McDermand.

Sufficient of the men's remains have been found to identify them. The side of the head and a part of the legs of one of them were found about 500 yards from the scene of the accident. How many more, if any, were in the building at the time is as yet unknown.

The five acres on which the building was located is literally covered with small pieces of bones and flesh, and the remains of the three already identified could be put in a bushel basket.

BOTH PARTIES CLAIM IT.

The Official Count of Chicago's Election Being Made To-day.

CHICAGO, April 9.—Complete returns seem to show that Hempstead Washburne, the Republican candidate for mayor, has been elected by from 400 to 700 plurality over Cregier, the Democratic candidate.

Comptroller Onahan's figures show 239 majority for Cregier, and he claims that the Republican candidate is defeated beyond doubt.

The official count is proceeding to-day, but it will be late before the result is announced. There is great excitement.

CARNEGIE ARRESTED.

He is Immediately Released on His Promise to Appear in Court.

PITTSBURG, April 9.—Andrew Carnegie a year ago was summoned by the Lawrence County Court to give testimony in the Wampum, Pa., Wire Rail Works case.

He ignored the summons, but late yesterday afternoon an attorney accompanied by a deputy sheriff arrived from Newcastle and placed him under arrest. He was immediately released on his promise to appear in Newcastle.

Bright Prospects for Fruit Growers.

KINGTON, N. Y., April 9.—Fruit growers have cause for rejoicing. An examination of the condition of the fruit trees along the lower Hudson this week shows that the prospects are bright for an almost unprecedented crop of various kinds of fruit this year.

Verdict Ordered for Alley.

BARNSTABLE, Mass., April 9.—The court in the case of Chester Snow vs. Hon. John B. Alley, for the alleged conversion of 75 bonds of the Postal Telegraph Company, valued at $100,000, ordered a verdict for Alley on the ground that the matter in suit has already been litigated.

American Association Season Opened.

NEW YORK, April 9.—The American Association opened their championship season yesterday. The games resulted: Washington 9, Athletic 8; Baltimore 11, Boston 7; St. Louis 7, Cincinnati 7 (forfeited to St. Louis); Louisville 7, Columbus 6.

An Old Clergyman Dead.

SEYMOUR, Conn., April 9.—Rev. Sheldon Davis, 78 years of age, a retired Episcopal minister, died here yesterday. In 1837 he graduated from Trinity and was at one time pastor at Poughkeepsie. He was also a State missionary in Connecticut and New York.

Taking Power from the Senate.

ALBANY, April 9.—The Assembly, by a party vote, passed the McClelland bill, taking from the Senate the power to confirm the Governor's nominations to office except where the Constitution provides otherwise.

The Influenza Increasing.

READING, Pa., April 9.—The physicians of this city report an alarming increase of influenza, pneumonia and diseases which possess many of the characteristics of the grip, which was prevalent here last year.

May Demand the Sugar Trust's Books.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 9.—The general opinion is that the General Laws Committee will ask for the production of the Havemeyer and the Sugar Trust counsel before the bar of the Senate and compel the production of the books.

Mangled by a Train.

FAIRPORT, N. Y., April 9.—John Roe of Pittsford was struck by a West Shore train here last night and killed, the body being horribly mangled. It is thought that Roe was under the influence of liquor.

They Want Shorter Hours.

PITTSBURG, April 9.—The Scale Convention of the railroad operators and miners of the Pittsburg and Ohio districts regard their demand for eight hours a day as paramount to an increase in wages.

ITALY'S GREAT TRIAL.

Nearly 200 Members of a Secret Society Under Arrest.

EXCITING SCENES IN COURT.

The Accused Occupy Two Galleries and Are Secured by Iron Bars.

Bulgarians Extorting Confessions to Discover the Assassins of Beltcheff—An Uproar at a Banquet in England—A Clergyman Refuses to Toast the Queen. The British Labor Commission.

ROME, April 9.—A monster trial is in progress at Barri, Italy. One hundred and seventy-nine members of the Mala Vita Society are accused of various crimes, their trial being in progress all at the same time.

The accused occupy two galleries, secured by strong iron bars. They are mostly masons, coopers and of other mechanical occupations. They are young, well dressed, but the number includes many well known criminals. Order is preserved by a strong force of police and military.

The witnesses for the prosecution number 207 and for the defense 425. The precincts of the court are thronged with soldiers, prepared to deal summarily with any outbreak.

The trial began last Monday. The majority plead absolute ignorance of the Mala Vita Society. A few admit that they wounded certain persons by order of the society, under fear of death. Two of the prisoners revealed the names of several officers of the society, including the president. One described the society as divided into Camorristi, Pudiotti and Giovanotti.

There has been great excitement and almost a riot in court.

EXTORTING CONFESSIONS.

Bulgarians Resort to Torture to Discover Minister Beltcheff's Assassin.

SOFIA, April 9.—The government, since announcing the arrests of the murderers of Minister Beltcheff, has refused all further information both as to the facts of the crime and the methods of its detection.

It is stated, however, on the authority of two of the persons who were arrested, and who have since been discharged, that torture was resorted to in the cases of several in order to extort a confession, and that one of the accused was not permitted to sleep until he had given all the knowledge of which the jailers believed him possessed.

The Russian arrested in connection with the case has disappeared, and the authorities deny all knowledge of him, claiming that he was liberated on being found innocent of the charge. He has not been seen by any of his friends since his arrest, and they do not believe the statement as to his liberation. On the contrary there is thought to be little doubt that he perished in prison, either under torture, or after being compelled in that way to give a clew to the guilty parties, of whom he was one.

UPROAR AT A BANQUET.

A Congregational Minister in England Refuses to Toast the Queen.

LONDON, April 9.—A Congregational minister named Davis, presiding at a banquet at Tavistock, created a sensation by refusing to toast Queen Victoria. He also declared that he would not toast the Prince of Wales or any other gambler or card sharper.

An uproar followed, a large majority of the guests protesting that such utterances were indecent and cowardly, on the ground that English royalty could not protect itself, like Continental royalty, against unfair attacks. Another gentleman offered the toasts, which were received with great enthusiasm.

Fierce Labor Riot in Bavaria.

MUNICH, April 9.—A number of unemployed Saxons and Bavarians attacked a gang of workmen, composed of Poles, who were engaged in the work of laying a cable at Hof, Bavaria. A fierce fight followed, during the progress of which 25 men, some on one side and some on the other, were more or less seriously wounded. Troops were eventually sent to the scene of the disturbance and managed to quell the disorder.

London Eulogizes Barnum.

LONDON, April 9.—Every London newspaper has a long obituary notice of the late showman, Barnum. The notices are nearl all eulogistic, on the ground of his services in amusing and educating humanity, but some show a disposition to criticise the humbug part of his exhibition. On the whole, however, the verdict is that he was a benefactor of mankind.

The British Labor Commission.

LONDON, April 9.—The list of members of the Labor Commission sent to Graves for the Queen's approval includes Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Lord Derby, Sir J. E. Gorst, Mr. Mundella, Mr. Fowler, Mr. Abraham, the Welsh labor member of the House of Commons, and Mr. Austin, secretary of the Cork Labor Federation.

Argentine Banks Suspend.

LONDON, April 9.—Dispatches state that at a meeting of the Cabinet Council in Argentine affairs, held during the day, the members signed a decree suspending payment of deposits in the National and Provincial Banks until June.

No More Government Banks.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Secretary Foster has refused to designate any more banks of deposit for the government funds, those already in existence being more than sufficient for the funds collected by the government. The prospects are that some of the money already on deposit will have to be withdrawn.

Fresh To-Day AND Dry To-Morrow.

A complaint often made about cakes and breads. This "peculiar dryness" is caused by the ammonia or alum in the baking powder.

The leavening power of Cleveland's Baking Powder is produced by cream of tartar and soda only, and food raised with it keeps moist and fresh for days.

Cleveland's is the only baking powder having this quality.

PEFFER LABOR'S ADVOCATE.

He Wants Workingmen to Know that They Have One Friend in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Senator Peffer, of Kansas, made an address before the Federation of Labor, in which he counseled laboring men to support candidates of their own in preference to those of the old parties.

In defining his position on the floor of the Senate, he said: "I want to identify myself with you. I want you, the laboring men and women of the country, to understand that you have at least one friend in the Senate of the United States who will not be ashamed or afraid to present whatever you may wish to that dignified body. Let every man and every woman consider himself or herself a committee of one to keep on this work of education."

THEY WERE MURDERED.

Commissioner Quinton and His Companions Killed by the Rebels.

SIMLA, April 9.—A letter has been received from the leader of the Manipuris saying that Chief Commissioner James W. Quinton and all his colleagues, who were taken prisoners at the time of the attack upon the British residency at Manipur, have been murdered.

This news is believed here. There has been further fighting near Manipur, and another British officer was killed.

The Newfoundland Treaty.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The progress of the negotiations between the United States and Great Britain respecting the improvement of commercial relations with Newfoundland is shown by the draft of a treaty which was ready for signature and ramification when the suspension of negotiations was ordered from Great Britain owing to the protest of the Canadian government. On account of the failure of negotiations the treaty is of no public interest.

Pava Refuses to Receive Callers.

NEW YORK, April 9.—Baron Fava, the Italian Minister, is still confined to his rooms at the Victoria Hotel. The hotel clerk said he had seen no physician. He refused to receive callers.

Passed the Australian Ballot Bill.

CONCORD, N.H., April 9.—The Australian Ballot bill was passed by the Senate under a suspension of the rules as it came from the House.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The overseers of Harvard College voted against shortening the course in that institution.

The well-know French Protestant pastor and writer, Edmond Dehault de Pressense, is dead.

For the first time in the history of Denver, Col., a Democratic mayor has been elected in that city.

Both Houses in New Hampshire have passed a concurrent resolution for final adjournment of the Legislature on Saturday.

John W. Moulton of Dover, N. H., has been arrested charged with assault on Mrs. Delia Bennett which resulted in her death.

Mrs. Lydia A. Strowbridge of Cortland, N. Y., has been held for causing the death of Ione Barber, on April 1, by malpractice.

Charles Houghton, "gentleman of leisure," of Boston, has filed a petition of insolvency, with debts of $45,000 and no valuable assets.

The paint shops of the Connecticut River Railroad in Springfield were burned last night, with three new passenger coaches just finished. Loss, $30,000.

Rev. H. W. George, who is under indictment for causing the death of Lotta Townsend of Fishkill, N. Y., by malpractice, has been admitted to bail. The amount of the bond was $7,000.

Mrs. Almira P. Balch, of Boston, widow of Wesley P. Balch, who committed suicide last November, has brought suit against the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company to recover $10,000, the amount of a policy issued upon the life of her husband. The suit is to be a test case.

Murdered by an Italian.

PEARSALL, Tex., April 9.—Phillip Endizzi, an Italian, shot and instantly killed Jacob Stemple of Indiana, at Dilfys, 14 mile south of here. Officers are scouring the country for Endizzi.

Gen. Rosecrans Ill.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—General Rosecrans is confined to his house with symptoms of pneumonia.

THE DAILY PRESS.

W. L. & A. L. Force, Publishers and Proprietors.

J. A. Demarest, . . Managing Editor.

BY THE WAY.

—You will always find the stock complete at Peck's.

—Steely Edsall will conduct the young mens meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday at 4:15 P. M.

—Friday and Saturday will be the last two bargain days for the famous St. Regis Indian splint baskets at 25 Somerset street.

—The Twenty-ninth International Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association of North America, will be held in Kansas City, May 6–10.

—The president and directors of the Y. M. C. A. would be glad to see all Association members at the reception to night. A special attraction will be the phonographic exhibition to be given by Ernest Marx.

—To accommodate his increased business C. B. Crane, the Hatter, has rented the store at 10 Park avenue, adjoining his old store, No. 12, and will devote No. 10 to his trunks and traveling bags department. He has laid in a fine new stock, and is prepared to suit all patrons.

—Under the auspices of the Young People's Association of the Crescent Avenue church the Rev. D. E. Finks will give a lecture with stereopticon illustrations, in the chapel, to-morrow evening, at 8 o'clock. This will be followed by a social reception in the parlors. All are cordially invited.

—Frederick A. Jones, who gave such great satisfaction to Plainfielders who visited him in February to have the eyes examined and proper glasses furnished, will again be at Caleb Dickinson's, 13 Park avenue, April 15, 16 and 17. Those having defective vision will benefit themselves by calling to see him.

—Lewis R. Blackford, recorder of Central Lodge, No. 48, Ancient Order of United Workmen, has this day received a draft for $2,000 from the Grand Lodge of A. O. U. W., in payment for a policy held by the late Robert W. Pullan made payable to his wife. Brother Pullan joined the Order Dec. 23, 1889, and died Feb. 11, 1891.

—C. M. Ulrich, a brother of Judge John Ulrich, has removed, with his family, to this city, and has opened at 25 West Front street, in the store just vacated by J. S. Cutter, a packing house, where, at cash prices, may be obtained fresh sausages and frankfurters, pigs' and beef tongues, boneless bacon, hams, and all other smoked and ready-cooked meats, cured and smoked on the premises, fresh every day. Mr. Ulrich has had 15 years' experience in the business in New York.

—Beginning next Monday, Charles Arnold, butcher, successor to N. B. Smalley, at 94 Somerset street, will conduct a strictly cash business. He promises first-class cuts, at low prices, and will in every way strive to make it an object for housekeepers to buy for cash. He will open no accounts, and will send out no wagons for orders, but will deliver all goods free, and will give prompt and superior service in catering to ready-money trade. He assures the public that his meats will be of the freshest, sweetest and best, and that his prices will be the lowest, and invites the patronage of those who desire to secure satisfactory service at a financial saving.

—Deane & Vanarsdale to-day celebrated the fourth anniversary of their business career. Their success has been almost phenomenal, they having increased their business one hundred per cent. in that time. They attribute their success to the fact that they have kept a larger assortment of goods than was ever before kept in Plainfield, in that way catching the trade that formerly went to New York. They get a large trade from the surrounding towns as well as from people directly in Plainfield. One of their greatest helps to success they acknowledge to be judicious advertising. They have had their advertisement in every issue of THE PRESS published and to the excellence of that advertising medium, and to their enterprising way in which they have made use of it, they owe a great measure of the good fortune they have secured.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Sheridan F. Fox, of Hillside avenue, is able to be out again after seven weeks serious illness of inflammatory rheumatism.

The wedding takes place to-day of Miss Louise G. Radford, daughter of Robert Radford of West Front street, and Mr. Will Martin.

The funeral of the late Ann Verdon, of "Shady Lawn," North Plainfield, will be held in the St. Mary's church, Saturday morning at ten o'clock, and from the house at 9:30.

The Rev. George Angleman, of Kansas City, is visiting his mother in North Plainfield. When he returns home, in about a month, he will take Miss Ella Cory as his bride to grace his parsonage.

Dr. Dean's Dyspepsia Pills are unquestionably good. They are, in my opinion, all they claim to be. I have tried them and found in them what I needed. I believe they will cure Dyspepsia, and that is saying much for any medicine. I am glad, therefore, to give my testimony.

THE REV. DANIEL F WARREN, D.D., Rector Holy Trinity, Jersey City Heights.

CRESCENTS WIN AGAIN.

Bates & Kieb Lose Their First Game, but the Total Was on Their Side.

The result of the third contest for the whist championship of the Central railroad, in which the Crescent League's players took part, was 275 to 260 in their favor, as given below. As exclusively announced in THE PRESS, new blood sat down at the table but was not any better than other people's.

Dunham and Daniel played a fine game and to them is due the victory. Their total was 25 points ahead of their opponents. This lifted up Keller & Miller who were 18 behind, and Bates & Kieb who were only 8 to the good. The detailed scores were:

PLAINFIELD.		WESTFIELD.
Bates & Kieb	35	Foster & Peck	27
Keller & Miller	24	Worth & Keeler	34
Dunham & Daniel	39	Denham & Hanford	20
	98		81
Bates & Kieb	32	Worth & Keeler	33
Keller & Miller	18	Denham & Hanford	32
Dunham & Daniel	27	Foster & Peck	33
	84		98
Bates & Kieb	26	Denham & Hanford	32
Keller & Miller	29	Foster & Peck	23
Dunham & Daniel	38	Worth & Keeler	26
	93		81
Plainfield	275	Westfield	260

At Bergen Point the Elizabeth Athletic Club's players met those of the New Jersey Athletic Club. The former won by a total 246 to 233. The record of the tournament to date is:

	Played.	Total.
Crescent League	3	820
N. J. A. C., Bergen Point	3	767
Westfield A. C.	3	735
Elizabeth A. C.	2	531
Fanwood Club	1	271

DISHONEST PAPERS STILL AT IT.

Their Editors, However, Only Express the Sentiments of Their Political Bosses.

The papers of this city who cannot be independent and cast politics aside for the sake of the city and the interests of the citizens, republish only such accounts of the telephone fire at Albany, Monday, as charge the cause to that "awful" trolley street railway system.

Because the bringing of a street railway, or water works, or sewerage, to Plainfield just now, might reflect credit upon the Democrats in the Council, these papers—whose type and presses alone are in their own possession, and whose opinions and expressions are merely those of their party's bosses—will use any means to block all such benefits. They will not only suppress the truth, but wilfully misrepresent the facts.

The New York Herald and other as unbiased papers say of the Albany fire: "Manager McNamara denies that it was the current from the trolley wires that caused the fire. He says the current is not strong enough to produce such an effect. He suggests that an electric light wire caused the trouble."

The truth about the state of affairs at Albany is that there has been a fierce fight between the telephone company and the electric railways since the latter began operations. Damages for "induction" troubles were claimed against the Broadway line, but the courts decided against the telephone company, which is likely to be heavily mulcted for stopping the cars by an injunction.

How Mr. Paddefoot's Friend Put His Foot in It.

On a recent Saturday evening, a well-known church goer of the city of Plainfield, was delegated to go to New York to escort an out-of-town evangelist to the place where he was to address a congregation on the following day.

They met in the Grand Central Depot, and by the side of the reverend gentleman stood an exceedingly heavy valise. This, the Plainfield man assumed, belonged to his guest, and when they started toward Jersey the valise was brought along. On arrival at the Plainfield home, it was offered to the visiting clergyman, who surprised his friend by the statement that the valise did not belong to him. It was concluded to open it in order to ascertain to whom it did belong, for now both were anxious to return it to the owner. To their horror they found that it belonged to a well-known divine who was exchanging pulpits, and who had within it not only all that would make up his Sunday toilet, but his carefully prepared sermon, as well.

Surprised by Their Young Friends.

The Misses Fanny and Lucy Westphal were tendered a surprise party last evening at their residence, 301 South Second street, by their young friends. About 40 young people were present to enjoy the evening, which was spent in singing, dancing and games. Refreshments were served in abundance. The party did not break up till 3:30 this morning, when all went home very much pleased with the affair. The committee who made the event such a success were Wm. Frey, Harry McComas, Henry Pugh, Maggie Revelle, and Blanche Moore.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 9.—In the Supreme Court John Bassette was sent to the State insane Asylum at Worcester. Bassette killed his wife at Ludlow.

Sweet Singers in Comic Opera.

IN The Casino, this evening, the tuneful opera of "The Mikado" as rendered by the Amateur Opera Association of New York city, accompanied by Thomas' orchestra, will be a veritable surprise even to those of the large audience who are already looking forward with every expectation of just such a great treat. The cast will be:

The Mikado	Mr. Chas. A. Hetzel
Nanki Poo	Mr. Geo. C. Pearce
Pooh Bah	Mr. J. Williams Macy
Koko	Mr. Chas. H. Parsons
Pish Tush	Mr. M. M. Cooper
Yum Yum	Mrs. Emma Henry-Thomas
Pitti Sing	Mrs. Alice Mersereau
Peep Bo	Mrs. Lou Moore
Katisha	Miss Annie Lee

Chorus of School Girls, Nobles and Guards.

In the above cast are included more sweet singers, and more actors and actresses suited by artistic taste and intelligence to fill the roles with gratification to the audience, than are ever found in any company of professionals. All who attend will be completely charmed with the voices of Mrs. Emma Henry-Thomas and the rest, and thoroughly entertained by the humor and talent of J. Williams Macy and the others. Admission may be purchased at the door of The Casino.

SENTENCED TO DIE.

The Three Hungarian Kloters Will Undergo the Death Penalty.

PITTSBURG, April 9.—The three Hungarians, George Euswak, Michael Gabal and Andrew Todt, convicted of murder in the riots at Carnegie's works, Braddock, on New Year's Day, have been sentenced to be hanged. A motion for a new trial was overruled.

The Socialists in New York have been holding meetings in behalf of these men.

Suffering from Tuberculosis.

NEW YORK, April 9.—Mayor Grant has received a letter from the Board of Health relative to the inspection by a veterinary surgeon of 64 cows in Connecticut and New Jersey, 16 of which he found were suffering from tuberculosis. It was reported that milk from them was used in the manufacture of condensed milk, and the Mayor was asked to write the Governors of Connecticut and New Jersey upon this subject.

The Newark M. E. Conference.

WASHINGTON, N. J., April 9.—The Newark Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is holding its annual session here. The attendance is large. Reports were read showing the church to be in a prosperous condition. A portion of the business to be transacted will be the appointment of pastors to take the place of those who are to change their location and also to fill expired terms.

PERTINENT PARAGRAPHS.

NUGGETS OF LOCAL NEWS, WITH GRAINS OF FREE-LANCE COMMENT.

As one who believes in the privileges that nineteenth-century civilization accords to the gentler sex in these United States, the Paragrapher hastens to plead with Plainfield's excellent Mayor concerning the proposed dog-muzzling ordinance which he has asked the Common Council to pass. The Paragrapher values his flesh as much as the Mayor values his, and is sufficiently solicitous about having his anatomy decorated with the imprints of the fangs of raving dogs, but who can chide him for expressing the opinion that in his contemplated law "to muzzle all dogs, male and female", Mayor Gilbert seeks too wholesale an infringement of canine rights? It is proper enough to put mouth-guards on the saucy quadrupeds of the sterner sex, and it might do no harm to clap a permanent seal over the lips of some of the impudent two-legged fellows who spend their days and nights loafing about the streets insulting women and other passers-by with their coarse jokes and foul remarks; but who ever would have suspected gentle-hearted Mayor Gilbert of a desire to muzzle females, even when the dear creatures are of the dog species? Well may all female dogs, as they read the proposed ordinance, feel that the act of muzzling them is a reflection on their kindliness of temperament, an intimation that they have an ugly temper and will bite people undeservedly; well may they take the insult deeply to heart: and who shall not say that in resentment of the prospective outrage they will be thoroughly justifiable in starting out immediately on a crusade of rabies and revenge, to teach the ungallant Mayor and the unfeeling Councilmen who are indorsing him the lesson that the gentler sex has rights which are not to be trifled with! Can the canine world be blamed for considering the proposition "to muzzle all dogs, both male and female", a heartless one? Mankind has long made fun of woman's fondness for displaying her conversational abilities, but the man who proposed to muzzle a talkative woman would be exiled to Somerville, or would be visited with some other living death. And does the Mayor wish Plainfield to be put on record as being a town where the entire female world may not be trusted? Perish the thought! Rather let the Mayor and Council decide to a man, that as for them they would rather suffer in silence from the bite of one misguided and wayward female dog, than that the whole race of female dogs should undergo the privation and hardships of being muzzled merely because of the suspicion that they have teeth and the fear that they may bite!

The subject of street railways for Plainfield is something the Paragrapher has thus far left for wiser heads to consider, and as those who have authority in the matter are getting along finely he does not purpose saying anything now that savors of intrusion. But, without going into the merits of the electric trolley as a desirable system of rapid transit, he would like to make a few remarks, "if", in the language of ex-Councilman Emmons, "he may be allowed", concerning the enthusiastic eagerness with which people in the borough view the coming of the proposed electric road.

The citizens of North Plainfield have far more of a spirit of enterprise slumbering in their bosoms than most Plainfielders give them credit for, and some fine morning the residents on the city side of the brook will awake to find that the borough has taken a gigantic stride forward of which Plainfield never dreamed it capable.

In the street railway matter the boroughites see a great opportunity. Already they are laying shrewd plans. The Broadway obstructionists have succeeded in shutting the railway out from Netherwood. The railway people are disgusted with the stubborn and unreasonable opposition reared up on that side of the town, and will not cheerfully turn their road in that direction even after the people now fighting against it recognize the desirability of the road and pray to have its benefits, at present refused and scorned, extended unto them. The company is naturally desirous of benefiting most those sections which earliest receive it with favor. Netherwood is going to lose the boom that was surely coming with the extension of the rapid transit road to the foot of the Heights, and it won't be the borough's fault if North Plainfield isn't the gainer. Already negotiations are pending looking to the construction and equipment of a road by the same company through the heart of the borough to the foot of the Watchung Mountains and up the mountain-side itself. The people of the borough did n't give much thought to the plan till they learned how the East Plainfield residents were blinding their eyes to their own interests and how ready the railway company was to step in and make itself a help to a community willing to have mutual interests developed. The borough is very ready for the road, and the road will not be long in getting ready for the borough. The plan now being perfected is to run the electric palace cars through Somerset street all the way to the mountain. Those who have seen the Rapid Transit Company's cars glide up the steep hills at Newark know of what superb railroading the cars are capable, and see no difficulty in the way of their climbing up to Johnston's drive and depositing people at the doors of the beautiful suburban homes that are to be built all along that thoroughfare as soon as the road is an assured success. The prediction has been made to the Paragrapher that within a reasonable time after the completion and perfected operation of the borough branch of the road the mountain-top will be covered with houses all the way from the Somerset street "Notch" to Scotch Plains, with electric cars running along the mountain-side the whole stretch, and with other electric cars in constant connection with the Jersey Central railway stations. The scheme is being carefully manipulated, and assurance is given that one of its speedy results will be the extension of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad to North Plainfield and farther west, with steam cars plying back and forth from New York and Newark all the way to the foot of the mountain just beneath Washington Rock, where charming villa sites abound. North Plainfield's mountains afford better advantages for such upper-air suburban homes than even the mountains at Orange, and the very near future will find an immense amount of practical proof of this superiority developed. Shrewd real-estate men who know of these plans, and some of whom have had a hand in their formulation, are quietly acquiring possession of land to be developed, and will make some very snug sums from their investments. But the hoped-for speculations in Netherwood real estate must be deferred because of the Broadway obstructionists, and if the people down that way are not very careful they will very soon find some enraged holders of big tracts of land in the fashionable quarter on the Heights, which was to have been improved by the shut-out road, sold at auction at such disastrously low prices that as a result tenement houses will there be built for poor people who don't mind a long walk and for persons who are not entirely unobjectionable neighbors.

***

The bringing of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad into the borough is n't the only thing contemplated by the people who are going heart and pocket-book into this rapid transit 'cross-town business. Before many moons have waned, it is said, Plainfield people will find the road running to Dunellen and New Market and also to South Plainfield, thus making two very desirable connections with the Lehigh Valley Railroad. One of the immediate results will be beneficial competition for Plainfield in steam railway service, and another will be the development of the suburbs in these directions.

***

It may be, the Paragrapher is informed, that the Somerset street feature of the route through North Plainfield will be abandoned, and that instead the proposed North Broadway will be the thoroughfare utilized. The borough is very determined about the extension of the present Peace street, and is bound to have the new street to be known as North Broadway opened. It finds that certain interests in Plainfield are opposed to the Peace street extension and are doing all in their power to kill the enterprise. These interests are fearful that the opening up of the borough in that direction will result in rivalry between city and borough in which the borough will be too much the gainer, and they will seek to restrain the Common Council from assisting in the opening. But the North Plainfield people are going to have that new street, whether Plainfield consent or not, and if they can't have a regularly accepted municipal thoroughfare they will purchase sufficient land to control as a private driveway that part of North Broadway on this side of the brook, and care for it as well as for the public continuation beyond the stream.

***

Some wide-awake people in Netherwood who were disappointed about the abandonment of the Broadway route for the electric cars are now seeking to have the road extended through East Fifth street and other thoroughfares so that the Heights may still be reached. They may succeed, and they may not. Time alone will tell. As the Paragrapher has already said, the Company is disgusted with the obstructionists of that side of town, and have had their sympathies enlisted more by the projectors of the borough mountain scheme.

***

In THE PRESS of April 3 the Paragrapher gave his opinion of the new county excise board law. 'T will evidently not be long before he has something to say concerning the men who are to be appointed under it for Union county. The first appointments in the State will be made for Middlesex county this week. The three men who have been selected by the Governor are men who have the liquor dealers' interests more to heart than the interests of the people. One is a politician who depends altogether on the New Brunswick and Amboy saloons for patronage and success in his aspirations. Another is himself a liquor dealer. The third is a warm personal friend of one of the biggest brewers in the State. Already the trio are receiving hospitable invitations from the hotel and saloon men in the county, and will probably never have to complain that it is a long time between drinks. There is going to be but one result of the appointment of these excise boards: through them the brewers and retailers will manipulate the license system to suit their own sweet will, and the people will have no option in the matter whatever.

DR. HURLBUT ON THE WOMAN QUESTION

Lively Argument Over His Attempt to Shut Off Debate.

At the Newark M. E. Conference at Washington, yesterday, the question of admitting women to the General Conference caused a lively discussion. The Rev. Dr. J. L. Hurlbut of this city, tried to shut off debate by moving that a vote be taken without discussion. The Rev. J. I. Boswell was on his feet in a moment objecting to gag law. His eyes sparkled with suppressed excitement as he argued in favor of free debate. Other conferences—he said—had debated the matter in a manly way, and he hoped the Newark Conference wes not going to shut its mouth. If that were done he should feel much ashamed of it. He proposed that twelve five-minute speeches be allowed, making an hour in all. That would enable six men on either side to ventilate their views.

"And what will the others do?"—asked the Rev. Mr. Meeker, sott o voc.

"This question has been thoroughly talked over from all sides,"—said Dr. Hulbut—"and nothing new can be said on it."

"Why should we have any gag law?"—queried the Rev. Dr. Freeman—"Why not have the matter dealt with in the ordinary way without limitation?"

"I hope"—said the Rev. J. A. Gutteridge—"that opportunity will be given for full and fair discussion."

The matter was finally laid over until this morning.

For the purpose of showing the workings of the Epworth League a "model cabinet meeting", as it was called, was held on the platform, and was participated in by these prominent Epworth Leaguers: Pastor, the Rev. J. R. Wright, Newton; president, James R. Joy, Plainfield; first vice president, R. N. Collyer, Bayonne; second vice president, Miss Carrie Hough; third vice president, Miss Margaret Brownshield, South Orange; fourth vice president, the Rev. George P. Eckman; secretary, Miss Lottie E. Johns, Bound Brook; treasurer, Miss Josephine L. Baldwin. Reports of the various departments were presented and discussed in an entertaining manner. There was some humor in this "model" cabinet, too, and at times was absolutely funny.

While the subject of instrumental music was being discussed Mr. Joy remarked that there was an amateur cornetist at the Windsor House who might be pressed into service. It was evident that the a. c. had made his whereabouts generally known, for everybody laughed. Some one else suggested that ex-Mayor Beatty might present the league with a cabinet organ, and instantly a reply came from another that the league had received one from the ex-Mayor, but it didn't go. Then everybody laughed again.

Amazons Gorgeous in Gold.

That well-known spectacular comic opera, the "Corsair," will be seen in all its splendor for the second time at Music Hall, Thursday evening of next week. It would take an able fashion writer to describe the costumes used in this production; they are said to have cost $20,000, and some of the goods $20 a yard in Paris. All burlesques have a gorgeous Amazon March, and the "Corsair" has been likewise so provided. The costuming is splendid. The first four who lead the procession are attired in pink and gold, glittering with pendants and are encased in gold armor; the second four are trimmed with nickel ornaments and wear metal helmets surmounted by waving plumes. The third four are all dressed in green, lemon and silver; they carry spears and crescent shaped shields of burnished silver, and on their heads they wear lofty silver helmets. The last four appear in assorted colors of blue and gold, green and silver, purple and white and gold and crimson, and the captain of the entire march wears a dazzling uniform of pure white satin literally ablaze with sparkling chrystals. The effect of this march, as seen under the powerful light of the calciums, is quite fine.

Dining Cars on the Royal Blue Line.

The Pullman company is now operating a dining car service via the Royal Blue Line between New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington on the famous 5 hour train leaving Plainfield daily except Sunday at 12:09 m. arriving in Washington 4:30 p. m. and on the fast Express leaving Plainfield daily at 4:14 p. m. arriving Washington 8:55 p. m. On Sunday mornings dining car train leaves Plainfield 9:48 a. m. and arrives at Washington at 3 p. m. These cars were built expressly for use on the Royal Blue Line and the high standard of service, for which the Pullman company is celebrated, will be fully maintained.

Shiloh's Cough Cure

APOLLO IN DISGUISE.

The Man Who Delights in Posing Before Passengers in Horse Cars.

"Do you see that man standing in the center of the car?" said a conductor on the Columbus avenue line to a Boston Herald reporter the other day while on a down-town trip about ten o'clock in the morning.

"Yes; anything unusual about him?"

"Only that he is stuck on himself."

"How does he show it?"

"By declining to take a seat when a passenger leaves. I have been watching him now for three or four weeks. If there are a number of ladies in the car when he enters he insists on standing, notwithstanding the amount of vacant space at his disposal. From his actions one would believe he did not see it, and frequently it happens that some kind-hearted old gentleman who never loses an opportunity to be of service to his fellow man will poke Mr. Vanity in the back with his cane and direct his attention to a seat. He always meets a solicitation of this nature with 'No, thank you; I prefer standing, as I intend getting out shortly.'

"If there is a pretty girl in the car he manages to get as near her as possible, so that when the car sways in taking a curve he can jostle against her and go through the street-car etiquette of lifting his hat and begging her pardon.

"If he enters a car that is sparsely occupied, and no ladies are present, he takes a seat as close to the door as he can, in order to be the first one to rise when a lady does come in. The 'thank you' he receives for his disguised courtesy he interprets as a recognition of his personal attractiveness, and his actions during the remainder of the trip are based on this presumption. If the lady should by chance happen to look toward him it adds strength to his false supposition and additional height to his mountain of conceit. When she leaves the car he follows her with his eyes until she is out of sight, with the hope that she will turn and give him some sign of recognition.

"It makes little difference to men of this character how often they are made to feel the sting of their own conceit, as it is without apparent effect."

SUED FOR STOLEN TIME.

How an Old Proverb Led to an Innocent Man's Conviction.

A rather striking case has just been brought before a Vicksburg justice of the peace, says the Arkansaw Traveler. A man named Rathbone sued one Jackson for time.

"Well," said the justice, when the case was called, "you have brought an action here for time, but you do not specify. Did you give this man Jackson so much of your time and has he refused to pay you for it?"

"Your honor, this man has had my time and does refuse to pay me. I will explain. I live on the floor just above him, and some time ago bought a fine clock on the installment plan. The other day the fellow came around to collect the installment, and it occurred to me that, as Jackson could hear the clock strike, he ought to help me pay for it. I looked into the matter and found that he had no clock and I also learned that his hours were regulated by my timepiece. Then I told him that he owed me for my time and explained to him, but he refused to entertain my claim."

"Mr. Jackson," said the judge, "have you no timepiece of your own?"

"I have not, your honor."

"And have you been telling the time of day by listening to the striking of Mr. Rathbone's clock?"

"Well, yes, but I did not think that it was wearing on the clock. I thought that while the clock was striking for him it could just as well strike for me, especially as one set of strikes would do for both families."

"But had you intended to get a clock before Mr. Rathbone bought his?" the justice asked.

"Well, yes."

The justice reflected a moment and then said: "Your delay in buying a clock makes you the victim of this action, for the law plainly says, as every schoolboy ought to know: 'Procrastination is the thief of time.' You have, therefore, stolen this man's time and will have to pay for it or suffer more serious consequences. I assess the damages at ten dollars."

Here's our card.

It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are in straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public estimation accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for telling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of Shoes.

THE GOOD-NATURED MAN.

The man who is good-natured is a blessing to humanity;
You never hear him growling nor indulging in profanity.
He's loved by big and little; e'en the dogs in his community
With wagging tails will follow him at every opportunity.

He gives his only dollar to whoever is unfortunate;
He lends a sympathetic ear to those who are importunate;
No matter how you treat him he will greet you with urbanity,
And set a good example to professors of Christianity.

In case he meets a person with a suicidal tendency
He makes him see the beauty of the world in its transcendency,
And drives away his blueness with a merry jocularity
That sends the gloomy person into spasms of hilarity.

The man who is good-natured never practices duplicity;
The life he leads is honest and a marvel of simplicity;
He never has an enemy; he feels no animosity,
And everywhere establishes a friendly reciprocity.

With him you get acquainted without waiting for formality,
And right away you like him for his unreserved cordiality;
He may be plain of feature, but you never see his homeliness,
For pleasant smiles and kindly tones impress you with his comeliness.

He, being always happy, has a wonderful facility
Of making those around him share and show his amiability;
The good he does in cheering his too-much-depressed fraternity
Gives them a joyous life on earth and fits them for eternity.

—H. C. Dodge, in Goodall's Sun.

MR. BOWSER.

Mrs. B. Tells of His Alleged Attack of Spinal Meningitis.

THE indifference displayed by the average husband to the pains and aches of the average wife is only equaled by the manner in which he suddenly goes all to pieces at the slightest sickness. We have a regular programme at our house in certain lines. I am subject to nervous headaches. About once a fortnight Mr. Bowser comes home at noon and finds me on the sofa with my head tied up and my temples throbbing as if they would burst. It's just the next thing to being pounded on the head by a war-club, and if the house was on fire I should take my time about getting out, and that without trying to save anything except the camphor bottle. The programme then runs as follows:

Enter Mr. Bowser.

Hangs up his hat and overcoat.

Marches into back parlor, evidently suspecting some calamity.

Stands and gazes at me as if I were some curiosity. I try to smile, but it is a dead failure.

"Humph! Cholera, I suppose!"

"N-o." (Very faintly.)

"Yellow fever, then. I always knew you'd have it!"

"N-o. Only—only—"

"Only smallpox, eh! Nice thing to bring into the house, isn't it!"

"Mr. Bowser, I—I've got one of my headaches!"

"O-o-o-h! Is that all! Good lands, but you gave me a scare! Headache? Humph! If I was a woman of your size and age I'd show a little spunk."

"But it's dreadful!"

"Bosh! There's nine parts of imagination to one part headache."

And he goes slamming around the house and whistling away, as if every sound did not fall on my skull like a blow of a hammer.

"Coming to dinner?"

"Mercy, but I can't eat."

"Can't, eh! Well, if you will let your imagination run away with you in this manner I can't help it. Be more left for me to eat, you know."

"I ALWAYS KNEW YOU'D HAVE IT."

He looks in as he is ready to leave the house and says:

"If you are down town this afternoon come in. Bye-bye, booby!"

We have another programme—one which is followed when Mr. Bowser comes home with a bilious headache. If I happen to be looking when he gets off the car a block away I can tell what is the matter. He comes dragging his legs, head down and eyes half closed, and I meet him at the door and inquire:

"Mr. Bowser, have you been run over on the street?"

"W-worse'n that!" he gasps, as he sits down on a stair step and holds his head in his hands.

"Have you been shot at or stabbed by a ruffian?"

"Would that I had!"

"Mr. Bowser, what awful, awful thing has happened? Answer me at once!"

"I've—I've got one of those infernal headaches!"

"O-o-o-h! Is that all? Why, I didn't know but some awful thing had happened. Well, dinner is ready and I've got pork and beans, as you requested."

"P-pork and b-beans! My soul, woman, but how can you talk p-pork and b-beans to a dying man!"

"Only a headache! Why, what should a great big man like you care about a headache? Come to dinner."

But he staggers into the sitting-room and falls sideways on the lounge, and utters a groan which arches the cat's back up to an angle.

"Mr. Bowser, these headaches are all imaginary," I observe as I take him by the legs and swing him about so that he rests on his back.

"O-o-o-h!"

"If I was a man of your size and age I'd show a little spunk."

"O-o-o-h! How can I stand it!"

"Well, there'll be more left for me to eat. Better lie as quiet as you can."

But I don't go out to dinner. He wants a pillow for his head and he wants his shoes taken off and his feet covered up, and then I have to remove his collar and necktie and tie a wet towel around his forehead, and all his pluck has departed. It isn't near as bad a headache as mine. The slightest headache a nervous woman ever has will double discount any headache assigned to a man to carry about, but she must grin and bear it.

"DO YOU THINK THAT I'M GOING TO DIE?"

I got the hartshorn for M. Bowser.

I change that for the camphor.

I chafe his hands.

I make mustard plasters for his feet.

I warn the cook to be quiet in the kitchen, and I send our boy over to a neighbor's.

Then I turn the pillow over.

Then I hold the camphor under his nose.

Then I take off the towel and tie it tighter around his aching head. He seems at last to fall into a doze, but suddenly opens his eyes and faintly calls:

"Mrs. B-Bowser!"

"Yes, dear."

"Do you think-think I'm going to die?"

"Die? Why you've only got a headache."

"But I feel a g-goneness—a sort of sinking away. Do you think it can be collapse of the system?"

"Of course not. You've got a fever—a little one about as big as a pin-head. All you've got to do is to go to sleep."

"But you'd better call up the doctor."

"Nonsense!"

"If you don't get the doctor I'll be dead in half an hour!"

And so I go to the telephone and ring up the central and hold an imaginary conversation with the doctor as follows:

"Mr. Bowser thinks he's dangerously ill and he wants you to come up right away. Can't you? That's too bad. Well, come in two hours at the latest. He's on the lounge now. Yes, it started with a headache. Yes, I'll keep him smelling of the camphor bottle. Good-by."

The entire afternoon is taken up with nursing Mr. Bowser and assuring him that he has not been struck with death. Then, at tea time, I must make him toast and poach him an egg, and at bedtime the cook and I have to help him upstairs. He gets into bed with a series of groans, turns over with the declaration that he will never see another sun rise, and is sound asleep in ten minutes. Next morning, when he arises fresh and clear headed, and I inquire if his headache is all gone, he looks at me in a disdainful way and replies:

"Mrs. Bowser, my headache, as you call it, was a violent and malignant attack of spinal meningitis, and nothing but my great will-power, aided by my pluck and courage, enabled me to throw it off! Had it been you, you would have given up and died."—Detroit Free Press.

Lichens in Winter.

In our country, when the temperature descends below zero, lichens enter upon a retarded course of life due less to the lowering of the temperature than to a loss of water. In lichens that grow under shelter and on the ground, the loss of water being less, the gaseous exchanges will be merely decreased, and remain sensible. On the contrary, in lichens, living upon trees and exposed to the air, desiccation occurs to a considerable extent, and life is then so retarded that, in darkness as well as in light, the gaseous exchange no longer becomes appreciable. If, by chance, the lichen contains a notable proportion of water, the freezing of the latter produces an effect analogous to that of desiccation, and the gaseous exchanges are again of the feeblest character.—Revue Scientifique.

She Knew Him.

Husband—Don't order any meat for dinner, I am going fishing and will be back in time for us to have a mess of fish.

Wife—Well, you had better tell the fish man to leave them at once as you go past his place. It's so late when you return.—Once a Week.

—Working a New Dodge.—Hojack—"I hear that burglars got into your house and stole three hundred dollars." Passifer—"It isn't true, but I wish you wouldn't deny it if you hear it mentioned." "Why not?" "Let me have a little immunity from my creditors."—Inter Ocean.

JUST ONE DRINK.

The Pathetic Scene Witnessed in a Police Station.

He didn't look like a bad man as he was brought into the police station last night, and he wasn't a bad man, either—just unfortunate. For three months he worked hard every day, stayed at home at night, and didn't drink. The sorrow lines began to fade from his wife's face, and eyes grew brighter as sh thought happier days were coming. He laid off yesterday afternoon and came down town to buy some presents for the children. The devil met him and clapped him on the shoulder.

"Come, old boy, take a drink," grinned the devil.

"No, sir; I haven't touched a drop for three months, and I ain't —"

"Oh, pshaw!" said this hideous one. "Come on. Just one snifter. Be a man. Come, we'll have one and then we'll quit." He listened to the devil. One drink. One drink, two drinks, three, four, five, and a drunken man, with his arms full of parcels, staggered down the crowded thoroughfare. That is how he happened to be at the police station. His bundles lay on a table in the sergeant's room, and out of idle curiosity reporters and patrolmen crowded around them to see what they were.

Before he became stupid from drink he had written the names of the children on bits of pasteboard cards furnished by the saloonkeeper, and tied them to the gifts. Here was a little cheap doll in gaudy dress for "Carrie," a picture book for "Johnny," a tin horse and wagon for "Jimmy," another picture book for "Mary." A larger bundle unrolled revealed a calico dress for "mother," and a tiny sack contained a handful of candy and raisins for them all. The reporters and policemen looked at each other. There was something so pathetic about that collection of simple little gifts of a poor man to his children that their hearts were touched.

"This is tough," huskily remarked a reporter, who had witnessed all kinds of crimes without a quake.

"Yes, and that man shall not stay in there to-night," said another, with a dash of his hand across his eyes.

"Here's a quarter for a little more candy for them kids," growled a big policeman who wanted to be stern, but the woman part of his heart wouldn't let him—maybe he had children a home.

A policeman's helmet was passed around, and every one put some money into it. Two pounds of candy, a dozen oranges, two dozen bananas, some nuts and other sweetmeats for "them kids" were purchased. The parcels were all rolled up together, just as if they hadn't been disturbed, and it didn't require much persuasion to secure the man's release. He was a little unsteady as he started home, but he had come to his senses, and tears glistened in his eyes. Sergeant Dawson and a News reporter followed along behind to see that he did not fall by the wayside. He didn't, but entered his home, where a patient wife was waiting for him. The reporter and policeman turned and walked back toward the stationhouse. They didn't speak a word until the parting corner was reached.

"I feel better," remarked the tall sergeant. And so did the reporter.—Indianapolis News.

NEW NOTES AND FACTS.

TO SAVE wine-drinkers from disappointment, London society is adopting the practice of tying a blue ribbon through invitations to dinner at which wine is not to be served.—The Voice.

IT has been estimated by an ex-major of the police that it requires $90,000 every week to support the liquor traffic in the district of Columbia, or $4,680,000 per year, all of which is a direct tax upon the people.

EVEN the parrots have caught the temperance fever. A polly in Atlanta, Ga., heard the crowds of children drilled in singing for the Atlanta national convention, and since then it sits loft and sings: "Saloons, saloons, saloons must go!"

A WEEKLY return of the deaths in London and twenty-seven other great towns of England and Wales show the highest mortality where the greatest amount of drunkenness prevails. The records of the police court are taken as an indication of the extent of inebriety.—Journal of Inebriety.

REV. THEODORE L. CUYLER, D. D., writing in the National Temperance Advocate, says: "What we want now is a tremendous movement all along the line in the direction of fighting the drink! When the drink is discarded the saloon loses its customers, the traffic is undermined; the way is prepared to shut up saloons, and keep them shut. Oh, what a glorious year 1891 will be if it should see an old-fashioned revival of united assault, with God's help, on the drinking customs of this land!"

THE Germans have a fable that, once upon a time, the devil was outwitted by a Swabian, and shut up in a hollow tree for twenty years. When he came out great was his chagrin to find his brimstone kingdom almost deserted. Even some of his ablest assistants had been converted and gone back to Heaven. He bethought himself a minute and then went over to Nordhausen and began making brandy, and in twenty years hell was as populous as ever.—Boston Advertiser.

A New Dodge.

An ingenious Washington toper, after exhausting all the various well-known means of getting either whisky or money, ran into a drug store, holding his hand to his side and crying: "I'm shot." Then he fell to the floor, as though writhing, and called for whisky. Without stopping to make an examination, the druggist sent word to the police station to have the supposed injured man conveyed to the hospital as quickly as possible. The two officers who responded to the call reached the store just as the thirsty man was about to get his drink. They recognized him at once and placed him under arrest. A drink of water was the only beverage he received, and the next morning he was sentenced to ninety days "on the farm."—Detroit Free Press.

He Who Squeals Must Feel Hurt.

DON'T BE FOOLED!—By a delusive advertisement from a would-be competitor, who for the past year has attempted to copy our method of doing business. We are the recognized originators of low prices, and leaders in our line of business in this city. We pay our own bills, and sell as cheap as we choose, and we could give our goods away if we want to, and it's no one's business. We are an independent firm, and by keeping out of combinations that raise the price of Groceries, we are enabled to operate our business to the interests of the people of Plainfield.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

A TERRIBLE WRONG

Anna Dickinson Tells a Story of Persecution.

DRAGGED TO A LUNATIC ASYLUM

Incarcerated for Five Weeks and Deprived of Communication With Her Friends.

She Accuses Her Sister of Plotting Against Her to Obtain Money from the Public—Set at Liberty by a Physician Who Recognized Her Sanity—Legal Proceedings to be Instituted.

NEW YORK, April 10.—Anna Dickinson and her maid arrived at the Astor House late last night.

In an interview this morning the eloquent and gifted woman says she was locked up in a madhouse with maniacs and gibbering lunatics without any cause and while she was still in possession of her own reason.

Worse than that, she says, the wrongs and sufferings she has undergone was the result of a deliberate design, and the author of that design a member of her family and bearing her own honored name.

In moderate language, with the bearing of a woman who had weighed every word and understood the significance of all she said, she told what she had gone through and why she believed she had been the victim of a conspiracy.

Miss Dickinson's Story.

On February 25, so ran the substance of her story, she had been seized in her home at West Pittston, Pa.; carried off by force, and in violation of law confined in the State Asylum at Danville. There she stayed five weeks and a day, without examination as to her mental or physical condition, sick, worn with terror and anxiety, needing medical attendance and lacking it, knowing all the time that a terrible wrong was being practiced upon her, but deprived of communication with her friends in the world.

From this situation she was taken on April 2, in a sad state of destitution and misery, by a physican from another State, Dr. Seward of Goshen, N. Y., who had been called upon to remove her to his supposed private asylum.

Instead of shutting her up in another institution this physician, a practitioner of repute and standing, believed her sane and set her free.

Baseless Stories Given Out.

To account for her incarceration baseless stories had been set afloat of her violence and desperate madness. These Miss Dickinson circumstantially declared to be utterly false.

The object of subjecting her to these dreadful ordeals was, she believed, to get money from the public by arousing sympathy for her pretended condition. The person whom she accused as the chief instrument in this unnatural design is her own sister.

Legal proceedings which will test the justice of these sweeping charges are to be begun at once.

THE REPLY TO RUDINI.

The President and Secretary Blaine at Work on It.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—President Harrison was in consultation for over an hour with Secretary Blaine and Third Assistant Secretary of State Moore. It is learned that the conference was upon the phraseology of the legal part of Mr. Blaine's intended reply to the Rudini dispatch.

The previous corrsspondence in the matter has been handled solely by Mr. Blaine, but it is understood that the question of treaty obligations has assumed a more serious nature, and it is necessary to have set forth in the reply an interpretation of the treaty that will stand.

Mr. Moore was called into the conference on account of his great ability as an international authority and his familiarity with the legal relations which the Federal government bears to the States. President Harrison is anxious to have the forthcoming reply to appear in such language that its meaning cannot be distorted.

The California Trip.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The arrangements for President Harrison's trip through the South and to California have been completed. As it now stands the party will consist of President Harrison, Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Dimmick, Postmaster-General Wanamaker, Secretary Rusk, Private Secretary Halford, Executive Clerk Tibbetts, and representatives of the press associations. The trip will occupy 30 days and the distance to be traveled will be 9,500 miles.

Archbishop Ireland's Mission.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Archbishop Ireland had an interview with Secretary Noble, in which they incidentally discussed the discharge of Catholic Sisters at the Indian school at Green Bay, Wis. A special agent of the Interior Department is still investigating the case, until the completion of which no action will be taken in the matter.

P. T. BARNUM'S FUNERAL.

The Great Showman Laid to Rest in Bridgeport To-day.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN., April 10.—The funeral of P. T. Barnum, in accordance with his expressed wishes, was unostentatious.

At 1 o'clock services were held in the house and were strictly private. Rev. L. B. Fisher of the Universalist Church of this city, and Rev. Dr. Collyer of New York, officiated at the final services in the South Congregational Church at 2 o'clock.

It was Mr. Barnum's request that Dr. Collyer should speak upon the text "Not my will, but Thine be done," and that two hymns which he selected, just prior to his death, be sung.

A large number of New York people attended the services at the church.

The remains will be placed in a vault in the Mountain Grove Cemetery.

ARRESTED FOR MURDER.

Three Boys Will Have to Answer for Farmer Hotchkiss' Death.

MEADVILLE, Pa., April 10.—Lynn Hites, Edward Skeel, jr., and Burt Pealman, three young farmers of this county, have been arrested for murder. On the morning of March 17 Martin J. Hotchkiss, a farmer, was found by the roadside near this city, covered with blood and unconscious. There was a severe wound on his head and both of his feet were frozen. Last Sunday both feet were amputated and last night he died.

The three boys were with Hotchkiss on the night of March 16. They say they had a bottle of alcohol and got drunk; when they got into his buggy, Hotchkiss made the horse run, and was thrown out and hurt. The boys became frightened and ran away, leaving him in the ditch.

A CASE OF TYPHUS.

Spotted Fever of the Worst Kind Discovered in a Hospital.

ELIZABETH, N. J., April 10.—A case of spotted typhus of the worst kind was detected among the patients in the Elizabeth hospital. It greatly alarmed the medical staff. The patient, a Polish Jew, arrived from Hamburg two weeks ago, and boarded in the Polish quarter on Pine street.

A physician sent him to the hospital last night. The president of the board of health was notified, and the patient was turned over to the health authorities. He was removed to the Riverside Hospital, New York. It is 11 years since a similar case was found here.

In a Critical Condition from Liquor.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 10.—Michael H. Flannigan, chief of the Oregon City, Ore., fire department, who was found Tuesday night in a Central Hudson train from the West in a condition bordering on delirium tremens, is considered to be in a critical condition. He was taken to the Homeopathic Hospital. He had $110.06 in currency and a check on the Hanover National Bank dated March 31 and payable to himself for $350 and a through ticket to Lowell Mass., where he said he was going to visit his sister.

Another Clark Thread Mill.

NEWARK, N. J., April 10.—It is very generally understood that Robert and William Clark, who, rather than continue to associate with Superintendent Walmsley of the Clark Thread Company, resigned from the company a few weeks ago, have determined to embark in the thread manufacturing business themselves, and have selected a site at Arlington upon which to erect a mill. The striking spinners will probably find employment with the new concern.

Canal Appointments.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 10.—Superintendent Hannan appointed John F. Ryan, of Syracuse, to be section superintendent of section 6 on the Erie Canal, to succeed Daniel Bookstaver, resigned; Robert F. Owens, of Amsterdam, to be section superintendent of section 3, Erie Canal, to succeed Martin Allen, deceased, and Supervisor Ford, of Clyde, superintendent of section 8, in place of Daniel V. Teller.

An Italian Switchman Caused Her Death.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 10.—An inquest was held on the body of the woman killed by the railroad accident in the Housatonic yard. The coroner's jury found that an Italian switchman named Nicolas Sescance was responsible through his negligence for the accident, and a warrant was issued for his arrest. The deceased was Julia Husenk, aged 20, who had only recently come to this country.

The Decker Murder Trial.

ELMIRA, N. Y., April 10.—The trial of William Decker for the murder of Mrs. Nellie Foster, his sweetheart and alleged mistress, has begun in the Supreme Court, after three days had been consumed in securing a jury. The defense will be insanity, and many sensational features will be brought out during the trial.

Capt. Loar Arrested.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Pa., April 10.—Capt. Loar and 13 deputies were arrested on charges of murder and were taken to Scottdale, where they gave bail for a hearing later.

LABOR'S BIG BATTLE

The Mining Conference Terminated Suddenly.

NO AGREEMENT WAS POSSIBLE.

All Mine Workers in the Country Will Demand an Eight-Hour Day.

They Will Stop Work on the 1st of May—500,000 Persons Will be Directly Affected—The Knights and Federation Back of the Men—The Operators Will Resist—Two Strikes Already Ordered.

PITTSBURG, April 10.—The Interstate convention of Miners and Operators closed last night suddenly. After a fierce battle of words and opinions further talk was declared profitless, and an adjournment made sine die, which fairly made the miners' heads swim, though they accepted the proposition with a smile.

This action means practically that the interstate agreement has been abolished, and that the amicable and harmonious relations that have existed between the two classes for the past five years have been broken off and may not be resumed. It also means that the 75,000 mine workers in these two regions will stop work on the first of May, affecting 500,000 persons directly and hundreds of thousands indirectly.

As the mine workers of the country will also demand an eight-hour day, a continuation of work after May 1 now seems almost impossible. The two great organizations of the country—the Knights of Labor and the Federation of Labor—are back of the men, and their money will be at their disposal.

The Operators Will Fight.

The miners and operators immediately held separate meetings. The operators talked over the situation and agreed to fight on May 1, and fight hard. They will likely hold another meeting shortly.

At the miners' meeting the following resolution was adopted: "That the miners of the competitive field demand an advance for pick mining equivalent to an advance of 10 cents per ton in the Hocking field on the basis of an eight-hour day, and that no place resume operations until all have received the advance, or until advised to resume by the National Executive Board."

Two Strikes Ordered.

A meeting of the executive board of the United Mine Workers was held and it was decided to order out the men at Coshocton, O., and Tioga, Pa., and fight the operators in those places immediately.

The operators also held a meeting and decided to communicate with the Western operators to make preparations for the fight next May.

Will Prostrate the Big Industries.

Col. W. P. Rend said: "It is with extreme sorrow I see the agreement shattered. There will undoubtedly be a strike on May 1. There will be 500,000 persons affected by it, and the big industries of the country will be prostrated."

NICELY'S CONFESSION.

He Was Present, but Did Not Kill Farmer Umberger.

SOMERSET, Pa., April 10.—The following confession of David Nicely has just been made public:

"SOMERSET JAIL, April 1, 1891.—I, David Nicely, make concerning the murder of Herman Umberger, for which I am convicted and sentenced to be hanged April 9, the following statement: I was present when Herman Umberger was murdered. I left home about 1 o'clock on Feb. 27, 1889, to go to some place in Somerset County, for the purpose of robbery, if not murder, and didn't know who was to be robbed, not learning Umberger's name, until well along on the road. The murder took place about 7 o'clock in the evening.

"I arrived at home about 2 o'clock next morning. I had a pistol and fired into the ceiling, but not with the intention of hitting Mr. Umberger, nor did any shot I fired hit him. I intended only to frighten him. As to my evidence in court part was true and part was not. The pocketbook produced in court as mine was not the one which I gave to Will Thomas, as I testified in court. It was bogus.

"Hamilton Smith's testimony in the case against me was false in this: I was not in Ligonier on February 27, 1889, as he swore. Lew Bener and Ed McCracken did not meet me on the pike, as was stated in court. Charles Veneer and Lewis Veneer, his son, would not have recognized me, as their testimony says they did, on the Pittsburg and Philadelphia pike, February 27, 1889. I make this statement in view of approaching execution, in fear of God, truthfully, to C. W. Granger, my spiritual adviser."

Dave Nicely and his brother Joe, who were hanged on April 3 for Farmer Umberger's murder, protested innocence on the scaffold. While he does not say so it is thought that Dave intended to convey the idea that Joe was the murderer."

Agitated Over the Grip.

NYACK, N. Y., April 10.—The grip and pneumonia have attacked the little village of Gloster, N. J., 10 miles below this place, with great severity, resulting fatally in a number of cases. Last night four persons died there of these diseases, and there are other serious cases. The people are in a state of agitation.

"Oofty Goofy" Critically Ill.

NEW YORK, April 10.—Gus Philips, the old-time comedian, better known as "Oofty Goofy," was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital last night, suffering with Bright's disease and the asthma. His condition is critical.

General Rosecrans Improving.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—General Rosecrans spent a comfortable night, and is reported to be in improved condition and spirits.

TRAGEDY ON THE STREET.

Ball-Player Walker Plunges a Knife Into a Man's Stomach.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 10.—Patrick Murray, a mason, was murderously assaulted at noon by Moses F. Walker, the noted colored ball player, who caught for the champion Newark team in 1887, and for the Syracuse Stars in 1888 and 1889.

Murray, with two or three companions, was standing on a street corner when Walker, who was under the influence of liquor, came along.

"What are you walking the streets for?" Murray asked. "Why are you not at work?" Walker flew into a rage, and drawing a knife stabbed the questioner in the stomach and ran away.

Two of Murray's companions followed and captured Walker, holding him until the arrival of an officer. When locked up Walker fell into a drunken stupor. Murray's wound is fatal.

Walker, before going to Newark, had been admitted to the bar in Toledo. Since he quit baseball he has been in the Railway Mail Service, and has been running between this city and New York.

CHILDREN SHOT DOWN.

An Insane Man Seriously Wounds Several Boys.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., April 10.—James H. Ferguson, who is supposed to be insane, fired a double-barrelled shotgun into a group of children of St. Mary's Parochial School on Gidney avenue.

Several of the children were wounded by the shot, Frank Barnes, ten years old, being dangerously hurt. More than 20 shots struck him in the neck and face. He may die.

Others who were seriously hurt were Joseph Stapleton and Lawrence Tobin.

Ferguson was arrested. He has acted strangely for several weeks.

Love Stories Drove Him Insane.

ROSEDOUT, N. Y., April 10.—Charles Markle, a young man residing near here, has been declared insane and taken to an asylum. His condition was brought about by the reading of continued love stories in weekly newspapers, which produced in him a deep infatuation for the heroines. So interested did he become in them that he could neither sleep nor eat, but wandered aimlessly around with his mind concentrated on the characters and plots of the stories he read. With some he pleaded, while others he cursed as if in real life.

Metz Says He Will Kill Himself.

RAHWAY, N. J., April 10.—John Metz, of Newark, was discharged at noon by the coroner for the want of sufficient evidence to hold him on the charge of killing Albert Schaab at the wedding held at East Rahway on Monday night. The jurors, after hearing the evidence, came to the conclusion, after a little deliberation, that the killing was purely accidental, and that no blame attached to Metz except carelessness. Metz says he does not care to live and will kill himself at the first opportunity offered him.

The Cokers Adopt New Tactics.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 10.—The coke workers will adopt new tactics to settle the great strike. The leaders have agreed to stand aside and allow the men to act. With this end in view a convention of the strikers was called for to-day by Peter Wise, the object being the appointment of a board of conciliation. The board will consist entirely of men from the ranks, and will ask for a conference with the operators as representatives of the employes and not as an organization.

No Power Over the Chinese.

OTTAWA, April 10.—It is understood that a request recently reached the Customs Department from Washington that steps be taken to prevent the migration of Chinese from Canada to the United States. The department answered that it had no power to take action of the kind suggested. Once the Chinese pay the poll tax they are at liberty to come or go the same as other people in Canada.

Found Hanging in His Barn.

BATAVIA, N. Y., April 10.—Lucius D. Griswold, aged 43 years, committed suicide by hanging. He had gone to the barn to feed his horses, and not reappearing one of his children went out and found him hanging from the pole of his wagon, which he had placed against an upper corner of the barn. He was cut down and a coroner's jury summoned. He leaves a widow and four children.

Nearly 102 Years Old.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 10.—The death of Edward Brewster removes another of the pioneers of Genesee County. He was born August 14, 1790. Mr. Brewster came from thorough Puritan stock, being a lineal descendant of Elder William Brewster of Windsor, Mass., and his mother, Rebecca Lester.

One Life Lost in a Hotel Fire.

NEW LONDON, Conn., April 10.—Early in the morning the Central Hotel, a large frame structure owned by the Daly brothers, was badly damaged by fire. All the guests escaped in their night-clothes. Michael Daly, the father of the proprietors, was burned to death. He was 70 years old.

Italians Still Coming.

NEW YORK, April 10.—The transport steamship Cashmere brought 1,420 Italians to this port, and it is expected that at least 220 will be sent back as unfit on legal grounds to be admitted to America, over 85 having already been detained for medical examination.

Sudden Death of a Physician.

HIGHLAND FALLS, N. Y., April 10.—Dr. H. H. Hitchcock, a prominent physician of this place, died suddenly this morning of heart disease. He was 33 years of age.

Three Mines on Fire.

HOUGHTON, Mich., April 10.—Fire is raging in the Pewabic mine and the Quincy and Franklin mines are full of smoke. Work is suspended in the three mines.

THE TRIAL AT BARI

Startling Developments About Italy's Secret Societies.

SEVERAL INFORMERS TESTIFY.

A Terrible System of Extortion and Intimidation Revealed.

The Manipuris Beaten by British Soldiers. Plucky Bulgaria Makes a Demand on Russia—Balfour Gains a Point in the Land Bill Discussion—Castioni to be Tried for Murder.

ROME, April 10.—In the trial of members of the Mala Vita Society at Bari informers testified that members of that society were forced to provide money, food and clothing for the chief, and refractory members were thrashed by comrades chosen by ballot. Altogether a system of extortion and intimidation was revealed.

The calling of each fresh informer's name was received with a deathlike silence, but during the examination the prisoners hurled such epithets as "Liar!" "Assassin!" and "Rascal!" at the informers, who protested with equal vigor.

Notice was given that medical men will speak on the mental condition of some of the informers. The excitement in the town is becoming intense. The streets during the day were thronged with people eager to see the prisoners, who were conducted by an armed escort to and from the court.

KILLED FOR REVENGE.

The British Gain a Victory Over the Manipuris After a Terrible Fight.

CALCUTTA, April 10.—Latest dispatches from Manipur confirm the alarming news that Commissioner Quinton and his associates, who were taken prisoners by the rebels have been beheaded. The leader of the Manipurs says in a letter:

"British troops attacked my palace, massacred my soldiers and killed women and children. They threw three living women and children into the flames of the burning houses and desecrated the temples. Therefore we killed the Chief Commissioner Quinton's party.

A still later dispatch says the Manipuris made another desperate attack upon the weak detachment of Ghoorkas commanded by Lieutenant Grant, which recently captured Fort Thabet after a stubborn fight. The engagement lasted three hours and concluded with the repulse of the Manipuris, the sanguinary Rajah and two prominent chiefs of the insurrectionists were killed. The loss in killed and wounded of the rebels was very heavy.

Balfour's Motion Prevailed.

LONDON, April 10.—The House of Commons was in Committee of the Whole on the Irish Land bill. H. Fowler, M. P., moved that the salaries of the Land Commissioners be placed on the estimates and thereby kept within the control of Parliament. This Mr. Balfour opposed. He said the commission ought not to be subjected to the control of majorities swayed by party influences. Timothy Healy, T. W. Russell and John Morley supported Fowler's motion, which was rejected by 180 to 142.

Prince Louis' Action.

ROME, April 10.—The reading of Prince Napoleon's will was a painful ceremony. When the passage excluding the rest of the family was reached, Prince Louis ran to his mother and frantically embraced her, crying: "Never, never, dear mother; we are co-heirs." He then kissed Prince Victor and his sister. All were tearful. It is stated that Prince Louis will adhere to his resolve, which ex-Empress Eugenie applauds, to divide the property equally among the members of the family.

May Day Demonstrations in Italy.

ROME, April 10.—A demonstration for the first of May is being organized by the Italian Socialists. As a preliminary step a manifesto, printed on blood-red paper, has been issued by them, and is being quietly distributed among the workingmen. A circular notice calls upon the Neapolitans to meet in Naples on May Day.

Vienna Bakers Ready to Strike.

VIENNA, April 10.—At a late hour last night it was rumored that 3,000 bakers had decided upon an immediate strike. The authorities have made contracts with a number of foreign bakers to supply the city with bread in case of an emergency, and the Army Department has placed the military bakeries at the disposal of the city.

Plucky Bulgaria's Demand.

LONDON, April 10.—The Chronicle's Berlin correspondent says that the Bulgarian Government is about to dispatch a note to Russia accusing Russian officials of instigating the murder of Minister Beltcheff, and demanding the punishment of the assassins, who have taken refuge on Russian territory.

Castroni to be Tried for Murder.

BERNE, April 10.—Castroni, who slew Rossi during the revolution at Ticino, is to be tried for murder, and 23 others who took part in the insurrection are on trial as insurgents. Such is the decision of the Federal Court.

Pugilist Gibbons Arrives in London.

LONDON, April 10.—Austin Gibbons, the American pugilist, on his arrival here issued a challenge to fight any man in England in his class.

Mrs. McKee Acquitted.

ROME, Ga., April 10.—Mrs. McKee is a free woman and is holding a reception of her friends, rejoicing over the great legal victory which gave her liberty. All the circumstances of Mrs. Wimple's death were admitted and the only reply was not guilty.

CHICAGO STILL IN DOUBT.

The Official Count Over the Mayoralty Contest Not Yet Finished.

CHICAGO, April 10.—The official canvass of the votes in the late election is still going on, and it is expected that the work will not be completed inside of a week. Both the Republicans and Democrats continue to claim the election of their respective candidates for mayor, and, until the official canvass is finished, it will be impossible to declare positively which is correct.

Two alleged errors in the returns made on Tuesday night have been discovered. In the 27th ward the Republicans claim that Washburne was not credited with 50 votes which were cast for him, and in the 25th ward the Democrats claim that the number of votes credited to Cregier was 100 short.

The Herald (Dem.) says that it will require the official count to determine the result, and quotes the claims of Cregier's friends to the effect that on complete returns he has a plurality of 235. The Herald's tabulated returns, however, give Washburne (Rep.) a plurality over Cregier of 480.

To Build a Big Yarn Mill.

TAUNTON, Mass., April 10.—The preliminary meeting for the organization of a new yarn mill company is to be held next week. The corporation is to be known as the Nemasket Mills, and is to have a capital of $100,000. The choice of the mill site will be made very soon.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Lady Dunlo, the heroine of a sensational divorce suit is reported to be dying.

Henry Parquist, a wealthy guest at the St. Cloud Hotel at Orange, N. J., dropped dead of heart disease.

F. G. Maeder, the well-known New York playwright, author of "The Canuck" and other notable pieces, is dead.

Many papers of interest were read at the second day's session of the Patent Congress in convention at Washington.

Mrs. Annie Besant, the theosophist and co-worker of the late Charles Bradlaugh, has arrived in New York. She will deliver lectures throughout the country.

Four negro murderers and three other prisoners held on miner charges escaped from the jail at Russellsville, Ky., during the evening.

Hermann Spitzner and Emil Tischer were seriously and perhaps fatally injured yesterday by a gas explosion in the factory of Edward J. Toof at New Haven, Conn.

The Indiana Supreme Court has decided that where candidates for public offices receive an equal number of votes the election may be determined by the drawing of lots.

Everything is quiet in the coke regions. General Wiley says that it is expected that this week will see the strike completely broken up and all the workers in operation.

Fifty puddlers employed in the Boonton rolling mill at Boonton, N. J., have struck, causing a shut down of the works and throwing all of the employes out of work.

An unknown man fired three harmless shots at J. P. Tarvin, a prominent young lawyer of Covington, Ky., while he was sitting in his office last night. No cause known for the shooting.

The number of deaths reported in New York city during the past twenty-four hours is 206, an increase of 23 over the preceding day. Of these cases 18 were caused by the grip in conjunction with other causes.

A fire during the morning in the Riverside Plastic Works, at Paterson, N. J., which manufactured a material resembling celluloid, caused a loss of $17,500. Fifty men are thrown out of employment.

At Springfield, Mass., Judge Knowlton sentenced Edward Costello to life imprisonment, he having been convicted of murder in the second degree for the shooting of his infant child at Palmer last June. The jury were out twelve hours.

A committee has been appointed by the Board of Trade of New London, Conn., to solicit money to pay the expenses of the Yale-Harvard boat race on the Thames in that city this season. The railroads will probably contribute one-third of the sum desired.

Shortly after midnight Wednesday two hundred negroes made an unsuccessful attack on the Kansas City jail for the purpose of lynching William McCoy, who is accused of murdering the negro woman whose body lay all Sunday night in the street.

Benjamin Horton, a retired dry goods merchant, of Brooklyn, N. Y., committed suicide by blowing his brains out in bed at his residence, 67 St. James Place. He was 60 years of age and is said to be worth over $100,000. The deceased has been suffering from the grip for some time past and was very ill.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—For New England: Light rain; warmer, except in Massachusetts, stationary temperature.

For Eastern New York, Eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey: Rain; southeasterly winds; stationary temperature.

For Western New York and Western Pennsylvania: Rain; southeasterly winds; stationary temperature, except in Western New York, warmer.

THE DAILY PRESS.

W. L. & A. L. FORCE, Publishers and Proprietors.

J. A. DEMAREST, Managing Editor.

BEFORE THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

President Maxwell Assures the Plainfield People That Their Petitions Will be Considered.

The following letter shows that a long step has been taken at last towards Plainfield's desideratum:

C. R. R. OF N. J., PRESIDENT'S OFFICE, NEW YORK, April 9, 1891.

JAMES A. DEMAREST, ESQ.,

DEAR SIR:

Acknowledging yours of the 7th inst., in reference to petitions submitted for the removal of the present freight house at Plainfield, I have to say that the matter will be placed before our Executive Committee for consideration. Yours truly,

J. R. MAXWELL, President.

BY THE WAY.

—Prepare for spring. First come to Peck's.

—Full line of green vegetables at Demarest's to-morrow morning.

—The woman's union prayer meeting will be held at Vincent chapel Monday, April 13, at 3:30.

—The Jersey Central is to have its tracks elevated, and a new stone station built, at Elizabeth. The work is to be completed within a year.

—Read what the United Tea and Coffee Growers' Association has to say of its method of doing business. It also informs the public that butter has taken a drop in price.

—Mrs. Hugo Weigman will continue her late husband's business of upholstering and carpet cleaning at 32 East Front street. She deserves a large share of the people's patronage.

—The "Scattered 4" will have another of their enjoyable balls at Mt. Bethel, Tuesday evening, April 21. Stage will leave the corner of Park avenue and Second street at 7 o'clock in the evening.

—To-morrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock, the first base-ball game of the season will be played between the Potter Press Works' nine and a nine from the Pond Machine Tool Company's Works, at the grounds corner of Fourth street and Spooner avenue.

—Noticeable improvements are being made at the hardware store of J. P. Laire. Large show windows are being built out to the sidewalk line on both the Front street and Park avenue sides. Mr. Laire will put in a new public pump, which will furnish deep-well water for thirsty ones, by the Park avenue window.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The Eight O'clock Club were the guests last evening of the Misses Hasbrouck, of East Fifth street. Fine music led the dancing, and an enjoyable supper was subsequently served.

A very enjoyable pound-party was given by a committee of ladies to the Rev. Mr. Warnock, pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, last evening. The attendance was large. Chocolate and cake were served in abundance.

Henry Hedden, only son of George W. Hedden, died at the Farmers' Hotel, Morristown, at half-past seven o'clock Wednesday evening. He had many friends in this city. He and his father managed the Farmers' Hotel together. Funeral services will be held to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

An article entitled "Have we Neglected Quarrying?" from the pen of William L. Saunders, M. A., S. C. E., of Mercer avenue, is one of those that will claim the widest attention even among so many other interesting and fully illustrated papers that appear in the first number, just out, of Engineering, a monthly magazine devoted to industrial progress.

The marriage of Miss Beulah Ketcham, daughter of the Rev. K. P. Ketcham, D. D., of the First Presbyterian church, and Eugene Hatch, will take place at the church, Thursday, the 23rd inst. The wedding will be followed by a reception tendered the bride and her friends by Mrs. William H. Murray, M. D., of Broadway. The bride's father is building her a home at the corner of Arlington avenue and Eighth street. Mr. Hatch was formerly a tutor of Mr. Leal's school. He is now studying for another profession.

Getting Ready for the Big Race.

Frank Brock and W. H. Kirkpatrick, of the Business Men's Cycling League of Newark, rode their wheels to Plainfield yesterday in excellent time. They left Newark at 2:03 and reached Force's Hotel at 3:30, having come by the somewhat roundabout course to Elizabeth, to Rahway, to Westfield, to Plainfield, so as to have macadam all the way. They and other Newarkers are taking similar runs constantly, getting in practice for the coming long race at Milburn.

A friend who was with them turned about at Plainfield and went back to Newark without dismounting.

Plainfield Shots Get There.

At a private shooting match, Tuesday afternoon, two local sports, Billy Pearson and Dick McCullough, succeeded in capturing the first two prizes. Out of 25 pigeons they brought down 23 and returned home laden with prizes and game.

TWO STORES BURNED OUT.

A Dangerous Blaze Results from a Gasoline Explosion.—A Careless Workman Badly Burned.—The Loss Many Thousands.

The explosion of a gasoline stove in the hardware store of J. C. Pierson, Jr., at 42 West Front street, caused a bad fire this afternoon.

The stove is one that was used to heat Mr. Pierson's office at the back of the store. It had been burning during the morning, but at 11:30 its heat was no longer needed, and the flame was extinguished.

At about twenty-five minutes past one, Miss Sharp, Mr. Pierson's book-keeper, asked that it be re-lighted.

Robert Kettleboorn, a young man, a foreigner, who was employed to do odd jobs about the place, got the stove ready for lighting, and touched a match to the burner.

It is supposed that he carelessly spilled gasoline on the stove or floor and that the atmosphere surrounding the stove was filled with the highly-explosive fumes of the volatile fluid. At any rate, an explosion instantly occurred, and blazing oil was scattered about the store.

Mr. Pierson himself was not in at the time, and the clerks all fled precipitately.

Kettleboorn's clothes were afire, and he was groaning with pain, when the clerks gathered in a group on the sidewalk. The blaze of his garments was smothered, and he was taken to Randolph's City Pharmacy, where his burns were dressed. His hair was singed off close to his head, great blisters covered his face, hands and legs, and the skin hung in parched strips from his half-cooked flesh. From the pharmacy he was taken to the Muhlenberg Hospital.

Miss Sharp, who was slightly burned on one hand, was taken to her home on New street.

Meanwhile an alarm had been sent in from signal box No. 12, making the fifth alarm thus far sent in from that box. The entire fire department turned out, and found a fierce blaze awaiting them.

Not only was the interior of Mr. Pierson's store a mass of flames, but the fire had swept through a wooden partition into Louis Callman's "Bee Hive" fancy goods store.

Dense volumes of the most suffocating smoke poured forth from both stores, and great masses of red flame could be seen licking up everything within.

The firemen fought the fire well, and with such good effect that at half-past two, within an hour after the alarm was sent in, the recall was sounded, signifying that the fire was out.

The fire was confined to the ground floor of the brick building in which the stores were situated, but at one time threatened the store house containing powder and oil, at the rear.

Mantz Bros., wholesale clothing manufacturers, on the floor overhead, had some new spring goods slightly damaged by smoke and water.

Mr. Pierson's entire stock, valued at $12,000, and insured for $8,000, was almost utterly ruined.

Mr. Callman's stock was also ruined. It was worth $5,000, and insured for $4,000.

The building is owned by James Clark, of West Seventh street. The third story was until April 1 rented by Plainfield as the Common Council Chamber. Mr. Clark's loss will be fully covered by the insurance of $8,000.

During the fire several men were painfully cut by flying bits of broken glass from the big show windows.

Tableaux Vivants.

A pleasing entertainment was given last evening at the Park Avenue Baptist church by a few of its young women assisted by a number from other churches and some from out of town. It was for the benefit of the debt fund. Everything went smoothly from the time the curtain rose on the pretty scene "Caught Napping," until it fell when the stately court ladies had finished their minuet. The programme was varied enough to gratify everyone in the room which was filled to overflowing.

Some of the Grecian tableaux were beautiful, and the single figure representing "Plenty," was greatly admired. The "Babies' Lullaby" was very sweet and the mothers of the little ones had reason to be proud of them. The small boys warmly applauded "The Maids of Lee," and were also taken with the moving pictures from Song and Story ably represented.

There were many other pretty scenes, such as "Over the Garden Gate" and "I See You"; while the tableau of the "Wise and Foolish Virgins" with the song "Too Late," was not without its lesson. Altogether the affair was a success well managed by Mr. Lyon and his assistants. It will doubtless fulfill the object for which it was given.

Fitzhugh—Savoye.

Miss Harriette Wyvill Fitzhugh, daughter of E. J. Fitzhugh—for so many years, and yet, the very successful and well-beloved conductor of the Plainfield Choral Society—was married at her home, 58 Downing street, Brooklyn, at noon of Wednesday, to William J. Savoye. The intention was to have the wedding celebrated in church, with full choral service, but owing to the sudden death of an aged aunt, who had long lived as a member of the family, the marriage was very quiet. Only immediate relatives were present. Mr. Savoye is a popular member of Brooklyn's 23d regiment. The young couple have gone on a trip to Washington and the South.

THEY SHOULD COME AGAIN.

A Company of Amateur Vocalists Render Light Opera to Perfection.

The revival of "The Mikado" at The Casino, last evening, by the Amateur Opera Association of New York, was as successful in the way of entertainment, as possible. Most of the audience, which was largely composed of Plainfield's 400, had, seemingly, never heard the opera before, or they had forgotten its delights after a few seasons at Wagner's shrine. Even "The flowers that bloom in the Spring," received a triple recall. The chorus of women was excellent, but the chorus of men was a little weak, being somewhat overpowered by the orchestra, which, by the way, was a delightful contrast to what usually comes to Plainfield with light operas.

Mrs. Emma Henry-Thomas was very good as Yum Yum and sang "The Moon and I" so well that she deserved more than the faint encore which was given her. She should have received a round of applause, one of which never would have been missed from those accorded the funny men. Mrs. Alice Mersereau took well the part of Pitti Sing, as did also Miss Annie Lee that of Katisha. The latter has some of the hardest singing, as it requires the most dramatic effect the lack of which was sometimes apparent as the necessity for it came upon some of her weakest tones.

Geo. C. Pierce has a pleasant voice, not especially clear, but he made a very satisfactory Nanki-Poo. Chas. Halleck bore favorable comparison with the most noted Ko-Kos of former ages. Chas. A. Hetzel, as The Mikado was as bloodthirsty and horrible as could be desired, while J. Williams Macy made an excellent Poo-Bah, and his singing was more of a treat in one way than some of the rest, as his voice is rich and mellow and shows more cultivation.

Mr. Murray Tells of the Two-Fold Result of the "Extension Fund."

The reception given last evening to the members of the Young Men's Christian Association by their reception committee, was not only very largely attended but was if possible even more heartily enjoyed than have been any of the other successful social gatherings held at their rooms. After the audience had listened for some time with most intense interest to the fairly captivating phonograph operated by Ernest Marx, of Leland avenue, President Murray made several important announcements and told something of the work of the Association.

In speaking of the extension work, Mr. Murray said that a feeling has developed in the Young Men's Christian Associations of the country that they should do something for young men in foreign lands. As a result of this feeling, what is known as "Extension Work" has been organized. This work is carried on by a fund given in small weekly sums by members of each association who form themselves into a band to give a certain sum each week.

The money has been used in some instances to pay a General Secretary at Tokio, Japan, or at Madras, India. Some has been given to the Training School for secretaries at Springfield, Mass., and some to the State and International Committees. The result has been two-fold—considerable money for the work, and a good many men have found that by giving systematically, though they have little from which to give, they can do much. One of these bands of systematic givers has been organized in the Plainfield Association and full information will be given at the rooms.

College songs and refreshments prepared by members of the "Ladies' Nine," added to the evening's enjoyment. Two of the immediate results of the reception were an increase in the extension fund and applications for membership in the association.

Wetumpka Lodge, No. 3401, K. of H.

Wetumpka Lodge, No. 3401, K. of H., will celebrate its third anniversary by giving a complimentary entertainment to its members and friends on Tuesday evening, April 14, 1891, in Music Hall. The committee have secured the services of the Brooklyn Comedy Company, composed of the leading members of the dramatic corps of the Amaranth Society of Brooklyn, who will appear in "Confusion," a farcical comedy in three acts. The committee are C. J. Feytel, chairman; E. S. Rogers, secretary; E. P. Haffner, treasurer, L. I. Van Alstyne, C. H. Rugg.

Now What's the Matter With the Fotile Fire?

City Clerk Coward gave a banquet at his home, last evening, to the city officials. The Mayor and Councilmen Ackerman, Ginna, Johnston, Rushmore and See, were conspicuous by their absence.

Those present were President of the Council Smith, Councilmen Gallup, Mat-field, Moffett, Roberts and Spangenberg, City Judge Codington, Assessor Hubbard, Corporation Counsel Marsh, Street Commissioner Meeker, Freeholders Hubbard and Vanderbeek, City Engineer Dunham, Chief Doane and Assistants Murray and Waters, and D. W. Littell.

Shiloh's Cough Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10c., 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

MR. STRUTHERS'S GREAT IDEA.

The Secretary of One of Plainfield's Associations Would Incorporate Life Insurance With Building Loans.

At the recent meeting of the New Jersey State League of Building Associations an interesting paper on the relation of life insurance to building associations was prepared by Mr. Struthers of Madison avenue, Secretary of the Home Building and Loan Association of this city, which THE PRESS takes pleasure in presenting in full.

It would be as unnecessary, before this assembly, to advocate the cause of Life Insurance, as to proclaim the benefits of Building and Loan Associations. Each method of investment has its peculiar advantages, and I hope to show that it is possible so to combine the two as to bring both within reach of those who are able to save only small sums periodically. Life insurance primarily contemplates the provision of a certain sum at the death of the person for the benefit of his heirs. It involves the accumulation of this sum by the joint contributions of all who are insured in any one company, its payment to the heirs of those who die before completing their proportion, and the consequent additional payment by those who live out their full term. The term for the use of the money is definitely fixed at the death of the party insured.

A Building and Loan Association contemplates the accumulation of a certain sum by regular fixed payments, which accumulation is certain of accomplishment within a certain limit of time, if the investor lives to complete his payments. In this case the investor expects to have the use of his accumulations during the balance of his life, or in the case of a borrower, he expects to spend the rest of his lifetime in a house of his own, without further expense except for taxes and maintenance.

The Life Insurance companies, however, issue a policy which really combines these two features, and is known as the Endowment Policy, payable at a fixed time, or at death if it should occur before that time. The elements that must enter into such a policy, are, the investment, the life risk and the expense.

If we examine our position, in Building and Loan Associations, we shall find we have the investment element, and that at a better rate of interest than is at all possible to other associations, and we have the expense of that investment. To complete an "Endowment Policy," we have only in some way to provide for the life risk. It would be perilous for any one association to insure its own members, because they could not have the benefit of a large average of lives. But if a large number of associations should combine to insure to their members who are in good health the ultimate value of their shares in case of death before their series is completed, we should have the benefit of the large average, and at the same time the minimum of expense.

We have only to use known and tried principles and apply them to our exact wants, and we shall have a premium within the reach of all who can invest in our associations.

Here are some advantages that would arise from such a combination. The times of payment of premium would be monthly, and not at long periods, thus avoiding the necessity of accumulating for a large payment. The payment would be made to the individual association and by it remitted to the Insurance League. The amount insured would be one share, or any number of shares, the premium charged being for the first year on the ultimate value, and being each year reduced in proportion to the amount remaining unpaid and unearned. Take, for example, an insurer at the age of 25, in an association with $200 shares. The rate would be about

1st year,	15	ct.	per month	per share
2nd "	14	"	"	"
3rd "	13	"	"	"
4th "	12	"	"	"
5th "	11	"	"	"
6th "	10	"	"	"
7th "	8	"	"	"
8th "	7	"	"	"
9th "	5	"	"	"
10th "	3	"	"	"

INVESTMENTS.

Money not needed to pay loses, could be invested in the shares of the various associations.

An insurance company must first assemble all its premiums at the main office where large sums must often be idle, awaiting opportunities for investments. The investment part of our policy is taken care of monthly by each individual association as the money is received, and the money is used at the place where it is collected.

COST.

The regular companies require loading of some 40 per cent. on the net life rates, at least one-half of which is saved to us from commission and extra large salaries.

ORGANIZATION.

The membership of such a league should be the individual associations, represented at the first by one person from each Building and Loan Association.

There is no State better situated than New Jersey for the organization of such a general "Life League," which might in time include most of the associations in the United States. The State, though small, has over two hundred and fifty associations, and is the connecting link between Pennsylvania, the birthplace of our system, and New York, which is rapidly coming to the front in its membership, either State too large for more than local representation at an organizing meeting.

If as many as fifty persons, thoroughly interested in this subject and representing as many associations, could be assembled for consultation, they could soon determine—

The practicability of such a plan.

The legal points necessary for organizing.

The officers for the first year.

The constitution and by-laws.

The scale of rates.

The form for application.

The form for policy.

And a plan for advertising the benefits of such an organization.

The writer would be glad to receive communications from any in New York, New Jersey or Pennsylvania, interested in the subject, and when a sufficient number is received, to call such an organizing meeting.

S. R. STRUTHERS,
Plainfield, New Jersey.

CIVIS AGAINST MORE TAXES.

And Besides, He Thinks School Fire Escapes are Death Traps.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—In your Tuesday evening's issue was published a resolution passed at the last meeting of the School Board enjoining the construction of fire-escapes for all public school buildings over one-story high, and directing the assessor to levy and collect a tax of 50-100 per cent. on the real and personal property of our citizens for this purpose, and for this alleged reason, that the law of 1890 obliges the trustees to provide such fire-escapes.

Now admitting that such a provision is duly authorized and legal, it seems to me that the action of the Board was hasty and without due consideration of the following facts: First, fire-escapes constructed as they invariably are, of scanty platforms and narrow iron ladders outrigged from the windows and extending downward almost perpendicularly from story to story, with a final drop of ten or twelve feet to the pavement, would be no safeguard of life but a positive death-trap to one-half of the children who in case of alarm should attempt to escape in this way. Anyone who has seen these ugly fixtures dangling from the windows of tenement houses and factories, can imagine the slim chances of life there would be of a hundred or more children rushing simultaneously to the narrow opening of a fourth-story window seeking safety by these so-called fire-escapes.

Again, I object that such a device for saving lives from a burning building however requisite for large factories, tenements or hotels occupied day and night by thousands of workmen or sleeping inmates, is not necessary for our Plainfield public school buildings, and for this reason: Our public school buildings have been prudently constructed with spacious halls and two stair cases of easy and safe descent, both front and rear. These two stair cases on opposite sides of the building, with doors of egress into them from all the rooms, are in truth the best possible fire-escapes; and, I contend, answer fully the requirements of the law of 1890 in regard to them.

This further fact I would submit to the consideration of the Board. The hours when the school rooms are occupied are from nine to twelve in the morning and from one to three in the afternoon—all daylight hours—when both teachers and pupils are engaged in instructions and recitations, and presumably are wide awake, and being awake each one becomes a fire detective who on the first scent of smoke would give the alarm and teachers and pupils without confusion could readily escape by one of the two exits already provided.

If the reasons above cited are of sufficient weight to incline Dr. Probasco—whose name is published as the mover of the resolution in question—and other highly respected members of the School Board to reconsider their action, and thereby save the architecture of some of our best public buildings from a frightful disfigurement, and our citizens from a needless expense for a worthless appendage, the object of the writer of this article will be fully satisfied. CIVIS.

Resolutions Upon Companion Weigman's Death.

At a meeting of Ivanhoe Council No. 1,074, American Legion of Honor, held in Plainfield, N. J., April 7, 1891, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, In the dispensation of the overruling providence of the Heavenly Father, the death angel has again broken our ranks, in taking therefrom our friend and companion Hugo Weigman, therefore

Resolved, That in this visitation, while we recognize the hand of God, we also mourn the loss of one of our charter members, and one who faithfully fulfilled his obligations as a member of our Order.

Resolved, That we hereby express our heartfelt sympathy for his family, who under especially sorrowful circumstances have lost a faithful husband and kind father, and recommend them to the mercy and sustenance of Him, who careth for the widow, and hath promised to become the father of the fatherless.

Resolved, That these resolutions be copied in full upon the minutes of the Council; published in the daily papers, and a copy forwarded to the bereaved family by the Secretary.

—It makes people talk about the new and choice goods at Peck's.

Dr. Dean's Dyspepsia Pills are unquestionably good. They are, in my opinion, all they claim to be. I have tried them and found in them what I needed. I believe they will cure Dyspepsia, and that is saying much for any medicine. I am glad, therefore, to give my testimony.

THE REV. DANIEL F. WARREN, D.D., Rector Holy Trinity, Jersey City Heights.

DR. HURLBUT WINS HIS POINT.

No Debate on the Woman Question, and Defeat for the Fair Sex Probable.

Yesterday morning's session of the Newark Methodist Conference was preceded by a half-hour prayer-meeting, and the business session was begun at nine o'clock. Some important matters were disposed of, and at 9:30 o'clock the subject of the vote on admitting women as delegates to the General Conference was taken up. Discussion on a motion made the previous morning by the Rev. Dr. J. L. Hurlbut of this city, to vote on the question without debate, which was postponed from the day before, was resumed with vigor. The Rev. J. I. Boswell's substitute to devote one hour to the discussion and limit speakers to five minutes was combatted by Dr. Hurlbut and his adherents.

The Rev. D. Halleron offered an amendment to Dr. Boswell's motion to the effect that the vote be taken by yeas and nays and gave as an argument that on such a constitutional change every man ought to stand by his colors and not hide himself behind a secret ballot.

"It seems to me," said the Rev. R. M. Aylsworth of Newark, "that after having had three years' consideration of the matter no man would have his judgment changed by a snap debate and he would not like to go down to history in that way."

Alexander Craig argued that as a half dozen or more other conferences had voted on the question without debate, the Newark conference might well do likewise.

"I think it is well for us to form our own judgment and act as we ought to, irrespective of other conferences," replied Jacob H. Fort of Newark. "When my name is called I expect to say 'no,' but I want to say a word or two on this great question that is to revolutionize Methodism."

"I am amazed that men will get up and advocate taking a vote on this question without debate"—said Solomon Parsons. "I am in the minority, I know, but I would like to hear the subject discussed. There are only two classes, very wise men, and idiots, who can make up their minds without debate. Our vote is just as responsible as that of the General Conference."

The amendment was divided, and it was decided by a vote of 92 to 63 to vote on the subject of women delegates without debate, and afterward it was decided to vote by yeas and nays. The question will come up today. There appears to be no doubt as to the result. The general expression is that there will be a large majority against admitting women as delegates.

PLAINFIELD LOSES THE SHOPS.

Instead, Elizabeth Secures the Industry, Employing 1,000 Men.

The Central Railroad Company has purchased from the Trumbull estate at Elizabethport a big tract of land, extending from the Newark branch of the Central to Newark Bay, northeast of the Central's main line, and on it will build immense car shops that will furnish employment to 1,000 men. The Central Company for some time has been desirous of consolidating at one point its different car repair shops, and its managers have been looking for a suitable location. Plainfield was seriously thought of, and might have secured the large industry had not the negotiations in progress for some time with Henry H. Isham, trustee of the big Trumbull estate at Elizabethport, been brought this week to a satisfactory conclusion, in case the Elizabeth City Council would agree to close the parts of Second, Third and York streets that run through the tract. The Council passed a notice of intention to that effect last night, and the ordinance will be adopted at the next meeting. Elizabeth, besides retaining the car shops, which the Central for years has had there, will get all similar branches now in other places and secure an important addition to its manufacturing industries.

Dining Cars to Washington.

Pullman dining cars are now running between New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington via Royal Blue Line on the famous five-hour train, leaving Plainfield daily, except Sunday, at 12:09 a. m., arriving at Washington 4:30 p. m., also on the fast express leaving Plainfield daily at 4:14 p. m., arriving at Washington 8:55 p. m. On Sunday mornings dining car train leaves Plainfield at 9:48 a. m., arrives at Washington 3 p. m. The fact that the cars are under the direction of the Pullman Company is a sufficient guarantee as to the quality of the service. Station foot of Liberty street.

A Self Made Man.

The New York Telegram has the following to say of Peter B. Wright, of this city, who is universally esteemed by the large circle of friends he has in Plainfield, as a thorough gentleman and a self made man.

General Earle will open Normandie-by-the-Sea, his Summer house, on June 13. P. B. Wright, who has been chief clerk at the Normandie, this city, will be the manager of Normandie-by-the-Sea for the coming season. Mr. Wright is well and favorably known to the travelling public as not only a thorough hotel man, but one of the pleasantest and most obliging gentleman in the business. General Earle could not have made a selection that would have pleased his guests more.

The wonder of the age—Salvation Oil, for 25 cents a bottle. It kills all pain.

Columbia discovered America and Edison invented the phonograph, but it remained for Dr. Bull to invent the remedy of the age, "Cough Syrup," the kingly cure. At all dealers for 25 cents.

A Flourishing and Progressive Organization.

The Exempt Firemen's Association has elected as officers for the ensuing year:

President—A. Saltzman.
Vice President—T. J. Gillen.
Secretary—G. Thorn.
Treasurer—Jos. A. Hubbard.
Board of Trustees—D. W. Littell, Jos. A. Hubbard, H. M. Sherwin, Wm. H. Harding, A. D. Jennings.

The retiring President, Alex. Titsworth, in his annual report shows the Association to be in a flourishing condition. By the adoption of new by-laws a sick benefit fund has been added to the burial fund. The membership is 100 and constantly increasing. The new quarters in Coward's building, are in keeping with the progress of the Association.

Bowen and Myer Put Up Their Forfeit.

Attorney-General Miller Ill.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Attorney-General Miller is confined to his house with a severe cold.

Secretary Proctor Not a Candidate.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—A dispatch from Omaha, Neb., says Secretary Proctor and party arrived there last evening. The Secretary when asked about the rumors that he was a candidate for the Senatorship, made vacant by the resignation of Senator Edmunds, replied: "I am not a candidate; all this gossip about me in that connection is without my knowledge."

Postmasters Appointed by the President.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The following named postmasters have been appointed by the President: Pennsylvania, J. B. Way, Curwensville; D. S. Hesher, Lansdale; J. D. Caldwell, Sharon. New York, G. E. Norris, Brighton; Smith Wilbur, Fairport; J. A. Merritt, Lockport. New Jersey, J. T. Rosell, Freehold.

Had Been Inoculated for a Dog Bite.

Here's our Card.
It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are not straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public esteem accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for telling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of Shoes.

THE SONS OF TOIL.

There's a grand majestic army
Sweeping onward evermore
From Atlantic's rugged borders
To Pacific's golden shore.
Not with crash of martial music,
Roll of drums or cannons' roar,
Want, nor woe, nor desolation
Mark their march from shore to shore.

On from state to state advancing,
Laying mighty forests low,
Lighting up the mountain gorges
With the locomotive's glow,
Spanning many a rushing torrent
With the shining bands of steel,
Crushing nature's desolation
With its mighty iron heel.

Do we bow to wealth and station
And ignore the sons of toil?
Are they not a nation's builders,
They who labor, delve and moil?
Threadbare coat and uncouth manners
May be clothing a wealth untold,
As in nature's rudest caverns
Lies enshrined the purest gold.

For the heritage of nations
Is the generous, yielding soil,
And the sovereigns of creation
Are the sweat-browed sons of toil.
Princes guide the shining plowshare,
Strike the anvil, work the mine,
Brawny hand and sturdy muscle
Are the birthright of the line.

Let each toiler in the vineyard,
And each worker in the mine,
Bear upon their lives the impress
Of a heritage divine.
Then adown the coming ages
Let the anthem ever ring:
Honor to the sons of labor.
They are princes, they are kings.

FOR FATHER'S SAKE.

A Little Hero Who Gave His Life for Others.

Volney Beckner, Aged Twelve, Rescues His Father and a Drowning Passenger from the Cruel, Relentless Jaws of a Monster Shark.

VOLNEY BECKNER, who was born in 1748, at Londonderry, a town famous in history, was the son of a common sailor. As such he received no educational training beyond that which would enable him to follow in his father's steps. He was strong, active and robust in body, with mental qualities corresponding thereto; and, as a child, displayed such determined courage and resolution, that the captain of the vessel on which his father served was wont to point him out as a model to other boys, remarking: "If this boy continues to display the same courage and good conduct, I doubt not that in time he will obtain a post superior to my own."

The year was 1760; the season, autumn; the day, Sunday.

Volney Beckner, then twelve years old, was at sea with his father. The vessel was bound from Port-au-Prince, in the notorious West Indian islands of St. Domingo, to France. It carried passengers as well as cargo. Among the former was a wealthy American planter, who, with his infant daughter, was making a voyage to Europe. After a few days of sea-sickness the child found her "sea legs," and frequently ran about the deck, amusing the sailors, with whom "missy" speedily became a favorite with her pleasant prattle.

It was early evening; the ship lay almost becalmed; the ocean shone like burnished gold. The little American girl, with her nurse, came on deck. Suddenly the child sprang forward, ran to the head of the vessel and, in a moment, fell overboard. The sailor, the elder Beckner, witnessed the accident and, with the quickness of thought, plunged into the sea to her rescue. With a few sturdy strokes he reached the child's side and, seizing her, was about to make his way back to the ship when to his horror he perceived the black fin of a shark above the water.

His shipmates, too, saw his danger. They did what they could. The boldest of them dared not share his peril, but they, with the passengers, began a brisk fire upon the cruel monster of the deep. Sailors, however, are proverbially bad marksmen. It may be the shark was aware of this. Certainly he continued on his course until he had almost reached his intended victim.

THE BOY PLUNGED INTO THE SEA.

It was an awful moment of suspense. The agonized planter was upon the deck, offering incredible rewards to any who would rescue his daughter from her imminent peril. Men's faces were blanched with fear; their hearts stood still with dread.

Then it was that Volney Beckner, seeing his father's danger, did that which brave, strong men had not the courage to dare to undertake. Seizing a well sharpened knife, the boy plunged into the sea to his father's rescue. Diving beneath the shark, he, with skill, steadiness and resolution thrust his weapon into the monster. Writhing with agony, the voracious creature at once abandoned its intended prey and turned with fury upon its youthful assailant, who, nothing daunted by the formidable appearance of his terrible foe, continued the unequal strife. Whilst the brute tortured and gored its unwieldy body in futile attempts to seize its adversary, Volney Beckner plunged his weapon again and again into its belly in a vain endeavor to reach its vitals.

A fearful sight now presented itself to the horror-stricken spectators on board the vessel. The sea, lashed into foam by the frenzied contortions of the monster, was flecked with blood. They dared no longer fire, lest they should hit the youthful combatant, whose heroism they admired and for whose fate they feared. It was soon evident to all that the boy's strength was not sufficient to enable him to inflict a mortal wound. He became, apparently, convinced of this himself; for, reluctantly relinquishing the deadly strife, he endeavored to regain the ship.

Now, all was eagerness and haste on board. Ropes, life-belts and hen-coops were hurriedly thrown overboard, and the firing was recommenced. It was evident that the ropes were the only real means of safety available; for, as is sadly too common at sea, it would have been impossible to clear and launch the boats in time to effect a rescue. One of them had been utilized as a shelter for the cow, and the other was encumbered with lumber. For some time, the motion of the waves and the necessity of keeping away from the yawning jaws of the enraged shark prevented the swimmers from availing themselves of these means of escape. It was only after repeated efforts that father and son succeeded each in grasping one of the numerous ropes that were thrown out. All on board lent their assistance, and the two were soon above the water, suspended in mid-air. Their rescue seemed to be certain.

It was now that the awful tragedy occurred. The wounded fish, with the cunning peculiar to its bloodthirsty race, perceived that its assailant was on the point of escape. A moment more and its plans of revenge would be frustrated. With a tremendous effort the shark almost threw itself out of the water, and catching between its horrid serrated rows of teeth the unfortunate boy, as he clung to the rope, it jerked its victim under the surface of the water and he was seen no more.

At this agonizing spectacle a cry of horror burst from the appalled spectators. Strong men fainted. Some, however, preserved sufficient presence of mind to render aid to the unhappy father, who safely regained the deck with the child who had been the innocent cause of the catastrophe.

It would afford me pleasure to be able to record the capture of the murderous shark, the recovery of the mutilated remains and their decent burial at sea. But one must be true to one's facts. The monster, gorged with its meal, sank slowly into the depths, and the saddened crew, as good old John Bunyan would have said, saw it no more.

Thus perished the heroic boy, Volney Beckner, at the early age of twelve years; and, poor and unknown as he was, he leaves behind him a nobler name than many a titled leader who has sought the bubble, reputation, at the cannon's mouth. Short as was his life, it was sufficiently long to enable him to leave behind him a touching illustration of intrepidity, courage and filial affection which has seldom been surpassed, and to offer a noble example to the young of all ages.

"He, dying, left behind a name,
Great though unchronicled by fame."
—Rev. C. N. Barham, in N. Y. Ledger.

Sympathy with Suffering.

Unless there be some sympathy with suffering, there will be nothing done for its relief, and the ties of human brotherhood will be quickly sundered. If it is a blessing that we are unable to feel the full force of another's sorrow, it is no less a blessing that we have the capacity of feeling a part of it. And this capacity usually needs development rather than restraint. For a few who may grieve unwarrantably for their fancied insensibility there are multitudes who are sadly deficient in sympathy and never grieve at all about it. It should never be forgotten that all social happiness, all mutual benefactions and all true benevolence are founded on the presence of sympathy. Were it not for this, we should all be miserable and misery-giving egoists.—N. Y. Ledger.

Unbecoming an Officer.

Sergeant—You are charged with conduct unbecoming an officer.

New Policeman—In what respect?

Sergeant—You have been in the habit of taking nuts and fruit from the street stands kept by old men and helpless women.

New Policeman—But I pay for them always.

Sergeant—Yes; that's the substance of the complaint.—Detroit Free Press.

Very Strict.

In the government of a large school it is necessary to have strict rules, and abide by them.

"Thomas," said the teacher, "I saw you laughing just now. What were you laughing at?"

"I was just thinking about something."

"But you have no right to be thinking during school-hours. Don't let it happen again."—Youth's Companion.

NOTES FOR THE DOCTORS.

DR. KOCH'S lymph may not, according to German law, be patented.

IN a recent article in the Nineteenth Century, Dr. Snow points to the fact that cancer is increasing. The death rate, which in 1864 was 385 per million, had risen to 610 in 1888.

SIR MORELL MACKENZIE objects to large hospitals on the ground that the added virulence of germs from the bodies of many patients is as dangerous as that of those emanating from dead bodies.

DR. SULLIVAN WHITNEY, the first American physician who manufactured homeopathic medicines, has just died at his home in Newtonville, Mass., at the age of eighty-three. He was graduated from Harvard Medical School nearly fifty years ago.

DRS. BERTIN and Pieq, of Nantes, France, have been conducting consumption-cure experiments on the observation that goats are exempt from the disease, and they now announce that consumptive patients injected with goat blood have been greatly benefited.

DR. R. G. ECCLES points out that the danger of diseases is as a rule in the direct ratio of the carelessness with which they are regarded. He says that diseases may be classed as more or less fatal as people are afraid of them and seek proper advice to both prevent and cure.

THE physicians of Havana are successfully inoculating new arrivals in Cuba against yellow fever, through mosquitoes that have contaminated themselves by stinging yellow-fever patients. Fifty-two cases of mosquito inoculation have been followed up. Of them only about 8 per cent. subsequently contracted the disease, with a mortality of less than 2 per cent.

TOLD IN ART CIRCLES.

MISS AIMEE RAPIN is an armless Swiss artist who is beginning to achieve fame. She paints with her toes.

P. A. B. WIDENER, of Philadelphia, bought $37,750 worth of pictures at the late Seney art sale in New York.

MR. SENEY, the Brooklyn art patron, who has just now sold a choice collection, says he thinks the four greatest living painters are Cazin, Knaus, Inness and Israels. The last leads the Dutch school.

ROUEN hopes to erect a statue to the painter Gericault. The mayor has taken the matter in hand, and expects, if the doubtful finances of the city permit, to get the memorial in position by September 26, 1891, the one hundredth anniversary of the artist's birth.

BARONESS NATHANIEL ROTHSCHILD, who recently purchased the celebrated Strauss collection of objects of Hebraic art, has presented it to the Cluney museum in Paris. One of the finest and most curious objects is a huge ark of walnut wood, ornamented with fifty-four panels, superbly carved.

CAUCHARD, the new art-buying prince of Paris, gave a dinner to celebrate his purchase of "The Angelus." One of the features of the entertainment was a commemorative medal in silver in the napkin of each guest. On one side there was an engraving of "The Angelus," and on the other the date of the dinner, with an explanatory inscription.

TRICKS OF CUPID.

HE—"Charlotte, I love you; can you not return my affection?" She—"I'm afraid I'll have to, as I have no use for it."

IN Lake county, Tenn., a short time since, a young man of twenty-seven married a widow of forty-nine, who has seventeen living children.

IN Louisville, Ky., the other day, Polly Ann Collins, aged twelve years, was married to Jesse Donahue, a widower, thirty-three years old, Polly's parents consenting.

A RIVAL lover of a Sturgis (Mich.) girl succeeded in getting a temporary postponement of the other fellow's marriage to her by having his new dress suit stolen from the tailor shop.

WITHIN seven minutes after a couple entered the Atchison courthouse the other day they came out man and wife. The license had been obtained and the ceremony performed within that brief time.

MAJOR CRUST—"So you refuse me, Miss Fondant?" Miss F.—"I'm very sorry Major Crust, but your son has just proposed to me, and I accepted him." Major C.—"Good gracious! You don't mean to say the boy has been such an ass."

Miss WINTHROP—"Poor Jack has now been a full-fledged architect for six months, and he hasn't had a single commission. He designs beautiful houses." Mr. Townes—"Miss Winthrop—Rosalie—can't I persuade you to let your brother design a nice country house for—for us?"

SANITARY CLIPPINGS.

NEVER breathe through the mouth unless it is impossible to breathe through the nose.

WATER kept in a room for awhile is unfit for use, and ice water should always be kept covered up.

A WET silk handkerchief tied, without folding, over the face is a complete security against suffocation from smoke; it permits free breathing and, at the same time, excludes the smoke from the lungs.

VENTILATION is a provision of nature too often abused. Every sleeping room should have its windows open an hour every morning, and all the bed clothing laid open to the air, where, if possible, the sun can shine upon them.

A SUSPECTED joint in a sewer or drain pipe may be tested by wrapping it with a single layer of white muslin moistened with a solution of acetate of lead. As the gas escapes through the meshes of the cloth, it will be blackened by the sulphur compounds.

THE danger of infection from impure water is said to be only slightly reduced by filtration through sand, bacteria passing through at all times, but in larger numbers just after the filter has been cleaned and again after it has been used for some time.

"OH, IF MOTHER WERE ONLY ALIVE!"

All through life she has known a mother's watchful care. She now is a young mother, and gains strength but slowly. She would "give worlds" to do everything for her precious baby, but cannot; the doctor is so strict, and does not sympathize with her, "as mother always did."

That baby has unfolded in the young mother's heart, new emotions. She has a living responsibility, and requires strength to enable her to perform a loving duty. At such a time, too much care cannot be taken, and the Vegetable Compound is indispensable.

GENERAL MILITARY NOTES.

THE king of Italy has decided to hold no great army manœuvers this year in order to spare the heavy expense.

A FRENCH army doctor explains that in the French army a non-commissioned officer loses all chance of influence or authority over his men if his ugliness inspires either disgust or ridicule.

LIEUT. JOHN B. FINLEY, the well-known tornado expert, and lately in charge of the signal service work at San Francisco, has been assigned to regular army duty in an infantry regiment at Fort Wayne, Ind.

THE royal standard of Persia is an apron. Stout old Gao, the Persian blacksmith, raised a revolt which proved successful, and his leathern apron covered with jewels is still borne at the van of Persian armies.

THE latest addition to the Italian navy, the Francesca Morosini, a twin-screw battle-ship of eleven thousand tons and sixteen and a half knots, carries four 100-ton Armstrong guns mounted in pairs on barbettes, besides other smaller arms.

IT is said that the torpedo-boat Bathurst, that recently made a mean speed of 24.45 knots per hour, represents the last refinement of mechanical engineering, and that it hardly seems possible to improve upon her as long as steel remains the chief material of construction.

ELEVEN battle-ships, with an aggregate displacement of seventy thousand tons, are now being built for the German government—three at Bremen, two at Gaarden, near Kiel, one at Wilhelmshafen, three at Dantzig and two at Bredow, near Stettin. At Alberg no fewer than seventy torpedo boats are being built for the government.

THE youngest lieutenant in the Prussian army is Count William von Rothenburg, who was recently assigned to the first regiment of dragoons. As the count was born in 1881, he is at present scarcely ten years old. As a matter of course, the young man does no active duty as yet. He owes his appointment to the ancient privileges of his family.

PICKED UP IN THE WEST.

THEODORE CALF and family have petitioned the Kansas legislature to have their name changed.

THE soda lakes of Natrona county, Wyo., have been sold to English capitalists for $2,000,000.

THE largest county in the United States is Custer county, in Montana, which has 36,000 square miles.

THE people of Tombstone, A. T., have become convinced that their name is a "hoodoo" and are agitating for a change to that of Richmond.

ONE reason why New Mexico is settled so slowly is that the great majority of land grants are held by native Mexicans, one Don sometimes owning an entire county.

SPOKANE FALLS has grown rapidly since the fire of a year ago. The population then was 18,000, and the recent census gives the town 22,000. Seattle has about 50,000 people.

WILD horses are numerous in the mountains near Antelope valley, Nevada. It is difficult to keep tame horses in that section, as they soon become discontented and wander off to join the mustangs.

THE secretary of the manufacturers' bureau of Denver says that in Gunnison county, Col., there are three hills of solid iron and manganese ores 800, 1,000 and 1,100 feet high, their bases covering more than 1,000 acres.

THERE is a tract of forest trees in southern Oregon, embracing about 16,000 square miles, which, if cut and sold at $10 per 1,000 feet, would pay our national debt twice over. It is estimated that the amount of merchantable timber standing amounts to 400,000,000,000 feet.—Portland Oregonian.

There was an old man of Kildare,
Who owned a hand-organ and bear.
He'd play "Annie Rooney"
'Til Bruin got honey,
And turned somersaults in the air.

GEN. BUTLER'S RAGE

Sensation in a Crowded Court Room in Boston,

HOT DISPUTE WITH THE JUDGE.

The Aged Counsellor Makes a Dramatic Appeal to the People.

He Is Accused of Falsehood in the Famous Johnson Case—Trembling with Excitement He Asserts that He Told the Truth—Another Exciting Tilt Expected Before the Case Is Disposed of.

BOSTON, April 11.—Judge Carpenter of the United States Court bench called Gen. Butler a liar in a heated argument over legal matters connected with the famous Johnson case upon which Gen. Butler has staked his reputation. He didn't use the word "liar," but everbody knew what he meant, and there was a decided sensation in the crowded court room over that and the dramatic scene which followed. The case against Mrs. Johnson, who was convicted of perjury in attempting to obtain a pension, came up on Gen. Butler's motion for a new trial. The General has said that he did not get a fair hearing before the present court, and the feeling between the court and counsel has not been marked by friendliness. Judge Carpenter, in refusing to grant Gen. Butler's motion for a new trial, said:

"The second objection was to the withholding or holding up of a ruling upon the validity of the marriage of defendant to Stevens under the laws of Vermont until the charge was delivered to the jury. This was not true, it never was true and it was always known not to be true ever since the trial. The question was fully argued by the counsel at the time, and the Court stated fully what he should rule. The statement, therefore, being false and known to be false by the counsel now before the Court, it constituted no grounds for a new trial.

Butler Trembles with Excitement.

This brought Gen. Butler to his feet, and, trembling with excitement and rage, he exclaimed:

"As to the allegation that the claims on the motion are false, I reassert them to be true and that they can be proved by the records of the court."

Judge Carpenter—You have said so once, and you knew it to be false.

Gen. Butler turned pale, compressed his lips to suppress the retort that was ready and after a moment of painful silence he took up another phase of the case, and the following spicy debate followed:

Gen. Butler—I propose to have a writ of error from the Circuit Court as soon as the court will settle the exceptions.

The Court—There have been no exceptions presented up to the present moment.

Gen. Butler—That is as true as something else I have heard. The exception is now in your honor's hands.

The Court—You have not presented them to me at any time, and have not done so now.

Gen. Butler laughed, and, pointing to to the Clerk, who held a document in his hand, said: "Give me that till I hand it to his honor."

The Court (to the Clerk)—Keep that, Mr. Clerk; it will not be used for any performance.

Gen. Butler—Will your honor accept them? There is the bill of exceptions, presented and read to your Honor. Your honor knows them. Evade them, if you like. I offer them.

He Appeals to the People.

Turning to the people in the court Gen. Butler made this appeal to them:

"I wish you to take notice here, because I will be told in the next court that I did not offer them."

The case will be called for sentence next Tuesday, and another exciting tilt is expected at that time.

An Offer to Pedestrian Hughes.

NEW YORK, April 11.—A cablegram from London says that Littlewood, the well-known pedestrian, in reply to John Hughes of New York, will run Hughes for a sweepstakes of $2,500, or arrange a race with Hughes for $5,000 a side.

Result of the Rye Elections.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 11.—At the bye election for Senator and 12 Representatives the Republicans elected all of their candidates. The Republicans have a large majority in both houses.

New England Opposed to Women.

BOSTON, April 11.—The New England Methodist Conference by a vote of 150 to 61 rejected the proposition "Shall women be admitted?" A three-fourths vote was required.

ANNA DICKINSON'S STORY.

Her Sister Prostrated Over the Charges—What the Doctors Say.

PITTSTON, Pa., April 11.—Dr. Hileman says that there is nothing in the story about Anna Dickinson's persecutions. While appearing otherwise rational, her mental trouble took this form from the beginning.

Miss Susan E. Dickinson is prostrated over the reports published as emanating from her sister and reflecting seriously upon her. She will say nothing in extended denial except that her sister is irresponsible for the statements and is undoubtedly insane.

In this community, where their relations have been understood for years past, it is unnecessary to say that Miss Anna's charges emanate from an unsound mind.

Dr. Wetherill, of the State Board of Charities, said that it was preposterous to say that there was anything irregular in the commitment of Anna Dickinson to an insane asylum. The doctor says he visited Miss Dickinson at the Dansville Asylum, and that there is no doubt whatever about her insanity.

IS HE A BIGAMIST?

Mrs. Potts Learns that Student Harris Was Married Before.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., April 11.—Interest in the Harris-Potts case has been revived here. It is given out that Mrs. George Potts, the mother of the dead school girl, had received a letter from a Mr. Latham, of Walnut street, Philadelphia, to the effect that he had evidence in his possession showing that Harris was a married man when he wedded Mary Helen Potts.

Mrs. Potts corroborated the story and said she had sent the letter to District Attorney Nicoll, of New York, who is conducting the case.

CHILDREN POISONED.

Three Die in Convulsions After Eating Wild Parsnip Roots.

DUBOIS, Pa., April 11.—Much excitement exists here over the poisoning of a dozen children, who had been playing in a vacant lot, where they found and ate some wild parsnip roots.

Two of August Weigelman's children and one of J. M. Boring's have died in convulsions. The others are in a precarious condition.

England's Labor Commission.

LONDON, April 11.—There is a strong feeling in England that the Royal Labor Commission is too heavily weighted with the capitalist class and that labor is unequally represented. The majority of the commission are not only capitalists, but also Conservatives, even the Liberals being in the minority. This, it is believed, will tend to shake confidence in the results and conclusions arrived at by the commission, and trades unionists generally are already expressing their apprehension that the movement will end in nothing.

5,000 Carpenters Will Cease Work.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 11.—It has been definitely determined that on May 1 the 5,000 carpenters in the Pittsburg district of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of North America will cease work, until the builders concede the eight-hour demand. Several conferences have been held with the builders, but all efforts to reach an agreement were in vain.

The Bill to Reimburse Beaver.

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 11.—The House refused to concur in the Senate amendments to the bill reimbursing ex-Governor Beaver for money expended during the Johnstown floods. The vote stood 32 to 19. The bill will be returned to the Senate, and a conference committee probably appointed.

Mark Baldwin's Suit for Damages.

ST. LOUIS, April 11.—Mark Baldwin, the famous baseball pitcher, has instituted a suit for $20,000 damages against Chris Von der Ahe of the St. Louis Browns, in the Circuit Court. Baldwin charges malicious prosecution, slander and false imprisonment.

Another Lumber Failure.

LANCASTER, Pa., April 11.—Baumgardner, Eberman & Co., coal and lumber dealers, have assigned. Their liabilities will reach several hundred thousand dollars. Edwin Eberman, of the firm, assigned on Monday, with large individual liabilities.

TROOPS GOING HOME

One Regiment Leaves the Coke Region To-Day.

MEN IN THE WORKS FRIGHTENED

Strikers Make a Raid Near Latrobe and Are Met With Winchester Rifles.

Railroads Combine With the Operators to Fight the Miners' Strike—Hebrew Workmen Hold a Mass Meeting in New York—President Gompers Talks About the Coke Troubles.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Pa., April 11.—The Eighteenth Regiment of the National Guard of Pennsylvania will return to their homes in Pittsburg this afternoon. The Tenth Regiment will remain and guard the coke works in this region.

The report of the withdrawal of the troops has frightened the men now working, and it is believed that by to-night half of the number now at work will have forsaken their places. There were 70 men working at Morewood to-day, three less than yesterday.

General Manager Brennan, of the McClure Company, stated to-day that a general attempt to start all of the works in this vicinity would be made on Monday. If the attempt to start the works proves a failure, it is very likely that wholesale evictions will take place, and all the occupants of the company houses will be turned out. It is expected that the present occupants will offer resistance, but the presence of the militia, it is believed, will prevent any outbreak.

PREPARING FOR THE STRIKE.

The Pennsylvania Operators Appoint Committees to Fight the Miners.

PITTSBURG, April 11.—The Western Pennsylvania and Ohio coal operators are making preparations for the strike of the miners on May 1. The Pennsylvania operators have appointed a committee of five, with Francis L. Robbins, president of the Pittsburg, Fairport & Northwestern Dock Company, as chairman.

The Ohio operators have also appointed a committee of five, with Col. J. L. Morton as chairman.

An operator said to-day: "There is enough coal in stock in the Eastern, Middle and Northwestern States to supply all demands until July 1. The market has been slack right along, and the stock of coal is unusually heavy. The operators of Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Kansas and West Virginia will join the Pennsylvania and Ohio operators in fighting the strike. It will be fought jointly, not individually."

RAILROADS BACK OF THEM.

A Sensational Disclosure in the Miners' Fight for an Eight-Hour Day.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 11.—The sensation of the convention was disclosed in a talk with members. It was definitely stated by the miners that the railroads of the country were back of the operators in their fight against the eight-hour move; that the fight was not only with the miners, but would extend to railroads also, and the sooner it was throttled the better; also, that the eight-hour question might have some influence on the rates paid for coal, and for this reason, too, the railroads were opposed to it.

The operators, also in a general way, conceded that some Western roads were concerned in supporting the fight against eight hours, but they denied that any concerted move had been made by the railroads of the country.

Found Guilty of Conspiracy.

MONTPELIER, Vt., April 11.—After being out since 4 p. m. Wednesday, the jury in the stonecutters' conspiracy case returned a verdict finding four of the respondents, J. B. Dyer, secretary of the National Union; Patrick Morrison, Frank Morrill and E. P. Sherburn, members of the union, guilty of conspiracy to prevent Jacob McClure from working as a stonecutter, as he was a non-union man. The respondents will take the case before the Supreme Court. The defense have made some 30 exceptions.

Strikers Make a Raid.

GREENSBURG, Pa., April 11.—At Whitney's works near Latrobe, Pa., 200 strikers, accompanied by their wives and children, made a raid on the 45 men at work. The women and children led the raid. The clerks and office employes came out of the offices with Winchester rifles in their hands and drove the raiders away. No one was hurt. An armed force of deputies was placed at the works and work proceeded with, the workingmen under guard.

Gompers Refers to the Coke Strike.

CHICAGO, April 11.—In a speech in this city Samuel Gompers, referring to the recent trouble in the coke region, said: "The men were shot like dogs for claiming their rights by a band of hired murderers, but these assassins will do well to remember that the spirit of '76 is not yet dead. It is dangerous to drive men whose lives and liberties are at stake, and if more force is employed there is no telling where it will end."

Mass Meeting of Hebrew Workmen.

NEW YORK, April 11.—The United Hebrew Trade Societies of this city turned out 2,000 strong last night in a parade and mass meeting to denounce the shooting of the coke strikers at Morewood, Pa. The mass meeting was held at Madison square and was well attended. Speakers condemned the shooting of the workmen at Morewood and also the prosecution of the cloakmakers in this city and Rochester.

Will Go to the Death Chair.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Judge Lacombe of the United States Circuit Court denied a writ of habeas corpus in the case of Charles McElvaine, the convicted mur-

LYNCHED BY A MOB.

An Ohio Man Dragged from His Cell and Strung Up.

KENTON, Ohio, April 11.—William Bates who murdered Policeman Harper Tuesday night of last week, was taken from the jail by a mob of about fifty strong at two o'clock a. m. and hung to a maple tree near by.

The mob gained entrance to the jail by breaking the door down, which awakened Sheriff Neville, who rushed down stairs with a pistol.

A dozen men met him at the foot of the stairs and thrusting four revolvers in his face, demanding the jail keys, saying that they wanted to get Bates and hang him.

The Sheriff refused to get the keys, not having them with him.

They found the keys in an adjoining room, and opening the jail doors got Bates, and gave him only time to put on his pants and a pair of slippers.

The mob then took him out and hung him to a maple tree on Wayne street near North street, about fifty yards from the jail.

The mob was well organized, all wore black masks, except one which was white, apparently the leader.

The work was quickly and systematically done. Not more than twenty minutes elapsed from the time the door was broken open until Bates was dangling between earth and sky.

SAYS HE WAS SANDBAGGED.

A Wealthy Buffalo Malster Fares Badly in Hoboken, N. J.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 11.—Mr. Joseph G. Meyer, a wealth malster of this city, returned home during the morning from a business trip to Hoboken, N. J. He had a very bad contusion of the left eye. He stated that while in Hoboken he was attacked by a footpad, knocked down and his watch and a $500 diamond pin stolen from him.

Mr. Meyer thinks that he was knocked down with a sandbag. It was some time before he could recover sufficiently from the blow to realize what had happened. When he did so his assailant had fled.

AFTER THE ITALIANS.

Grand Army Veterans Investigating the Outrage at LeFevre Falls.

RONDOUT, N. Y., April 11.—The Pratt Post, Grand Army of the Republic, appointed a committee to investigate the recent Italian outrage at LeFevre Falls, where several Italians employed at the cement quarry hoisted an American flag to the top of a pole and riddled it with bullets in retaliation for the New Orleans tragedy.

The Ulster veterans are determined, if possible, to bring these men to justice, and will procure evidence in the affair and lay it before the district attorney.

The Contest in Connecticut.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 11.—Counsel for Judge Morris have been actively at work on the quo warranto against Governor Bulkeley, and it is believed that proceedings in the Supreme Court can be begun early next week. The suits of Sanger as State Treasurer, Alsop as Lieutenant Governor and Phelan as Secretary of State will also, it is understood, be brought at the same time with that of Judge Morris. This will tend to open the case wider.

Ex-Senator Miller's Expedition.

NEW YORK, April 11.—The general manager of the Nicaragua Canal Company has received a cablegram from Greytown, Nicaragua, from President Warner Miller and his party, stating that they were well and will proceed on foot over the canal line to Ochoa, and expected to reach Managua about the 15th inst.

Life Imprisonment for Stephanie.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Judge Van Brunt sentenced Alphonse J. Stephani to imprisonment for life. His counsel was about to make a motion, before the sentence had been pronounced, for a stay of judgment, but the prisoner's mother told him to make no objection to the sentence.

Found $10,000 in a Miser's Home.

BEVERLY, Mass., April 11.—Mrs. August Obear died recently near this place, in apparently destitute circumstances. Among her personal effects has been found cash amounting to more than $10,000, which she had secreted about the house in which she lived.

Explosion in a Gas House.

NEW YORK, April 11.—At 2 p. m. a fire occurred in the retort house of the Jersey City Gas Works. An explosion followed, blowing off the roof and seriously injuring two men. A general alarm was sent out, and the flames were checked before the fire had gained much headway.

Receiver of the Columbia Company.

PITTSBURG, April 11.—J. M. Schoonmaker has been appointed receiver of the Columbia Iron and Steel Company. All other parties are enjoined from any interference in the matter. This prevents Assignee O'Brien from acting.

The Newfoundland Fishery Dispute.

LONDON, April 11.—It is officially denied that it had been decided to permit the Newfoundland delegates to present their side of the fishery dispute at the bar of the House of Commons. The delegates will present a petition requesting the privilege of presenting their side of the question in that manner.

Parnell's Secretary Sues for Libel.

CORK, April 11.—Mr. Parnell's private secretary, Mr. Campbell, has sued the Cork Herald for libel for publishing an article imputing that he had acted as a go-between in procuring houses where Mr. Parnell and Mrs. O'Shea could meet and reside.

Three Men Killed in a Mine.

BERLIN, April 11.—A terrible accident is reported from an iron mine at San Louis, Rhenish Prussia. Three men have been killed and several injured by an unexpected fall of rocks in the mine.

ITALY'S WAR BLAST

Rumor that Minister Porter May be Sent Home.

KING HUMBERT DEEPLY HURT.

Italian Blood is Again Boiling and Something Startling is Expected.

Secretary Blaine Places No Credence in the Sensational Dispatch—American Newspaper Cartoons Cause a Revulsion of Feeling in Rome—Italy is Rushing Work on Four First-Class Cruisers.

ROME, April 11.—It is reported that, if the United States goverment does not answer the Marquis Imperiali's note by Monday, Mr. Porter, the American Minister here, will be ordered to leave Italy, and the whole Italian Legation in Washington will be recalled, and Italian interests will be left in charge of the British Minister.

The Rudini Cabinet is deeply hurt by American comment on the Italian difficulty, and there is consequently a revulsion of feeling in favor of aggressive measures. It is said that King Humbert has received from the editor of an Italian newspaper in America papers containing pictures ridiculing His Majesty, and belittling the power and dignity of Italy. One picture in particular, representing the King as a monkey, gave great offense.

Italian blood is again boiling, and something startling is expected within a few days.

Notwithstanding the enormous deficit in the Italian Treasury and the murmuring of the taxpayers against the heavy burden they are already compelled to bear, the Italian government has begun the construction of four first class cruisers, work upon which will be pushed to completion with all possible expedition.

WHAT MR. BLAINE SAYS.

No Credit Given to the Sensational Reports from Italy.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Secretary of State Blaine was shown the Rome and London cable dispatches reporting a revulsion of feeling in Italy in favor of aggressive measures toward the United States and a determination on the part of the Italian government to order United States Minister Porter to leave Italy and to recall the remnant of the Italian Legation now at Washington. The Secretary read the dispatches carefully and simply remarked:

"Not a word relating to all these reports has reached the department. No credit is given to the rumors. They seem to be sensational."

Beyond this Secretary Blaine would have nothing to say about the Italian imbroglio.

Mr. Blaine was asked by note if his reply to the latest communication of the Italian government had been transmitted to Rome, or when it would be sent, but he declined to answer.

President Harrison said in response to an inquiry that he had heard nothing save the press dispatch. Private Secretary Halford said the President had heard from Mr. Blaine that the State Department had no information on the subject. Assistant Secretary Wharton and Chief Clerk Brown were in dense ignorance of Italy's reported belligerent movement.

Looking After the War Vessels

BETHLEHEM, Pa., April 11.—Commodore William M. Folger, Chief of the Ordnance Bureau, arrived from Washington at noon and inspected the work being done for the war vessels by the Bethlehem Iron Works. He expressed himself as highly pleased with the progress of the work.

Death of Ex-Judge Lawrence.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., April 11.—Ex-Judge J. C. Lawrence died at his home in Freehold last evening, aged 63 years. Judge Lawrence was the leader of the Democratic forces of Monmouth County

Arrested for an Old Assault.

BOSTON, April 11.—J. A. Fuller, of York, Pa., has been arrested here for an assault committed upon Jacob Freed in 1887. He was turned over to an officer from Pennsylvania.

Gov. Pattison Planted a Tree.

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 11.—Arbor Day was not generally observed here. The Governor, however, observed it by planting a fine tree in Capitol Park.

THE LAND LEAGUE COUNCIL.

Parnell to be Invited to a National Convention in America.

CINCINNATI, April 11.—The Council of the Irish National League of America completed its work last night and adjourned subject to the call of the president. The following resolutions were adopted.

Whereas, The executive committee of the Irish National League of America is without advices from the Irish National League at Dublin, and a question is presented requiring an interchange of views with Charles Stewart Parnell, president, and Timothy Harrington, secretary, of the last named organization, therefore be it

Resolved, That the president and secretary be instructed to correspond with Messrs. Parnell and Harrington in reference to the matter aforesaid, and especially the letter of John Dillon, received by our president and laid before this committee.

Resolved, That the president be authorized to suggest the good offices of this organization as abitrator with a view to the restoration of harmony and the reconcilement of all differences in Ireland, and to this end that the president at once put himself in communication with the proper persons in Ireland.

Resolved, That we recommend a national convention in America, to be held not later than September, 1891, at Baltimore, and that the president is hereby instructed to request the presence of Mr. Parnell, president of the Irish National League, and of the Irish members of Parliament, at such convention.

CHICAGO'S CONTEST.

Republicans and Democrats Accuse Each Other With Fraud.

CHICAGO, April 11.—The excitement is intense over the mayoralty contest.

Both Republicans and Democrats continue to charge each other with fraud. The Republicans say that the Democrats held back returns for the purpose of changing them, so as to give Cregier a majority. The Democrats charge the Republicans with having counted votes cast for Elmer Washburn as Hemstead Washburne votes.

Canadians Gulling Americans.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Canadians are engaged in the business of gulling Americans in the matter of pure bred horses, if the collector at Port Huron, Mich., is correct in his surmises. He writes to the Treasury Deparment that he has spent a good deal of time in the investigation of Canadian registries of purported thoroughbred animals and has always found them unreliable. They do not, he says, guarantee that purity of breed that similar books in Europe and this country do, and, more than this, he says they are evidently compiled for the purpose of making a market among unsuspecting Americans for inferior animals.

Grip at the White House.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Nearly all of the President's family have been troubled with slight attacks of the grip, but have all recovered. The President is in excellent health. The reason Mrs. McKee will not go with her father and mother South and West is that she has decided to go abroad with Mrs. Russell Harrison and the latter's brother, Mr. Saunders. She will start from New York on May 2 for a short summer trip, visiting London, Paris and Berlin.

Senator Carlisle Not a Candidate.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Senator John G. Carlisle was asked regarding the references to himself as a Presidential candidate. He said: "Everybody knows that I am not a candidate. I appreciate the high compliment paid me. I don't know whether the time has come for the Mason and Dixon line to disappear from politics or not."

For the War Portfolio.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—A dispatch from San Francisco says that Gen. Ed F. Mulvey, of San Diego, formerly Governor of Utah, is said to be booked for the War Portfolio, should Secretary Proctor resign.

Date of the Reciprocity Conference.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Secretary Blaine has fixed Oct. 12 as the date for the adjourned reciprocity conference. The Canadian Commissioners will return then.

Big Lockout of Shoe Workers.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 11.—The four shoe factories in the Shoe Manufacturers' Association are preparing to shut down to-night. All of the cutters, fitters and sole leather men have already been laid off. Nearly 1,000 men and girls will be locked out.

THE DAILY PRESS.

W. L. & A. L. FORCE, Publishers and Proprietors.

J. A. DEMAREST, Managing Editor.

BY THE WAY.

—Don't pass Peck's store for none can surpass his goods.

—R. W. Rice & Co., will make an important announcement in our advertising columns on Monday.

—To-day being stormy, the basket sale at 25 Somerset street, will be continued until Tuesday morning.

—There will be a praise service in the W. C. T. U. rooms this evening at 7:45 o'clock. All are welcome.

—Regular meeting of Plainfield Assembly, No. 42, Non-Secret Endowment, will be held Monday evening, 13th inst., in Coward's building, Park avenue.

—Among the certificates of incorporation filed with the State Department at Trenton yesterday, was that of the Soldiers' Monument Association of Plainfield.

—J. C. Pierson, Jr., has rented Laing's Hall. He will open business there on Monday. His friends will find him ready to serve them as best he can in so small a place. New goods throughout.

—Two barns belonging to J. D. Voorhees and Dr. Compton of Bound Brook, were burned last night. The reflection on the sky was so bright that many in this city thought the fire was at Dunellen. No live stock was lost.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

John Mair, the oldest Methodist in Plainfield, died today at his home on Mountain and Leland avenues. He leaves a large family.

Patrick Tuite, a respected citizen of Elizabeth, died Thursday night, at his residence, 5 Broad street, of hemorrhage, at the age of 51 years. Mr. Tuite had many warm friends in this city. The funeral will take place Sunday at 2 p. m. from his late residence.

The sympathy of a host of friends is extended to Mr. and Mrs. William L. Smalley, Jr., of North Plainfield, in the death of their first and only child, Mina Lillian. Funeral services will be held from the residence, 98 Somerset street, Monday afternoon at 2:30.

McCready Sykes, son of the late Rev. Mr. Sykes of Scotch Plains, and an old time correspondent of THE PRESS, has just been admitted to the bar of New York State as a full-fledged attorney and counselor-at-law. His shingle hangs out at room 77, 111 Broadway, New York city.

At the Helfenstein—Allen wedding Wednesday morning, which was Elizabeth's greatest society event since Lent. E. M. VanBuren and Robert Fairbairn of this city were members of the bridal party, and among the guests from Plainfield were Mrs. D. T. VanBuren, L. H. VanBuren and L. G. Timpson.

Edgar V. R. Sofield, one of the popular attaches of Rogers's sea food market, celebrated the twentieth anniversary of his birth, last evening, with a reception to his friends at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Sofield, 68 West Second street. There was an entertainment of vocal and instrumental music, refreshments were served and a general good time resulted.

Funeral services over the remains of Ella Frances Taylor, youngest daughter of the late ex-Councilman Taylor, took place at the home of Francis C. Harder, 122 Madison avenue, yesterday. Prayer was offered by the Rev. Dr. Ketcham, a few words were spoken by the Rev. Mr. Richards, and H. B. Newhall read "Nearer My God to Thee." Twenty minutes of utter silence followed according to the custom of the Society of Friends.

A Tribute to the Departed.

Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. James Verdon took place at St. Mary's Roman Catholic church this morning. This fine old lady had been a resident of "Shady Lawn" since October, 1848. She was born in Newry, County Down, Ireland, in 1805. She had endeared herself to her children and many friends by a record of many years of a peaceful life, full of virtues. Yet it was not mere length of days nor attainment of high honors which drew the hearts of all towards her, but that sweet and gentle life with her exalted virtues causes this little eulogy to her revered memory which I could not pass by in silence. Of the four Cardinal virtues, prudence, justice, fortitude and temperance, she fully adorned all. Her faith, love and veneration of the religion of her native land and that of her father was sublime. It was her happy privilege to grow up with Catholicity in our beautiful city, and in her adopted land, to watch its progress and its vast development, unparalleled in history, and it is with one feeling of tearful regret and veneration to her beautiful character, that we hope ever to bear testimony that her's was a devoted, useful and noble life. SEMPER FIDELIS.

Signs of Spring.

Spring is contiguous. "The low shoe and the low hum of the bumble-bee" are imminent, while low prices for the very best goods is still the rule at Collier's, 3 Park avenue.

Our local politicians are making active arrangements for the next campaign. They ordered a box of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, and feel confident and happy. Price for a bottle, only 25 cents.

A Suggestion That He Should Begin Public Improvements at Home.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I beg to call the attention of one of the readers of your valuable paper to the deplorable condition of the sidewalk on the north west side of East Fifth street, between No. 71 and Richmond street. I am informed that the said property belongs to a certain real estate agent residing on the same street. I read an article in THE PRESS a few evenings since signed "E. C. M." highly in favor of a street railway running down East Fifth street to Netherwood for the purpose of improving property along the said street. Now I am under the impression that the same gentleman writing that article is the owner of this property on which this wretched sidewalk is situated. Now I would like to make a little suggestion, that it would be a good starter in the way of public improvement for that gentleman to commence first on his sidewalks and consider the question of railway afterwards. Now there are daily morning and evening passing over this sidewalk nearly three hundred employes of Walter Scott & Co., and VanDeventer & Co., and in stormy weater this walk is nothing but a confirmed mud hole, while the apology for a boardwalk over it is all broken to pieces and unsafe to walk on in the day time, not saying anything about evening. Now if any of us employes of said factories—especially those of us who have large families—is injured by this supposed sidewalk and mud hole, I ask who is responsible? Surely somebody is! By bringing this before the many readers of your paper, and living with the hope that this matter will be remedied, you will oblige not only the many employes of the two factories, but the public who are compelled to travel over the walk.

AN EMPLOYE.

Read What Mayor Gilbert Says.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Let those people who are asked to sign a remonstrance against the street railway, refresh their memory pertaining to Mayor Gilbert's opinion delivered before the Common Council after his examination of the same some two weeks ago at Newark, N. J. Don't be misled by Rip VanWinkles and obstructionists. M.

MAYOR GILBERT SAID.

[From The Central Times.]

I have tried to keep neutral ground in this matter. I have no policy of my own. What the people want I want, and I pledge myself to that end. But candor compels me to say something in favor of this road. I felt it was something the people did not want in Plainfield, so I visited Newark, where a similar road is in operation. Candor compels me to say I was agreeably disappointed. It was not hideous, not unsightly, not objectionable. The cars were nice, the tracks well laid. In choosing between horse cars and electric cars, I most assuredly would select the latter. There are objections to every street car system. I do not think the people of Plainfield would deem the poles of this system objectionable when they get used to them.

Radford—Martin.

As announced in THE PRESS, a pretty home wedding took place Thursday afternoon at the home of Robert Radford, West Front street, when his daughter, Louise Graham, was united in marriage to William M. Martin of this city. The Rev. K. P. Ketcham, D. D., officiated. At three o'clock the bridal party entered the room, preceded by two little maids of honor, nieces of the groom's. Miss Julia Taylor of Philadelphia, acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. Leveridge of Bergen Point, as groomsman. The bride was attired in white silk with train and veil. Her bouquet was lilies of the valley and carnations. About fifty guests were present. After congratulations the happy couple left on the 5:20 train for Philadelphia, Washington and other cities.

Veterans at a Re-Union.

At the re-union of the 2d N. J. Brigade, at Camden, April 9, which was the anniversary of Lee's surrender at Appomatox, there were present from this city as veterans, W. Wallace Coriell, of the 6th N. J. volunteers; John Mackey, 7th N. J. volunteers; Captain Wm. Hand, John Goodwin and Dr. Abel Titsworth, of the 11th N. J. volunteers. The large gathering of veterans were addressed by General Wm. H. Sewell, General Dan Sickels and others, and the boys report having a grand time.

More Praise For Plainfield's Faithful Firemen.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I desire to thus publicly and sincerely thank the firemen of Plainfield for the success of their efforts to save the buildings at 40 and 42 West Front street from total destruction yesterday. Their prompt response to the alarm, their cool headedness and their untiring efforts undoubtedly prevented a serious conflagration. JAMES CLARK.

New Wide-Awake Officers.

At a recent business meeting of the Wide-Awake Circle in the W. C. T. U. rooms, the following appointments were made: Secretary—Etta Yeager; Chairman of Lookout Committee—Ida Weigman; Chairman of Flower Committee—Sadie Taylor; Chairman of News Committee—Try Mattox.

—The happiest people in town are those who trade at Peck's.

I AM an old man and have been a constant sufferer with catarrh for the last ten years. I am entirely cured by the use of Ely's Cream Balm. It is strange that so simple a remedy will cure such a stubborn disease.—Henry Billings, U. S Pension Att'y, Washington, D. C.

I SUFFERED for more than ten years with that dreadful disease, catarrh, and used every available medicine which was recommended to me. I cannot thank you enough for the relief which Ely's Cream Balm has afforded me.—Emanuel Meyers, Winfield L. I., N. Y.

BARNUM'S WILL.

Two-Thirds Interest in the Big Show to Clinton H. Seeley.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 11.—The will of the late P. T. Barnum was read at Marina immediately after the funeral. The wealth of the great showman is estimated at over $5,000,000.

The will is a voluminous document, and the reading occupied two and one-half hours.

It gives to his wife, Nancy, $500 and an annuity of $2,500 during life, and in addition to the above $1,000 for each child he might have by her until they became of age; also his household furniture and jewelry and the rent of any house she may choose to reside in in the United States, the rent not to exceed $1,000 per year.

To relatives and friends he bequeaths his elegant books, paintings, &c., and small sums of money; to various charitable institutions sums varying from $100 to $1,000.

He makes a provision that any beneficiary contesting his will shall be deterred from the benefit of any bequest.

To the children of Pauline Seeley the sum of $40,000; to Caroline C. Thompson, his daughter, Ellen B. Butchitelle and Julia H. Clark, $100,000 each. To Clinton H. Seeley a sum amounting to about $100,000 and a two-thirds interest in the Barnum Show; to Charles H. Brothwell and Henry Bowser, his agents, $5,000 each; to Bergh's Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, $1,000; to the Connecticut Humane Society, $1,000; to the Bridgeport Scientific and Historical Societies, $50,000, besides a building costing $125,000; Tuft's College, Boston, $50,000; $200,000 per year for the maintenance of the Barnum & Bailey show.

To the Bridgeport Orphan Asylum, Protestant Widows' Home, Burroughs' Home, Boys' Club, Girls Evening Club, his coachman, Hugh Brady, and other servants handsome bequests are made. To the Boston Publishing Company, for publishing Universalist literature, $50,000 is given.

A codicil gives to his wife, Nancy, the handsome residence and grounds in this city known as "Marina," at Seaside Park, and valued at over $100,000, besides $100,000 and an annuity of $40,000. To the Mountain Grove Cemetery Association $1,000 to keep his burial plot in order. There are eight codicils, which provide for the disposition of various sums of money, real estate and personal property, but the principal bequests are those named.

Benjamin Fish, treasurer of the Barnum & Bailey show, is to receive 2 per cent. of the profits of said show, in addition to his regular salary, so long as he remains in the employ of the company. Mr. Fish and William B. Hincks, treasurer of the Bridgeport City Savings Bank, are named as executors of the will, and no bonds are required. The estate is valued at above $5,000,000.

MRS. UNDERHILL'S OBSEQUIES.

They Were Solemn and Impressive, and Strictly in Accordance With Her Last Wishes.—Her Husband's Faithful Compliance With Her Dying Injunctions.

Let THE PRESS become aware that anything appearing in its news columns has unjustly though unintentionally caused pain to a worthy man, and all the means at its disposal are his to command, to repair the injury unwittingly inflicted. On Friday, March 13, upon information believed to be trustworthy, there appeared in THE PRESS an account of the funeral services of the wife and child of Gerard Underhill, of North Plainfield. Being informed recently that the account was inaccurate, and that it had caused pain and mortification to the stricken husband and father and his family and friends, THE PRESS hastened to make a careful investigation of the facts with a view of setting the matter right as a simple act of justice to all concerned.

The daughter, whose age was but little more than two years, died shortly before her mother, and at the urgent request of the latter the coffin holding the little one's remains was temporarily placed in the receiving vault of Hillside Cemetery. The mother lingered for a while, but, realizing that she could not long survive, gave expression to her earnest desire that she and her daughter should be buried together in accordance with the simple and unostentatious custom of the Society of Friends, of which the family were devout members. She requested that the funeral services be conducted by her friend and minister, Samuel B. Haines. She also directed that the Rev. Aaron M. Powell, who is also a member and minister of the same faith, be requested to be present.

The husband faithfully obeyed her dying injunction. Mr. Powell having been called to Washington on business, Mr. Haines was asked to fulfill the last wishes of the deceased by conducting the funeral services in accordance with the customs of the religious society of which he was the duly ordained minister chosen by Mrs. Underhill to speak the last words as she and her daughter should be together forever laid to rest.

No one of the two score of friends, relatives and neighbors who were present at the solemn and impressive ceremonies but was impressed with their sincerity, their dignity and truth. Both the preaching at the house and the prayer at the grave, where about twenty of the nearer friends and kindred gathered at the interment, were of a character at once simple and august. Every word was weighted with deep tenderness and reverence. Every act was a tribute to the memory of the departed. If in conformity to the time-honored belief and practice of the Society of Friends, there was an absence of external symbols of grief, there was present everything to impress upon the beholder the conviction that these quiet people—whose garb is plain, whose speech is without ornament, who, in worshiping God, prefer meeting houses to cathedrals, who in life seek no notoriety for themselves, and in death no conspicuous mausoleums for their departed—feel profoundly the affections, griefs and sorrows of our common humanity. The truth is brought home at such a time that while the conventional "forms, modes and shows of grief" may be and generally are used with sincerity, yet after all are not indispensable to true feeling. Each seems to say that he "has that within which passeth show;

These but the trappings and the suits of woe."

A. M. Runyon, the undertaker, who has acquired through his long experience the keenest perception as to what is appropriate and decorous on such occasions, and who officiated at this funeral, informs THE PRESS that he never witnessed a more solemn and impressive service. The choice of the retired burial plot was strictly in accordance with the wishes of the deceased and the custom of adherents of the faith embraced by her. The intimation of others that parsimoniousness suggested the plan adopted is cruel, unjust and untrue. The burial plot destined to receive the remains of all who survive of three generations of the Underhill family will receive all the care that loving hands and generous hearts can bestow.

THE PRESS regrets that despite the care which it invariably takes to secure accurate information in regard to such matters it should have been misled in the present instance. Mr. Underhill is known as a man of singular uprightness of character, who possessed the most tender affection for his lamented wife and babe, and who laid them away tenderly at rest in the conscientious performance of his promise to her whom he mourns.

It may pain him to have the matter again made the subject of comment in the public press, but we felt upon learning the facts that we owed a duty to him, to the public, and ourselves, to let the truth be known, and we therefore give as much publicity to this article as was given to the publication of March 13. We are glad to be able to add that Mr. Underhill, having been informed by others how THE PRESS was misled, puts the blame where it belongs. Were it not for the sacred memory of his wife, he would seek legal redress, and THE PRESS would aid him in securing justice.

Dr. Dean's Dyspepsia Pills are unquestionably good. They are, in my opinion, all they claim to be. I have tried them and found in them what I needed. I believe they will cure Dyspepsia, and that is saying much for any medicine. I am glad, therefore, to give my testimony.

THE REV. DANIEL F. WARREN, D.D.,
Rector Holy Trinity, Jersey City Heights.

THE EVOLUTION OF THE CARRIAGE.

How a Plainfield House Has Kept Pace With Progress.

Plainfield's extensive and beautiful driveways are a source of much pride to the city, and of great pleasure to both residents and visitors; but to the man who really enjoys a drive [and who does not?] the excellence of the road-bed, the beauty of the landscape, and the fleetness of one's horse, are not the only contributing elements necessary to that happiness: besides the fast steed, and the hard and level track, one must have a perfect vehicle, if he would have his morning ride, his afternoon spin, or his evening outing, one of unalloyed delight. It is greatly to Plainfield's credit that she can furnish not only the most excellent and admirable roadways, but the most superior wagons and carriages as well, of any in the State.

Away back in '69, long before Plainfield even dreamed of becoming the city she now is, of ever having such a fine system of driveways as those of the present, she began to turn out the finest sort of work in the country, in the line of carriage building. In that year Louis M. French started in business on the spot now known as 16 and 18 Somerset street, where he is still situated to-day. He began work in a small two-story frame building whose floor timbers stretched across Green brook. A wood-worker and a blacksmith were his helpers. At the outset he laid down the rule that no work should ever leave his shops that was not of the highest standard of excellence, and in the fact that he has always maintained that determination is seen the reason for his success. Year after year found Mr French devoting all his personal attention to his business; the result could not but be highly gratifying to his patrons and profitable to himself. His reputation and patronage grew steadily; the constant increase of business called for additional construction and storage room. The original frame building was made larger and larger, and eventually gave place, in 1874, to a three-story brick building 35x70 feet. This in turn became too small and inconvenient, and about four years ago a two-story addition was made. Then in 1890 the extensive addition 50x70 feet in size was made, so that now the manufactory is handsome, substantial and commodious.

Mr. French now has about twenty of the most experienced workmen in his employ, and they are constantly turning out the finest wagons and carriages to be seen anywhere in New Jersey. Besides pleasure vehicles, he builds business wagons for local and out-of-town tradesmen which are marvels of strength, durability and beauty, and which are perfect in every respect, from the most hidden bit of iron to the neat fancy lettering on the sides.

Mr. French's carriage manufactory is considered to be the largest and finest equipped in the State. From the blacksmith and wheelwright shop to the trimming and varnish rooms everything is complete, and all work turned out is thorough. The varnish room is the cleanest, dryest and most dustless that could be built, and the result is that the varnish on every vehicle turned out is smooth and hard and without a blemish.

The repository where the finished goods are exhibited is a large and handsome interior, of 125 feet frontage, finished in oard wood, and splendidly lighted by numerous large windows and electric lamps. One hundred carriages are kept in stock, and the exhibition is a most attractive and interesting one.

One cannot get even a glimpse of this superb array of vehicles without fully appreciating their excellence and experiencing a great longing to possess some of them. Light and convenient buggies, free-and-easy buckboards, jaunty curricles, solid, substantial broughams, lithe and graceful victorias, charming specimens of all the latest styles in village carts, pony phætons, spider phætons, rockaways and surries, wet-weather-defying Berlin coaches, pleasant-day, open-air cabriolets, may here be seen in all their glory. The display is a most tempting one. The carriages are every one models of style, of comfort, of luxury. They are everything that a refined taste can desire. On the road they are smooth and swift running, and make driving anywhere a delight. The upholstery is the finest, the cushions are the softest, that human ingenuity can devise. The excellence of the work in the satin and other cloths vies with that in the iron and wood-work for supremacy, and not one thing excels another. It is all the best.

In an articles on "The Evolution of the Carriage" The Illustrated American says: "English carriage builders do not finish their work with the same neatness as the American and French carriage builders, and the Americans have the advantage over their foreign rivals in having the best woods for their work growing almost at their doors. The American carriages are much lighter than the English, and in design and harmony of line are equalled only by those built in Paris. The progress realized during the last quarter of a century in the building of carriages has been more particularly noticeable in the United States than in any other country." And the American might truthfully have added, as THE PRESS does now, that no house in the country has a better reputation for having kept pace with that progress than the Plainfield house of L. M. French. Mr. French is constantly adopting new designs and new improvements, and those who want to buy can find no better, no more satisfactory stock to choose from than that displayed at his repository.

"No, sir," said the barkeeper, "you don't get any more here this time. You've had enough whisky for one evening."

"All right, sir," replied the customer, somewhat thickly. "My trade doesn't amount to much, I s'pose. It's about a couple o' dollars a week, mebbe, but I've got friends. Bet yer life none o' them'll ever come here again. Say!" he continued, pointing his finger impressively at the man behind the bar, "do you know what this thing's going to cost you? It'll knock you out of just $6 a week. That's over $300 a year, and that's the interest on $6,000. It costs you $6,000, b'gosh!"

"That's all right, my friend," responded the barkeeper; "if you and your friends drop out it will bring me about $12 a week in better trade. Say!"—and he pointed his finger straight at the man in front of the bar—"do you know what $12 a week is? It's over $600 a year. That's the interest on $12,000, and I'd give $10,000 to have you stay away from here, b'gosh! You ligh' out!"—Chicago Tribune.

He Forgot the Gravy.

A traveler, on leaving the dinner table at the hotel, was sorry to leave anything behind. He, therefore, slyly appropriated a chicken and put it in his pocket. The waiter in attendance noticed the proceeding, but said nothing. He took the gravy tureen and deftly emptied the contents into the traveler's pocket. The latter, feeling a strange warmth, turned round and said:

"What are you doing, waiter?"

"Sir, you forgot the gravy, they both go together!" was the reply.—La Passe Tempa.

HERE'S OUR CARD.

It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public esteem accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for telling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of Shoes.

RELIGIOUS MATTERS.

WHERE THEY LAID HIM.

Came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre.—Matt. xxvii, 1.

Come, see the place where they have laid
Our Lord, in hallowed gloom.
We looked to see a King enthroned,
But found instead His tomb;
And in earth's lowly, rocky mound,
Made ready for the dead,
A resting place at last is found
To lay that wounded head.

Tread softly; pause awhile we may
For solemn look around
See yonder; there beside the way
Is Calvary's awful ground.
Aye, well with recent memories
These tears may now afresh,
For still our burning vision sees
His sacred bleeding flesh.

Speak gently; once again recall
How all our debt was paid;
When noon must needs wear midnight's pall
For such guilt on Him laid.
For all the world one Lamb has bled,
Himself for them He gave;
Aye, well they spake with wagging head:
"Himself He could not save."

Hush! draw we nigh; yet pause from fear—
The stone is rolled away.
But ah! an angel waiteth here
To watch where Jesus lay.
Come, see the place, He is not there;
Lo! back the Conqueror gave.
The Lord is risen; and now, oh, where
Is all thy victory, Grave?

O Grave, with Him our sad hearts rise
From depths of woe to sing.
Oh, keep what caused such sacrifice,
Thou couldst not keep our King.
Yea, hide the guilt that Christ hath borne
Down to thy deepest gloom;
We turn from thee to bless the morn
Our Saviour left the tomb.

We haste to praise and worship now,
And spread the joy abroad;
And tell to every nation how
Earth's Saviour is her God.
Yea oft to pause in future years,
From dread and doubt set free,
To consecrate with grateful tears
Each memory of Thee.

—Jennie D. Dye, in N. Y. Observer.

EASTER.

A Day That Means Everything to the Christian World.

Of all the festivals of the year, it seems to me that Easter is the most joyous one to all Christian hearts. Christmas is truly the children's day. They love to hear of the Babe of Bethlehem and to make their little gifts in His name, and we grown people share with them in their happiness. But the years have taught us that sorrow and sin have blighted our lives, and we have great need to realize how important has been Christ's mission and work. Yet, with Paul of old, we also realize that, if Christ be not risen, then is our hope vain. Our hopes, our desires, our prayers and efforts all hinge on a risen living Christ, "who ever liveth to make intercession for us." Therefore, although we love to join in the innocent mirth of childhood on Christmas morning, and to make the children happy with the story of the Christ-Child, it is the risen living Lord who crowns and beautifies and blesses our lives. And the day which especially marks the event of His resurrection from the dead should certainly be to us the day of days.

Easter morning—a foretaste of the resurrection morn. By faith we follow our Redeemer clear through the open tomb. We laid Him there, and the blackness of the grave closed over all. But lo! the bars were made fast in vain. He has burst through and riven wide the opening so that the light from the other side streams clear and radiant on the entire pathway. Who now need fear to enter into life by a door which seems to lead but into a dark passage? The risen Christ has proven that the end is victory and life immortal. The way thereto? Ah! how the flesh dreads the change. We are so familiar with the objects about us. Our homes are very dear to us. Everything in them has grown to be a part of our being. The books we handle so lovingly, the pictures on our walls, the familiar articles of every-day use—all these we are accustomed to, and we dread a change. We cling to them all so fondly. Sometimes we must be emptied from vessel to vessel even, lest we get so attached to the things of sense; we forget things can not always remain as they are. We look back through the ages. The buried cities of old tell us the tale of domestic and home life. The people married and were given in marriage. Customs differed a little from those of the present day, yet the home was much the same. The houses and even the furniture and cooking utensils they used can be seen and handled by us. But the people have all passed on through this same door, and seemingly into this dark passage which so terrifies us. Even the deeds to houses and real estate beyond, which were sometimes made out in favor of the dying among the ancient Egyptians, were left on this side, the papyri on which they were written being laid within the mummy wrappings. They thought undoubtedly that they were furnished with

* * * "titles clear
To mansions in the skies," but how little they really knew of what was beyond.

The agnostic of to-day assures us that we know no more. The Christian of to-day reverently repeats the words: "Thou didst overcome the sharpness of death, and didst open the Kingdom of Heaven to all believers." Our glimpses into the kingdom come through a risen, ascended Lord, and as the faces of our loved ones grow indistinct to our mortal vision as we pass out into the shadow of death, we surely shall cling more and more tenaciously to the hand which our Lord holds out to us. He has passed this way before us, and the path is made clear unto us.

The very natural processes which in the springtime are rife about us, the upspringing of the early crocuses, the budding of the maple trees in the yard by our doorway, all these things stir within us a sense of new life. The germ of life immortal stirs within us by very sympathy at each new Eastertide. We are enrapport with the spirit of the day. The same reign of law which governs the seed time of the earth about us reaches into our innermost spiritual being, and we know of a very truth that "Death ends not all," yet we need the assurance and the reassurance of Divine revelation and the historical truth that Christ lived, died and rose again to satisfy our reason that all is as it seems; that we, too, like the corn of the field, when laying aside the mortal frame spring into a new life.

The complexity of our being makes the process in our case so much the more important that the similitude is lost in the immensity of the thought of dying. Yet we die not. We live in Christ.

When we once begin to understand Easter as a festival, looking forward as well as back, as a day which means everything to us as Christians, we shall enjoy it and appreciate it more and more. Our choicest blossoms shall decorate our rooms, and we will put on our holiday attire. Our homes shall outwardly partake of the Easter spirit until even the little children shall ask us why we rejoice on this bright Sunday. And then shall we impress upon their minds the story of the living Christ, whom we do not see with our eyes, and whose hands we can not grasp as we do those of one another, but to whom we can pray, and who is always present in spirit to hear our prayers; who is fitting up a beautiful home for us, and which will be ready for us when we have to leave all these things which are about us here. We shall tell them that when He left the earth He, too, died and was buried, but that He rose out of the grave, and finally passed upward among the clouds, and into the heavens, out of our sight, into a life so spiritual these mortal eyes can not follow Him; and that we keep this festival of Easter Sunday to commemorate His coming out of the tomb, back to life among us. Ah! the tale shall grow not old until the last one of His followers shall have passed from death unto life.—Christian at Work.

An Easter Lesson.

One great lesson of Easter is permanent elevation of aim. Jesus has left the tomb for good; we must do so, too. We are surrounded in this life by little else than the chambers of the dead; and the painted imagery which decorates their walls, as of yore the tombs of Egyptian monarchs, might for a moment make us think that they are other than they are. Our true wisdom is to know that life is travestied in these sepulchres of thought, these sepulchres of morality; and that the life of the emancipated souls is to be found only with the risen and eternal Christ, who came down indeed among us to visit us in our errors and our sins, but whose angels have traced over all faiths but one, all rules of life but one, the motto which proclaims His triumph and our duty; "He is not here; He is risen."—Liddon.

Three Good Reasons.

I once met a thoughtful scholar who told me he had read every book he could which assailed the religion of Jesus Christ, and he said he should have become an infidel but for three things: "First, I am a man. I am going somewhere. To-night I am a day nearer the grave than I was last night. I have read all such books can tell me. They shed not one solitary ray of hope or light upon the darkness. They shall not take away the guide and leave me stone-blind. Second, I had a mother. I saw her go down into the dark valley where I am going, and she leaned on an unseen arm as calmly as a child goes to sleep on its mother's beast. I knew that was not a dream. Third, I have three motherless daughters. They have no protection but myself. I would rather kill them than leave them in this sinful world, if you blot out from it all the teachings of the Gospel."—Bishop Whittle.

Praying and Working.

Praying and working are, to the true servant of God, different manifestations of the same spirit-life. But to him who is not in God's service they are different acts, each one rendering the other more or less unnecessary. The true Christian worker prays, not so much because he deems prayer necessary, as because the prayer is an essential part of his working. And he who truly prays works toward the end for which he prays, because his working is an essential element of his praying. In short, to the Christian, that which is worth praying for is worth working for, and that which is worth working for is worth praying for.—S. S. Times.

CHOICE EXTRACTS.

—Let us never suspect that any man's action springs from a bad motive, unless we are compeled to—and that will not be often.—United Presbyterian.

—Daniel had a kind of religion that would bear transportation; it stood the journey from Jerusalem to Babylon, and was just as good abroad as at home.—Moody.

—We may think the rules of the Christian church very strict, but if we compare them with the regulations of the Mosaic law, we will be convinced that Christ's yoke is easy and His burden light.—Standard.

—Everyone who lives in this world is more or less a tax upon the industry of others; and hence everyone should, at the very least, seek to contribute to the world as much as it takes to get him through it. If he does less than this, he dies at last in debt to mankind. N. Y. Independent.

—The Christian life is a growth. Some Christians, too, grow slower than others. We must not expect great deeds in the time of beginnings. If there is evidence of any progress, or any effort toward progress, this, at first, should be enough. Time has more to do, perhaps, than we think with the ripening of individual Christian character. Sufficient unto the day is the good thereof.—Zion's Herald.

—Science and revelation are the bass and the soprano of the same tune. The whole world will yet acknowledge the complete harmony. There is no war between that which God wrote by prophet or parchment, and that which by storm He wrote on the rocks, but between what God describes as "science, falsely so called," and revelation, there is an uncompromising war, and one or the other must go under.—Talmage, in N. Y. Observer.

PECULIAR PARADOXES.

A MAGNET does not attract iron as such. It has first to convert the iron, by induction, into another magnet before it can attract it. Hence magnets can only attract magnets.

A PIECE of solid steel will float on water, if it be small enough and slightly greased. A common sewing-needle, especially if it be a new one, when placed gently on the surface of water, floats.

WE can see the sun after he has sunk below the horizon. This is due to atmospheric refraction, which apparently raises the sun thirty-four sixtieths of a degree. His apparent diameter is only thirty-one sixtieths of a degree.

LIGHT, which makes everything else visible, is itself invisible. If light itself were visible, the sky at night, beyond the shadow caused by the earth, would be one blaze of light, since the sun's rays are everywhere traversing space.

THE human eye does not see things, neither does what we call sight penetrate space. The eye is simply like a telescope for receiving rays of light. It is the brain only that sees. In this sense, the fingers do not feel, the ear does not hear, the tongue does not taste, nor does the nose smell.

SNOW is not white, neither is it opaque. It is composed of small, six-rayed crystals, which, when examined separately, are seen to be as transparent as water. Snow is white only in the sense that water, when falling over a precipice, is white. In each case the whiteness is due to inclosed air. —Golden Days.

He Who Squeals Must Feel Hurt.

DON'T BE FOOLED!—By a delusive advertisement from a would-be competitor, who for the past year has attempted to copy our method of doing business. We are the recognized originators of low prices, and leaders in our line of business in this city. We pay our own bills, and sell as cheap as we choose, and we could give our goods away if we want to, and it's no one's business. We are an independent firm, and by keeping out of combinations that raise the price of Groceries, we are enabled to operate our business to the interests of the people of Plainfield.

CHICAGO'S BIG FIRE

The Most Extensive Conflagration in Years.

IT STARTED IN A DIME MUSEUM.

Nearly Two Million Dollars' Worth of Property Destroyed.

Narrow Escape of an Audience—The Freaks Saved by the Firemen—It Took Forty Engines and Nearly Three Hundred Men to Subdue the Flames—Several Persons Seriously Injured.

CHICAGO, April 13.—One of the fiercest and most disastrous fires the Chicago Department has fought in many years swept through West Madison street last evening.

The big Smythe Building, which extends from Ilion half-way to Halstead street, was destroyed and with it the contents of John M. Smythe & Co.'s furniture house, the largest retail establishment in the world.

On the north side of Madison street, from Union street to the Haymarket theatre block, five buildings were destroyed. Three of them tumbled down before the maelstrom of fire, and at one time the roof and a portion of the front of the theatre building was burning so fiercely that everybody thought it would share the fate of its neighbors, but the firemen managed to save the structure, but in a very damaged condition.

The total loss is estimated at between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000. John Smyth & Co. will lose nearly $600,000.

Only a Few Persons Injured.

An extraordinary feature of the conflagration was the lack of fatalities. One man, Alexander Grant, had his leg broken and his skull fractured by falling from the supporting beam of an electric light in front of the museum. A fireman was injured by a flying piece of mortar, and two or three spectators who got under the danger lines were hurt, but none of them so seriously that they were unable to go home unaided. The fire originated in the wagon sheds of John M. Smith & Co., directly in the rear of the museum.

Panic Stricken in the Museum.

Five hundred persons were in the lower part of the museum when the flames burst out in the rear of the stage. Some one in the audience saw the smoke creeping out through the scenes, and the alarm was given. A rush was made for the doors, and those who sat nearest the stage were panic stricken. Half of the audience was composed of women and children, and they occupied the seats in the front.

The flames caught hold of the light, inflammable scenery and soon made short work of it. Smoke filled the hall while the people were struggling to get out, and tongues of flame leaped from one side of the narrow stage to the other. Many of the women fainted or were overcome by the smoke and had to be carried out.

In less than 60 seconds the hall was emptied, but the audience got out none too soon, for the flames had already taken hold of the front seats.

Running for Their Lives.

By this time Smythe & Co.'s big building clear down to Union street was ablaze. The flames ran through the inflammable stock like a whirlwind, bursting through the roof and front windows and leaping clear across the street until they touched the buildings there. The northwest corner of Madison and Union streets, occupied by Alfred Peats as a wall paper house, was the next to catch fire. The three-story structure next door, the lower floor of which was occupied by Barr Bros. as a hat store, was slowly crumbling under the influence of the heat. The other buildings, including the comparatively new one of six stories, which was known as La Barges Recess, clear to the east line of the Haymarket, were on fire. Men and women were tumbling through their open doors and running for their lives. Some of them barely escaped.

The excitement among the freaks, who were on exhibition on the third floor, was pitiful. Mme. Carver, who weighs 900 pounds, hobbled down from the platform and seizing her midget son dragged herself to the rear window, and was about to throw the child out when she was restrained by Manager Belmont.

A. D. Lafayette, the father of the big-headed boy, who was so top heavy that he could not navigate alone, rushed to the assistance of his son, and, while leading him out, found the Albino almost blind by reason of her weak eyes, groping about in the smoke. With the big-headed boy under his arm, he seized the Albino and dragged rather than led her to the stairway and to the street.

Incidents of the Fire.

While the fire was at its worst a sidewalk at the corner of Union street and Meridian Court collapsed and precipitated 40 people into an excavation beneath. Mrs. Bessie Higgins was probably fatally injured.

When the fire broke out Dr. J. Z Bergeron was attending Mrs. Sarah Macks in a flat in one of the buildings subsequently burned. When the fire got too close Dr. Bergeron seized the suffering woman and wrapping her in blankets descended three flights of stairs with his burden and carried her to a refuge near by. In less than 15 minutes a fine girl was born amid the crash of falling walls and the hoarse shouts of the firemen. Both mother and child are doing well.

It took 45 engines and nearly 300 firemen to bring the conflagration under subjection.

The Body of a Missing Woman Found.

CORNING, N. Y., April 13.—The body of Mrs. Hawkins, the aged colored womab who disappeared from her home last fall, was found last evening at the top of the hillside one mile south of this city near Beck's slaughter house. The discovery was made by a man who was walking in the woods. The body was lying on one side. The crows had picked the flesh from one side of the face and the backs of the hands, and it presented a ghastly sight.

Politz Confessed.

NEW ORLEANS, April 13.—The grand jury will within a day or two present to the court the results of its investigation into the Hennessy murder. It is now known positively that Politz, who was lynched, made a confession and declared that Scaffedi killed the chief.

Student Harris Says the Latest Report About Him is Absurd.

NEW YORK, April 13.—Though letters purporting to give incriminating evidence against Medical Student Carlyle W. Harris, accused of causing the death of his young wife, Mary Helen Nellson Potts, have been received by the District Attorney, Harris stoutly maintains that such documentary evidence is without the slightest semblance of truth. He said: "The story that I had been married to Miss Queenie Drew, formerly of Harrigan's company, is absurd. I say right here that I was married to Helen Potts and to no other woman. The published statement of Mrs. Potts' nephew, Charles E. Oliver, that I had told him there were only two women who had moral strength enough to resist me and that I had overcome their prejudices by secret marriages is an infamous falsehood."

The preliminary hearing in Harris' case will take place this afternoon before Judge Fitzgerald.

PELTED HER WITH MUD.

Miss Holt's Charge Against Shoe Manufacturer Noyes.

WOBURN, Mass., April 13.—The case of John G. Noyes, a shoe manufacturer of Stoneham, Mass., who is charged with having assaulted Miss Holt, the principal of the Holt High School of Stoneham, by pelting her with mud, came up in the District Court. There is more than usual interest manifested in the case, as the young lady has already brought suit against Noyes for $25,000 for breach of promise.

Miss Holt swore positively in court that Noyes assaulted her with mud on the night stated. Noyes on the other hand said that he was not near the place in which the assault is said to have occurred and introduced some strong evidence in support of his claim. His counsel declared that it was his belief that Miss Holt besmeared herself with mud in order to give color to the action for her case for breach of promise.

THEY PULLED REVOLVERS.

An Altercation Over the Senatorial Fight in Florida.

TALLAHASSE, Fla., April 13.—The Senatorial fight may be considered fully on. Call has issued a long manifesto claiming to be in line with the Alliance. The Call men claim 58 members in caucus.

An altercation between C. L. Harvey and J. Alexander in the Leon Hotel porch arose from the Senatorial fight. Harvey gave Alexander the lie. Alexander struck at Harvey, drew his revolver and leveled it at him. The latter also drew a revolver and fired at Alexander and retreated into the hotel. Alexander come to the door, when Harvey shot at him again, and fired a third shot as Alexander disappeared through the back door. The only damage was a slight wound in the toe of Albertus Voegt. From the first there was a lively stampede of guests, Senator Call being among them.

Still Receiving the Spurious Checks.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 13.—The German-American Bank has received two more of the spurious checks which have been coming to Rochester from different parts of the country for the past few weeks. In each instance the checks are in the sum of $15. They purport to be drawn on the Rochester National Bank of Commerce. No such bank ever existed in this city. The checks are drawn evidently by a master hand.

Destroyed 6,000 Letters.

PEORIA, Ill., April 13.—Mail Carrier Charles Hartwig of the local force of U. S. mail carriers of this city has been arrested and in default of $1,000 bail is in the county jail, a self confessed robber, in taking letters which were handled by himself on his route. It is estimated that he has destroyed some 6,000 letters during the time of his pilfering. He admits his guilt.

The French Ambassador at Berlin Coldly Treated.

THE KAISER SHOWS HOSTILITY.

The News Causes General Anxiety in Government Circles at Paris.

Bloody Encounter Between the Irish Factions at Macroon—Ex-Speaker Reed in Italy—Bismarck's Chances for Election Uncertain—Special Orders to the German Army—An American Swindler Sentenced.

PARIS, April 13.—M. Herbette, the French Ambassador to Germany, has sent M. Ribot, French Minister of Foreign Affairs, a dispatch full of misgivings as to the nature of the Ambassador's relations with the Berlin Foreign Office. M. Herbette says that Chancellor von Caprivi treats him with formal politeness, while the German Emperor, who was formerly invariably affable in his manner, now speaks curtly and has shown positive ill humor toward Frenchmen whom M. Herbette has introduced at receptions.

The news causes increased anxiety in government circles here. Hitherto M. Herbette's own reports, as well as other official information from Berlin, have shown that M. Herbette was persona grata with Emperor William, and that the Ambassador was on the most amicable personal terms with the chiefs of the Berlin Foreign Office. Nothing has occurred between the Ambassador and M. Ribot to indicate the intention of the German government to increase the tension of relations already sufficiently strained.

If the French government ascertains that the Kaiser's altered attitude toward M. Herbette arises from dissatisfaction over the treatment received by Empress Frederick in Paris, his early recall is certain. So far as is known in official circles, the Kaiser exonerated M. Herbette from all blame in the matter, while M. Ribot considered the conduct of the Ambassador in connection with the Paris incident to have been absolutely correct.

BLOODY ENCOUNTER.

The Irish Factions Have a Lively Time at Macroon.

DUBLIN, April 13.—The anti-Parnellites Tanner and Deasy tried to deliver an address yesterday at Macroon. Their voices were drowned by the hooting and cheering of the opposite factions.

Hooting and cheering was soon followed by blackthorns, and the encounter was of a bloody and determined character. Charge followed charge, the Parnellites having the advantage for a time and then being repulsed, only to renew the combat more vigorously. Several of the wounded lay for some time and were trampled upon by the contending forces. The combatants at length rested from exhaustion. Many of the injured are in a serious condition. But little of what the speakers said was audible.

THE KAISER'S NAVY.

Germany's Ruler in His Kiel Speech Talks About the Next War.

BERLIN, April 13.—In his speech at the Marine Academy at Kiel the Kaiser said that the navy would excercise the chief offensive part in the next war and should endeavor to annihilate the enemy by a grand coup, its duties in this respect resembling those of cavalry ashore.

The next naval maneuvres, he said, should be conducted on the strategic principles of the English system, which alone resembled warfare.

The Concessions to Cuba.

MADRID, April 13.—It is believed that Gen. Foster made advances for a Spanish treaty with the United States. Complete reserve is maintained in regard to the Cuban reciprocity treaty with the United States, but it is believed that America grants the broadest concessions in regard to sugar and other Cuban products, excepting tobacco, which for the present is outside of the negotiations.

Baltcheff's Murderers in Custody.

SOFIA, April 13.—It is understood that the murderers of Minister Baltcheff are now in the power of Premier Stambuloff, whose life it is thought they were endeavoring to take when M. Baltcheff was killed. It is said the authorities of Bulgaria have paid a reward of 20,000 florins to a Hungarian, whose name is kept secret, for services in detecting the murderers of the late Finance Minister.

New Sepulchre for Columbus' Remains.

MADRID, April 13.—The Madrid Gazette publishes a royal decree ordering the appropriation of 50,000 pesos for the construction of a sepulchre in the Havana Cathedral, where the remains of Christopher Columbus are preserved. In order to secure the best results in the construction of this tomb, it has been thrown open to competition among Spanish artists.

Special Order to the German Army.

BERLIN, April 13.—A special order has been issued throughout the German army that no news shall be given to the press without the consent of the commanding officer. This is owing to the publicity given to arrests in the army in connection with the Socialist propaganda.

Ex-Speaker Reed in Italy.

PARIS, April 13.—Thomas B. Reed, ex-Speaker of the American House of Representatives, passed through Paris without seeing anybody. He did not even call at the United States Legation. He spent only a few hours in this city. He is now in Italy.

DR. BLOOD LOCATED.

The Man Whose Name Has Been Connected with the Sawtelle Murder.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 13.—Dr. Chas. Blood, the man who was so much wanted at the time of the murder of Hiram Sawtelle in Rochester, N. H., has been discovered in this city.

He is the man whom Isaac B. Sawtelle declares is responsible for the death of his brother Hiram. He braved the vigilance of the Massachusetts police when he came to this city a week ago, and in fancied security he opened an office in White's block, where hernia and kindred troubles were to be treated by "Dr. Lewis."

Twenty-four hours after he reached this city the police knew he was here, and 48 hours later the authorities in Boston and Dover were informed of the fact. In regard to the accusations of Isaac, Dr. Blood says: "I have an alibi as complete as one could wish, and it would not rest on the statement of one person, but on those of 20 or more. I have not stepped my foot out of the State of Massachusetts for four years, three of which were spent in the institution at Charlestown. I know nothing about the murder and next to nothing about Isaac Sawtelle and his affairs, except what I learned from him in prison."

A DAM BREAKS.

Railroad Tracks Carried Away and a Family Narrowly Escape Drowning.

GARDINER, Mass., April 13.—A dam in Nichol's pond, above the Fitchburg Railroad, at Baldwinville, Mass., gave way yesterday. The break was caused by the heavy rains of late.

The water carried away both main tracks of the railroad, making a hole 80 feet long by 20 feet deep, and landing the rails and ties 500 feet away on the banks of the Otter River. The highway was badly washed, and Nichol's machine shop was in great danger of being destroyed, the foundation being badly shaken by the force of the water and the railroad iron against it.

A family named Freejean, occupying a house near the dam, had a narrow escape from drowning, their home being flooded. They were rescued, however, on a raft. The damage is estimated at $5,000.

TERRIBLE EXPLOSION.

One Boy Instantly Killed and Another Fatally Injured.

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 13.—About four miles from this place at 4 a. m. a two-quart can of nitro-glycerine exploded, instantly killing Tom Moubts, jr., aged 15, and probably fatally injuring his younger brother Willie, aged 12. The two boys had found the can, which they supposed was empty, and struck it against a fence post. A terrible explosion followed.

Parts of the body of the elder boy, who was instantly killed, were found 200 feet from the scene of the disaster. The younger boy was blown 150 feet through the air and was found in an adjoining orchard. He is internally injured.

Bank Officers Arrested.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 13.—Warrants, charging conspiracy to defraud, obtaining money under false pretences and embezzlement, were issued against Theodore Schwartz, sr., Columbus Brockenbough and Charles F. Frank, president, cashier and teller respectively of the defunct Schwartz Bank, which failed recently, with liabilities of $800,000 and practically no assets. Schwartz and Frank were brought to Police Headquarters by detectives, and after argument there before Commissioner Thompson were released on $30,000 bail each.

Susan Says Anna Was Insane.

PITTSTON, Pa., April 13.—Susan Dickinson says that she will not begin action against Dr. Seward, whom she expects to hold for damages, until matters have developed more fully. She fears no legal action from Miss Anna's lawyers. She said that Anna was undoubtedly insane at the time she was placed in the Danville asylum. She regards Dr. Seward as a man of little principle and believes he has pursued the course that he has taken for notoriety for himself and his institution.

Electric Light Building Burned.

NORWALK, Conn., April 13.—About 6 a. m. the Norwalk & South Norwalk Electric Light Company's building was discovered to be on fire. The fire department was unable to control the flames, and the building and its contents were almost entirely destroyed, entailing a loss of $20,000. Insurance on building, $1,000; on machinery, $2,000. It is expected that the electric light company will have a new plant running in two weeks.

Quarreled Over Bowman.

READING, Pa., April 13.—Mrs. Ellen Sterner has been held for trial on the charge of arson. Testimony showed that she poured kerosene oil over a pile of lumber near the residence of the Rev. Henry Gressley, an Evangelical minister, and set the pile on fire. His house and barn narrowly escaped destruction. They had a dispute over the Bowman troubles in the Evangelical Church.

Four Italians Drowned.

ORANGE, Mass., April 13.—Last evening, while four Italians, Carmelo Carria, Tony Long, Tony Jediun and Nicolo Marchesi, were boat riding on Miller's River, they allowed the boat to come too near the rapids near the New Home Sewing Machine Company's works, and were carried over the dam and drowned.

Both Parties Agree to Adjourn.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 13.—Both Democrats and Republicans have agreed to adjourn on April 24. This will be the earliest adjournment in many years. The Excise bill will probably have a hearing this week, and after going through the Assembly it will go to the Senate.

Bismarck May Fail.

BERLIN, April 13.—In the Geestemunde district, where Prince Bismarck is a candidate for the Reichstag, many meetings were held yesterday. The success of Bismarck is very uncertain.

THE ITALIAN AFFAIR

No Fear that the Trouble Will Result in War.

SECRETARY BLAINE RETICENT.

High Officials Discredit the Sensational Report from Rome.

Secretary Proctor is a Candidate for Edmunds' Seat—Gen. Spinola's Condition Improved—Preparing for the President's Trip—Ex-Senator Pierce's Mission—Official Test of the Pneumatic Gun Carriage.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—There were no developments in the Italian affair to-day. High officials discredit the report of Italy's intended purpose to take such a hostile step as would be that of ordering Minister Porter from Rome.

Even should such an unusual and extraordinary step be taken, contrary to all expectations, it is said that it would probably not result in actual war, but only in an almost complete severance of all relations between the two countries.

It is regarded, however, as almost certain that it would result in a feeling of indignation in this country which would seriously prejudice the prospects of favorable action by this country on the Italian suggestion for reparation and indemnity.

There was nothing to be learned to-day in respect to the looked-for answer of Secretary Blaine to the note sent by Marquis Imperiali, and Secretary Blaine had no information to communicate to the public on the subject of the Italian incident.

ROME, April 13.—The Opinione says: "The news from Washington is the subject of much comment. If Mr. Blaine is unable to make a categorical report to Italy's simple and straightforward request, we can await the conclusion of such a strange silence serenely and without lamentations or threats. Public opinion, however, on both sides of the Atlantic will hardly consider dignified such an admission of impotence."

PROCTOR IS A CANDIDATE.

The Secretary of War Will Try and Succeed Edmunds.

BURLINGTON, Vt., April 13.—The Free Press prints to-day a special dispatch from Washington in which Secretary Proctor says that the interview telegraphed from Omaha, stating that he was not a candidate for the Senatorship from Vermont to succeed Senator Edmunds, is a fabrication.

Secretary Proctor said that the announcement of his candidacy was authorized, and if he was appointed to the vacancy he would accept.

The Presidential Party.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The arrangements for President Harrison's Southern and Western trip are all completed, but the personnel of the entire party to accompany him cannot yet be stated positively. As it stands to-day, the President will be accompanied by Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. McKee, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Harrison, Mrs. Dimmick, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Boyd, Private Secretary Halford and Messrs. Calahan, Clark and Austin, representing the United Press, the Associated Press and the Press News Association respectively. Secretary Rusk will accompany the party as far as El Paso, Tex.

The Galena to be Dry-Docked.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The Navy Department has ordered the Galena to be placed in dry dock at Portsmouth, N. H., where a survey will be made to ascertain whether she can be repaired at the legal limit of 20 per cent. of the original cost. There is little hope of saving her, for her bottom is believed to have been badly broken by pounding on the rocks at Gray Head.

Arizona Indians Restless.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Southeastern Arizona advices received here say the White Mountain Apaches are very uneasy and it is feared they will go on the war path. They are having much trouble among themselves, there being some shooting or cutting scrapes almost daily, and a general feeling of uneasiness prevails, which bodes no good to settlers in that part of the southwest.

May Build Torpedo Boat No. 2.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—It is believed in naval circles that it will be finally decided to build torpedo boat No. 2 in one of the navy yards. There is talk of increasing the size of the gun from 112 to 125 tons and having the vessel built in the Norfolk Navy Yard. Bids would probably be solicited again by the Navy Department.

Ex-Senator Pierce's Visit.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The presence of ex-Senator Pierce, of North Dakota, in Washington, and his frequent conferences with the President lead to the belief that the ex-Senator's friend, General Sanford, of Minneapolis, is to be appointed to a United States Judgeship in Wisconsin.

Official Test of the Gun Carriage.

WASHINGTON, April 13—As soon as arrangements can be made the War Department will make an official test at Sandy Hook of the pneumatic disappearing gun carriage for a ten-inch breech loading rifle, which was recently constructed in Boston. The gun carriage is expected to effect a revolution in ordnance matters.

Death of Dr. Eben Tourjee.

BOSTON, April 12.—Dr. Eben Tourjee, who founded and was for many years the director of the New England Conservatory of Music in this city, died at 1 a. m. after a protracted illness.

Ex-Gov. Waterman Dead.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 12.—Ex-Gov Waterman died last night of pneumonia. He was ill only a few days.

EATEN BY WOLVES.

Terrible Death of a Wounded Man Near a Logging Camp.

CHEBOYGAN, Mich., April 13.—James and John Gillespie own a small logging camp three miles from Mullet Lake, 19 miles south of here. The two brothers were working in the woods, when James' axe slipped and cut a terrible gash in his leg. John bound up the gash and started to carry James to the nearest house. The load and deep snow were too much for him, and with night coming on he had but little chance of getting home. James ordered his brother to run to the nearest house for help, leaving him alone.

John did so and was soon in the village, where a crowd was raised to bring in the wounded man. A tramp of over a mile brought them to the vicinity and shouts were sent up to cheer James. No answer was received, but in its place came savage yelps from a lot of wolves.

The crowd rushed on, only to find a pack of wolves fighting over a lot of bones and clothing, where John had left his brother a short time before, while all around the snow was stained with blood. The rescuing party were unarmed, save with axes, but they chased the wolves off and brought the bones back for burial.

STOLE A CHURCH ORGAN.

Denver Police Capture an Organized Gang of House Breakers.

DENVER, Col., April 13.—Late last night the police of this city raided a dwelling house at the corner of 31st street and Maryland avenue, having cause to think that something crooked was going on therein.

They were richly rewarded, for in the cellar was found a large assortment of stolen property of every conceivable description, from a church organ down to a worn out wash brush. Sixteen persons were found in the house and were arrested.

They are supposed to belong to an organized gang of hold-ups, sneak thieves and house breakers which has been operating here for some time. The organ found was stolen from a church in Harmon, a suburb of Denver. A 50-gallon barrel of molasses was found buried six feet deep in the cellar. The value of the goods recovered aggregates several thousand dollars.

Gov. Buchanan's Proclamation.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 13.—A proclamation, issued by Governor Buchanan, says: "The Scotch-Irish Association of America will hold its third annual congress at Louisville, Ky., on the 4th day of May next. Tennessee gave birth to this association, the objects and purposes of which are so worthy. By this race Tennessee was conquered from savage men and beasts. Her illustrious citizens, Andrew Jackson, James K. Polk, James Robinson, Sam Houston and Dave Crockett, were of this race. Hence Tennessee should be well represented in this forthcoming congress."

An Ex-Preacher in Jail.

BOSTON, April 13.—George A. Andrews, who has of late been in the dry goods business in Essex, and was once a Free Will Baptist preacher in Maine, is in Salem jail in default of $3,000 bail on a charge of incendiarism. He is accused of burning the store occupied by himself. Andrews has been held in high repute. He denies all knowledge of the fire and is much broken up.

Horrible Death in a Brewery.

MILWAUKEE, April 13.—Joseph Hammen, an employe in the Schlitz brewery, met a horrible death by falling into a vat of boiling water. When he was missed the water was drawn off, and his body was found in the bottom of the vat. How it happened is not known.

Says the Manipuris Fired First.

CALCUTTA, April 13.—Captain Bolleau, the senior survivor of the Manipur disaster, denies that the British provoked the outbreak by ill-usage. He says the Manipuris fired the first shot.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Two hundred families at King's Cove, N. F., are said to be in a state of actual starvation.

The New Hampshire Legislature has been adjourned to the last Wednesday in December, 1892.

The periodically published report that Mrs. James G. Blaine, jr., intends to sue her huscand for divorce, has been revived again.

The total number of deaths in the city of New York for the past week was 1,216 as against 1,100 for the preceding week, an increase of 116.

Francis Elsie and John Taylor are under arrest at Lewiston Me., charged with attempting to wreck a train on the Rumford Falls and Bricksfield Railway.

Sam Lee, a Chinaman doing business at 238 Union street, Elizabeth, N. J., was garroted and robbed in his laundry by two men. They got $100 and left him senseless in the place.

Captain Bob Cook of Philadelphia, who is in New Haven, Conn., for the purpose of coaching the Yale crew says that there is but one member of last year's crew remaining, and the prospects for a decent crew are very poor.

A suit for $2,000 has been instituted against Dr. U. K. Mayo, a dentist, of Boston, Mass., by Mrs. Jane S. Fowle. She charges that an apprentice in the office of Dr. Mayo pulled the wrong tooth while she was in under the effects of laughing gas.

The body of Walter Walsh, of South Third street, Harrison, N. J., was found in a creek on the meadows near there yesterday afternoon. He was 70 years old, and since the death of his wife a few weeks ago his mind had been unsettled.

The New York and Pennsylvania Baseball League completed its formation by the admission of Bradford and Youngstown, O. The name of the league was changed to the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio League. The cities represented are Jamestown, Elmira, Olean, Bradford, Erie, Meadville, Oil City and Youngstown.

—After an engagement of eight years, George Maginnis leaves the employ of Hoagland's Express to accept a position on the Trenton & Camden tR. His position has been filled by Isaac Taynor, formerly driver for Gazelle Hose Company.

—Two horses attached to a wagon used for hauling crushed stone ran away on West Front street this noon, causing some excitement but no damage. By the time they got a ways up Somerset street they were so tired they were glad enough to be caught. They were owned by Levi Bird.

—The fire insurance companies are keeping three trustworthy firemen, selected by Chief Doane, on guard over the damaged stocks of J. C. Pierson, Jr., and Louis Callman, while an attempt is being made to adjust the losses. They get paid 30 cents per hour, each.

—Thirteen cyclers from the Business Men's Cycling League of Newark made a visit to Plainfield yesterday. They found the roads bad for their wheels, and the best time made was about an hour and a half. They took dinner at Force's Hotel before starting again for home.

—The special attention of the young men of the city is called to the practical talk about "Business", to be given by James McGee in the Y. M. C. A. rooms Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. The well-known successful business career of Mr. McGee will tend to give weight to the suggestions that he may present. The admission will be free, and all men are invited.

—Members of the Y. M. C. A. and others interested, are reminded that the bowling section of the Association will meet at the Olympia alleys to-morrow evening. Members of the Association on payment of twenty-five cents extra per week from this time until June 1 are entitled to bowl. The annual fee for membership, which is $2, includes other privileges of the Association.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

G. Gidney, the veterinarian, of East Fifth street, is able to be out again after a severe attack of the grip, which confined him to the house for several weeks.

Chas. E. Buell, of North Plainfield, has united with distinguished men all over the country in support of the organization of the proposed Pan-Republic Congress and Pan-Republic League.

William F. Williams, for 4½ years secretary and treasurer of Mount Olive Baptist Sunday-school, resigned yesterday. Isaac Field, with the assistance of Superintendent S. B. Joseph, will fill the vacancy.

The funeral of John Mair, whose death on Saturday was announced exclusively in THE PRESS the same day, will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, from his late residence on Leland avenue, North Plainfield.

The plate collection at the Crescent Avenue church, yesterday morning, was $12,803 15. The Rev. Mr. Richards announced from the pulpit that because of additions to Hope chapel, the new Sunday-school, etc., there was a church debt of about $17,000. A collection was then taken with the above result.

A VOTE ON THE TROLLEY.

Property Owners on East Fifth Street Say Herewith Record Themselves For or Against It.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS.—Surely the question of an electric street railway for Plainfield has been thoroughly ventilated. Now is the time for a vote, and I would like THE PRESS to open a poll in its columns for ten days, in this way:

The undersigned, property owners on East Fifth street, between Broadway and Richmond street, herewith record themselves and the amount of their frontage, for or against an electric street railway through that street.

IN FAVOR.	AGAINST.
Twain, 55 ft on 5th st.
Moore, 50 ft on 5th st.

Langhorne, 35 ft on 5th st.
Albert, 50 ft on 5th st.
Titsworth, 50 ft on 5th st.

Property owners along the above route will be recorded for or against, as they desire, upon sending their names and frontage owned to THE PRESS office.

FRED MAYER'S SUICIDE.

Despondent from Illness, He Put a Bullet Through His Head.

Frederick Henry Anton Mayer, said to be an heir to a large estate in Germany, committed suicide at the home of Felix Marx, East Front street, Saturday. He was a well-bred, well-educated young man, twenty-four years of age, who had turned his back on the luxuries of his foreign home for an active life in America. He believed that every man should earn his bread by the toil of his own hands, and was said to be ambitious to found a school of disciples on that principle.

To put his idea into personal practice he became coachman for Mr. Marx about a year ago. Of late he suffered a great deal from illness, and became very despondent. Saturday morning he was found partially dressed lying across his bed, with a bullet hole through his head. He was still breathing, but never recovered consciousness, and died at 9:30 o'clock. Dr. Fritts, who attended him in his dying moments, consulted Dr. Westcott, the County Physician, and a burial permit was issued. The body was removed to Terrill & Cole's undertaking establishment, and was interred in the Methodist Cemetery this morning.

The affair was kept very quiet, and was not known outside of the Marx household till Saturday night. Mayer had evidently spent the night writing letters, fourteen of which were found. They were very pathetic, and explained that nothing but disease and melancholy compelled the act. "Of what use is a sick man?" he asked in one of them, and answering this question he added, "He is better dead."

The letters the dead man left were addressed to friends and relatives in America and abroad. He begged that all tidings of his suicide might be kept from his mother, for he said the grief would kill her. His mother is said to be a titled lady among Germany's nobility.

DR. HURLBUT WANTS IT TOO.

He Has Seen All Systems in Operation, and Prefers the Trolley.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Your correspondent "E. C. M." was not authorized to state that I would write an article concerning the proposed electric railroad for your columns. I held a brief conversation with a gentleman bearing those initials, but did not expect to be called out quite so publicly for my opinion on the subject.

However, I have no hesitation in saying that my vote is for the trolley system if that be the name applied to the overhead wires. I have seen it in use in more than fifty places throughout the United States; and while it is not perfect, it is as satisfactory as any system, and the least expensive of any. I have seen but one car propelled by storage-battery, and do not know of any place where a line is run upon that plan. The cable cars are very expensive and very noisy, with a clatter which is ceaseless, whether cars are passing or not; and, moreover, their cost in equipment and in operation is nearly ten times that of the trolley plan.

We have already so many telegraph poles and wires adorning our streets that one more will not seriously mar their beauty; and the supports as shown in Newark and in many other cities are not ill-looking.

For one, I am willing to have the electric railway pass my door on Fifth street. I have asked people living on lines in other cities whether the railway has depreciated rents or property, and have been informed that it has not.

Let us have a street railway of some kind, run by mule-power as in Texas, by horse-power as in New York, by underground cables as in Chicago, or by overhead wires as in Newark, Cleveland, Topeka, Pittsburgh, Petersburgh, and dozens of other places. Something we must have, if our suburbs are to be brought into connection with our centre, and the trolley system seems to be the most feasible. JESSE L. HURLBUT.

Plainfield, N. J., April 11, 1891.

The Trolley Road Will Reduce Taxes.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—In Saturday's issue I see a fellow workman complains (in a sarcastic way) about a board walk being unsafe. Well, "E. C. M." will have it repaired, and if a trolley electric street railway goes through the street, he will flag it.

Mr. Editor, the objectors to the street railroad lose sight of the advantages to be derived. Not only will their property increase in value, but necessarily will taxes be reduced by the erection of many more improvements owing to the electric road being established. E. C. M.

To Welcome Archbishop Ireland.

A. M. Powell and James McGee of this city are members of a committee who announce invitations from the National Temperance Society, requesting friends of the cause to meet Archbishop John Ireland, of Minnesota, this evening, at 8 o'clock, at the Concert Hall, Metropolitan Opera House, entrance 39th street, New York city. Addresses of welcome will be delivered by the President, the Rev. Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler; ex-Judge Noah Davis, and the Rev. Father Walter Elliott; with a response by the guest of the evening.

Catharine Lewis fainted one night in "Olivette," but it didn't cause a ripple in the play. 'Twas only a cough, and they had a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup on hand, of course.

A MIDNIGHT BATTLE.

Boxer Allen's Blood Spilled at the Bachelors' Club.

A brief but bloody boxing bout took place in the rooms of the Bachelors' Club at midnight Saturday.

Sam Allen, of East Front street, sometimes known, in sporting circles, as Dick Lester, is very proud of his ability as a boxer, and at a meeting with Wash Berriman, the Crescent League base-ball umpire, ascertained that Berriman was something of a sport and knew how to use his fists. A challenge from Allen was promptly accepted, and Allen drove home for his gloves. Returning, he prepared himself for the fray by devouring half a dozen lamb chops at a North avenue restaurant, while Berriman calmed himself inwardly by consuming two glasses of soda-water and limbered up his muscles by taking a run around the block.

An accommodating young gentleman well-known as a Plainfield "blood" provided the place for the conflict. He owed the Bachelors' Club a grudge, and, having a key to the club's rooms, threw open the main apartment, a nicely furnished parlor, to the combatants. The fighters provided themselves with seconds, and selected an obliging acquaintance named Stover as referee. Mr. Stover did n't pretend to be familiar with the rules of the ring, but matters were explained to him, and he told the boxers to don their six-ounce gloves and "sail in". They "sailed". At least Berriman did. Allen did n't understand just how it all happened, but somehow in very short order he was lying on his back and bleeding profusely. Berriman's blows had smashed his face shamefully.

It was 15 seconds before Sam had recovered spunk enough to get himself together again to face his formidable antagonist, and Berriman told Stover that Allen ought to be declared knocked out, as ten-seconds had been decided on as the limit of a breathing-spell.

"Oh, give him another chance"—said Stover; and the fighters again put up their fists.

For the second time Allen went down, badly punished. This time he was 45 seconds recovering, and Berriman was declared the victor.

Everybody then went home. Berriman was happy; Allen had for once had all the fight he wanted; and the man with a grudge against the Bachelors' Club chuckled gloatingly to himself, because big stains of blood covered the parlor carpet and furniture.

STATE PRISON READY FOR THEM.

Detectives Looking for the Ruffians Who Threw Rocks at the Train.

Central New Jersey Railroad detectives are searching for two men whose ruffianly conduct jeopardized the safety of a car full of passengers at the Cranford station Saturday night.

The men boarded a late train from New York, at Elizabeth. They were very noisy, and annoyed and insulted the passengers, many of whom were women. When the conductor ordered them to behave themselves they replied insolently, lighted cigars, and puffed smoke in his face. The conductor was on his mettle in an instant. He was a little man, but plucky and muscular. Yanking one of the fellows to his feet, and holding him by the neck with a vise-like grip, he signaled to the engineer to stop the train. The offenders begged for mercy, and promised good behavior so earnestly that the conductor relented, and the train went on to Cranford.

Just before the station was reached, the fellows slunk from the train and disappeared. When the train again started a shower of rocks was hurled through the plate-glass windows. Jagged stones and keen-edged fragments of glass flew dangerously near the heads of the passengers, and it was considered miraculous that no one was seriously hurt. Several people were cut and bruised, and silk hats and ladies' finery were damaged. Heavy missiles followed the train till out of range.

When the railway authorities were informed of the outrage, they at once detailed two men to ferret out the offenders and bring them to justice.

May Spoil the Base-Ball Grounds.

Now that the residents of North Plainfield are taking hold of the matter of extending Peace street through the borough, the Crescent League are alarmed for fear that their new base-ball grounds are going to be ruined. The proposed North Broadway will, it is threatened, cut directly through the field, and there seems to be no way, when the project is consummated, of diverting the thoroughfare so that the grounds may be saved.

Oh, What a Cough

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

—The members and friends of the South Plainfield Gun Club anticipate fine sport at the shooting match on their grounds, Wednesday. The first event will begin at 10 a. m. There will be 16 events, at live birds and inanimate target. Manager J. H. Brettingham has made every arrangement for a good time.

I AM an old man and have been a constant sufferer with catarrh for the last 16n years. I am entirely cured by the use of Ely's Cream Balm. It is strange that so simple a remedy will cure such a stubborn disease.—Henry Billings, U. S. Pension Att'y, Washington, D. C.

I SUFFERED for more than ten years with that dreadful disease, catarrh, and used every available medicine which was recommended to me. I cannot thank you enough for the relief which Ely's Cream Balm has afforded me.—Emanuel Meyers, Winfield L. I., N. Y.

DISASTROUS FIRE IN ELIZABETH.

Post Office and Central Telephone Station Entirely Consumed and the First National Bank Building a Wreck.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

ELIZABETH, 1:30 p. m.—Fire broke out among the mouldings in a small picture frame shop in the Arcade at about eleven o'clock this morning, and at this hour there is nothing left of the building except the cellar and a front wall that may fall any moment.

The post office and central telephone station are among the tenants who lose everything. The building had a frontage on West Grand street next to Ryan's Hotel, and on Broad street next to the First National Bank.

The bank is on the corner, and the fire consequently swept all around it, burnt out the roof and upper stories, and destroyed the building. Above the bank were the offices of County Prosecutor Wilson. He loses many of his most valuable papers.

It is reported that the driver of No. 3 Engine was killed on his way to the fire. The axle of the steamer broke, and as he was strapped in his seat he could not save himself from the wreck.

Help has arrived from the Newark Fire Department, but the conflagration is now under control mainly because there is nothing left to burn.

Councilman Ackerman's Opinion of the Kind of Electric Railway Plainfield is to Have.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—If anything further were needed to convince me of the beneficence of the proposed electric railway, the words of that earnest young opponent would have been the feather which decided the trembling balance.

At the meeting when the bill was passed to its second reading he said: "I have traveled on most of the electric railways in this country and many in Europe, and I must say that the Newark road is the finest I have ever seen."

That is the road proposed for Plainfield. What further evidence is needed? Not even the "Deadly Snooze" or the "Weekly Times" can accuse him of belonging to the "Combine," so persistently vilified because of its efforts to promote the welfare of the masses; and yet those truthful and impartial journalistic twins fail in their verbatim (?) reports to make any reference to Mr. Ackerman's opinion. "Par nobile fratum"—no-bile verily.

Despite the gulping and snarling of "Canes minores," who bark whenever "Canis major" vibrates his caudal appendage; if the gentlemen—so ungrammatically termed "the Combine," by the "Snooze"—desire a re-election, the masses will crowd to the polls in democratic carriages (electric cars) and demonstrate their gratitude by vindicating and returning them "by a large majority." Not every ward in the city is dominated by the select few and their barnacles. The tail cannot forever wag the dog. The place is getting too large to be eternally governed by "Parlor politics."

> Let dogs delight to bark and bite,
> For 'tis their nature to.
> Electric cars must come despite
> Misstatements black and blue.
>
> DR. WATTS.

P. S.—Workingmen! Remember at the next election the names of those who condemn you to tramp through mud and slush, also those who favor giving you a clean, rapid and cheap ride.—YOU ARE THE PEOPLE.

Now for the Festive Catfish.

Every small boy in this part of New Jersey knows that catfishing is now in order. There are a good many good points to a catfish or bullhead. Though not handsome, and possessed of horns which he has a propensity to plunge into the hands of the fisherman who would take him off the hook, he can make quite a lively tug on the end of a rod, and will not allow himself to be raised up on the bank without a struggle to get down in the mud at the bottom of the pond or river. Humble as he may appear, scientists have evolved a theory that in past ages he was an immense cyclopean fish incased in a heavy shell-like armor, a terror to the other great ichthyologic specimens of those days. Nowadays in the Mississippi he grows to a weight of sixty or seventy pounds, with an immense head and frightful-looking mouth.

To account for the presence of catfish in the New Jersey ponds which almost dry up in Summer is a puzzle, and perhaps the theory that they rain down is the most plausible one. At all events, they are found in ponds almost stagnant at times. The Spring is the best time to catch them, as then, after a Winter spent in cold water, their flesh is firm and of good eating quality. A catfish has a sweet taste, and no fisherman will refuse it when it is fresh. Cooked like the flounder, in meal and butter, or breaded like a cutlet, it will be found to be toothsome. The worm is the best bait that has ever been found for a catfish, and no matter how big a wad is put on the hook, the catfish will take it all in.

THE "BIG SIX'S" LATEST STROKE.

Even the New York Papers Are Talking of Their Devotion to the Interests of the Plainfield People.

[From The New York Times.]

An attempt to load the city of Plainfield with a tremendous bonded debt has just been foiled by the four Democrats and their two independent Republican allies who have secured control of the nominally Republican Common Council. The five Republican councilmen, who have been seeking to overthrow the rule of the so-called "Six Six", have been for some time quietly developing a scheme to have the city build for itself a sewerage system, and at a joint caucus attended by the Mayor and all the councilmen last week they sought to have their plan adopted and pushed through.

But the "Big Six" saw through the scheme, and, recognizing the fact that such a plan would necessitate the bonding of the city to the extent of at least $350,000, were emphatic in declaring that so long as they remained in office they would not sanction the bonding of the city to the amount of one cent. Their plan is to grant a franchise at once to a private company to put a system of sewerage in the city at a reasonable rate to the citizens for the use of it.

The "Big Six" have by this stroke of policy won the hearty indorsement of the Plainfield people, who have a horror of bonded debt, and who have always pointed with pride to the fact that, with all its improvements, Plainfield has always been free from such incumbrances.

Box 25 Sends Its First Alarm.

The fire department was called out at 2:20 this afternoon by an alarm from signal box No. 25.

The fire was at the home of Frederick H. Wills, No. 9 LaGrande avenue. It originated in the closet of a room on the upper story of the rear extension. The cause is unknown. The fire was confined to the one apartment, and the damage was slight.

Won't Cost the City a Cent.

After much solicitation and persuasion, Street Commissioner Meeker has succeeded in getting $1,000 from the C. R. R. Co., and $1,000 from the New Jersey Land Improvement Company, for the filling in and draining of the approach to the Netherwood station on the North side. This long needed improvement will be begun at once, and at no expense to the city thanks to Mr. Meeker.

A Suspected Train Wrecker's Suicide.

WESTFIELD, Mass., April 13.—Shumway, the suspected accessory in the wrecking of the Chicago night express, was found dead near Holyoke. It is believed that he committed suicide by poisoning. It is known that two hours before the wrecking of the train Shumway drove two men to the scene of the wreck. Shumway was the driver of a pony express between Westfield and Springfield.

The Oldest Judge Dying

SAN FRANCISCO, April 13. — United States District Judge Hoffman, who is on his deathbed was appointed in 1851. He was the first United States Judge upon the Pacific coast, and there is no other Judge in the nation who has been on the bench 40 years, the next longest judicial term being that of Judge William J. Allen, Judge of the Southern District of Illinois, appointed in 1855.

MORE IN FUN THAN EARNEST.

PAT, having blistered his fingers in trying on a new pair of boots, exclaimed: "I shall never get them on at all until I wear them a day or two."

MR. GRUMP—"I can't see, my dear, what good that border of fur does you around the hem of your skirt." Mrs. Grump—"Why, it shows that I can afford it."

"YOUR books haven't any meat in them, Bronson," observed Scaddleberry. "My dear fellow, you should patronize a butcher, not a novelist," returned Bronson.

MR. CITIMAN (who has taken board on a farm)—"Is there a bank anywhere near here?" Farmer Catchum—"No sir. We ain't never had no use for banks in this section. You see, this is the first season any of us has kept summer boarders."

FIFTY love letters a day.—De Snapper—"I once knew a man who used to receive over fifty love letters every blessed day!" Miss Lorgnist—"Dear me! He must have been a regular Don Juan." De Snapper—"Not at all, madam; he was a postman."

THE old Duchess of Gordon used to say to her cronies: "You know, my dear, when I don't know how to spell a word I always draw a line under it, and if it is spelled wrong it passes for a very good joke, and if it is spelled right it doesn't matter."

"PROFESSOR," said a student, in pursuit of knowledge concerning the habits of animals, "why does a cat while eating turn her head first one way and then the other?" "For the reason," replied the professor, "that she cannot turn it both ways at once."

THE guest sat down, but rose hurriedly with an expression of alarm on his face. "I am afraid, madam," he said, "I have sat down on the wrong chair." "It's only Willie's pigeon eggs," replied the lady, pleasantly. "Don't mind it, Mr. Jones. He has plenty more of them."

MERCHANT—"The postal service is in a wretched condition." Friend—"Never noticed it." "Well I have. During last month I sent out one hundred and eighty statements of account, with requests for immediate payment, and so far as I can learn, not more than two of my customers received their letters."

Abundant Evidence.

Editor—Have you any letters or other testimonials to show that you are a literary worker by profession?

Applicant—If you will look at my pants, sir, you will find that they bag badly at the knees; and if you will pardon me for turning around, you will see that they are worn very shiny at the rear. Yes, sir, I am a literary man.—Good News.

Satisfied.

Little Man (excitedly)—I'm hunting for a man named Bibbs, who said I was a toadstool.

Big Man (calmly)—I'm Bibbs, but I didn't call you a toadstool. I said you belonged to the mushroom aristocracy.

Little Man (backing off)—That's all right. We're all fond of mushrooms.—Good News.

Explaining the Item.

Client—You have an item in your bill, "Advice, January 8, five dollars." That was a day before I retained you.

Lawyer—I know it. But don't you remember, on the 8th I told you you'd better let me take the case for you?

Client—Yes.

Lawyer—Well, that's advice.—N. Y. Sun.

Valuable Information.

"O, dear," sighed Mrs. Cumson, "I've got paresis and any quantity of dreadful diseases."

"I didn't know you had anything on the kind," replied Cumso.

ESTABLISHED 1856.

By always selling goods as represented, we have enjoyed holding the confidence of the people for 35 years. In 1890 we did the largest business of any year. Our method of doing business has proved satisfactory for all these years; but when we want a new method we will try and take a step forward and not backward. We never fool the public with a delusive advertisement; if it's Java Coffee we advertise, we put a price we can sell Java; we have a ground Coffee (called Java by the makers,) we sell for 25c., but it is only a mixture. We did not advertise to sell Granulated Sugar at 5c on April 1, but we did it, and the people tell us we were the only ones who did it on the 1st.

FOR LITTLE PEOPLE

DO IT.

If you have a task to do, lad, do it.
Do not daily half a day; get through it.
Do not mix your work with play,
Do not loiter by the way,
Go and do it right away—lad, do it.

If a lesson you should learn, then learn it.
If the grindstone you must turn, then turn it
Strike out boldly like a man;
'Tis by far the better plan.
Do the very best you can, lad—do it.

If the garden you must till, then till it.
If the wood-box you should fill, then fill it.
Though the task be not so fine,
Do not fret or mope or whine.
Do your duty, line on line, lad—do it.

Should the woodpile need your strength and muscle,
Get your coat off with a lively hustle.
Every stick that you shall split
Is a tribute to your grit,
And will harm you not a whit; then do it.

Never mind it if your task seems lowly,
Never mind it if your reward comes slowly.
Keep your conscience clean and white,
Keep your courage strong and bright,
And you'll surely win the fight; then do it.

If you're good for anything you'll show it.
Never fear but that the world will know it.
Just pursue your quiet way,
Make the best of every day,
Do your duty while you may, lad—do it.

—M. E. Sanford, in Golden Days.

EDITH'S EASTER OFFERING.

The Sacrifice a Little Girl Made to Give Shoes and Shawl to a Schoolmate.

Little Edith Faxon and her mother were having a talk in the twilight about Easter, and Edith was in her mother's lap with one arm around her mother's neck. Mrs. Faxon had been telling her little daughter the story of the dear old festival, which has been observed so many, many years.

"Almost two thousand," said Edith.

"Did they always give Easter eggs, mamma, just as we do?"

"Not exactly as we do, dear, but they had a custom of helping the sick and poor on Easter Day."

"Wasn't that a nice way to do?" said Edith.

"If I had some money, mamma, I know just what I would do." Edith hesitated.

"Well, my child."

"I'd buy that little Kennard girl that goes to our school a new pair of shoes. Hers are dreadful, mamma, so big and all full of holes, and she cries when some of the girls make fun. And a new shawl, too. O mamma, wouldn't it be nice?"

"Very nice, Edith."

"I'd like to buy Jenny Kennard some shoes, mamma. How pleased she would be!"

"Why don't you, Edith?"

"O mamma, dear! Will you give me the money?"

"I can not do that, dear child," said Mrs. Faxon, "but I think you have money enough of your own."

Edith's face turned very red, and her eyes filled with quick, hot tears.

"I know what you mean, mamma," cried she, "but I can't take that, Uncle Win gave it to me to buy Easter tokens for my party, and I've told all the girls I was going to, and they've said what they wanted. It would look so mean, mamma!"

"Christ taught self-denial, Edith," said Mrs. Faxon. "He denied Himself."

The lights came in at that moment, and Edith took her flushed, troubled face across the room and buried it in the sofa-pillow. She felt so grieved, hurt, almost angry—angry with mamma for thinking she could give up that precious, hoarded five-dollar gold-piece. Oh dear, how hard it seemed!

"I can't," she thought, with a stifled sob. "I don't, like Jenny Kennard. She might wear her old shoes! Oh dear! And I ain't selfish — mamma needn't say I am: I'm going to give every mite of it away. I'll buy a big china egg full of 'fumery for Gussie Peters, and a lovely card all fringed round for Mamie Alden. Of course it's better to make a whole lot happy than 'tis one—just only one. And Uncle Win gave it to me to buy tokens, and I've told the girls, and how dis'pointed they'll be if I don't. On dear! I don't see what folks have to be poor for, and wear horrid things. But I can't, I can't. And her shawl's patched all up, too!"

Poor little sorrowful, wavering heart!

Next day at school it was no better. It did seem as though the toes of Jenny Kennard's shoes gaped worse than ever. The shoes were all soaked with snow-water, too, and left wet prints on the floor when Jenny walked. As for Jenny, her thin little face looked sorrier than usual, which is saying a good deal, and she sat all recess time with her head on her desk instead of going out to play with the rest. She hardly ever did go out, anyway. Edith guessed it was because of those old shoes.

Everything went wrong with Edith that day. Miss Kelly didn't help matters one bit when she read at prayers: "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver." Edith was sure she meant her, and so she couldn't help thinking about it, and she felt cross and didn't pay attention in her classes, and she missed in spelling and lost her place, and, at last got a reprimand, and a reprimand from gentle Miss Kelly was a dreadful thing. Edith couldn't help crying a little about it.

But she felt better when she found herself walking home with Gussie Peters after school. Gussie was Edith's dearest friend, and they stopped with their arms around each other's waists to look in at the shop windows gay with all sorts of beautiful Easter gifts.

"Oh, isn't that egg lovely?" cried Gussie, pointing. "The one in that carved stand, Edith. It's so clear and pink. Isn't it sweet!"

Edith smiled knowingly, thinking of a certain gold-piece in her velvet-purse at home, but before she could speak there was a soft plodding step along the walk. Edith and Gussie turned at the same instant, and there was Jenny Kennard, old wet shoes, patched shawl, timid, wistful little face and all. Oh dear! Edith couldn't speak for a minute. She gulped down a big sob bravely, though it made the tears start, and she smiled at Jenny and drew her arm around Gussie.

"Gussie," said she, "I don't believe I'll have any Easter tokens for my party."

Gussie stared in great surprise. It wasn't a bit like Edith Faxon to back out of anything."

"Why, Edith, what for?"

But Edith wouldn't tell the reason. "It's a secret," she said. "But we'll have a real splendid time without them, Gussie. There's going to be all kinds of ices, real nice."

"Why, yes," said Gussie." "But—you're so funny, Edith!"

Edith went right to her mother in the back parlor the instant she got home. She felt a great deal better now, though there was a little sorry feeling in her heart, too, and her voice trembled in spite of her trying to keep it steady and brave.

"I'd like to do both, mamma," said she, "but, of course, I know I can't. I'm—I'm going to buy some shoes for Jenny Kennard, mamma, and a shawl; and I don't want the girls to know why I don't give the tokens, because they might say something and make her feel bad. O mamma, am I a cheerful giver? I'm trying to be one, mamma, just as hard as I can—truly."

Mrs. Faxon kissed her little daughter very fondly.

"My dear little girl," said she. And neither she nor Edith heard a faint stir somewhere behind the folding doors.

It was certainly a very cheerful little giver who stood with her mamma before the door of a room in a tall shaky tenement when Easter morning had come, bright and clear as all Easter mornings ought to be. She looked happy, too, as she smiled up into her mother's face from the bundle in her hand, and waited for the door to open. Jenny herself opened it, and hung back bashfully when she saw her visitors. But Edith spoke up brightly.

"I've got something for you, Jenny. It's my birthday and Easter Day besides, you know. Open it, Jenny".

And what could Jenny say when she saw the neat, new gingham dress, the short sack and stout shoes? I will tell you what she did—trembling, flushed, happy Jenny!

She put her hands over her face a minute, and then she snatched them away and gazed through her tears at Edith, and then she covered her face again. And she didn't say a word—she couldn't.

"I know I'm a cheerful giver," laughed Edith, going home, "know I am mamma."

I wish I could tell you about the party, but I haven't room, and you must imagine that part of the story.

One thing I think, perhaps, I ought not to tell you, but I do want to, and I will.

To Edith's party, with all the rest, came a box full of the love-liest Easter tokens you could think of, and Edith sent one of them to the tenement-room with a plateful of ices and cakes for Jenny.

It was Uncle Win who made the faint stir behind the folding doors. He told Edith's mamma that what he heard there was worth twenty times five dollars.—Ada Carleton, in Youth's Companion.

Little Nelly's Story.

"Now, children," said little Nelly, lifting her eyes from her book, "I have put on my grandmother-cap, and I will tell you a story of what happened to my mamma one day when I was but a child. It is a true story.

"On that day my mamma in company with some of the other ladies of her parish (for she lived away out in the country) met at the church in the village to sweep it and dust it and put it in order for the winter. They did this every autumn.

"Mamma went with old Prancer and the buggy and took Aunt Carrie with her.

"I suppose that you all know that a 'buggy' is like a carriage without a top; and mamma's buggy was shut in at the back.

"When they came to the church, mamma hitched old Prancer and then she went to the buggy to take out the brooms and pans and rags that they had brought. When she lifted the curtain of the seat, what did she see but a little hen sitting in one corner looking as peaceful as if on her nest at home. That little hen had crept in under the seat to lay an egg, and of course she did not expect to take a ride.

"Mamma fastened her in, to stay while she was at work in the church, and when they got home, Biddy was in one corner and an egg in another!"—Little Men and Women.

A WISH.—
She never gets a scolding,
She's never sent to bed,
She hasn't got a napkin

She plays with me, yet no one
Tells her: "Don't make a noise;"

WHY SHE WISHED SHE WERE BLACK.—"Mamma, I wish I was black like Sambo."

"Why, my dear child, what makes you wish such a thing as that?"

"Oh, 'cause you wouldn't see then when my hands were dirty."

WHAT MYRTLE CALLED THE BABY.—Myrtle was only a baby herself wher the little sister was shown her for the first time. She had never been with a small baby, and knew nothing about them. But this tiny creature's nestling and soft gruntlings reminded her of something she had seen, and she cried out, a pleased recognition flashing in her big brown eyes: "Piggy! Piggy!"

WHAT PAPA SAID.—"What did papa say before breakfast?" asked the minister of little Ned.

Ned looked at him thoughtfully for a moment, and then, with a quick recollection of some funny lessons papa had taught him that morning, drew down his face and drawled out, "Aw-ha! Aw-ha! aw-ha!" in ludicrous imitation of a mule.

CRIED INSIDE.—An elder brother had just left home for a distant state, and the family grieved much over his departure. A visitor, meeting Willie at the door, said: "Well, Willie, did you cry when Brother Bob left?"

"No," he replied, with a sigh, "I cried inside, but the tears didn't come up."—Youth's Companion.

THE DRESS IS FINISHED, SO AM I."

A gorgeous costume flashed beneath the brilliant lights of a ball-room; "a queen of society is radiant to-night."

The nervous hands of a weak woman have toiled day and night, the weary frame and aching head have known no rest—for "the dress must be finished in time."

To that queen of society and her dressmaker we would say a word. One, through hot-house culture, luxury, and excitement, and the other, through the toil of necessity, may some day find their ailments a common cause. The Vegetable Compound will enable both to meet the demands of society. Send stamp for "Guide to Health," a beautiful illustrated book.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Is the only Positive Cure and Legitimate Remedy for the peculiar weaknesses and ailments of women.

It cures the worst forms of Female Complaints, that Bearing-down Feeling, Weak Back, Falling and Displacement of the Womb, Inflammation, Ovarian Troubles, and all Organic Diseases of the Uterus or Womb, and is invaluable to the Change of Life. Dissolves and expels Tumors from the Uterus at an early stage, and checks any tendency to Cancerous Humor. Subdues Faintness, Excitability, Nervous Prostration, Exhaustion, and strengthens and tones the Stomach. Cures Headache, General Debility, Indigestion, etc., and invigorates the whole system. For the cure of Kidney Complaints of either sex, the Compound has no rival.

PRO BONO PUBLICO.

We have not been in business for 35 years, but in the short space of one year we have built up a business and reputation for low prices, fair dealing and highest standard goods that has taken some merchants a lifetime to accomplish. By extensively advertising our unprecedented low prices for best goods in Plainfield and surrounding towns, we have not only benefited purchasers, but merchants in all lines of business—one admitting that he has done a larger business than any one year for 35.

The daily increase in our business is sufficient guarantee that our customers are perfectly satisfied that we give them the best goods at lower prices than any other store in town, and that the public in general are satisfied with our method of doing business, if our competitors are not.

We substantiate all statements made in our advertisements.

OFF FOR CALIFORNIA

President Harrison Starts on His Long Journey.

HIS GOOD-BYE AT THE STATION.

The Cars Marvels of Splendor, Comfort and Luxury.

Mr. Nebeker Secures the United States Treasurership—Secretary Foster Starts for New York—Attorney-General Miller Ill Again—The Supervising Architect of the Treasury Appointed.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—President Harrison left Washington on his Southern and Western trip at ten minutes past midnight.

The other members of the party who will live for the next 30 days in the sumptuously fitted Pullman cars that comprise the Presidential train, are Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Dimmick, Mrs. McKee, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Harrison, Secretary Rusk, who will go as far as El Paso, Tex., Postmaster-General Wanamaker, Marshal Ransdell, Executive Clerk Tibbott, Geo. W. Boyd, of the Pennsylvania, Mrs. Boyd and representatives of the press associations.

Among those who wished the Presidential party a pleasant and safe trip were Private Secretary Halford, Miss Wanamaker and Secretary Proctor. As the train drew out of the station the President stood on the rear platform of the last car and removing his hat bowed a good-bye to those waiting to see him off.

Description of the Train.

The Presidential train consists of five elegantly appointed cars. They are painted plum color and ornamented with gold. One car is inscribed "The Presidential Train." Next to the locomotive was the car "Atazalan," the library and smoker, with a large compartment for the storage of baggage at the end. The library and smoker is upholstered in seal brown plush. Behind the "Atazalan" was the dining-car "Cormado" which, besides a dining-room, contains a tonsorial department. The wood-work of the dining room is painted white and upholstered in red plush. Next was the sleeper, "New Zealand," upholstered in steel frieze plush, which was followed by the drawing-room car "Ideal," containing one large apartment, exquisitely upholstered in white hair and the woodwork painted white. At the rear end of the train was the observation car "Vacuma," containing six small drawing-rooms, each upholstered in silk plush of a different color, and the wood-work of none painted alike, and an observation room, the large windows of the latter filled with fine French plate glass.

Each car has the latest appliances for safety and comfort.

HUSTON'S SUCCESSOR.

The President Appoints Mr. Nebeker United States Treasurer.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—The President last evening appointed Enos H. Nebeker, of Indiana, Treasurer of the United States to succeed J. N. Huston, of Indiana, whose resignation will take effect upon the qualification of his successor.

It will be about 10 days before Mr. Nebeker qualifies. He will have to give a bond of $150,000 upon taking the oath of office, and again, when he is confirmed by the Senate, he will have to give a new bond for a like amount.

When he assumes charge of the office all the money in the United States Treasury will be counted.

Supervising Architect of the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Secretary Foster appointed Mr. W. J. Edbrooke of Chicago supervising architect of the Treasury. Mr. Edbrooke is a prominent architect of Chicago, and was formerly commissioner of public buildings of that city.

Secretary Foster's New York Trip.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Secretary Foster will leave here this afternoon for New York to remain a week. While there Secretary Foster will dispose of the complications in the New York Custom House and Appraiser's Office.

A European Tour for Mr. Quay.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Senator Quay is meditating a European trip. He will decide the matter within the next few weeks, and, should he go, will remain abroad several months.

Attorney-General Miller Ill Again.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Attorney-General Miller is again confined to his residence by illness.

A Noted Abolitionist Dead.

BOSTON, April 14.—Hiram W. Blanchard, the abolitionist, and who was intimately associated with Garrison, Phillips and the other leaders of the anti-slavery movement, died at his home in Neponset during the morning, aged 80 years. Up to a few days of his death he was in active business as a builder and insurance agent.

COUNT LEWENHAUPT'S DEATH.

He Dies at Wilmington After a Short Illness of Typhoid Pneumonia.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 14.—The physicians agree that overwork caused the death of Count Lewenaupt, who died yesterday of typhoid pneumonia. He had been sick but two days.

The marriage of Count Lewenhaupt to Miss Ellen, daughter of ex-Secretary of State Thomas F. Bayard, took place on April 2 at Delamore Place, the residence of the Bayard family. The ceremony was performed by Bishop Leighton Coleman of the diocese of Delaware. The wedding was a quiet affair.

Count Lewenhaupt came here in 1889 and went into the drawing department of the Harlan & Hollingsworth Company's works. His ability was of a high order. After completing several years here he intended to return to Sweden and settle down.

He was in his 31st year and a cousin to Count Carl Lewenhaupt, who was Swedish Minister to this country during Cleveland's administration. It was by a letter of introduction from him that Lewenhaupt met the Bayards first

While ex-Secretary Bayard was driving into the city after hearing of the Count's death, he fainted and was cared for by pedestrians.

The body of the Count will probably not be sent to Sweden, as the young wife opposes the idea.

THE END OF THE WORLD.

Professor Totten's Mathematical Calculation on the Subject.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 14.—Prof. C. A. L. Totten of Yale, in speaking of the publication of his recent mathematical calculation, says:

"Some papers have published that I predict the end of the world within this century. They mistake. That is their error, not mine. I do not think the end will come for a million years, and I have not made any prophecy about it at all.

"What I declare was that a mathematical calculation founded on biblical truths proved, beyond peradventure, that the Messiah will come again before 1900. I don't mean by this that I believe the millenium will begin in 1899. I think that is a thousand years away. I simply say, that at His second coming Christ will make the world better, as He did at His first."

TWO BIG FAILURES.

The Result of Over Endorsements and Heavy Speculation.

LANCASTER, Pa., April 14.—Thomas Baumgardner, who was a member of the firm of Baumgardner, Eberman & Co., which failed Saturday, has assigned, with liabilities of $750,000. His assets are small.

Baumgardner was once supposed to be the richest resident of Lancaster. His failure, like that of his firm, is the result of over-endorsements and heavy speculation.

An assignment was also made by Henry L. Stehman, an extensive farmer and tobacco grower whose liabilities are stated at $100,000 and assets at a similar amount.

A Bold Burglar Escapes.

NYACK, N. Y., April 14.—A daring robbery was committed in Haverstraw during the night. The thief entered the jewelry store of Edward P. Vanderburg through the front door and in doing so started the burglar alarm. He rushed in and carried off a large number of silver watches. The proprietor appeared on the scene just as the burglar was making a hasty exit, but not one of the three shots fired at the retreating robber touched him. The night watchman across the street also fired twice at the man, but he was not hurt and made his escape.

The Democratic Move in Connecticut.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 14.—Quo warranto proceedings will be begun this afternoon before Judge Prentice in the Superior Court, one by Judge Morris against Gov. Bulkeley, in which the former will demand why he should be longer kept out of the Gubernatorial chair, and the other will be brought by Dr. Alsop, the Democratic Lieutenant-Governor, against Gen. Merwin, whom the Republicans claim is the lawful Lieutenant-Governor. Great interest is taken in the proposed move.

Hit 150 Dogs.

HAVERHILL, Mass., April 14.—A hound belonging in Kingston, N. H., ran mad through Groveland and Haverhill and was finally killed here. He hit 25 dogs in Groveland and no less than 150 in this city, most of which will be killed.

A Jersey Central Dividend.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The directors of the Jersey Central Railroad Company have declared the regular quarterly dividend of one and one-half per cent. payable May 1. Books close April 18.

New Republican Daily in Boston.

BOSTON, April 14.—It is stated that a new Republican morning paper will shortly be started in this city with Mr. Wardner, formerly of the Traveller, as its managing editor.

SHOT BY BURGLARS

Husband and Wife Found Weltering in Blood.

BRUTALLY ATTACKED IN BED.

The Woman Dies Shortly After Being Rescued by Neighbors.

The Greatest Excitement Prevails and Everybody in the Vicinity is Looking for the Murderers—They Will be Lynched if Caught—The Object of the Attack by the Burglars Was Money.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 14.—The little village of Colora, in Cecil County, Md., near the State line, was the scene of a terrible crime, which has resulted in the death of one victim and may cause the death of another. The victims are Granville S. Richards and his wife. Richards is a well-to-do farmer and has resided here all his life. The neighborhood is thickly populated.

Mrs. Richards was awakened about midnight by a noise in the house. She raised herself in bed and saw two men in the bedroom. She became badly frightened and screamed. Her screams awakened her husband, but before he could get out of bed the intruders opened fire upon him with revolvers.

Mrs. Richards was first hit, the bullet passing through her neck. Mr. Richards was struck by at least three bullets. His injuries did not prevent him from giving an alarm, and the intruders, fearing interruption, ran out of the house and made their escape.

The object of the burglars was money, as Richards was reputed to always have large sums about him.

Mrs. Richards Dies.

When the neighbors came to the rescue they found the victims weltering in blood. Mr. Richards was so badly injured that she died at 7 a. m. Richards is still alive, but there are only slight hopes of his recovery. He says the burglars are white men.

Intense excitement prevails and everybody is doing their best to catch the murderers.

Richards was a member of the Maryland Legislature at one time, and later was connected with the Baltimore Custom House.

If the murderers are caught they will be lynched.

POISONED FOR FUN.

Mary Metzdorf Charged With Causing the Death of Her Brother.

BALTIMORE, April 14.—Mary Metzdorf is on trial for the second time, charged with poisoning her brother and a boarder in her father's family. The court room was crowded. On her first trial she put a quick end to the trial by pleading guilty. "Oh, I am guilty; I am guilty," she exclaimed, hysterically. Not since the celebrated trial of Mrs. Wharton for poisoning Gen. Ketchum has a case been more attentively watched than this. The prisoner is a little over 17 years of age.

After the reading of the indictment she pleaded not guilty, in accordance with the instructions of her counsel, and was taken to the prisoner's chair. A jury was soon secured.

Mary was employed in a wholesale drug house, and lived with her father and stepmother. For some reason she took a dislike to her stepmother, and, obtaining a lump of arsenic from the place where she was employed, mixed it with the food of the family. This act caused the death of her little brother James Metzdorf and Miss Louisa Broadwaters, who boarded in the house. Her stepmother, Mrs. Kate Metzdorf, narrowly escaped the same fate. The crime was committed at the family's home on Aug. 8, 1890. Mary was arrested and admitted the poisoning, saying that she only did it for fun.

CLEVELAND SPEAKS.

He Advocates Harmony at the Democratic Club Dinner.

NEW YORK, April 14.—There was a large gathering of prominent Democrats at the banquet given last night in celebration of the anniversary of Thomas Jefferson's birthday.

Ex-President Cleveland was the principal speaker, saying among other things: "It seems to me this is peculiarly a time when the Democratic party should be mindful of its relations to the country, of its responsibilities as the guardian of sacred principles, and of its duty to a confiding public. We cannot accomplish what we promise to the people if we allow ourselves to be diverted from the perils which are still in our way. We tempt humiliating failure and disgrace when we encourage or tolerate those who, claiming fellowship with us, needlessly and often from the worst of motives, seek to stir up strife and sow discord in the counsels of our party."

Governor Abbett and ex-Governor Bedle also spoke.

Massachusetts Democrats Celebrate.

BOSTON, April 14.—Over 200 Democrats attended the Jefferson dinner at the American House last night by the Young Mens' Democratic Club of Massachusetts. Among the prominent men present were Congressmen McMillan, of Tennessee, and O'Neill, Gov. Russell, Mayor Matthews, and others. Congressman McMillan spoke on the McKinley bill and Speaker Reed's rulings in the last Congress. Congressman O'Neill and Gov. Russell also made short speeches.

An Early Morning Fire in Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, April 14.—At 1 a. m. fire destroyed Ralliver's machine shop and the Granite Roofing Company's Works in 33d street. Loss $55,000.

Baseball Games.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The result of the Association games yesterday was as follows: Athletic 4, Baltimore 8; Boston 6, Washington 0; St. Louis 13, Cincinnati 6.

SLOWLY BURNED TO DEATH.

Fatal Accident on the Delaware & Hudson Railroad.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 14.—A fatal wreck occurred on the Delaware & Hudson Railroad between Worcester and Cobleskill during the day. A fast freight, running at the rate of 35 miles an hour, collided with a gravel train, wrecking the engine of the freight and several box cars. Attached to the gravel train was a car containing five Italians. When the collision occurred the car was thrown forward into the centre of the wreck and the mass took fire. Two of the Italians were killed outright and the other three were injured.

As the flames approached the car the cries and groans of the imprisoned workmen were heartrending. Owing to the position of the car and the intense heat, the rescuers were unable to reach them and were obliged to watch them slowly burn to death before their eyes. The names of the Italians are unknown, but it is understood that they are all men of families.

KNOCKED DOWN THE PRIEST.

A Paterson Saloon Keeper Brutally Attacks Dean McNulty.

PATERSON, N. J., April 14.—Dean McNulty, a Catholic priest of St. John's Church, this city, last night entered the side door of Christopher Groetsch's saloon on Market street to ascertain if he was selling without a license. The priest was promptly attacked by Groetsch and knocked down. His eyes were blackened and his mouth was cut. He was thrown out of the saloon bleeding and covered with sawdust.

The priest went before Justice Senior and swore out a warrant for the arrest of Groetsch, who was arrested, and when arraigned before the justice denied the charge. He alleged that the priest was assaulted by some one else in the saloon. Groetsch was held for trial.

GEN. SPINOLA DEAD.

The Veteran Legislator Passed Away in Washington This Morning.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Gen. F. B. Spinola, member of the House of Representatives for the Tenth District of New York, died at 25 minutes past 1 o'clock this morning.

He had been very ill at the Arlington Hotel in this city since the adjournment of Congress, and at no time was it believed he could recover. His condition was reported to be somewhat improved on Sunday, but he suffered a relapse, from which he died this morning.

No arrangements have been made for the funeral, and none will be until his friends in New York have been consulted.

End of the Burlington Strike.

LINCOLN, Neb., April 14.—Grand Master Newman of the Trainmen's Brotherhood has ordered all of the striking Burlington brakemen to go to work and declares the statement of the Sweeney Switchmen's Brotherhood, in asserting that the Trainmen's Brotherhood would uphold the strike of the switchmen, was unwarranted. This practically ends the strike, as the yardmen can do nothing without the trainmen's assistance. Sweeney refuses to talk.

His Property Attached for $100,000.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 14.—The property of George B. Chapman, the late president of the Shepaug, Litchfield & Northern Railroad, who resides in Fairfield, has been attached to the amount of $80,000. This is to secure an old judgment of $50,000 and interest in favor of the Housatonic Railroad. The attachments thus far levied on Mr. Chapman in the interests of the Housatonic Railroad amount to $100,000.

Telegram from Gen. Alger.

TRENTON, N. J., April 14.—Gen. John Lovett, past junior vice-commander of the National Encampment of the Grand Army, has received a dispatch from Gen. Russell A. Alger, past national commander. It says: "Reports are exaggerated. Have been quite ill, but fever has gone. Doctor thinks I will be out in a week."

He Eloped With Ethel Watson.

BOSTON, Mass., April 14.—It transpires that the young girl who eloped with Thomas Furness, who was arraigned in the Tombs police court, New York, on a charge of blackmail, was Ethel Watson, colored, daughter of a restaurant keeper of Lynn, Mass., with whom Furness boarded, and not Carmen Martella, as stated.

Copyright League Banquet.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The prominent authors and publishers of this country celebrated the passage of the international Copyright bill at a dinner given last night under the auspices of the American Copyright League. The chief guests were the Congressmen who were influential in the passage of the measure.

Railroad Directors Forced to Plead.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The indicted officials of the New York & New Haven Railroad did not appear in court to plead. Their lawyers stated that they had not made up their minds as to what the plea should be. Judge Martine ordered that a plea of not guilty should be entered against the accused.

Five Persons Drowned.

ST. LOUIS, April 14.—Shortly before noon five boys and men, of a party of 12, crossing the Mississippi river in a skiff from the foot of Spruce street to Pittsburg dyke were drowned in the eddy, which was very strong at the latter place.

The Election in New Britain.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., April 14.—The Republicans were successful in gaining control of the city government at the local election here.

Woollen Mill Burned.

READING, Pa., April 14.—Fire destroyed the Brooke Woollen Mill at Pomeroy, near Coatesville, causing a loss of $30,000.

ITALY'S WAR FEVER

Will Minister Porter be Given His Passports To-Day?

ANOTHER RUMOR FROM ROME.

Senator Saracco Says that War Would Mean Bankruptcy for Italy.

Secretary Blaine Not Ready to Reply to Rudini's Note—The Bulgarian Army Receives Orders to be Ready for Active Service—Prepared to Invade Servia if Russia Becomes Aggressive.

ROME, April 14.—The trouble with America is still the absorbing topic, and the usual war talk is being indulged in by the small-fry politicians.

Great interest has been aroused in to-day's movements of Premier Rudini, as it is reported as the day that Minister Porter will be requested to leave Italy.

Senator Saracco, an expert in Italian finances, whose utterances always command much attention, writes to the Gazette del Popolo declaring his opinion that the government's scheme for the abolition of the deficit is an illusionary one. He alleges that Signor Nicotera, Minister of the Interior, has made insincere statements of the public finances, and that the extent of the deficit which must be faced has been terribly underrated.

The article has had a dampening effect upon the spirits of the small but noisy party who have advocated war with America, as the state of the finances, even according to the most favorable interpretation placed upon the figures by the government, seem to imply total bankruptcy as a necessary result of such a war.

Still Fanning the Embers.

PARIS, April 14.—The Rome correspondent of the Journal des Debats telegraphs that he is able to confirm the recently published report that unless the Italian government receives a speedy and satisfactory reply to it its last communication on the subject of the New Orleans lynching, the American Minister will be handed his passports.

BLAINE HAS NOT REPLIED.

He Will Send Italy an Answer When He Hears from New Orleans.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—It can be stated officially that Secretary Blaine has not yet replied to Premier Rudini's last note, either by letter or by cablegram.

It is understood that Secretary Blaine is awaiting the result of the investigation now in progress by the United States District Attorney at New Orleans before he will frame his reply. This report has not yet been received at the Department of Justice.

BULGARIA READY TO FIGHT.

A Large Force on the Servian Frontier Awaiting Russia's Attack.

LONDON, April 14.—A dispatch from Sofia says that M. Stambuloff has ordered the Bulgarian army to be in readiness for active service. A large force is on the Servian frontier watching what M. Stambuloff calls the ragamuffin bands who are camped on the Servian side armed with Russian rifles, and waiting for a chance to dash into Bulgaria. It is reported that the Bulgarians are prepared to invade Servia on the slightest sign of aggressive action by Russia, as Prince Ferdinand's government is deeply aggrieved by the hospitality shown in Servia to conspirators against Bulgaria.

It is known beyond a doubt that the plot to assassinate Stambuloff was hatched in Russia, and that a Russian force would have promptly invaded Bulgaria had not the plot miscarried.

Ten Lunatics Cremated.

BERLIN, April 14.—News of a terrible disaster comes from the town of Serau, in Brandenburg, Prussia. A lunatic asylum at that place was found to be on fire, and the flames spread so rapidly that it was almost impossible to save the lunatics. A group of them stood gibbering in glee at the flames and refused to leave the hall when the rescuers attempted to pull them away. At length when the flames began to lick them they got frightened and darted about. The whole structure was consumed, and upon looking over the list of the saved, it was found that ten had been burned to death.

It Was a Horrible Massacre.

LONDON, April 14.—A thrill of horror has been sent through England by the latest advices from India concerning the massacre at Manipur. Commissioner Quinton was decapitated and his body horribly hacked, the limbs being afterward thrown outside the city walls, where they were devoured by dogs.

Cossacks Sent to the Austrian Frontier.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 14.—A very large force of Kieff Cossacks and two regiments from Bessarabia have been despatched to the Austrian frontier.

A West Point Soldier Drops Dead.

WEST POINT, N. Y., April 14.—A soldier of the quartermaster's department dropped dead during the morning. His name was Ruckstuhl. He had been in West Point a number of years, and in a few months would have been retired under the 30 years' act.

Favor Admitting Women.

WASHINGTON, N. J., April 14.—At the business session of the Methodist Conference, it was announced that the vote taken in all the churches on the question of admitting women delegates to the General Conference, was 773 in favor of the measure and 713 against it.

Six Hundred Hands Made Idle.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 14.—About 600 hands are made idle by the shutting down of the United States Cotton Mill of Central Falls. The mill, it is said, has closed indefinitely.

AFRAID OF THE SOLDIERS.

Gen. Wiley Says There May be Trouble Yet in the Coke Region.

PITTSBURG, April 14.—Brigadier-General Wiley is by no means confident that all trouble in the coke region is at an end. Bloodshed and violence he is quite sure will result if the troops are withdrawn. Therefore he thinks the soldiers may expect a long siege in the mountains.

Gen. Wiley in an interview said; "Everything is quiet at present in the coke region, but that indication is due wholly to the presence of the troops. The strikers are cowed by the uniforms and arms of the soldiers and will offer no violence as long as they remain. The presence of the troops is essential to peace. The Governor is anxious to maintain this order, and, as he is kept advised of the situation, I am sure he will not endanger life and property by recalling the troops, for as soon as they are withdrawn there will be an outbreak.

"There are several thousand men in the coke regions who are anxious to go to work, but who fear to do so. They are not afraid of personal violence while under protection of the guard, but fear that their homes would not be safe. Therefore, they remain idle, though hunger and want cause great suffering among them.

"Besides these men who are anxious to work, there are thousands of others who would be compelled to work, despite everything, if they were not under the especial protection of the strikers. As long as they are fed and cared for they do not care about toiling. But how long can the strikers continue their work of supporting these men is a question. As soon as they fail, they will find the men drifting back to work in such numbers that the strike will seem to be broken at least. That is the time I dread. It will occasion strife that will result in the loss of life and great destruction of property, I think. I truly hope that the day is far off when such will occur, but to my mind it surely will come unless the labor trouble is amicably settled."

Attacked by Strikers.

FINDLAY, O., April 14.—About 6 a. m. the strikers at the Bell Pottery attacked the new men who had been hired to take their places, and a general riot ensued. A number were injured with sticks and stones.

Fatal Explosion on a Steamer.

HAVANA, April 14.—By an explosion of one of the tanks on board the British steam Circassia Prince, Capt. Geddis, from Philadelphia, at this port, the first engineer and watchman were killed.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Barry Sullivan, the famous English tragedian, is dying.

Millville, N. J., children are in the whirl of an epidemic of measles.

Col. Fred Grant, United States Minister to Austria, is now visiting Rome. He was received by King Humbert.

Thomas Carroll, a morocco manufacturer at Peabody, Mass., has made a voluntary assignment. Liabilities estimated at $30,000.

The rumor in Bridgeport, Conn., that an attempt had been made to steal the body of the late P. T. Barnum is pronounced untrue.

The three Navassa rioters under sentence of death at Baltimore have been granted a respite to June 12 by President Harrison.

A case of smallpox has been discovered at Forest, N. Y., a small hamlet five miles south of Altona, Clinton County. The house is guarded.

Samuel Fisher, the New York city pool seller, who was convicted last week, has been sentenced to three months in the county jail and to pay a fine of $1,000.

Joseph Barondess, the leader of the New York Cloakmakers Union, who is under indictment for extortion was arraigned in Court and pleaded not guilty.

James Andrews, an Akron, Ohio, man has started from that city for Denver, Col., on foot, which he has agreed to reach within thirty-eight days or forfeit $500.

The dead body of Thomas Donnelly was found in the rear of a grocery store at White Plains, N. Y., during the morning. He had been struck on the head with a blunt weapon.

Beveridge Elected Mayor.

PATERSON, N. J., April 14.—The election here resulted in the choice of Beveridge, Republican, for mayor by 493 majority over Barnhart, Democrat. The Board of Aldermen stands: 11 Republicans to 5 Democrats.

THE DAILY PRESS.

W. L. & A. L. FORCE, Publishers and Proprietors.

J. A. DEMAREST, Managing Editor.

BY THE WAY.

—Winfield Scott Post, G. A. R., has its regular quster this evening.

—An experienced man is wanted to trim and train some vines. Call at this office.

—A sale of second-hand school furniture in good condition is advertised in another column.

—The Jersey Central Railroad has declared its regular dividend of 1½ per cent. payable May 1.

—A praise and promise meeting will be held at the Monroe Avenue chapel Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

—You would better get a few pairs of those fast-black hose that Peck is selling. Three pair for one dollar—worth more money.

—At two p. m., to-morrow, at 94 Somerset street, there will be a sale at auction of three horses, two delivery wagons, harness, etc.

—There is $20,000 insurance on the furniture alone, in the house of Mr. Wills, on LaGrande avenue, that the firemen saved yesterday.

—The Edwards Guards will meet for a drill Thursday evening of this week instead of Wednesday, to prepare for the exhibition drill of Friday evening.

—Gospel meetings are being held every night in Manning's Hall, next to the Methodist church. Evangelist George Watts will conduct the meeting to-night. All are welcome.

—A shooting tournament, under the management of the famous old Jersey sportsman Jacob Pentz, will take place on the grounds of the Fanwood Gun Club, at Fanwood, Saturday.

—The Melopoia executive committee desires to impress upon the active members of the Society, the necessity of attending each of the remaining rehearsals—this evening and Saturday evening—preparatory to the musicale to be given Tuesday evening of next week.

—After the first of May, the special tax will be taken off tobacco, and anybody who wishes can sell tobacco without paying any license. A retail dealer says that this is no benefit to the dealer, but rather a detriment, as every one can then sell it and thus still further cut up the trade.—Flemington Democrat.

—A meeting of the ladies interested in the Monroe Avenue chapel will be held at three o'clock Thursday afternoon at the chapel for the purpose of organizing a ladies' aid society to extend useful Christian work. All ladies in the vicinity desiring to connect themselves with this cause will be heartily and cordially welcome.

—The rule recently adopted by the associated railroads of New Jersey, including the Jersey Central, by which all freight cars must be unloaded within two days after their arrival at their destination, is working very advantageously for the railroad companies, but is strongly objected to by some shippers, who say that the two days limit does not give enough time in which to unload large shipments, especially if they consist of heavy goods. The new rule will never become popular with heavy shippers.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The opening piece sung by the Crescent Avenue church choir, Sunday morning, was a composition of Dorsey W. Hyde's.

The meeting for organization of the Daughters of the American Revolution, is to be held at Morristown to-morrow, as already announced in THE PRESS. Mrs. Darling and Charlotte Louise Lawrence request that the Plainfield women meet them at Morristown at 1:30 p. m., upon the arrival of the train from New York. Thence they can proceed together to the residence of Paul Revere, Esq., or the hotels

A Protest from the Pastors.

The Rev. C. B. Mitchell of this city joined with the other pastors at the Newark M. E. Conference, yesterday, and appointed a committee to wait on Governor Abbett and urge him to veto Senate Bill No. 88, which permits the trial of some classes of offenses by the Sessions instead of the Oyer and Terminer Court. The Conference has a suspicion that the bill is intended to shield the face-track gamblers. The Rev. Messrs. Craig, Bowett and Halleron were appointed to act. This telegram was also sent to Gov. Abbett:

The Newark Conference is greatly alarmed over Senate bill No. 88, said to be in the interest of race tracks, and earnestly asks you to withhold your approval.

Up Goes the Stand-Pipe.

Work is still progressing at the pumping station of the Plainfield Water Supply Company at Netherwood. The big iron stand-pipe has now reached a height of 100 feet, 20 of the 5-foot rings having been riveted together. The total number of rings is to be 28, making a height of 140 feet.

Welcome Friends.

By a rare accident I was made acquainted with Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills, and have used them for two years. They act gently and like a charm, correcting the secretion and preventing other diseases. I subscribe myself your friend, as your pills are welcome friends to me.

THREE BOLD STOVERS.

They Give an Exhibition of Their Family Pride, Courage and Refinement by Attacking One Man Like Rowdies.

Rowland M. Stover of East Ninth street, accompanied by two brave sons, came into the office of THE PRESS last evening, and demanded to know who wrote the PRESS' account of Saturday evening's disgraceful prize fight. The account mentioned a "Stover" being present, and the elder of the two sons said, "that was me."

The one they addressed had been out of town up to the time the paper was printed, and had not even read the article the three "proud gentlemen" were talking of. So he could not say who wrote it. But the "brave Stovers" had another object in view.

While the young men engaged the newspaper man in conversation about "the disgrace to their families," etc, the old one worked around to one side where he was not noticed, and struck the newspaper man. He knew, and his sons knew, that their father's age and tottering frame would protect him from any retaliation. So he played the part of head rowdy, and the sons kept behind his skirts.

The reader will observe they came in three to one, and made the attack without provocation. There was no denial that a Stover was at the prize fight, for he said so, and his brother and father said it was a disgrace. All of which was no more the fault of THE PRESS than their disgraceful actions of last evening.

A warrant was issued to-day for the arrest of the old man. Warrants for the younger ones will probably follow.

All of this is, of course, of no particular interest to the general public. It is only published as an illustration of how a refined and brave family vindicates itself in a high-bred manner.

MEDALS FOR LOCAL WHEELMEN.

Captain Martin Makes a Generous Offer to the Bicycle Club.

At a regular monthly meeting of the Plainfield Bicycle Club, last evening, another call of the club's bonds was made. The club is fast wiping out its indebtedness.

Captain Frank L. C. Martin made the following appointments for his assistants:

First Lieutenant—J. E. Erickson.
Second Lieutenant—Geo. Mahon.
Color Bearer—L. B. Waring.

Capt. Martin urged on the members to turn out on all runs that will be called this year. It is proposed to make this a year long to be remembered by the club boys. He also urged the members to join in the "Great Century Run" from Newark to Philadelphia, to be held June 13. He made the generous offer to present every member of the club that rides the entire distance a handsome souvenir medal of the run. He also offered a handsome gold medal for the member riding the greatest number of miles from May 1 to the next annual meeting of the club in March, 1892.

John Chinaman on the War-path.

From the way that one of the Chinamen who keep the North avenue laundry rushed through the street and shouted strange exclamations in his own peculiar tongue, at six o'clock last evening, the people who rushed out of the stores to see what was the matter might have been excused for thinking that the wild-eyed celestial was running amuck and looking for gore. The cause of the excitement was that some customer had taken his clothes out of the laundry without paying the bill, and John Chinaman was chasing him to get the cash. The laundryman ran up North and Park avenues, and some distance up West Front street, but was unable to catch the elusive Mellcan man.

Hook and Ladder Company Nominations.

At a regular meeting of Zephyr Hook and Ladder Co. No. 1, held last evening, the following officers were nominated to serve for the ensuing year:

Foreman—E. J. Vroom, F. A. Glaentzer.
First Assistant—L. C. Beekman.
Second Assistant—George Ball, Jas. Loughlin.
Recording Secretary—Jos. C. Blimm.
Financial Secretary—C. F. Glaentzer, S. L. Miller.
Treasurer—Jacob Blimm.
Investigating Committee—Wm. H. Blimm, Geo. Sayer, F. B. Fine.
Auditing Committee—F. B. Fine, H. C. Bush.
Representatives to Relief Association—Jacob Blimm, F. A. Glaentzer.

Will Prosecute the Fighters and Their Friends.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—The unfortunate occurrence which took place in our club rooms last Saturday evening was beyond our control. We will use every effort in bringing the lawbreakers to justice. An expelled member of our organization, with members of another club of this city, broke open and entered our rooms and participated in a glove fight. Every individual in that gathering will be prosecuted.

D. J. CARNEY,
President Bachelors' Club.

A Pleasant Evening Promised.

A pleasant evening is assured to the the members and friends of the Young People's League at the First Baptist church lecture room this evening. A. G. Waring, of Brooklyn, N. Y., will be there to interest all with his sleight-of-hand performances. The Crescent quartette will sing some of their pleasing songs, and others are expected to participate. The league extends a warm welcome to all friends.

AN UNGRATEFUL GREENHORN.

Trying to Make Trouble for the Woman Who Gave Him a Kind Home.

Emil Kohler grinned all over his blonde German face when Mrs. Frank Linke told Judge Codington this morning what he had been doing at her husband's place on West Front street yesterday. Mrs. Linke said that Kohler was intoxicated and had been causing a disturbance by abusing herself and the boy in charge of the sales room. Kohler seemed highly amused at the statement that he had been drunk and pushed Mrs. Linke about the room because she had ordered him out, and to judge from the expanse of his grin when she told how she had feared that he would shoot her with the revolver that he always carried his risibilities must have been tickled to a most prodigious extent.

Mrs. Linke went on to say that Kohler actually did put his hand in his pocket, but what he drew out was a flask of whisky instead of a gun. When Mrs. Linke found that he had n't his pistol with him, she took courage and slapped his face and put him out, but meanwhile he had been very abusive and disorderly.

Kohler sobered his features from their spell of sickly grinning long enough to insist that Mrs. Linke had a grudge against him because he possessed evidence that she sold liquor by retail and on Sunday. He said that the flask of whisky he had pulled out of his pocket was one he had purchased from the boy just before she came in. He wanted to know if he could n't have her arrested for illegal selling.

Mrs. Linke and the boy denied the alleged illegal sale, and the court ruled that that had nothing to do with the case anyway. Mrs. Linke said Emil was very ungrateful. She had taken the young man in when he was a greenhorn, had given him a good position and a home and had even taken him back and secured his clothing from the pawnshop when, after an absence of several months, he had pleaded to have his old position restored to him. Several times, she said, she had shielded him from disgrace, and now, because she had had to discharge him Sunday, he was trying to make trouble in revenge.

When Kohler was fined $10 he grinned again, and wanted to know why Mrs. Linke should n't be arrested too.

PETER GRANVERS GOES TO JAIL.

He Says It Would Be an Awful Better Benefit if They'd Send Him to His Grandmamma.

Peter Granvers wore a face decorated with numerous bloody scratches, and a pair of trousers that closely resembled bifurcated skirts, into City Judge Codington's court room this morning. He explained the scratches by stating that two or three nights ago he had a row with his uncle, at his grandmamma's house in Elizabeth. As a result of the fight he and his brother left the sheltering grandmamma's roof and stole a ride on a coal train to Plainfield.

During their journey the Granvers brothers developed a scheme for enriching their wardrobe with old clothes which could be converted through the medium of pawnbroker into ready cash, and to put the plan into practice they retired to a vacant lot, and Peter helped the other fellow strip off most of his garments. Peter then held the bundle of clothes while the brother, airily clad in a pair of perforated trousers, a gauze undershirt, and a necktie, went about begging for rubber boots and blankets to shelter his shivering body from the icy blast.

Policeman McCue was not long in learning of the dodge, and swooped down on Peter like an avalanche. Peter still clung to his brother's clothes and ran into Green brook, but the policeman did n't mind getting his feet wet too, and soon made the fugitive a prisoner. The brother made good his escape, but Peter, still carrying his brother's clothes, was taken to the station house.

This morning, while waiting to be sentenced, Peter whiled away the time filling Sergeant Lynch's cuspidore with tobacco juice. When he was informed by Judge Codington that he must go to the county jail at Elizabeth for thirty days, for being a tramp and a fraud, he pleaded:

"Oh, friends, you make a mistake. You'll do an awful good benefit to me, friends, if you'll only send me to my grandmamma, instead of to jail."

Judge Codington said "You can write to your grandmother telling her where you are, and she can come to see you."

"Oh thank you, friends"—said Peter.

Miss Alger at Vincent Chapel.

To-morrow night, in Vincent chapel, will be held the anniversary of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church. Mrs. Alger of Massachusetts, a very gifted lady, will deliver the address. A fine double quartette will furnish the music. The entire service will be in charge of the ladies, and promises to be a very interesting event. The public, and especially all those interested in Christian work among the needy of our own land, are invited to be be present to-morrow night.

The Edwards Guards Will Drill.

At the annual meeting of the Boys' Club Association, which is to be held Friday evening, the Mayor, the Rev. Mr. Richards, Editor A. M. Powell, and the Rev. E. M. Rodman will address the meeting. The boys of the Edwards Guards will give an exhibition drill. Miss Holmes and A. Venino will furnish the music for the occasion. All the members of the club and their friends are invited.

"Sassed" a Policeman $5 Worth.

Because, according to Captain Grant's story, Theodore Wilson "sassed" the officer when a policeman ordered him to move on, at the corner of Front and Somerset streets last night, he was locked up in the police station over night and was a prisoner before Judge Codington this morning. He did n't think that he had violated any law, but had no fault to find when the court let him off with a fine of two dollars.

To Prepare the Pay Levy Friday.

The Plainfield Common Council were to have disposed of the matter of making appropriations for the coming year last night, but all the amounts had not been decided on in committee, and after considerable preliminary discussion the Council was called to order at 9 o'clock and adjourned until Friday night.

I HAVE been a great sufferer from dry catarrh for many years, and tried many remedies, but none did so much benefit as Ely's Cream Balm. It completely cured me. M. J. Lally, 29 Woodward Ave., Boston Highlands, Mass.

AFTER using Ely's Cream Balm two months I was surprised to find that the right nostril, which was closed for over twenty years, was open and free as the other, and can use it now as I could not do for many years. I feel very thankful.—R. H. Cressingham, 218 18th Street, Brooklyn.

A HINT TO PLAINFIELD.

Some Valuable Cautionary Suggestions Here for This City.

Strenuous and very commendable efforts are being made by the Pennsylvania State Board of Health to prevent the spread of infectious and contagious diseases. Funeral directors and ministers of the Gospel have been enlisted in the work, and doubtless much good will result. Their assistance has been asked for and obtained through two addresses, which, in pamphlet form, have been scattered broadcast throughout the State. One is by Rev. S. Bridenbaugh, of Norristown, Pa., on "The danger arising from public funerals of those who have died from contagious and infectious diseases," read before the State Sanitary Convention at Norristown, May 10, 1890. The other is addressed to undertakers, and is by Josiah S. Pearce, on "Precautions to be Adopted by Funeral Directors to Prevent the Spread of Contagious and Infectious diseases," having been read in June, 1888, before the Funeral Directors' Association of Pennsylvania, of which he is the President. The views contained in both papers are sound, and could advantageously be spread all over the country.

A grave responsibility rests on the man who prepares for interment the remains of one who died of infectious or contagious disease. The corpse and furniture of the room are centres of infection, and it remains for the funeral director to decide whether the infection shall be stamped out then and there, or whether it shall start out afresh and invade other homes. With proper knowledge, energy and firmness, he can obtain the former result. Such a desirable end, however, can only be uniformly reached by a State system of registration and examination of funeral directors, with stringent laws to govern them. In default of such regulations, however, the undertaker should use his influence to induce the family of the deceased to dispense with a public funeral in cases of scarlet fever, diphtheria, membraneous croup, smallpox, varioloid, typhus fever, yellow fever or measles. Newspaper notices should always state such causes of death. Friends and relatives should be prevented viewing the remains while awaiting sepulture. The undertaker should, in such cases, avoiding using chairs, palls or other articles which may be used at other funerals. An ice-box should never be used. The main cavities of the body should be injected with a strong antiseptic solution, the body wrapped in a sheet saturated with some antiseptic, placed in a sealed coffin, and interred as soon as possible after death. The corpse, if a child, should not be carried in a carriage. All carriages used should be thoroughly disinfected, and, lastly, the undertaker should take pains not to be himself the means of spreading the contagion. He should have clothing set apart for use in just such cases, and should afterward bathe in an antiseptic solution. In addition to these recommendations the pamphlet gives details as to embalmment, disinfection, disinterment and transportation of bodies. The address to the clerical profession is in much the same spirit, and requests that ministers absolutely refuse to hold public services where the deceased died of any of the diseases above mentioned. It is also suggested that the clergy residing in cities or boroughs use their influence to have passed suitable health laws prohibiting public funerals in cases of contagious disease. Such recommendations are perfectly useless in many cities, as proper health laws are already in vogue; but the deplorable fact remains that in probably the great majority of municipalities there are no regulations, or, at least, very deficient ones. As an illustration are cited cases in which the ice used to preserve bodies dead from contagious disease was emptied out on the public street, and the box used on the same day in an uninfected house without having been disinfected.—Medical Record.

The Corsair.

The production of the operatic burlesque of the "Corsair," at Music Hall next Thursday evening, promises to be a highly interesting event. There is no doubt as to the success that has been achieved in the principal cities of the country with this brilliant production, and all competent authorities agree that it is one of the best things ever put upon the stage. The music is said to be charmingly arranged, and there are enough pretty girls in bright costumes to satisfy the most ardent admirer of female beauty.

An Assistant Prosecutor for Union.

By a new law, passed by the last Legislature, provision is made for the appointment of an assistant prosecutor, at a salary of $1,200 a year, in each county having 65,000 inhabitants or over. As Union has 71,000 people, that is one of the counties whose prosecutor is to be relieved of some of his arduous work.

Arbor Day.

Friday, April 17, is the day designated by the Governor as the annual tree-planting day in New Jersey. This day, now celebrated in nearly every State of the Union, has become one of the most useful of the holidays, because tree-planting is not a work of mere sentiment, nor of temporary character, but of lasting benefit. Its tendency is to make home-life beautiful, by the adornment of homes and grounds, to exert a good influence not only on each individual family but also on the community, thereby improving the public taste and ministering to every enjoyment. It tends to create an attachment to one's native soil, is an antidote to the restless, roaming and migratory spirit of our youth, as well as a safeguard from temptation, and a strong stimulant to genuine patriotism. It directs attention to the immense influence of trees upon climatic conditions, and thus on all earth's productions. It also leads to the study of the kinds of trees best adapted to our climate, both for ornament, for fruit-bearing and other uses, which should form a part of every child's education. There are many useful lessons to be derived from the study of trees, which will occur to every thoughtful mind, and Arbor-Day is one of the occasions to teach them to the youth. Few things beautify homes more than trees, and in the years to come, as the twig expands into majestic proportions, the traditions that gather around them grow to be a living romance blooming with elevating sentiment and bearing the fruitage of cherished associations. Therefore, let the day be celebrated everywhere with proper observances—with music, song and speech—and thus cause it to be remembered as one of the days which tell of God's goodness and love to man—The Advance, Jamesburg, N. J.

Will Relieve Jersey Central Traffic.

The Reading Railroad Company has given out the contracts for the construction of its extension from Bound Brook to Arthur Kill, and the contractors have begun work near Metuchen. Some difficulty has been experienced in obtaining the right of way, as the farmers ask full prices for the land the company desires to take, but these difficulties have been overcome. The road will be pushed through and will probably be in operation within a year. It will cost about $1,500,000.

With an independent line to New York waters the Reading intends to extend its coal business in that market largely. It will at once withdraw from the Jersey Central its 1,000,000 tons of hard coal shipped annually from Bound Brook to Communipaw, for which the Jersey Central charges twenty cents a ton trackage, the Reading furnishing the cars, train crews and motive power. A firm of contractors has offered to lighter the Reading's coal in New York harbor for only two cents a ton more than the charge from Communipaw.

The soft coal from the Beach Creek region now delivered to the Jersey Central at Tamaqua, will be retained upon the Reading's own line all the way to tidewater. This business is estimated at 750,000 tons a year.

The Storage Battery System Fails as Usual.

(From The Boston Evening Record.)

WORCESTER, April 11.—[Special.]—For some time past, the Barrett storage battery car has been talked about in this city and this week was given a trial. A lot of people from Springfield were brought on here to witness the test and they rode on the car. The thing ran well enough for some way, but when in the suburbs of the city, it broke down and finally the car was drawn by four horses to a street car stable near by. The proprietors say that they can remedy the defect but the public are very sceptical.

The Jersey Lily has become quite famous for her beauty, and she means to keep it. 10c, for, hasn't she learned in the great United States to cure colds with Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

Make a note of it—Twenty-five cents buys the best liniment out, Salvation Oil, at all dealers.

A $500,000 Blaze in Elizabeth.

ELIZABETH, N. J., April 14.—The loss caused by the burning of the Arcade building is estimated at about $500,000. The First National Bank, postoffice, Third Regiment headquarters, Conservatory of Music, District Court and a number of offices and stores were located in the building. The fire swept through the building so rapidly that it was almost impossible to save anything. The Arcade was the finest building in the city, located on the main thoroughfare, Broad street. There were many narrow escapes, but fortunately no loss of life or even serious injuries.

Hard Fight With a Mad Dog.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., April 14.—Jas. Muncey, an ex-policeman of this city, had a desperate fight with a mad dog on the public street. The dog, foaming at the mouth, sprang upon him. Muncey kicked it off. Again it attacked him, biting into his foot. At last after a desperate struggle, he seized the brute around the neck and threw it off. The dog was killed.

An Old Man Kills Himself.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 14.—James Manran, aged 75, a night watchman for the New England Butt Company for the last 25 years, committed suicide at his boarding place at 7 a. m., by shooting himself in the left breast with a revolver.

They Object to Prof. Briggs.

NEW YORK, April 14.—At the regular annual meeting of the New York Presbytery a resolution was offered objecting to the candidacy of Prof. Charles A. Briggs for delegate to the General Assembly on account of the charges of heresy against him. The opposition to Prof. Briggs was strong, but he was elected.

Houses Undermined.

The Hand-Writing on the Wall.

When Daniel at the feast of Belshazzar interpreted the handwriting on the wall to mean the ruin of Babylon, it was considered a wonderful event.

There is a handwriting on the wall in the lives of most of us, which needs no wise Daniel to interpret—a handwriting which portends ruin no less terrible than that of Babylon.

"Brain Tire—Shattered Nerves—Nervous Prostration—Insanity—Death!"

Such is the handwriting which blazes in letters of fire in the lives of thousands, and it means ruin of health, ruin of body, ruin of mind, ruin of life.

Are you so blind that you cannot interpret the handwriting?

Do you not know that disordered stomach, torpid liver and irregular bowels will in time devitalize your blood and prostrate your body!

Can you not understand that spring debility, poor blood and low vitality will make an invalid of you after awhile?

Surely you must realize that to neglect that weak and tired feeling, that nervousness, sleeplessness, dull head and worn-out feeling will result in utter Nervous Prostration!

Weariness of the legs with numbness, cold feet, trembling limbs or prickling sensation means Paralysis.

Dizzy head, loss of memory, mental depression, sense of anxiety or foreboding, excessive nervousness, irritability, wakefulness and inability to think or study with ease indicate the sure approach of insanity.

Read the handwriting on the wall, sufferers from these troubles, in time to ward off the fatal result. You can surely do it by using that wonderful health restorer, Dr. Green's Nervura, the great nerve and brain invigorant, the best regulator of stomach, liver and bowels and most perfect blood vitalizer. It will give back your strength of nerve, power of brain and vigor of body. It is perfectly harmless, being purely vegetable, and costs only $1.00 at the druggists.

READ! READ!! READ!!!

If it had not been for Dr. Green's Nervura I should have been dead before this time, and I can therefore give this wonderful remedy the highest praise. The facts are these, I had the Grip and it left me about prostrated, extremely nervous, limbs stiff in the joints; my bowels bloated badly and my breathing was terrible. I could not stoop without almost losing my breath, in fact I was almost a complete wreck and could do but little work of any kind. I commenced take Dr. Green's Nervura, and at the end of one week I had lessened in girth about my bowels two inches, and now my girth is five inches less, and I am able to do about a full day's labor.

CHARLES H. STEVENS,
Scotia Kingsland, N. H.

Dr. Greene, of 35 West Fourteenth St., New York, its discoverer, is the famous specialist in the cure of nervous and chronic diseases. The doctor has devoted special attention to the treatment of all forms of chronic diseases through letter correspondence, and will give by mail his opinion and advice in any case free of charge. The perfection of this system renders a complete cure almost assured, as his success in treatment by correspondence is wonderful and unequalled.

N. B. Send for symptom blank to fill out, or write Dr. Greene about your case, and a carefully considered letter, fully explaining your disease and giving you a perfect understanding of all its symptoms will be returned, free of charge.

It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are not straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public esteem accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for telling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of Shoes.

ESTABLISHED 1856.

By always selling goods as represented, we have enjoyed holding the confidence of the people for 35 years. In 1890 we did the largest business of any year. Our method of doing business has proved satisfactory for all these years; but when we want a new method we will try and take a step forward and not backward. We never fool the public with a delusive advertisement; if it's Java Coffee we advertise, we put a price we can sell Java; we have a ground Coffee (called Java by the makers,) we sell for 25c., but it is only a mixture. We did not advertise to sell Granulated Sugar at 5c on April 1, but we did it, and the people tell us we were the only ones who did it on the 1st.

DIME-NOVEL HEROES.

How Two Eastern Boys Were Cured of Their Wild Fancies.

MART GORDON had a mysterious air about him as he came into Lou Hunt's yard. Lou noticed it as he looked up from the kindling-wood he was splitting to greet Mart.

"What's up?" he inquired.

"Hush!" his chum returned. "Are your folks at home?"

They had gone to Pittsburgh, which was not far from the little village where the boys lived, and Lou told him so; a piece of news Mart received with evident satisfaction.

"Things couldn't be better!" he exclaimed, sitting on an old hencoop. "Things couldn't be better! Mine's at Pittsburgh too!"

"I wish you'd tell me what's up, and what our folks have to do with it," said Lou, impatiently. "Is it a circus coming to town?"

"No; but you remember the story we read in our barn last week—Nat, the Trapper?"

"Yep."

"And what we wished?"

"That we could be trappers, too?"

"Yes."

"Well, what of it anyhow?" queried Lou.

"Well!" cried Mart, excitedly, "the chance has come! I'm going to be a trapper like the fellow we read about, and you can, too, if you've got the nerve."

Then he toned his voice to a confidential key, moving up close to Lou who was all attention.

"I met a man—he called himself Pickle—down by the old mill, this morning," began Mart, "and somehow we got to talking about trapping and Indian shooting. I told him I'd like to trap, and kill Indians; and he said he'd scalped tons of Indians, and killed hundreds of buffaloes. Then he said I'd ought to run away, and go west with him, and that this little village wasn't any place for a boy like me—just as I've said it wasn't—and he asked me if I had saved any skids—that's what he calls money.

"'Yes,' said I. 'I've got almost seven dollars!'

"'Well,' said he; 'just come down here to the mill to-night with the skids, an' I'll take you west with me. I'm goin' west myself.'

"Geo! I didn't know what to say but at last I said I'd be at the mill at eight to-night. Then I thought of you.

"Well, when I told Mr. Pickle of you, he thought for a little, then said: 'Three's a crowd, but as he's your friend I guess I can cotton to him if he's got some skids; we'll need them to buy guns with.'

"I told him about the five dollars you've got in the tomato can in the hencoop, and he said: 'If your pard brings the V it'll be O.K.' And then he said he would have to be moving.

"'Be there at eight, and don't peep to no one,' was what he said when we parted, and I hurried right here. Ain't things bully! Will you go?"

Lou did not answer for a moment.

Talking about running away west, in Mart's father's barn, and deliberately planning it were different things. His conscience smote him not a little.

"I don't think we'd ought to go," he faltered; "but I'd like to, awfully."

"Nonsense!" exclaimed Mart. "You mustn't miss this chance. I think Mr. Pickle is a great trapper in disguise, and we'll have great times with him; and it's lucky I met him."

Then he pictured them with Mr. Pickle, with buckskin suits, rifles swung at their backs and mounted on fiery ponies, riding along lonely, picturesque trails, or striking terror to bands of Sioux and Cherokees. The stories awoke Lou's imagination, which had been fed till it was diseased with tales of the wild west, of heroes who never did and never could have existed. Vision came to him of his and Mart's happening upon nuggets of virgin gold in the dark ravines of that strange region, any one of which was worth a thousand dollars. He saw himself tumble a great buffalo to the ground as he dashed by its side on a sturdy bronco—and then he looked at the pile of wood he had been splitting. There was more behind the woodshed, too, to be split, and other work for which he had no taste, to be done the next week. His father said they would plant the field back of the barn with potatoes, and then a new fence would have to be made.

"WHAT'S UP?" HE INQUIRED.

The temptation to join Mart and leave that hard, frosty work for the romance of the west was too great to be resisted.

"I'll go!" he finally exclaimed.

Mart was delighted.

"Good boy!" he ejaculated. "We'll have a great time! I knew you wouldn't go back on me."

This occurred about two o'clock. There had been no school, as it was Saturday.

Supper time only parted the chums. Then they were to meet at seven on the common. I do not know whether Mart hurried through that meal in a way which—with a week's continuance—would have ruined any stomach, but Lou did. If Biddy Nolan's mind had not been filled with thoughts of her beau who was to call that night she would surely have suspected something unusual was to happen, and have questioned Lou.

At the common, Mart waited for him, and they tarried there till seven-thirty, then started for the old mill and Mr. Pickle.

The rendezvous was a lonely one.

There was not a house within call of it, and the river, willow-banked, did not add to its cheeriness. The old mill nas been disused for years. Its wheel had rotted from the axle and lay as if weary and decrepit against its wall, while the roof sagged heavily in the center. What better hiding-place would ghosts want than its dark, damp interior?

Lou whistled softly to keep up his courage and Mart did not have the boldest front as they neared its weather-warped old door.

Mr. Pickle greeted them cheerily from the darkness and they entered fearlessly, Lou recognizing in him an old friend, if a tramp who has called at one's door can be called such.

"Ah," exclaimed that gentleman; "so you're the other gent."

Mart said he was.

Then Mr. Pickle introduced the boys to a companion near the door, a bushy-bearded, slouch-hatted man, who might have been Mr. P's brother, only differing from him in that his hair was fire red.

Mr. Pickle called him Cully, Lou noticed, and he asked whether Cully was a scout.

"Betyer!" returned the individual. "Skalped towns o' redskins, I haz. Got ther rumatiz walkin' in their blood," he added; "so guess I'll shut out the evenin' zephyrs."

He closed the old mill door at that and at first it was hard to discern the objects in the big room.

"Cully's a lala!" averred Mr. Pickle, or something like that, and he patted his friend on the back.

"Pick's one, too!" said that worthy; then he asked: "Got ther skids, pards?"

Lou had his hand on the little hoard in his pocket all the time, and, unsuspectingly, he produced it. Mr. Pickle received it, and his ally took Mart's, then the boys had a surprise.

THEY WERE BOUND TIGHTLY TO THE BEAMS.

A piece of cloth was thrust into the mouth of each, and they were packed up against two beams on the opposite side of the mill's interior. The gagging was then made perfect with their handkerchiefs, and they were bound tightly to the beams with bits of rope Mr. Pickle produced, much to that worthy's satisfaction.

After they were forced to listen to some very uncomplimentary remarks from Mr. Pickle's friend, they were finally left helpless in the old ruin, he and Mr. P. disappearing through the door, Lou's five dollars and Mart's short seven in their pockets.

The spirits of the chums were dampened. They saw how they had been misled; and, as if the punishment were not already great enough, a night in the old mill stared them in the face. They even feared they might have to stay there longer—Lou thought die there. The old ruin was seldom visited.

It grew late and more lonely. Weird noises sounded now and then, while the strengthening wind began to moan dismally about the eaves. A storm arose. The old mill rocked and swayed, its beams groaning and boarding rattling. Drenching streams of water fell upon the chums through the leaky roof, and they were chilled to the marrow by the cold gusts entering the door, everywhere.

A loose board or shingle was torn from the old shell by an unusually strong puff.

Fortunately, for them, a grizzly-faced wanderer was driven there for shelter. The mill was doomed.

Some time in the night, after he had released them, the old ruin toppled into the river and was washed down to the Monongahela.

That night's adventure—their terribly narrow escape—made dreams of running away less frequent and fascinating with the boys than before. Nor was "Nat the Trapper" quite so much pored over in secret.

Then, soon, business called Lou's father west, and he took Lou with him, so my young friend saw that great country as it really is, not as it is painted. Lou visited Butler City, stopped at some of the camps in the heart of the Rockies; and when he came home it was with the determination to never attempt running away from home again. Mart, too, was cured of his desire for a miner's life by what Lou told him, and they now are, thanks to the failure of the plans laid in Mart's father's barn, successful citizens of a thriving Pennsylvania city, and the experience I relate is a vivid memory they laugh over heartily each time they meet.—Clarence G. Converse, in Yankee Blade.

RAW JOURNALISTS.

The Efforts of Ambitious Youngsters at Interviewing.

Some Specimens of the Ridiculous Figures Cut by the Journalistic Buds in the Presence of Prominent Personages.

The tests to which a reporter's stamina is at times put are often severe and fraught not always with success, says the Chicago Post. Among them, one which fairly tries the soul of the young one is a first assignment to interview some prominent personage who has just arrived. It is seldom that any other instructions are given to him.

"So-and-So's at the —— hotel. Interview him for a column," says the city editor. And the young man, who has heard of the renowned visitor times without number, will without doubt immediately forget all he ever knew concerning the gentleman in question. He will perhaps begin to feel that his youthful ideas of journalism were the outgrowth not of sound judgment but of dreams superinduced by an overloaded stomach. Pride, however, prevents his resigning; and into the presence of the great man he goes, his mind a blank, and with that empty feeling which comes to one unaccustomed to associate with celebrities.

During the recent visit of ex-United States Senator Warner Miller to Chicago, one of these journalistic buds called on him at the Auditorium. The New Yorker received him graciously and offered him a seat. The bud took it. His mind was still a blank and a pinch did not start an idea. The silence was becoming a torture, when through the open window came the voice of a newsboy far below:

"All about Gen. Sherman dying."

It was an inspiration. The bud was not up on politics. But he thought he was, and with a smile of confidence he said:

"Senator, do you think that the death of Gen. Sherman will materially change the complexion of Ohio politics?"

The astonishment that came into the senator's face at the question was immediately chased away by a smile as he replied that he hardly thought it would. The bud thanked him and withdrew.

Several years ago when Ben Butler arrived in the city another bud was dispatched to see him. He found the general smoking in the center of his room at the Grand Pacific hotel, gazing with one eye through the Jackson street window and with the other through the window that faced Clark street. The young bud was attacked by stage fright, but after a bit he collected himself enough to ask the general the popular question of the day:

"What, general, do you think of Kel's purchase by the Bostons?"

The general surveyed the bud with his left eye, and in a severe tone inquired:

"Who in thunder is Kel?"

Deeming himself unequal to the task of coping with such ignorance, the bud, suddenly recovering his self-possession, bowed stiffly and, without deigning to answer, withdrew.

When Hamilton Fish last came to Chicago another bud from the same paper, chancing to be the only reporter available, was sent to tap the distinguished person. This bud managed to retain his self-possession, but he was not well acquainted with his victim, whose active career antedated his own by nearly a quarter of a century. Mr. Fish was in a decidedly uncommunicative mood, and to a dozen queries he returned monosyllablic replies. This ended the bud's store of questions, and he turned to go, when a thought struck him.

"Mr. Fish," he innocently inquired, "were you ever in politics?"

The question struck Mr. Fish with the force of an electric shock. He sprang to his feet and, with mingled wrath, amazement and disgust pictured in his face, cried:

"Wha-a-t? Was I ever in politics! Why, young man, I was once vice president of the United States!"

And, like the guests of Macbeth, the bud stood not upon the order of his going, but vanished with the echo of the thundered words.

A BRAVE FRENCHMAN.

Destruction of the Frigate Philadelphia by Lieut. Decatur.

Ninety years ago, says the Chicago News, the pasha of Tripoli declared war against the United States on account of fancied grievances. He felt slighted because this government had presented the bey of Algiers with a fine frigate and had sent him none. The pasha began hostilities against the American merchant marine, and for its protection a squadron was sent to the Mediterranean. Decatur had command of the schooner Norfolk of eighteen guns, but was afterward transferred to the Enterprise. In the winter of 1803-4 the frigate Philadelphia ran aground on a reef off Tripoli and was captured by the enemy. The Tripolitans succeeded in getting her afloat and into the harbor. Decatur heard of the misfortune that had befallen the frigate and volunteered to destroy her. He had captured the ketch Mastico, which he renamed the Intrepid and made use of in carrying out his daring scheme. Concealing a number of men below the decks, he stood boldly into the harbor of Tripoli on the 14th of February, 1804. He had given his ship the appearance of a vessel in distress, and her warlike character was not suspected. The Philadelphia was anchored right under the guns of the forts, but Decatur sailed up to her without hesitation. As soon as the two vessels were alongside Decatur and his men rushed on board the frigate, drove the panic-stricken crew overboard and then set the ship on fire. As soon as this was done the Americans jumped into their little vessel and made their escape without losing a man, though they were made the target of 141 rapid-firing guns. The Philadelphia was completely destroyed. Admiral Nelson, of the British navy, pronounced Decatur's feat the most daring act of the age.

THERE is very little ebb or flow of tide in the Arctic, but occasionally there are very strong currents. All winter there is a general flow of tide and ice toward the south, while in summer this flow is northward.

THE depopulation of Iceland is going on steadily. The depreciation in the value of the land has been very marked of late, whilst the taxes have considerably increased, and the Icelanders are said to be emigrating in shoals. The population, which was 60,000 ten years ago, is now under 60,000.

PRO BONO PUBLICO.

We have not been in business for 35 years, but in the short space of one year we have built up a business and reputation for low prices, fair dealing and highest standard goods that has taken some merchants a lifetime to accomplish. By extensive advertising our unprecedented low prices for best goods in Plainfield and surrounding towns, we have not only benefited purchasers, but merchants in all lines of business—one admitting that he has done a larger business than any one year for 35.

The daily increase in our business is sufficient guarantee that our customers are perfectly satisfied that we give them the best goods at lower prices than any other store in town, and that the public in general are satisfied with our method of doing business, if our competitors are not.

We substantiate all statements made in our advertisements.

CRAZED BY THE GRIP

An Old Man Kills His Wife With a Club.

HE THEN SET FIRE TO THE HOUSE

Neighbors Arrived Before the Flames Had Gained Much Headway.

The Murderer Seventy Years Old—Before Committing the Crime He Drank a Pint of Alcohol—He Declared that God Desired Him to Make a Human Sacrifice. The Old Man Under Arrest.

PURDY'S STATION, N. Y., April 15.—Mrs. Ann Lockwood, about 65 years old, died yesterday at her home in the town of North Salem, Westchester County, about five miles from Purdy's Station, from the effects of an assault committed upon her by her husband, Jesse Lockwood, 70 years old.

Coroner Drews, of Mount Vernon, was notified of Mrs. Lockwood's death, and he arrived at the Lockwood farm last evening, where he empanelled a jury and adjourned the inquest until to-morrow forenoon.

Lockwood had a severe attack of the grip, and is is believed that the disease took such a turn as to drive him suddenly insane. He became very violent, and while raving he drank about a half a pint of alcohol which happened to be in the house at the time. He then assaulted his aged wife, knocking her down and beating her upon the head with a club until she became unconscious and her body was covered with bruises.

He Set Fire to the House.

After the old man had committed the assault he did not seem to realize what he had done and has not yet recovered his reason. After he had committed the assault he set fire to the house, but the neighbors, who saw the smoke, arrived before the fire had gained much headway and extinguished it.

Lockwood, on being informed that his wife was dead, evinced no surprise and did not seem to realize the fact.

Coroner Drews placed the old man under arrest and put him in the custody of Deputy Sheriff Hallock. Instead of taking him to the county jail at White Plains, as was at first contemplated, he was allowed to remain in his house with the deputy sheriff.

Drs. Potter and Casselman will make an autopsy to determine the cause of Mrs. Lockwood's death.

Lockwood's neighbors declare that he has been insane for some months past, and that he should have been placed in an insane asylum long ago. He has always been more or less insane on the subject of religion. He is said to have rung the bell of the Methodist church a few days ago, declaring that God desired him to make a human sacrifice and that his wife was the person the Lord wanted him to kill.

MARY METZDORF GUILTY.

The Verdict Accompanied With a Recommendation of Mercy.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 15.—The case of Mary Metzdorf, charged with murder, was given to the jury last night, and after the lapse of an hour and a half the jury returned with a verdict of guilty of murder in the second degree for causing the death of Miss Louisa Broadwaters by means of arsenic placed in coffee.

The verdict was accompanied with a recommendation of mercy.

New Jersey Elections.

NEWARK, N. J., April 15.—In Warren county the home rule ticket carried the day in Washington. Henry Johnson, prohibitionist, being re-elected Mayor, with a home rule Council. In Hackettstown George Smith, Republican, was elected Mayor, with a Democratic Council. In Phillipsburg John S. Bowers, Democrat, and a Democratic Council were elected. In Belvidere the Citizens' ticket, with George A. Angle for Mayor, was elected. The Citizens' candidates for Council and Freeholder were also chosen. At Bordentown John O. Hudson, Democrat, was re-elected over Geo. B. Raymond, Republican.

Decided to Close Its Business.

BOSTON, April 15.—The Equitable Stock Company has decided to close all accounts and go out of business. This move is due to heavy losses sustained by the company during the past few weeks. The company has correspondents scattered all over New England and they have been notified to forward their claims to the Boston office for adjustment. Directors of the company say that all claims will be paid in full.

Her Lover a Maniac.

VOLUNTOWN, Conn., April 15.—Miss May Dixon, instead of being a happy bride, is a corpse. Frank Sherman, whom she was to have married last Tuesday, is a maniac. Miss Dixon is but 20 years old, and her wedding was postponed by the death of her niece, which preceded her own but three days. Her lover could not stand the shock.

GEN. BUTLER SNUBBED.

He is Forbidden to Address Judge Carpenter on Any Subject.

BOSTON, April 15.—In the U. S. District Court here Mrs. Clarenta E. Johnston was called for sentence on conviction of perjury in a pension case.

Gen. Butler, her counsel, whose motions in her behalf were denied on Friday last at the end of a pointed colloquy between himself and Judge Carpenter, arose and said: "May it please your honor ——"

Judge Carpenter, interrupting, said: "You are forbidden to address me on any subject."

Gen. Butler, with no display of surprise, said: "I have a motion ——"

Judge Carpenter, mildly—You can file it.

Gen. Butler—I have already filed it with the clerk.

Judge Carpenter—Very well; you cannot be allowed to address me at this time.

Gen. Butler—Mrs. Johnson is in court and in her own proper person files this motion in arrest of judgment. You can do what you please with it. He then passed the document to the clerk and retired.

The court, at the request of District-Attorney Allen, then postponed the case in order to give defendant time to obtain new counsel.

JACKSON ON CRUTCHES.

The Colored Pugilist Says He Will be Ready for Corbett.

NEW YORK, April 15.—A special from San Francisco says: Jackson is still going about on crutches, but professes to be confident that he will be in perfect condition to give battle to young Corbett next month.

He says he expects to lay the sticks aside in 10 days, and that will give him four weeks in which to train. He says in that time he will be as hard as a rock. Jackson will take up his quarters at Jack Dieve's place near Oakland next week.

Corbett is already preparing to go into training, and is taking long walks daily over the surrounding hills. He will begin active training next week. He does not like the thought that Jackson may not be in shape on the day of the battle. Last night he expressed the wish that Jackson should be perfectly trained, so that, if he were defeated, it could not be laid to that score.

FINED FOR SWEARING.

An Ex-Mayor Has to Pay $30 for Twenty-seven Oaths.

SUNBURY, Pa., April 15.—Ex-Mayor Gen. G. W. Stroh has been arrested charged with swearing 27 times. He was fined 63 cents per oath, or, with costs, $20 in all.

General Stroh had a lawsuit last week in regard to the rent of a piece of ground before the same squire, and while there got into an altercation with the prosecutor at which time the oaths were uttered.

A memoranda of the oaths was made at the time by Jacob Bartholomew, a personal enemy of the ex-mayor, who brought the suit, which created much amusement and excitement.

Secretary Foster in New York.

NEW YORK, April 15.—Secretary Foster, Assistant Secretary Spaulding, Solicitor Hepburn and Private Secretary Hendley arrived here last night. It is the desire of Secretary Foster to have the new immigration law, which went into effect April 1, strictly enforced, and with this end in view Superintendent Weber will be given verbal instructions as to the Department's construction of its various sections. Secretary Foster will also confer about impending changes in the Custom House and Appraiser's Office.

Work of New England Methodists.

LYNN, Mass., April 15.—The statistical report of the New England Methodist Conference shows a membership of 4,411, with 87,522 full members. There are 229 churches valued at $3,958,775. Thirty thousand and forty-one dollars were collected for missions. There are 244 Sunday-schools and 44,274 scholars. During the year 2,134 conversions have been made.

A Famous Chess Player Found Dead.

NEW YORK, April 15.—Captain George H. McKenzie, the famous chess player, who is known throughout the civilized world, was found dead in bed at the Cooper Union Hotel last night. Heart disease is supposed to have caused his death.

To Elect a Chief Justice.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 15.—Both houses of the Legislature will probably go into Grand Committee some time this week to elect a successor to Chief Justice Durfee. Associate Justice Matteson will probably be chosen Chief Justice, and Senator George T. Brown will be made associate justice.

Count Lowenhaupt's Funeral.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 15.—The body of Count Lowenhaupt was taken to the Old Swede Church yesterday. It was in a metallic-lined cedar casket. Thomas F. Bayard, jr., was in charge of the body. Funeral services were held at 5 o'clock, after which the body was placed in the Bayard vault.

WITH THE PRESIDENT

He Receives Enthusiastic Receptions in the South.

AN ACCIDENT AT KNOXVILLE.

The Chief Magistrate's Life in Peril for a Few Minutes.

His Carriage Nearly Upset by the Horses Swinging on to the Sidewalk—The Party Reach Chattanooga This Morning—The President Impressed With the Rapid Strides Made by the South.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., April 15.—President Harrison has every reason to be gratified with his reception in Virginia and Tennessee. At nearly every hamlet along the route groupes of people waved handkerchiefs and hats as the train passed by.

At Rosford, Va., the train halted long enough to enable a crowd of people assembled at the station to shake hands with the President, and similar demonstrations were observable as the train passed Pulaski and Abingdon. At Bristol the train halted on the Virginia side of the station. Large crowds had gathered in and about the station and the windows of the houses in the vicinity were filled with people.

At Johnson City, Jonesboro and Morristown short stops were made, and at each place the President made a brief speech to the crowds that gathered at the stations.

Royal Welcome at Knoxville.

Knoxville gave the President a royal welcome. When the train rolled into the depot at 6 o'clock last evening the local committeemen, with carriages, met the party and escorted them about the city. At 7 o'clock the party arrived at the hotel, where an immense crowd had gathered to hear the President make a promised address.

When the enthusiasm that greeted his appearance had subsided the President said: "My Fellow Citizens: It gives me pleasure to visit this historic city, a city that has given to the country many men who have been eminent in its councils and have brought to the nation they have served and to the people who called them into public service imperishable honor. I am glad to visit East Tennessee, the scene of that early immigration and of those early settlements by men who for vigor and intellect, strength of heart and devotion to Republican principles, were among the most conspicuous of the early pioneers of the west and southwest.

"I am glad to know that these traditions of liberty, that deep devotion to the cause of the Union which manifested itself in the early contributions of Tennessee to the armies that went out for the defense of the homes of the North and West abides still in these valleys, and crowns it with glory and lustre every hill-top of the Allegheanies. You are feeling now a material development that is interesting and pleasing to all your fellow citizens of all States.

"I beg to say that whoever supposes that there is anywhere in the Northern State any jealousy of this great material progress which the South is making misconceives wholly the friendly heart of the people of the North. It is my wish, as I am sure it is of all with whom I associate in political life, that the stream of prosperity in the South may run bankfull; that in everything that promotes prosperity of the State, security and comfort of the community, and the happiness of the individual home your blessings may be full and unstinted. We live in a government of law.

"May every prosperity attend you. May this ground, made memorable by one of the most successful defenses in the history of the war, never again be stained by blood. But may our people in one common love of one flag and one Constitution; in a common and all-pervading fealty to great principles of our government go in to achieve in material wealth and social development, in intelligence, in piety, in everything that makes a nation great and a people happy; all that the Lord had in His mind in a nation that He has conspicuously blessed." (Great and prolonged cheering).

The President in Peril.

Quite an alarming accident occurred to the President's carriage just after he finished his speech. The carriage was drawn by four handsome white horses, and just as the party was leaving the hotel for the depot one of the reins broke and the horses were swung on to the sidewalk, nearly upsetting the carriage and putting the life of the Chief Magistrate and that of Mrs. Harrison, who was with him at the time, in great peril for a few minutes. Bystanders seeing the situation rushed to the assistance of the driver, and seizing the fiery horses by the bits managed to restrain them, and the President and Mrs. Harrison took seats in the carriage occupied by Secretary Rusk and were driven to the depot.

Arrived at Chattanooga.

CHATTANOOGA, April 15.—The Presidential train arrived here at 9 a. m. A large crowd was at the depot and the Chief Magistrate received a regular Southern ovation. The party took carriages for the Staunton House, and will spend the afternoon on Lookout Mountain.

The Bill for Coercing Newfoundland.

LONDON, April 15.—Lord Knutsford has announced that the bill for coercing Newfoundland will be brought up for second reading on Monday next, and the Newfoundland delegates will be heard at the bar of the House, if desired.

The Fight Must Go On.

DUBLIN, April 15.—The National Press, the Irish party organ, says: "The time for negotiation is past. The fight must go on. It will be bitter, but it is not likely to be long."

Stanley Appointed Governor.

BRUSSELS, April 15.—The Etoile Belge says that Henry M. Stanley has been appointed Governor of the Congo State.

CLERGYMEN PROTEST.

Dr. McCosh Wants New Jersey Protected from the Scum of New York.

TRENTON, N. J., April 15.—Governor Abbett received a large delegation of clergymen, members of the Citizens' League, an organization that is fighting the race track men. Dr. James McCosh was among the number.

Dr. J. F. Kempshall, of Elizabeth, stated that a bill was now awaiting the Governor's signature which had been smuggled through the Legislature, which sought to take all indictments out of the Oyer and Terminer Court and place them in Quarter Sessions, so that the Supreme Court justices would not sit in the cases. The Supreme Court justices have already sentenced bookmakers in two counties.

Dr. McCosh stated that the faculty and students of Princeton College were opposed to the bill. He said he wanted the "wickedest people of New York prevented from coming here and defiling New Jersey." The State had a great reputation for morality and religion and it must be protected from the scum of New York. There were a number of other speakers and many petitions.

THE COKE REGION QUIET.

False Rumor of a Riot at the Frick Works at Leisenring.

PITTSBURG, April 15.—The rumors of a riot at the Frick Works at Leisenring were false. Everything is quiet in that locality.

Reports from Mt. Pleasant say that nearly every coke operator has joined the general movement for resumption. They all propose operating their works under the sliding scale of wages which was submitted to their employes three weeks ago.

A mass meeting of 2,000 strikers was held at Trangers. They resolved to "stand out to the last."

Eviction notices are being served on the cokers at Painter. One hundred notices of this character have been prepared. Four strikers' families have been evicted at Summit.

Frick's Coke Works at Trotter were raided last evening. A mob of strikers threw bricks and stones through the doors and windows of the company houses, demolishing everything possible.

THE GRIP'S VICTIMS.

New York's Daily Death Rate the Highest for the Year.

NEW YORK, April 15.—The reports issued from the Bureau of Vital Statistics for the 24 hours ended at noon indicate that the grip epidemic has increased in virulence rather than relaxed. The total death rate is the highest for any day in the year, and the number of fatalities from grip and its complications is the largest on record.

For the 24 hours the total number of deaths is stated at 215. Of these 32 were attributed directly to the grip, four without complications with other diseases, and 16 were complicated with pneumonia.

There are 316 policemen reported sick, many of them suffering from attacks of the grip.

Delay in Student Harris' Case.

NEW YORK, April 15.—The preliminary examination of Carlyle W. Harris, the medical student, on the charge of murdering his young wife, Helen Potts, has been adjourned until Monday at the request of Harris' counsel. District-Attorney Nicoll has received a 25-page letter from Mrs. Potts, Mrs. Harris' mother, making a number of additional charges against Harris, inclusive of the allegation that he had been married before he married her daughter.

Cal Wood Granted a New Trial.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 15.—The Court of Appeals has granted a new trial to Cal Wood, who was convicted at the Warren County Oyer and Terminer Court of the murder of Leander Pasco, in Stony Creek, May 10, 1890, and was sentenced to be executed by electricity in Clinton prison in the week of Nov. 3 last.

Fell and Broke His Back.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 15.—Joseph P. Forman, superintendent of the hose depot of the Rochester fire department, fell from a ladder while unloading oats into a large bin in the depot, breaking his back. He will die. Mr. Forman has been actively connected with the fire department for over 40 years.

Report on the New Orleans Lynching.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—United States District Attorney Grant of New Orleans, who, under orders from Washington, has been investigating for the Government the recent lynching of the Italians, says he expects to be able to send his report to the Department of Justice at Washington in the latter part of the week.

Diss Debar's Latest.

NEW YORK, April 15.—The letter received from Mme. Diss Debar stating that she intended drowning herself by jumping off a Staten Island ferry boat, is looked upon as a scheme to get rid of numerous creditors. Nobody believes that the womam would commit suicide.

Reading Collieries Suspend Operations.

MAHONOY CITY, Pa., April 15.—Orders have been received here to suspend indefinitely all operations at the Elmwood and Schuylkill collieries, which belong to the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron Company. Over 800 men are thrown out of employment by the suspension.

Four Gunboats for Venezuela.

NYACK, N. Y., April 15.—An order has just been received by the Tappan Zee Company, Piermont-on-the-Hudson, to make four gunboats for the Venezuela government, one to be 75 feet long and 14 feet beam, and another to 60 feet long and 12 feet beam.

Baseball Games.

NEW YORK, April 15.—The result of the American Association games yesterday was as follows: Louisville 8, Cincinnati 3; Washington 7, Boston 5; Baltimore 2, Athletic 0; Columbus 9, St. Louis 8.

RUDINI SEEKS DELAY

Italy's Deputies Postpone the American Discussion.

WHAT MINISTER PORTER SAYS.

Both Governments Look Forward to a Peaceful Settlement of the Trouble.

William Henry Hurlbert's Double Life Exposed—England and Germany Opposed to Balmaceda—More Rioting at Bradford—Stanley Appointed Governor of Congo—Parnell's National Cavalry.

ROME, April 15.—There was a large crowd at the opening of the Chambers after the Easter recess.

The Marquis di Rudini laid before the assembled Deputies the diplomatic correspondence relating to the New Orleans dispute. Several interpellations were at once addressed to the Prime Minister on the subject, who proposed to postpone the discussion for a few days.

This was unanimously agreed to, as the discussion is expected to be very acrimonious and animated.

The London Standard's Rome correspondent says that he had an interview with Mr. Porter, the United States Minister to Italy. "Mr. Porter," says the correspondent, "was silent within the limits of official etiquette, but he was extremely courteous. He said that he had not received any orders of recall, and that there was no reason to believe that he should receive any. Both governments looked forward to a peaceful and honorable settlement of the New Orleans difficulty. The only action open to the Washington government has been initiated, though Mr. Blaine has no yet sent an official note of the fact."

HURLBERT'S DOUBLE LIFE.

Gertrude Ellis Goes Into the Details of Her Acquaintance With Him.

LONDON, April 15.—The case of Miss Evelyn, otherwise Gertrude Ellis, against William Henry Hurlbert was continued before Justice Cave. In her examination she gave a history of her life and her entrance upon a theatrical life. She first met Hurlbert, she said, on leaving an omnibus, and he made an appointment with her for the following day, Good Friday. He called under the name of Wilfred Murray. On May 3, 1887, he proposed marriage to her and she accepted the offer. Three days later he gave her a ring.

They became more intimate, and in the following October she made a discovery which caused her to go on an extended tour over the continent. While away she sent him several letters to various addresses, all directed to William Murray. She went to Monte Carlo, where, owing to gambling losses, she was forced to pawn the ring and all her jewelry. In 1888 she met the defendant in London by accident, and after that sent him his letters, this time addressed to William Henry Hurlbert.

In the beginning of 1890 she discovered that he was a married man, and told him so. He acknowledged the fact, and tried to straighten out matters by offering her an annuity which he never paid. Under cross-examination she admitted that the boy alleged to be her son was her nephew. His father, named Lockington, is living in Philadelphia.

BALMACEDA'S ENEMIES.

England and Germany Opposed to the Chilian President.

LONDON, April 15.—Lord Salisbury has cabled to the British Minister at Santiago and to the Admiral commanding the British fleet off Valparaiso that the closing of the nitrate ports by President Balmaceda is ultra vires, inasmuch as no blockade has been established or declared.

The British government has also notified British shipowners that the British Admiral will protect their interests in Chilian ports, and that England does not recognize the right to exact double duties, once by the Congress forces, and again by Balmaceda, but advises the payment of such duties under protest.

It is understood that Lord Salisbury's instructions embrace much more than has been officially announced, and that Balmaceda will find the fleets of England and Germany virtually arrayed against him.

Opposition to Bismarck Futile.

BERLIN, April 15.—The noted Socialist leader, Herr Bebel, in an interview, has declared that the Radical and Socialist opposition would be powerless to prevent the election of Prince Bismarck to the Reichstag, and that it is rather intended as a protest than with the hope of defeating him. With regard to Prince Bismarck's appearance in the Reichstag Herr Bebel expressed more doubt, based on the fact that such appearances have always been rare in the past and have taken place only at critical periods.

Parnell's National Cavalry.

DUBLIN, April 15.—It is expected that Mr. Parnell's meeting at Irishtown next Sunday will be the most imposing demonstration of his strength yet made. A striking feature of the occasion will be the presence of several thousand horsemen calling themselves the National Cavalry. Mr. Parnell encourages the formation of such semi-military organizations, and seldom fails in the course of his shrewd addresses to drop a veiled hint as to their possible future usefulness.

Gave a Dinner in a Brewery.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 15.—Senator Charles A. Stadler gave a beefsteak dinner last night to the members of the Senate and the reporters. The affair was given in one of the large breweries and was exceedingly unconventional.

World's Fair President.

CHICAGO, April 15.—William T. Baker, of the Board of Trade firm of William T. Baker & Co., was unanimously elected President of the World's Fair Columbian Exposition last night to succeed Lyman J. Gage.

CHICAGO'S TANGLE.

The Mayoralty Election Will Probably Go to the Courts.

CHICAGO, April 15.—This was the fourth day of the official election count. It will take the commission five more days to complete the canvass. Revision will then be necessary; disputes may arise, and from the hands of the commission the entire election may be transferred to the courts.

In the official count of the Ninth ward Cregier sustained a material loss. In the seventh precinct of this ward the official returns show that Cregier lost 104 votes which were counted to the credit of Harrison.

As Cregier's friends claim a majority of only 235, it will not take many more discoveries like this to melt it away. Lawyer Asay objected to the acceptance of the figures as returned from this precinct, as he suspects crooked work of some sort.

The Democrats say they were aware of the apparent loss of 104 votes in the Seventh precinct of the Ninth ward the morning after the election, and that the joy of the Republicans is at present premature. When the contest is concluded, they say, Cregier will have a plurality of the votes.

THE RICHARDS TRAGEDY.

Dr. Bram Arrested on Suspicion of Being the Murderer.

COLOMA, Md., April 15.—The funeral of Mrs. J. Granville Richards, who was shot while in bed by burglars, will take place to-morrow. The doctors do not think the wounds of Mr. Richards will prove fatal.

One arrest has been made. Dr. Geo. A. Bram, who was until recently a medical student at the University of Maryland was stopping at his father's house near Rowlandville, about three miles from where the crime was committed, and has been acting mysteriously of late. He was taken into custody about midnight and a 32-calibre revolver carrying cartridges the same as those used in the shooting was found in his possession and three of the chambers were empty.

Bram told the Sheriff that he could prove by a number of persons that he was in Baltimore on the night of the shooting.

One of the most important clues to the murderer has just been discovered in a button torn off his waistcoat by Mr. Richards in the struggle.

Coroner Litzenberg is holding an inquest over the remains of Mrs. Richards to-day.

Albany County's Charter Election.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 15—The charter election in Albany County resulted in the return of 18 Democratic and 13 Republican supervisors. No change from last year.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The New York Legislature will adjourn sine die on April 20.

The funeral of the late Bishop Gilmour will be held next Tuesday at Cleveland, Ohio.

It is reported that General Paine of Boston will change the name of his famous yacht Volunteer to Phœnix.

Miss Sarah Gallagher, 50 years old, was crushed to death by the freight elevator at Cowles & Co.'s shop at New Haven, Conn.

Frank P. Slavin, the Australian pugilist; Charley Mitchell, the boxing champion of England, and "Pony" Moore sail to-day from Queenstown for this country.

Franklin K. Phillips, a retired merchant of Boston, Mass., who is said to have been greatly depressed by the death of his wife, has been missing from his home since April 6.

The four-year-old child of Samuel Lockhart, of Perth Amboy, N. J., fell in to a cistern at Elizabeth, while his parents were attending a wedding at the latter place, and was drowned.

The Weavers' Fines bill, which was passed by the present Legislature of Massachusetts, is said by the Fall River mill owners to be unconstitutional, and the mill owners will appeal to the Supreme Court.

The Baker Ballot Reform bill, the provisions of which are similar to the Australian system, was passed by the Pennsylvania House of Representatives by a vote of 171 to 16. The bill now goes to the Senate.

William A. Kenna, of Concord, N. H., local manager for Ledden Bros., Boston brokers, shot and instantly killed himself at his place of business during the morning. He is supposed to have been temporarily insane.

A. M. Miner, a blacksmith of Elwood, Conn., and Frank Darling, a farmer of West Hartford, Conn., visited New York for the purpose of buying "green goods." They met the "green goods" merchants and were swindled, Miner losing $200 and Darling $450.

Mrs. Emma Leete, aged 33 years, of Guilford, Conn., was trampled to death by a vicious horse. She was holding the animal by the bridle when he suddenly reared and came down upon Mrs. Leete with his front feet, breaking her back in two places.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—For New England: Easterly winds; slightly cooler.

For Eastern New York and New Jersey: Rain; southerly winds; slightly cooler.

For Western New York: Rain; fair weather to-morrow; northwesterly winds; lower temperature.

THE DAILY PRESS.

W. L. & A. L. FORCE, Publishers and Proprietors.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - Managing Editor.

BY THE WAY.

—The finest store in the State is Peck's.

—"Made money by trading with Peck." That's what they say. Go try it!

—Those fast-black hose, three pair for one dollar, are fast disappearing from Peck's.

—Boehm's old established dry goods house has a new advertisement on the first page of to-day's PRESS.

—James McGee will give a practical talk to young men on the subject of "Business" at the Y. M. C. A. rooms to-morrow evening. There will be college songs before and after the talk.

—Another vote for the trolley road on the East Fifth street route is received to-day. Alonzo W. Weseman, who is recorded in the affirmative column elsewhere. Not a vote has yet been received against the road.

—A devotional meeting will be held in the rooms of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union to-morrow afternoon at half-past three. The reading of a paper on "Social Purity", by Mrs. Powell, will be postponed from to-morrow till some time in May.

—Colyer & Co., the big clothing firm at 815 and 817 Broad street, Newark, have an advertisement in this issue giving facts worth knowing about the matter of clothing. They have a great reputation for reliability, and the Plainfield man who buys his spring suit there need never go elsewhere. In the employ of Colyer & Co. is L. C. Dunn, of this city, at whose hands Plainfielders may be sure of especially good treatment.

—Plainfielders are patronizing more and more the famous clothing house of Marshall & Ball, 807-813 Broad street, Newark. More people are finding out every day that at that house one may obtain the best of goods, made up in perfect-fitting garments, for far less money than they have been in the habit of paying elsewhere. In the double-column advertisement in to-day's paper the firm makes an interesting announcement giving low prices on excellent custom-made spring suits.

—The movement to allow women representatives in the General Conference of the Methodist church does not seem to meet with much favor in this State. Women are allowed to preach and do much of the church work, but their reverend brethren are not so willing that they shall sit among the rulers. The latest vote, that of the Newark Conference, was 129 to 42 against the women. These ministers evidently think that woman's sphere is home, and that, though the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world, it shall not boss it over the lords of creation in the Methodist ministry.—New Brunswick Home News.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. Elizabeth Odam died at the residence of her son, John T. Odam, 50 West Second street, to-day. Funeral services will be held at Lyons Farms, Sunday.

The death of Elizabeth Chandler, widow of the late Ephriam Chandler, occurred at Greenbrook to-day, in her eighty-ninth year. The funeral will take place Friday noon.

Mrs. Nancy Roll, widow of the late Charles Roll, died to-day at the age of 87. Funeral services will be held from her late residence, 10 Peace street, Friday afternoon at half-past two.

The remains of Mary Jane Roselle, widow of the late John Roselle, who at one time was Chief of the Plainfield Fire Department, and whom everybody in Plainfield knew, were brought to this city to-day and interred in Evergreen Cemetery, beside the body of her husband and daughter. She was in her sixty-third year.

An Obstructionist Speaks.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—You will please correct the list of names in favor of the proposed railway through Fifth street as published in last evening's PRESS, by erasing the names of Mr. Alberti and Mr. Titsworth, as I hold the right to speak as their proxy.

Mr. Runyon does not own a foot of land on Fifth street, therefore his feet of land should not be there, and I can see no reason why 80 feet on Richmond street should be there any more than 80 feet on Johnston's drive.

The law provides that before a franchise can be granted the consent of fifty per cent. of all the property owners must be obtained in writing, and acknowledged before a commissioner of deeds, and filed in the clerk's office. That is the thing to do.

I can see no sense in the people on Fifth street spreading their names before the public (either for or against) in a newspaper vote for ten days. It can do no possible good, and would only produce bickerings and contention; and for the peace of our neighborhood I hope it may at once be abandoned. H. H. BAKER.

Welcome Friends.

By a rare accident I was made acquainted with Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills, and have used them for two years. They act gently and like a charm, correcting the secretion and preventing other diseases. I subscribe myself your friend, as your pills are welcome friends to me.

Will Hold the Next Session in Plainfield.

The spring meeting of the Reformed churches of the Classis of Newark was held in Dr. Carlos Martin's First Reformed church at Newark yesterday. The Rev. Cornelius Schenck and elder George L VanEmburgh from the Trinity Reformed church, and the Rev. F. Koechli and elder Valentine Utzinger of the Craig place German Reformed church, were present from Plainfield.

Mr. Schenck as chairman of the Committee on the State of Religion in the different churches of the Classis read an interesting and carefully prepared report, whose excellence called forth a vote of thanks from the Classis.

The Revs. Schenck and Koechli were both elected primary delegates to the annual meeting of the General Synod, to be held at Asbury Park the first Tuesday in June.

Mr. Schenck was appointed chairman of the Committee on Synodical Minutes to report at the next meeting of the Classis in October.

Plainfielders will be gratified to learn that Trinity stood the highest in the Classis in the number of members received during the past year. It also stands third in point of membership, having 501 resident members and 59 non-resident members.

The German Reformed church of North Plainfield was offered by the Rev. Mr. Koechli as the place of holding the session of the Classis, in October. The offer was accepted.

Their Third Anniversary.

Wetumpka Lodge, No. 3,401, Knights of Honor, gave a complimentary entertainment at Music Hall last evening, in commemoration of their third anniversary. A large and select audience was present, and the play produced by the Brooklyn Comedy Company, entitled "Confusion", was rendered in a manner that gave entire satisfaction and amusement. The Committee of Arrangements—C. J. Feytel, E. S. Rogers, F. P. Haffner, L. J. VanAlstyne and C. H. Rugg—are deserving of much praise for their successful efforts in giving their friends such a delightful entertainment. Before the curtain rose, Treasurer F. P. Haffner, in a few well-chosen remarks, explained the objects of the order, and gave a history of the wonderful growth of "Wetumpka, 3,401." Altogether the entertainment was a grand success, and reflects great credit on those concerned in its management and the members of the lodge. A souvenir was presented to all. Wetumpka Lodge is here to stay.

Local Bible Training Classes.

Two workers' training classes are held at the Young Men's Christian Association rooms every Sunday at 9:15 a. m. The course of study in both classes is for the purpose of fitting the members for better Christian work, and to this end it is commended to young men who, while they have had Bible instruction, have not been taught how to use the Bible as the sword of the Spirit in dealing with individuals. The class taught by the President of the Association devotes considerable time to the study of the books of the Bible, while the class taught by the General Secretary takes up the fundamental doctrines. Those who have never availed themselves of the opportunity afforded them in these classes are invited to be present next Sunday.

106 Feet More for the Trolley on Putnam Avenue.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Your efforts in behalf of true and permanent progress in our beautiful city, we earnestly hope will be successful and finally appreciated.

The advocacy of a street railway is in the right direction, and the trolley system meets my approval.

When the Common Council decided to refuse the grant for the line up and through the eastern district, we felt we were about to be cut off from the benefits other sections were to have.

The proposed route through Fifth street and Putnam avenue receives my sanction, as the owner of 106 feet front on Putnam avenue. Yours heartily,

JOHN J. K. COARD.

The Boys' Club Base-Ball Team.

The Boys' Club base-ball team will play the Young Stars Saturday afternoon, April 28, at 2:30. the team will also play the Young Cuban Giants Saturday, May 2, and the boys of the Holy Cross choir May 9. The following boys are members of the team: D. W. Littell, Jr., D. V. Force, B. A. Kurzhals, Peter Fleming, Peter Winn, M. C. Sutphen, Wm. Conway, Garrie Mattis, Erwin Neighbor, Clarence Sutphen.

The Choir Will Go Camping.

The choir of Holy Cross church, under the management of the choir-master, W. H. Miner, is planning for a week's camp at the seashore on the Connecticut coast near Bridgeport, beginning August 3. An entertainment will be given by the choir in the school building Wednesday evening, May 27, to raise funds for the trip, and it is hoped that all the friends of the choir will help them.

Oh, What a Cough

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

Music Hall's Pink and Blue Parlor.

(For THE PRESS.)

What variegated memories,
What recollections dear,
What ghosts of bygone pleasures,
What spectres, too, of fear,
Come up before our mental eye,
And turn our mental hair,
Each time we go to Music Hall
To see the marvels there,
And view in abject wonderment
It would be mad to screen,
The pink and azure splendor
Of that dear old parlor scene.

Talk about chameleons,
And Jekyll-Hyde affairs,
And so-called versatility,
And puts and calls and shares,
And lightning-change performers,
And notes that Patti sings,
And atmospheric castles,
And folding beds and things;
All these, of course, are well enough,
And wondrous to be seen,
But they cannot hold a candle
To that grand old parlor scene.

Of course we're tired of it.
And weary one and all,
And still we have to take it,
Or cut the Music Hall;
It's always to be seen there,
And always seems to go;
It's tragic, comic, good or bad,
According to the show;
We cannot help but love it,
The faithful evergreen,
And yet we'll canonize the man
Who shoots the chronic scene.

Old Maids and Corn Flowers.

The following paragraphs, from The Woman About Town column in The Evening Sun, will be of interest to Plainfield women:

Somebody has started the question: "When does a woman become an old maid?" and some Western newspapers are entering solemnly upon a discussion of the question with regard to the number of years involved. Nonsense: the question has nothing to do with years. Old maids are born. Years don't make them. There are some women who could live unmarried for a hundred years and no one would think of calling them old maids, and The Woman has known some married women who would still be old maids if they had married a dozen times. The old-maid-ness is in the nature, not in the years. The Woman has seen 15-year-old girls that were older maids than many single women at 50. And for the most successful typical old maid in all the world you want to hunt among the ranks of the men, not the women. The worst old maid is always a man. He may be a young man, he may be middle-aged, but that has really nothing to do with it. A man or woman never really becomes an old maid. He or she is one from birth. It's an estate which one never achieves.

Everybody that writes about hats says the blue corn flower is to be the favorite garniture for hats this year, and every modiste will tell you the same thing, and everywhere you look in the shop windows you will see the ragged blue edges of the Kaiser's flower, and so it really looks as if the fashion were well set. But it will be short-lived. Any fashion is bound to be when you are faced with it at every turn, and besides the corn flower in itself is one that will appeal to a small class of people only. It is pre-eminently the young girl's flower. There isn't any sentiment about it, as there is about the rose or the violet.

It's a saucy, defiant kind of bloom that's got to stand up in a pronounced way and nod, each from its own stem. You can't hide the flowers away in little clusters under lace or behind leaves. If they're worn at all, they're worn obtrusively and with intent to ostentate them. Therefore they make all hats look very much alike. And now you are coming at the reason why the corn flower will have a short reign. Because most of us like individuality in our hats. We want to wear flowers, to be sure, but each woman wants to wear hers, as the King was to wear his rue, "with a difference", and the corn flower won't be worn that way. Therefore, before the summer fairly gets here the day of the corn flower will be over. See if it isn't.

Young People's Sociable.

The parlors of the First Baptist church were filled with young people last evening, the occasion being the monthly sociable of the Young People's League of the church. The programme was opened by a piano selection "Concerto in A flat," composed by the proficient organist of the church, William E. MacClymont. The Crescent League Quartette rendered several excellent selections, which were followed by a sleight-of-hand performance by A. G. Waring, of Brooklyn. The interesting exercises were brought to a close by a piano duet by Miss Stella Place and William E. MacClymont, which was heartily applauded.

The Election in Rahway.

The latest returns from the election at Rahway yesterday indicate that Chamberlin, the Republican candidate, has been elected Mayor, while Howard, Republican, and Halliday, Democrat, have been elected Freeholders. The election of Halliday gains one for the Democrats in the Union County Board of Freeholders, reducing the Republican majority to one.

Murderer Ellinger Pleads Guilty.

JERSEY CITY, April 15.—The grand jury indicted Pugilist Edward Ellinger for the brutal murder of his wife, and when arraigned he pleaded guilty. He will have to be tried, however.

Opposed to the Fifty-Eight Hour Bill.

BOSTON, April 15.—The House, by a vote of 87 to 73, refused to order to a third reading the bill to reduce to 58 per week the hours of labor of women and minors.

I HAVE been a great sufferer from dry catarrh for many years, and I tried many remedies, but none did so much benefit as Ely's Cream Balm. It completely cured me.—Mrs. M. J. Lally, 39 Woodward Ave., Boston Highlands, Mass.

AFTER using Ely's Cream Balm two months I was surprised to find that the right nostril, which was closed for over twenty years, was open and free as the other, and can use it now as I could not do for many years. I feel very thankful.—R. H. Cressingham, 218 18th Street, Brooklyn.

PERTINENT PARAGRAPHS.

NUGGETS OF LOCAL NEWS, WITH GRAINS OF FREE-LANCE COMMENT.

It used to be the fashion among rural fire departments to flood a burning building from top to bottom as soon as possible, no matter how insignificant the blaze was. In the olden days it was more of a bitter personal rivalry between the companies to see who got first water on and who could wet the largest amount of surface than it was a desire to save property from ruin. Matters finally came to such a pass that householders dreaded the firemen's flood as a damage-doer fully as much as they did the flames. But now, the Paragrapher is happy to observe, a new order of things is well under way. There are still, however, a few people outside of fire departments whose great cry at every little fire is "Turn on the big hose!" Some of these were on hand at the recent Wills fire on LaGrande avenue. The Paragrapher happened to be one of the spectators early on the spot, and can testify that the fire department was very prompt in responding to the alarm. Yet there were those who said bitter things of the firemen because they were so long in coming, and these cried excitedly "Now that you're here at last, you can't be too quick in getting a stream on". No doubt to those whose property is threatened with destruction the anxious moments while waiting for the engines do seem woefully long, when in reality the watch has ticked away but a few brief minutes. In this instance the department was promptly on hand. When they were urged to rush on a stream, however, better counsel prevailed. The cool-headed chiefs and the man who had the insurance on the goods in the house arrived at the proper conclusion instantly, and under their direction the water in the lines of hose was held in reserve, while the wood-work where the fire was smouldering was chopped away, the fire in the wall discovered, and water judiciously applied by the bucketful. This exhibition of judgment saved from ruin by flood goods that were insured for $22,000 and that were worth much more, and served as an instance to prove the pleasant fact that each fire company is becoming more and more a true salvage corps.

***

The destruction wrought on West Front street as the result of the careless handling of gasoline seems to have prejudiced a number of people against the use of the gasoline stove. Mr. Pierson assured the Paragrapher yesterday that the public had nothing to fear from this very useful article when properly handled. He conducted the Paragrapher through the ruins of his hardware stock to prove his assertion. Still standing in the debris was the gasoline stove that has been held responsible for all the mischief. It had not exploded even during the intense heat of the fire that so nearly succeeded in destroying the entire building. Of course all the gasoline had burned up, but there had been no explosion whatever.

"The fire was due entirely to the ignorance and carelessness of the boy"—said Mr. Pierson.—"He did just what he had been told not to do—handled fire and gasoline together, recklessly. The burns he received as the result will teach him what we had failed to impress upon him. Those who in using the stoves observe all the safe-guards that are provided will never have any trouble. A little intelligence and care is all that is needed to keep them as safe as the perfected lamp of to-day."

***

The Pierson fire came very near demonstrating the impropriety of having explosives stored in a building in the heart of the city in any considerable quantity. In the Pierson store were three canisters of gunpowder, enough, Chief Doane says, to have blown the building to pieces. Luckily, the firemen knew where the powder was, and kept water playing on the spot, else the crowd in the street might have heard a bigger noise than the popping of gun cartridges in the flames, and might have found themselves unpleasantly situated under a shower of falling bricks from the shattered building.

***

This genuine spring weather is bringing out an array of pretty Plainfield girls on the streets, and those who delight to study dress are given extensive opportunity in the charming variety of costumes worn. The Paragrapher has noticed very pretty effects in colors, and wishes he knew enough about femininity to describe some of the jaunty gowns for the benefit of women readers.

***

It seems to be the fashion among enterprising cities to institute a great moral crusade against the gaudy show bill, the low-necked chorus girl, and the short-skirted dancer. Plainfield has not yet experienced this peculiar spasm of virtue, but instead seems to be given to favoring early-Sunday-morning glove fights and things of kindred loveliness.

***

It must be pleasant for those who were present at the Allen-Berriman festive hostilities to know that the Bachelors' Club is on the war-path because of the invasion of its rooms and that a complete exposure of the affair is the inevitable result of the club's promised prosecution. Those who have already gained publicity in the matter will soon possess the satisfaction of having others in the same troubled boat.

***

In this connection the Paragrapher would remark that those who are incensed at having their names mentioned in connection with the affair are so blind to their own faults that they cannot see that whatever of disgrace they have incurred has been through their own folly. If there is any shame in having been implicated in the slugging match it is each culprit's own error if he did not avoid it by staying away. If the fight was an honorable thing no one need object to have it known that he was there. If it was disgraceful he had it within his own discretion to avoid it or share in that disgrace. No one ought to get angry at being found out. Rather should he be penitent for having committed an error which he is ashamed to have people know.

***

To the principals in the fight the Paragrapher presents this bit of information for their consideration: When the discovered ones were in their presence at the battle they seemed genial associates, and each was "hail fellow" among the others. Now those whose sin has found them out are ranting about the disgrace of having their family name dragged into the mire by having it associated with the names of "such damn loafers and damn rowdies". It must be pleasant to the others to know that these pure-minded, cultured and high-bred people who were so ready to associate with them in secret have nothing but words of profane and vulgar abuse now that the public eye is on them and their doings.

***

While considering all these things, it is not impertinent to ask who is the greater rowdy: the man who makes no pretenses but is honest and sincere and above-board in following out the life of a "sport"; or the man who lives a double life, with low society his true love, while he makes pretense of being devoted to high? Too often culture is assumed; too often the polish of good society serves as a veneer for coarseness and brutality. The true gentleman never adopts prize-ring or blackguard methods of demonstrating the extent of his culture.

***

The dandelion is again brightening the atmosphere with his "pennyworth of sunshine". He is a most welcome visitor, and as one catches a glimpse of his smiling face in the fence-corner or adorning the vacant lot he is reminded that that most charming season is nigh at hand when woods and fields are luxuriant with dandelions, violets and daisies. But the dandelion is the most faithful of all. It is the first to come and it still lingers in sheltered nooks when the snows begin to scud before the wintry blast.

Prof. Totten of Yale makes the prediction, in all devout sincerity, that in 1900 the Messiah will come again. The Paragrapher is inclined to be skeptical about these latter-day prophecies, and cannot except even Yale professors from his doubts, but nevertheless he cannot help appreciating the possibilities suggested by Mr. Totten's forecast. When one gives his imagination freedom on the subject what pictures he conjures up! A century most sublime would that be which saw Christ again on earth. Think of the multitudes even now ready to fall at His feet in worship; think of the hosts of disciples eager to flock after him in the same spirit of devotion as the faithful band of old! There is a divine sweetness in the very thought of the Saviour's living presence. Picture Him on his pilgrimage of salvation among the lost men of modern days, on this very continent, in this very nation! What multitudes would throng to hear from His own lips the story of salvation! The picture the mind's eye contemplates as one considers what the second coming of the Messiah would mean is one of ineffable beauty.

But why need the world wait for Christ's actual bodily presence? Why need men put off their time of becoming better till the Messiah is again visible in human form? The Paragrapher is told by faithful professing Christians that to every one of them Christ is a living reality, and that they feel His actual presence every hour of their lives. That is why their faith in Him makes their lives so full of happiness, peace, content. To them the Messiah is always on earth, and while others are pinning their trust on flimsy prophecies of man they are building up a faith in Christ's divinity itself that is stronger than the most solid rock, that is more lasting than all the material universe.

***

The Paragrapher wishes those who may be inclined to consider his remarks as voicing the sentiments of the paper which is generous enough to publish them to understand distinctly that he takes to himself the entire responsibility of everything he utters. His opinions are not necessarily those of the medium through which they find circulation. They are only his own ideas, and are to be taken as such for what they are worth. What he has said, or may to have say, in comment on any subject, does not commit THE PRESS in any particular. If by reason of anything that appears over his signature anyone sees fit to take offense, that offense ought to be visited solely on Paragrapher's own head. Let parties with a grievance against the Paragrapher consider the Paragrapher and THE PRESS as two separate individuals, and act accordingly. Neither, however, the Paragrapher is sure, will ever wilfully cause undeserved injury to anyone.

Titsworth, 50 ft on 5th st.
Weseman, Alonzo W. 100 ft on Richmond street.

Property owners along the above route will be recorded for or against, as they desire, upon sending their names and frontage owned to THE PRESS office.

Fear a Monetary Disturbance.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Assistant Treasurer Whelpley received a telegram from Boston to the effect that Boston bankers fear a monetary disturbance, if the share of Massachusetts' direct tax is paid in silver certificates. The bankers say that Maine's direct tax, amounting to $257,000, was paid in this currency, and they fear that the $700,000 to which Massachusetts is entitled will also be so paid. They express a preference for gold notes. Assistant Treasurer Whelpley replied that the amount due Massachusetts would be paid in the currency most convenient to the government, and the sub-Treasury at Boston will be so directed.

Secretary Proctor Going Home.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Secretary Proctor will leave for Montpelier, Vt., in about a week, or after he disposes of the accumulation of work on his table. The Secretary will see Gov. Page on his visit home, and on this consultation will depend the question of Mr. Proctor's resignation next fall.

Mrs. Halford Seriously Ill.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Mrs. Halford, the wife of Private Secretary Halford, who recently returned to Washington from Florida in ill health, is reported seriously ill. Her friends and physicians feel much alarmed about her.

Three Families Poisoned by Milk.

LYNN, Mass., April 15.—Three families in this city were poisoned by milk purchased of a grocer on Monday, and all are in a critical condition. A portion of the fluid has been saved and will be analyzed. The recovery of Mrs. Sabina Stanley is doubtful.

Disastrous Stockyard Fire.

PITTSBURG, April 15.—Over three acres of the sheds at the East Liberty stock yards were destroyed by fire shortly after midnight. One hundred and thirty-seven head of cattle and one horse were burned. The cattle stampeded and rushed into the flames.

His Body Found in a Creek.

RONDOUT, N. Y., April 15.—The body of James Doyle, aged 21, who disappeared from his home here last December, was found floating in Rondout Creek at noon. It is believed that he was accidentally drowned.

Charged With Robbing a Postoffice.

NYACK, N. Y., April 15.—Postoffice inspectors arrested Hugo Willis at West Nyack on a charge of robbing the post-office at Sparkill on Saturday night. He was sent to the county jail at New City to await an examination to-morrow.

Found a Box of Human Bones.

BOSTON, April 15.—A box of human bones was found during the day by some workmen engaged in excavating a cellar on Park street. The bones were packed in sawdust and charcoal. An investigation will be made.

An Old Church Sold.

BOSTON, April 15.—The old West Church on Lynde street, built in 1806, has been sold for $5,000. The church will be torn down and a business building erected in its stead. The old church is distinguished as the church where Unitarianism was first preached in Boston.

Sporting Item.

A.—I see that they are trying to put a stop to all betting in New York.

B.—I'm glad of it. Betting is a pernicious practice. I hope they will stop it.

"But they can't do it."

"Can't do it! I'll bet you fifty dollars they can."—Texas Siftings.

Days of Horror.

First Traveler—I was in Paris during the siege.

Second Traveler—I was in New York during the draft riots.

Third Traveler—I was in Scotland when the railway strikers paraded the streets with bagpipes.—N. Y. Weekly.

Trial of Italian Brigands.

ROME, April 15.—The trial of the members of the Mala Vita Society, at Bari, was continued to-day. Several victims of the society testified to stabs they had received, and the police gave evidence as to the discovery of the methods of the society, quoting secret inculpatory information, but withholding the names of the informers. The proceedings continue to be attended with violent scenes.

Slight Shock of Earthquake.

VISALIA, Cal., April 15.—About 10:30 o'clock last night a sharp shock of earthquake occurred here. The vibrations were from north to south.

Bridges Still Necessary.

Stranger (in Chicago)—These drawbridges are a nuisance. Why do you have them?

Chicago Man (apologetically)—Well, er—you see, sir, the water in the river isn't always thick enough to walk on.—N. Y. Weekly.

A Way Out.

Anglomaniac—That's the way it goes. If we hunt foxes, folks say we're cruel; if we hunt aniseed bags, folks laugh at us. What can we hunt, without exciting indignation or ridicule?

Small Boy—Rats!—Good News.

The Matter of Age.

Aged Millionaire—And you refuse me? Miss Beauti—I am sorry, sir, but I can not be your wife.

"Is it because I am too old?"

"No. Because you are not older."—N. Y. Weekly.

Took Him at His Word.

Gussy (a little tipsy)—Would you die for me, old fel?

Charley—Why, of course I would.

Gussy—I wish you would, dear boy. I wish you would.—Texas Siftings.

It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are not straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public esteem accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for telling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of shoes.

HER TYRANT MASTER.

With cheeks aglow from kisses of the frost,
Blue laughing eyes, and shining hair, windtossed,
She comes in breathless, bright, a little late,
Fair as a dream, but pitiless as Fate.

She struggles with her rubbers on the mat,
Lays by her jacket and hangs up her hat,
Pulls off her gloves, and sweetly thoughtful stands
Beside the register, to warm her hands.

I look up, at her soft "good morning;" then
I mumble "morning," and lay down my pen.
And then her task begins, and, like a Turk,
I keep her—how remorselessly—at work!

She's my typewriter yet, and I'm her "boss,"
I hear her tell the bookkeeper I'm "cross,"
And "hard to please." Great Scott! that isn't it,
If she could only know how hard I'm hit!

Oh, yes, I scold you, dear; I nag and yell;
Only because you please me far too well;
Alas, because I'd like to knock in two
The tall young fellow who walks home with you.

—Madeline S. Bridges, in Puck.

THE TEST.

Locating the Traitor in a Russian Conspiracy.

One bitterly cold winter's evening five men were seated together in a small room in a house situated in the Jewish quarter of a busy and largely populated Russian city. The appearance of the room was as wretched as the external aspect of the house itself. The solitary window was totally concealed by a heavy faded curtain, depending from the roof, and as the wind moaned dismally through the broken panes of glass its somber folds swayed to and fro. The inmates of this mournful den were seated around the table, smoking their pipes and talking, as if furtively, in whispers. As the feeble rays of the candle fell fitfully upon the company they revealed the youthful faces of four students. The chief spokesman, however, was a much older man, apparently about fifty, with a short, pointed beard, shaggy brows and keen, penetrating eyes of the darkest hue. The others deferentially addressed the speaker as "professor," and such, indeed, he was at that time at a well-known school of medicine in Russia.

On the present occasion, however, he was speaking, not of science, but of the terrible doctrine of assassination.

Prof. V—— was a nihilist, a reputed Colossus of craft in the dissemination of revolutionary doctrines, and on the particular evening in question he was engaged in advocating with fiery eloquence the assassination of a certain colonel who had lately been promoted to the rank of chief commissioner of the secret police. As the night wore on their whispered conversation was suddenly interrupted by a low knocking at the outer door. In a moment the conspirators sprang noiselessly to their feet and listened with bated breath. The sound was repeated—a peculiar whistle was heard from without, and the listeners exchanged significant glances and quietly resumed their seats. Presently cautious footsteps were heard in an outer room, the door was opened, and a young man hastily entered. His face was pale, his manner agitated, and as he returned his companions' salutations he regarded them with a fixed and angry stare.

"You have kept us waiting, comrade," exclaimed the professor, puffing calmly at his pipe. "Ugh! we are almost frozen, for the air of this wretched apartment is quite Siberian. But now to business. We will warm ourselves with talk, and fire our minds with the prospect of revenge."

There was a murmur of approval. It was noticed, however, that the young man who had just appeared upon the scene took his seat in silence, and, resting his elbows upon the table, slowly scrutinized the faces of his comrades.

"My dear professor," he said at length, "we cannot possibly proceed at present with this business."

"Why not?" was unanimously asked.

"Because," replied the latest comer, as he quietly snuffed the candle—"because one of us is a traitor."

"A traitor!" exclaimed the men, starting to their feet.

"Yes, comrades, we are betrayed; and as no one knows of this plot of ours except ourselves, it is plain, I think, that one of us has turned informant."

"You are mad to say so," hoarsely exclaimed the professor; "but in heaven's name, what has happened? Come, tell us quickly. This is no jesting matter."

"Listen, then. On my way hither, comrades, I entered a cafe de Paris to sip a cup of tea and smoke a cigarette. I happened to sit beside two officers of the secret police, and as one of them was somewhat tipsy, I could distinctly hear his conversation. I found it rather interesting. He told his companion that he was under orders to surround this old, deserted house at midnight—it was near eleven now—and to arrest all persons found within. He mentioned, moreover, all our names, and added, with a maudlin laugh, that a certain person, to whom the administration is eternally indebted, would be found in our midst playing the part of conspirator. Now, comrades, I have done. What shall we do?"

The men looked at each other in dismay. A dead silence filled the room, for the mere suspicion of treachery among the men who had solemnly dedicated their lives to the sacred cause of liberty seemed to hold them dumb. Such villainy in their very midst—among men banded together in sacred brotherhood—was a greater crime than the merciless acts of a despot and his minions.

"If this is true," said the professor, in a voice of suppressed rage, "then I will no longer believe in human fidelity, or the future of our cause. But—death! if the story is true. Which of us is the informer?" added the speaker, staring fiercely at the pale faces of his companions.

"Pah! it is useless to ask that, my dear professor," exclaimed Ivan—such was the name of the youth who had brought the strange intelligence—as he advanced to the door of the room, locked it, and placed the key in his pocket. "Every one will assert his innocence—of course. But, comrades, suppose we endeavor to find him out? Let us search each other. The traitor, whoever he may be, must doubtless have in his possession some proof of his guilt. At least, the experiment is worth trying. What say you?

"Agreed! agreed!" exclaimed the nihilists, as with one accord they sprang convulsively to their feet. One of the students—a tall, lank youth, with a somewhat foppish appearance—objected, however, to the proposal.

"But why?" hotly demanded the professor, who seemed all eagerness to begin the investigation.

"Because," was the hesitating rejoinder, "honor ought to be enough. Besides there is something degrading in the idea of searching one another, as if, indeed, we were a lot of pickpockets. So let us break up the meeting. This excitement is absurd, and renders the discussion of our plot impossible. As for the story told by the drunken soldier in the cafe, I don't believe a word of it."

These words produced an angry murmur among the excited conspirators. The protest seemed so ridiculous; and as the clamor increased Ivan turned to the speaker and warmly exclaimed: "Very well; we shall abstain from searching you, since you wish it; but remember this, that if we fail to find a clew to the informant among those who willingly submit to the examination we shall then know upon whom to fix our suspicions. Now, comrades, search me first; I am ready."

In a moment the speaker's pockets were emptied of their contents, and even the lining of his clothes was carefully searched, but beyond a few old love-letters, some political pamphlets and an English newspaper with a paragraph obliterated with lampblack nothing of an incriminating character was found. A second student readily submitted to the test—if test it was—with similar results. Then a third stepped forward and placed himself in the hands of his companions. But at that moment a curious incident occurred. An invisible hand suddenly extinguished the light of the candle, and in a second the room was plunged in utter darkness.

What did it mean? Who had quenched the light? For a moment the nihilists remained motionless, as if rooted to the spot. As they listened in alarm they heard a strange, creaking sound in the direction of the curtained window.

Suddenly the voice of Ivan exclaimed in the darkness: "Comrades, this is a trick! Listen! Some one is endeavoring to escape by the window! It is the traitor at last. His attempt to escape betrays his guilt. Stand back! I know how to deal with him!"

In an instant the reports of three revolver shots rang through the room and were followed by an agonizing yell as some one fell heavily upon the floor.

A profound silence then ensued.

It was an awful situation.

At length Ivan spoke to his terrified companions.

"Strike a light now," he said, in a trembling voice, "and let us look upon the face of a traitor. Will no one move? Are you all afraid to gaze upon the dead body of a miscreant who has betrayed us to our enemies? Come, professor, where are the matches? You had them last. But hush! What sound is that? Listen! By heavens, comrades, the police are upon us already. The house is surrounded! Quick! here is a trap-door known only to myself. It leads to the main sewer and is our only hope of escape. Follow me."

Groping hand in hand in the dark, the affrighted men followed the speaker's directions, and after some momentary confusion disappeared into a noisome abyss. None too soon. In another instant the door of the room was battered to pieces, and a company of gendarmes entered. Lights were now flashed in every direction, but it was obvious to all that the conspirators had escaped. The officer in charge swore long and deep, and ordered the men to search the house from top to bottom. Then, advancing toward the window, he stumbled over a human body.

"What's this?" he exclaimed, examining the dead man's features with a lantern. "Ha! so they have caught you at last, my friend, have they? Well, you played the spy long and well, but it always come to this in the end."

And tearing down the window curtain, the officer threw it over the rigid body of—the professor.—Pall Mall Budget.

THE CHILD-KINGS.

A Quaint Old Religious Procession on the Spanish Coast.

One of the most charming festivals of a religious character to be seen in Europe is that of the Three Kings, or Magi, celebrated every winter on variable dates at St. Jean de Luz in Spain.

The church of St. Jean de Luz is said to possess some relics of those wise men of the east who followed the star until it lay over Bethlehem, and led them to the manger where the Christ-child lay.

In the old days this festival was general in the country round about, but it is now confined to a procession in the town, in which all the religious, civil and military authorities join.

The chief feature of the procession is the trio of kings, represented by three beautiful boys in fine oriental costumes, their long trains borne by pages in costumes of the time of Francis the First.

The chronology is a little mixed, but the intentions are excellent and the effect of the whole is like that of looking into some illuminated missal of the middle ages.—N. Y. Journal.

Couldn't Work Both Ways.

Patent Medicine Proprietor — I'm very sorry you can't give us a testimonial for our Anti-Fat. We're willing to pay well, but I suppose you are opposed to recommending anything.

Popular Minister—It isn't that, my dear sir. The trouble is that you are just a little too late. This very morning I wrote a testimonial for another man's Anti-Lean.—Jury.

OUR COTTAGE HOMES.

A Pretty Little House That Can Be Built for About $2,200.

We present with this issue scale drawings of a story and a half cottage of seven rooms, suitable for any exposure:

SPECIFICATIONS.

The frame of the house will rest on 8x8 sills, properly framed and supported by 8-inch cedar posts set in the ground on blocks and braced between with 2x4 scantling. The studding for the outside walls will be 2x4, sit 16 inches from centers, double at corners. These studs will be 16 feet long, with a ribbon joined in to support second story joist and a double plate at top to carry the rafters, size 4x4. The rafters will be 2x4, 12 feet long, framed as indicated by the elevation. Floor joist should be 2x10 and 2x8, and the ceiling joist 2x4, all placed 16-inch centers. Roof boards and outside sheathing to be 6-inch straight-edged fencing. Shingles, either cypress, redwood or pine. The diagonal work shown on the elevation indicates 1x3 matched and beaded pine; all doors to be five-paneled P. G., 1⅜ inches thick, hung with 4½x4½ japanned butts; locks, 4-inch mortise; knobs, jet or porcelain. All window frames to be boxed for weights, and sash to be 1⅛ thick lip sash. All of the casings, jambs, sash and interior finishing lumber throughout is estimated to be best quality, clear seasoned pine, the stairs to be of pine, but the handrail and balusters of oak, either white or red, quarter-sawed. The floors of each story are estimated to be 1⅛, 2d quality pine, free from loose or large knots, and all well laid and smoothed off. The outside woodwork and shingles, also all of the interior finishing lumber and the kitchen floor, should be painted with three coats of colors, in two shades as the builder may select. The glass is to be double strength for all large, single and for all small windows.

The outside covering of this building is to be 6 inch clear siding of pine. Before laying the siding a thickness of good felt paper should be well lapped and nailed on top of the sheathing; all of the work of the cornice, gables and ornamental work of roof, should be made of good white pine, nearly clear. The plastering is to be two-coat work. The chimneys for the house as indicated by the plans, should be built of good hard brick, laid in lime mortar.

PROGRESS IN SCIENCE.

A commission has been appointed in England to inquire into the effect of coal dust in originating or extending explosions in coal mines.

A very artistic effect has been obtained by india-rubber panels or veneers, which are very beautiful in color and admit of easy cleaning with soap and water.

There is said to be a large field for the growth and manufacture of tobacco in Victoria, but so far the efforts made in this direction have met only with indifferent success, owing to the defects arising from want of knowledge in the drying and treatment of the leaf after it has been cut.

It has been concluded that whatever preservative is to be applied, the timber for piles, subjected to the action of seaworms, should first be charred, so as to kill any germs near the surface, open the pores of the wood for the antiseptic, and destroy the nutritive matter upon which the worm lives while beginning its action.

"THE DRESS IS FINISHED, SO AM I."

A gorgeous costume flashed beneath the brilliant lights of a ball-room; "a queen of society is radiant to-night."

The nervous hands of a weak woman have toiled day and night, the weary frame and aching head have known no rest—for "the dress must be finished in time."

To that queen of society and her dressmaker we would say a word. One, through hot-house culture, luxury, and excitement, and the other, through the toil of necessity, may some day find their ailments a common cause. The Vegetable Compound will enable both to meet the demands of society. Send stamp for "Guide to Health," a beautiful illustrated book.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Is the only Positive Cure and Legitimate Remedy for the peculiar weaknesses and ailments of women.

It cures the worst forms of Female Complaints, that Bearing-down Feeling, Weak Back, Failing and Displacement of the Womb, Inflammation, Ovarian Troubles, and all Organic Diseases of the Uterus or Womb, and is invaluable to the Change of Life. Dissolves and expels Tumors from the Uterus at an early stage, and checks any tendency to Cancerous Humor. Subdues Faintness, Excitability, Nervous Prostration, Exhaustion, and strengthens and tones the Stomach. Cures Headache, General Debility, Indigestion, etc., and invigorates the whole system. For the cure of Kidney Complaints of either sex, the Compound has no rival.

All Druggists sell it as a standard article, or sent by mail, in form of Pills or Lozenges, on receipt of $1.00. LYDIA E. PINKHAM MED. CO., LYNN, MASS.

No Difference Perceptible.

Jones—Very stupid girl, that Miss Wilpin.

Smith—How so?

"Why, you see we were guessing conundrums the other evening, and I asked her what was the difference between myself and a donkey."

"Well?"

"Well? Why, by jove, she said she didn't know."

"Well, as far as that goes, I don't either."—Texas Siftings.

A Little Cherub.

Little Boy—Mamma, may I give what's in my savings-bank to that beggar man?

Mamma—You dear, sweet little cherub! Do you want to give away all of that money your uncle gave you? There was over a dollar.

"I spent some of it, mamma."

"Did you? How much is there left?

"There's a twenty-five-cent piece left, but th' candy man said it was bad."—N. Y. Weekly.

In Accordance with Precedents.

Mr. Chugwater (during slight intermission in certain lecture)—Samantha, if I were dead would you pay the customary honors to my memory?

Mrs. Chugwater—I suppose I would. What of it?

"Nothing, only if you keep this up another hour and a half you'll talk me to death. I wish you would close your mouth now as a mark of respect."—Chicago Tribune.

No Wonder He Was Weary.

Jaypole (after telling a funny story to Blobson, whose face wears a wearied expression)—Don't you think that's a good story, Blobson, or can't you see the point?

Blobson—The story is all right, Jaypole, but I told it to you myself not long ago, and this is the third time you've told it back to me.—Boston Herald.

Two Sides of the Question.

She—Poor little thing! Only married a month and her mother died yesterday.

He—What a lucky dog her husband is! Only married a month and his mother-in-law died yesterday.—Munsey's Weekly.

Knew It Never Would Be.

Riggs—Look here, Bailey, I loaned you five dollars about six months ago; when do you expect to pay it?

Bailey—Never, old man. You told me to pay you when it was convenient.—Boston Herald.

Convincing Testimony.

Brown—Are you sure this is good sticking mucilage?

Stationer—You bet.

Brown—Ever use it?

Stationer—No; but a bottle once broke in my pocket.—Harper's Bazar.

PREPARING FOR THE WORST.

Inquiring Friend—Great Scott! What on earth are you doing?

Prospective Benedict—Oh! just rehearsing. Going to be married next month.—Puck.

Too Much Curiosity.

"What two beautiful children! Are they twins?" said an old bachelor to an Austin lady with two children.

"O, yes, they are twins," replied the lady.

"Excuse my curiosity, madam; but are you the mother of both of them?"—Texas Siftings.

Not Fresh from the Oven.

Tramp (after receiving a biscuit)—Where is your wood-pile, lady?

Lady—Out in the shed, sir. How kind of you to offer to split some wood.

Tramp—I'm not going to split any wood. I want to find the axe to split this biscuit.—Boston Herald.

May 7, 1890.

F.E.C. Medicine Co., Rochester, N.Y.:

For seven or eight years my wife has been troubled with some kind of kidney trouble. She tried many different remedies but all in vain. She continued to grow worse. Last fall I induced her to try the F. E. C. Remedy, and before using one bottle she began to improve, and now, after using six bottles, she is entirely cured. I have recommended it to many and it has benefitted in every case heard from.

ITALY IS ANSWERED

Secretary Blaine Sends a Firm Reply to Rudini.

OUR POSITION CLEARLY STATED.

The United States Does Not Insure the Lives of Italy's Subjects.

Only a Bare Possibility that Indemnity Will Be Paid—There Must Be Undoubted Proof that We Violated the Treaty with Italy—King Humbert Will Have to Wait and Hear from Louisiana.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The second chapter of the diplomatic correspondence relating to the Italian incident is made public. It consists of Premier Rudini's reply to Secretary Blaine's first letter, and of Secretary Blaine's reply to Italy's second demand. The letter has been fully discounted in these dispatches.

Secretary Blaine's reply was furnished the Marquis Imperiali, in charge of the Italian Legation here, who immediately sent it by cable to Rome. Additional copies were made, and last night it was made public.

Of course the important part of this correspondence is Secretary Blaine's letter. The Secretary has not withdrawn in the least from his original attitude in declaring that the law will take its course and cannot be hurried; that indemnities may be granted the families of the men killed at New Orleans in cases where it is proven that they were Italian subjects, and that the Federal government cannot trespass upon the prerogatives of the State.

The letter is written in that bold and undaunted style for which the Secretary is so well known. He corrects in an emphatic manner, the attempt of Premier Rudini to place in his (Blaine's) previous letter language not used, and the meaning for which there was not ground. He also calls the Premier's attention to the fact that when foreigners receive the benefit of the same laws that our own citizens do, they have the same recourse as our citizens for redress, and he backs up this line of reasoning by quoting the action taken by President Fillmore and Secretary Webster at the time the Spanish Consul at New Orleans was assaulted by a mob of Americans in August, 1851. He shows further that Spain then did not insist strenuously for an indemnity. The text of Secretary Blaine's letter is as follows:

Italy Will Have to Wait.

As promptly as possible after the lamentable occurrence at New Orleans the President directed the Attorney General to cause through his department a full inquiry to be made into all the facts connected therewith, and solicited his opinion whether any criminal proceedings would lie under the Federal laws in the Federal Courts against persons charged with the killing of Italian subjects. He has not yet received the official report. If it be found that a prosecution can be maintained under the statutes of the United States, the case will be presented to the next Grand Jury, according to the usual methods of criminal administration. But if it shall be found, as seems probable, that criminal proceedings can only be taken in the courts of Louisiana, the President can in this direction do no more than to urge upon the State officers the duty of promptly bringing the offenders to trial. This was done in his telegram to the Governor of Louisiana as early as March 15.

If it shall result that the case can be prosecuted only in the State Courts of Louisiana, and the judicial investigation and procedure under the laws are not resorted to, it will then be the duty of the United States to consider whether some other form of redress may be asked. It is understood that the State Grand Jury is now investigating the affair, and, while it is possible that the Grand Jury may fail to present indictments, the United States government cannot assume that such will be the case.

Foreigners Not a Favored Class.

The United States did not by the treaty with Italy become the insurer of the lives or property of Italian subjects resident within our territory. No government is able, however high its civilization, however vigilant its police supervision, however severe its criminal code and however prompt and inflexible its criminal administration, to secure its own citizens against violence promoted by individual malice or by sudden popular tumult. The foreign resident must be content in such cases to share the same redress that is offered by the law to the citizen, and has no just cause of complaint, or right to ask the interposition of his country, if the courts are equally open to him for the redress of his injuries.

The treaty in the first, second and third, and notably in the 23d, articles, clearly limits the rights guaranteed to the citizens of the contracting powers in the territory of each to equal treatment and to free access to the courts of justice. Foreign residents are not made a favored class. It is not believed that Italy would desire a more stringent construction of her duty under the treaty. Where the injury inflicted upon a foreign resident is not the act of the government, or of its officers, but of an individual or of a mob, it is believed that no claim for indemnity can be justly made unless it shall be made to appear that the public authorities charged with the peace of the community have connived at the unlawful act, or having timely notice of threatened danger, have been guilty of such gross negligence in taking the necessary precautions as to amount to connivance.

The Question of Indemnity.

If, therefore, it should appear that among those killed by the mob at New Orleans there were some Italian subjects, who were resident or domiciled in that city, agreeable to our treaty with Italy, and not in violation of our immigration laws, and who were abiding in the peace of the United States and obeying the laws thereof and of the State of Louisiana, and that the public officers charged with the duty of protecting life and property in that city connived at the work of the mob, or upon proper notice or information of the threatened danger, failed to take any steps for the preservation of the public peace, and afterwards to bring the guilty to trial, the President would, under such circumstances, feel that a case was established that should be submitted to the consideration of Congress with a view to the relief of the families of the Italian subjects who lose their lives by lawless violence.

Accept, sir, the renewed assurances of my high consideration.

JAMES G. BLAINE.

Another Murder Trial for Camden.

CAMDEN, N. J., April 16.—Camden will have another murder trial. Leonard Weinig, a butcher, who was beaten by Williams, alias Major Mount, a desperate character, died in Cooper Hospital early in the morning. Mount waited for Weinig last Wednesday and hit him in the jaw with a brick. They had quarrelled while drinking in a saloon.

Knocked Out in Two Rounds.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., April 16.—James Slattery, late of San Francisco, easily defeated George Baker, of Buffalo, at Duryeas early in the morning. The men fought for $200 a side. In the second round Slattery knocked Baker clean out of the ring, and the latter refused to enter it again. The fight was then awarded to Slattery.

Ended Her Life With Poison.

ALTOONA, Pa., April 16.—Rose Gillespie, an accomplished young woman of this city, committed suicide with corrosive sublimate. She made an ante-mortem statement showing that she had been the victim of misplaced confidence. Her betrayer has been arrested.

New Officers for the Yale Navy.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 16.—Floyd Jones, '92, was elected president of the Yale Navy at a mass meeting of Yale students last night. A. B. Graves, '92, was chosen vice-president, J. T. Robinson, '93, secretary, and Prof. A. M. Wheeler treasurer.

PITTSBURG, April 16.—Dr. F. F. Hyst, of Lewisburg, has been appointed by the Governor a trustee of the State Hospital for the Insane at Danville.

GEORGIA'S WELCOME

President Harrison Warmly Received in Atlanta.

WALK OVER OLD BATTLEFIELDS.

The Chief Magistrate Given a Public Reception in the State Capitol.

Streams of Callers, Black and White, Pay Their Respects—The President Impressed With the Cordial Greeting—Secretary Rusk Decides to Remain During the Entire Journey—At Birmingham To-night.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 16.—The pleasure of the trip of the Presidential party from Chattanooga, Tenn., was somewhat marred by the receipt of a dispatch from Private Secretary Halford announcing the death of Mrs. Halford. When informed just after the train left Chattanooga that Mrs. Halford was dead, the President expressed sincere sorrow and immediately dispatched a message of condolence to Mr. Halford.

The track of the Western & Atlanta Railroad, over which the train proceeded to Atlanta, marked the line of the route taken by General Sherman on his famous march to the sea. The President and Marshal Ransdell sat in the observation car most of the journey and entertained other members of the party with an account of the battles in which they had participated, while the former was Colonel of and the latter in the ranks of the 70th Indiana Regiment.

Where Ransdell Lost His Arm.

Resaca proved the most interesting to the President of all the places along the line of the road. It was here that Marshal Ransdell lost his arm, while the 70th Indiana and a number of other regiments charged the Confederate intrenchments, under command of Colonel Harrison, who was one of the first over the breastworks. The President pointed out Confederate positions and talked reminiscently of the battle.

At Kingston and Cartersville the President made brief speeches. Marietta was the only other stop made before reaching Atlanta, except Altoona Gap, between Cartersville and Marietta, where Gen. Sherman signalled from Kennesaw Mountains, near Marietta, to Gen. John M. Corse, "Hold the fort till hell freezes over."

As the train approached the vicinity of Atlanta steam whistles from the factories and the wayside, showed that Atlanta's reception was to be a cordial one.

In the vicinity of the depot an immense concourse had assembled. Fences, railroad cars, telegraph poles and all manner of structures being used by those anxious to get a glimpse of the President. Cheering for half an hour was incessant, and, as the train moved along, the streets of the business portion of the city were fairly jammed with people, who gave their lungs full vent. As the train came to a standstill Gov. Northen, who had sent Col. West of his staff to meet the President at Marietta, came on the platform and grasping the President's hand, said:

Warmly Welcomed to Georgia.

"Mr. President, I welcome you to Georgia, and I am sure you will find us loyal and hospitable."

The President's party and the local committee took carriages after leaving the train and passed through a line of Grand Army men and a committee of Confederate veterans and proceeded in a procession through the principal streets to Peach Tree Creek battlefield on the outskirts of the city, where Colonel Harrison commanded the 70th Indiana during the great fight there. A number of the houses on the streets along which the President passed were decorated with bunting. At the battlefield the party went on foot over a part of it, but did not go far enough to see the position occupied by the President's regiment. On the return to the city the President went to the State Capitol building, where a reception to the public was held until 9 o'clock. Large numbers of people attended the levee. Governor Northern, Mayor Hemphill and 61 other prominent citizens assisted the President in receiving. When the reception was over the President's party went to the executive mansion and held a card reception to prominent citizens.

Secretary Rusk, who intended leaving the party at Houston, Texas, has decided to remain during the entire journey.

BISMARCK BEATEN.

The Socialist Candidate Polls More Votes in Forty Districts.

BERLIN, April 16.—Forty districts at Gerstemunde give Bismarck, 3,223; Schmalfield, Socialist, 3,284; Adolf, Freisinnige, 1,490; Plate, Guelph, 1,391.

There will probably be a re-ballot between Bismarck and Schmalfield.

A New Kind of Highbinders' Blackmail.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 16.—Chinese Highbinders have adopted a new device for collecting blackmail, and instead of shooting their victims they threaten to make them go to Alaska to work in the canneries. Wong Ah Bang, an ex-convict, has been arrested for threatening to compel Sang Foo to go to Alaska in June if he did not pay $60.

London Sympathy for Italy.

LONDON, April 16.—The Daily News condemns America's treatment of Italy, and says that it must be fine sport for Blaine; that the melancholy business has been characterized throughout by an utter want of sympathy with Italy's patriotic anger.

American Association Games.

NEW YORK, April 16.—The American Association championship games yesterday resulted as follows: Louisville 5, Cincinnati 4; Boston 6, Washington 2; St. Louis 13, Columbus 8; Baltimore 14, Athletic 4.

DRIVEN OUT BY FIRE.

Many Families Rescued in a Half-Suffocated Condition.

BLOOMFIELD, N. J., April 16.—Three explosions of gunpowder occurred in the house of John Huntingdon, No. 290 Glenwood avenue, at 1 a. m.

The house burst into flames, and the families in it were rescued by the Fire Department. The flames spread to the adjoining houses and stores and destroyed Nos. 284, 286, 288, 292, 294 and 296. All these houses were frame and mostly occupied by two and three families, many of whom were rescued in a half-suffocated condition.

There was no loss of life, however, but dozens of families are rendered homeless, while nearly everyone lost all the goods and furniture they possessed. One of the firemen was badly burned in rescuing an invalid woman from a second story. The pecuniary loss will be heavy.

Huntingdon kept a stock of fireworks in the basement of his house, which he used as a store, and it is believed that the exploding of these fireworks must have set the building on fire.

SIX IN THE CAGE.

Miners Injured While Riding Up a Slope at Locust Gap Colliery.

ASHLAND, Pa., April 16.—By the shifting of the gear on the hoisting cage at Locust Gap Colliery, John and Phenix Keroski were perhaps fatally, and Thomas Farrell, Frank Stahl, Peter Duppy and Matthew Coniski seriously injured.

The men were riding up the slope and when 150 yards from the bottom the gearing shifted precipitating the cage to the bottom.

Marshall Glenwright, a pump man, and John Stahl, father of Frank Stahl, leaped from the cage as it was descending and escaped with slight injuries.

READY FOR WAR.

The British Troops Advancing to Subdue the Manipuris.

CALCUTTA, April 16.—More serious fighting is looked forward to between the British troops and the insurgent Manipuris.

The Manipuris are actively engaged in erecting stone stockades on the British side of Thobal. The position in which they are intrenching themselves is one of a nature which will make their dislodgement a task of great difficulty.

The troops under command of General Graham and General Collett are rapidly advancing and a battle will soon take place.

Death of a Prominent Democrat.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., April 16.—The sudden death of Hon. Wm. H. Murtha, has caused much regret throughout the city. The Mayor ordered the flags upon the city buildings to be placed at half mast. The cause of his death was pneumonia. He was a State Senator in 1879, and has served the city as Alderman and member of the Board of Education. He was also Register of King's county. He was well known throughout the State on account of his management of the Democratic campaign in 1888.

Gov. Hill's Last Reception.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 16.—Governor Hill and staff received a brilliant assemblage of guests on the occasion of the last reception given by him to the Legislature last night. Most of the members of the Senate and Assembly, Judges of the Court of Appeals and prominent citizens of the city were present. Many noted people from out of town were also in attendance.

An Ex-Bank President Arrested.

NEW YORK, April 16.—Ex-President Nathaniel Niles, of the Tradesman National Bank, was arrested on complaint of Mrs. Eliza Poret, otherwise called the "French Madam," on a charge of embezzling $6,000 she had given him to pay a mortgage on the Bijou Cafe. He was released on $5,000 bail.

Rhode Island Legislation.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 16.—In the Senate a resolution appropriating $50,000 for the State's exhibit at the World's Fair was referred to a committee. The Senate agreed to meet the House in Grand Committee to-morrow and elect a Chief Justice and Associate Justice of the Supreme Court.

Yellow Fever on Board.

NEW YORK, April 16.—The steamship Garrick, from Santos, arrived at quarantine last night with two cases of yellow fever on board. Several of the crew had been sick with the disease but had recovered before the vessel reached here. The Garrick will be held at quarantine until the scourge is gotten rid of.

The Eddy Creek Breaker Burned.

SCRANTON, Pa., April 16.—The Eddy creek breaker at Olyphant, belonging to the Delaware & Hudson Canal Company was burned last night. Loss, $100,000. About 500 hands were thrown out of employment by the fire.

He Sues for $100,000.

NEW YORK, April 16.—G. F. Livingstone, of Springfield, Mass., has brought suit against the Pacific Mail Steamship Company for $100,000 damages for injuries received on the steamship Colon on September 22, 1889.

Reunion of the Minute Men of '61.

BOSTON, April 16.—A reunion and banquet was held in Faneuil Hall last evening by the Minute Men of 1861, who responded to the first call for troops. About 500 were in attendance. Colonel Henry Walker presided.

Every Colliery Now Working.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., April 16.—About 800 employes of the Hickory Ridge Mine have resumed work. Every colliery in this district is now working.

Passed the Substitute Excise Bill.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 16.—The Assembly passed the substitute Scheff Excise bill by the following vote—ayes 68, nays 54.

FIGHTING DR. BRIGGS

Presbyteries Protest to the General Assembly.

ACCUSED OF TEACHING HERESY.

His Views at Variance With the Belief of the Presbyterian Church.

Denounced for His Utterances on the Subject of Inspiration and Related Doctrines—Decided Stand for the Old Faith. Think He is Not a Proper Teacher for Theological Students.

CARLISLE, Pa., April 16.—The Carlisle Presbytery has taken a decided stand for the old faith and against Dr. Briggs. The Rev. Dr. George S. Chambers of the Pine Street Presbyterian Church, Harrisburg, introduced two resolutions. The first expresses the respectful protest of the Presbytery against the utterance of Prof. Briggs on the occasion of his induction into the Edward Robinson Chair of Biblical Theology in the Union Theological Seminary, as at variance with the formulated belief of the Presbyterian Church respecting the supremacy and infallibility of Holy Scripture, and as being particularly important in indicating the line along which instruction will be given to theological students. The second requests the General Assembly, which will meet in Detroit next month, to take such action as will counteract these harmful utterances.

A Protest from New Brunswick.

TRENTON, N. J., April 16.—The Presbytery of New Brunswick, after a long session, adopted resolutions in disapproval of the theological views of Prof. Charles A. Briggs, of Union Theological Seminary, New York. The petition embodying this disapproval was offered by Mr. Barker J. Gummer, of the First Church of Trenton. Mr. Gummer advocated the petition at length on doctrinal grounds. Dr. McKnight, of New Brunswick, and Counsellor Hageman, of Princeton, opposed it. The latter said that Prof. Briggs should first have an opportunity to be heard. The resolutions conclude with a request that the General Assembly consider whether they should disapprove of Prof. Briggs.

Ohio Presbyterians Oppose.

NEWARK, O., April 16.—At a meeting of the Zanesville Presbytery here, which represented three counties and forty six churches, they unanimously passed a resolution condemnatory of the utterances of the Rev. Dr. Briggs of New York on the subject of inspiration and related doctrines and requesting action of the General Assembly disapproving of his election to the chair of Biblical theology in the Union Theological Seminary.

THE RICHARDS MURDER.

Two Men Arrested Answering the Description of the Burglars.

YORK, Pa., April 15.—Two men have been arrested here answering the description of the burglars said to have been implicated in the Richards crime. Their description tallies so strongly with that of the men seen in the neighborhood of the Richards homestead that the authorities at Osborn have telegraphed the officials here to hold them.

RISING SUN, Md., April 16.—A piece of button was picked up in the yard of the Richards residence, which is said to be one missing from the coat of one of the men now under arrest at York.

HEALY DARES PARNELL.

An Exciting Scene in the House of Commons.

LONDON, April 16.—A most exciting scene took place in the House of Commons last night. Mr. Healy arose and made a verbal attack on Mr. Parnell, asserting that the latter, who had just spoken, was not a representative for Cork city.

This caused a great sensation. The McCarthyites cheered wildly. Mr. Healy dared Mr. Parnell to resign his seat as he had promised to do, and the Parnellites shook their fists in the faces of the McCarthyites.

Emma Abbott's Wardrobe on Sale.

CHICAGO, April 16.—The entire wardrobe of the late Emma Abbott Wetherill was put on view for sale at a State street dry goods store this morning. The sale is being conducted under the supervision of Mrs. Lizzie Abbott Clark, a sister of the dead singer. Quite a number of the street costumes were sold.

The President May be Present.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 16.—The launching of the coast defense vessel Monterey is fixed for April 29. It is expected that President Harrison will be present at the ceremonies. The vessel is now in course of construction at the yards of the Union Iron Works.

Free After Three Years' Imprisonment.

NEW YORK, April 16.—Vincenzo Quartararo, who was charged with killing Antonio Piacomio in front of Cooper Union the night of Oct. 29, 1888, has been discharged from custody by Judge Cowing. It was reported that he was a victim of the Mafia.

Balmaceda's Troops Defeated.

LONDON, April 16.—Latest advices from Chili report that a desperate engagement, resulting in the triumph of the Chilian revolutionists was fought at Copipao. After an obstinate struggle at the place named, 3,000 of President Balmaceda's troops were driven back with heavy loss.

Regards Blaine's Reply as Very Able.

LONDON, April 16.—The Standard regards Blaine's reply to Rudini as very able and is curious to see Rudini's response. That paper says it is difficult to see how the Mafia can slip through the meshes of the net set for them.

DEATH OF MRS. HALFORD.

The Remains Taken to Indianapolis To-day for Interment.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The death of Mrs. E. J. Halford, wife of President Harrison's private secretary, has caused general regret among a large circle of friends.

Mrs. Halford has been an invalid for the past two years, suffering from a complication of diseases which finally culminated in consumption, which was the immediate cause of her death.

Many prominent officials of the government, including all the Cabinet officers in the city and other persons of note, called at the Elsmere during the day to express to Mr. Halford and his daughter their sympathy.

The President on being informed of Mrs. Halford's death telegraphed as follows from Georgia: "All our party feel deeply for you, and we would at once return to be with you if we consulted our own feelings. But I am sure that in view of the disappointment it would cause to others you would advise that we go on."

Services over her remains were held at 3 o'clock to-day at the Foundry M. E. Church, Rev. Dr. Elliott officiating, after which the remains were placed on the 3:30 train and conveyed to Indianapolis for burial to-morrow.

Mr. Halford, his daughter and a few personal friends constituted the funeral party.

SUICIDE IN A CEMETERY.

An Old Man Kills Himself on His Daughter's Grave.

NEW YORK, April 16.—At noon Joseph Buckerman, 60 years old, of No. 169 West Sixty-fifth street, this city, tired of life, entered the Salem Fields Cemetery, and, making his way to a secluded corner of the burying ground, he knelt in prayer on a newly made grave.

After praying fervently for a few moments, he drew from his pocket a revolver, and, placing the muzzle of the pistol in his mouth, he fired and fell back dead.

The grave upon which he killed himself was that of his daughter, who had died but a few days ago and whose loss the old man was unable to stand.

Rioters Wave a Hearing.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 16.—The hearing in the case of the 27 rioting strikers, who were prosecuted by Col. Schoonmaker for assaulting his superintendent, Rosser, at Jimtown plant, came up before Justice Dawson here during the day. Master Workman Peter Wise, Secretary Parker and other leaders were on hand, but their attorney asked that bail in $100 each be accepted and the men would waive a hearing. This was agreed to, and the men entered bail for the June term of court.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Mr. Henry M. Stanley and his wife sailed from New York for England.

The cholera is raging in Siam, there being an average of 40 deaths daily.

Ten fishing smacks were lost in a gale off the coast of Japan and 60 lives were lost.

A convention is being held at Lancaster, Pa., to organize a Pennsylvania German Society.

The Cabinet crisis in Portugal is complete, the resignations of all the Ministers being in the hands of the King.

The Kimball Manufacturing Company, of Boston, has failed, with $23,000 liabilities and very few assets.

The attempt made by a number of capitalists in Buenos Ayres to establish the Provincial Bank to resume business with a capital of $100,000,000 has been unsuccessful.

The cotton spinners of New England are grumbling over the obligation they are under as members of the National Spinners' Union to contribute to the striking hands of the Clark thread works in Newark, N. J.

Ex-President T. Martin of the Dover Shoe Company of Dover, N. H., on complaint of Adolph Meyers & Co. of Boston, has been arrested, charged with embezzling stock of the company to the amount of $50,000.

The New York convention of tailors, cutters and pressers, who represent 21 unions in Philadelphia, New York and Boston, have formed themselves into a national organization, under the title of the United Garment Workers of America.

French Imports and Exports

PARIS, April 16.—The French Board of Trade returns for March show that during that month imports increased 77,814,000 francs, and that exports increased 14,497,000 francs as compared with those for the corresponding period of 1890.

THE DAILY PRESS.

J. A. DEMAREST, . . Managing Editor.

BY THE WAY.

—When you want good fast-black hose, come to Peck's.

—Banks may fail! Stocks may tumble! Where is Peck!

—Wetumpka Lodge, No. 3401, Knights of Honor, will meet this evening.

—On Saturday next there will be target shooting on the grounds of the Watchung Gun Club at Fanwood under the management of Jacob Pentz.

—The High School pupils will give a concert, under the direction of Mr. Hazell, for the benefit of the school library fund, Thursday, April 30.

—The young men of the city anticipate a most pleasant evening at the Y. M. C. A. rooms to-night, when Mr. McGee will give a talk on "Business".

—D. S. Vail, representing 50 feet front-age on East Fifth street, to-day adds his name to the list in favor of the electric road on the proposed Fifth street route to Netherwood.

—A small fire occurred at Elizabeth at 11:40 this morning. The large sign on the front of the U. S. Express building opposite the station was burned. The fire department responded promptly. The damage was slight. The cause is unknown.

—Joseph M. Harper has laid in such a stock at 75 Park avenue that his place is a veritable headquarters for base-ball, tennis and croquet goods. He has also a large assortment of toy wagons, velocipedes, toy garden tools, fishing tackle and hammocks.

—Dr. R. L. Tucker, a graduate of the American Veterinary College of New York, and who has taken a special course in surgery at the University of Pennsylvania, is about to establish a practice in Plainfield. He will open his office at an early date. He comes highly recommended.

—The game of base-ball that was to have been played last Saturday, between nines from the Potter Press Works and the Pond Machine Tool Works, will be played this Saturday afternoon, commencing at 2 o'clock, on the grounds corner of Fourth street and Spooner avenue.

—The soda-water season finds the local druggists fully prepared to meet all demands. L. W. Randolph reports great sales at the City Pharmacy. His delicious ice-cream strawberry crush is a great favorite. He supplies any flavor the palate may desire, and every glass of soda-water is ice-cold.

—Adam Smith keeps a "temperance pool room" on Somerset street, but seems unable to stay temperate himself. He was intoxicated and disorderly in a Park avenue saloon this afternoon and had to be kicked out for refusing to pay for his drinks and for kicking up a row. When Sergeant Lynch arrested him his face was considerably bruised.

—Joseph Pike has n't long known how to ride a wheel, but already he is trying to make a name for himself as a record breaker. On a bicycle which he has possessed only since last Thursday he rode from No. 5 Peace street, through Elizabeth, to the Boulevard Hotel in Newark, in 1 hour and 14 minutes, yesterday. Considering the heat and other things this is talked of by wheelmen as an excellent record.

—The premises opposite French's Mills, on Somerset street, consisting of a small lot and building containing a restaurant and jewelry store, were sold at auction by T. J. Gillies yesterday, by authority of R. M. Stover, administrator. They belonged to the estate of Peter Dunn, deceased. P. M. French bought the property for $3,060, which amount just covers the debts that encumber the property.

To Camp at Sea Girt in July.

The State Military Board has decided to allow the First Brigade of the National Guard to spend a week in camp at the well-appointed State encampment grounds at Sea Girt during the month of July. Quartermaster Gen. Donnelly has put a large force of men at work on the grounds, and will make several needed improvements for the accommodation of the soldiers before the encampment begins. The regimental rifle teams and State sharpshooters will begin their target practice at the ranges on the encampment grounds about July 1.

Methodist Appointments.

By the new appointments in the Newark Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, churches in this vicinity are provided for as follows:

Bound Brook—F. A. Mason, from First Church, Orange.
New Providence—W. W. Vanderhoff, from Fremont, N. Y.
Metuchen—A. A. Graves.
Mount Bethel—D. W. C. Ramsey, supply.
Dunellen—W. C. Kinsie, from Everettstown.
Roselle—G. H. Bonsall.

The Rev. Chas Bayard Mitchell of course remains with the flock in Plainfield, where he is so well beloved.

Welcome Friends.

By a rare accident I was made acquainted with Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills, and have used them for two years. They act gently and like a charm, correcting the secretion and preventing other diseases. I subscribe myself your friend, as your pills are welcome friends to me.

ARBOR DAY.

Programmes Arranged for To-morrow's Celebrations at the Public Schools.

At all of the public schools to-morrow the pupils will vote on their choice of a national flower.

In the High School the programme will be as follows:

Reasons for choosing a national flower—Junior Class
Flowers of different nations.....F. Leslie Kyte
Reasons for choice of our own national flower, Members of school
Vote of the school.

Less attention will be given to the singing, as the pupils are practicing for a concert to be given in the High School April 30.

At the Irving school a tree will be planted by the pupils. The exercises will be begun at 2 o'clock, and will be as follows:

Singing.....School
"The pleasant spring has come".
Some reasons for planting trees.
Song by class—"How lovely, how charming".
Selection.....Helen Hall
"The Old Man and the King".
Singing—"Bird Song".....School
Planting Trees.....Class Recitation
Song.....Lindley Hillman
"The Whip-poor-will".
Address.....The Rev. G. K. Newell
Planting of tree.

The Washington school will celebrate as follows, beginning at 2:30:

Singing......"Farewell to the Woods".
Reading of extracts bearing upon Arbor Day. Class Recitation. "Woodman, Spare That Tree."
History of the circumstances under which the above poem was written by George P. Morris.
Singing......"To Woodland Away."
Reading—"The Palm Tree".....Whittier
Kittie Larew
Recitation—"The Oak".....Hill
Adele Miln
Reading—"The Wayside Inn"....Edna Harris
Singing....."On the Way to School".
Recitation—"What Pussy Willow Says"
12 Boys and Girls
Quotations.
Reading—"Planting of the Apple Tree",
Grace Fernald
Singing....."Alpine Mountain Song".
Voting for National Flower.

At the Bryant school there will be no special exercises, but the children will vote as to what they prefer for the national flower, and there will be a little entertaining talk to the pupils about trees, together with the singing of appropriate songs.

There will be no tree planting at the Franklin school to-morrow, as the school already has all the trees its grounds will accommodate. The exercises will be of a very general character, consisting of songs, readings, quotations, etc., appropriate to the day.

A vote from all the pupils is to be taken as to their choice of a national flower, and reasons for the same will be given by the older pupils, some of the best of which will be read by their authors. A little talk will also be given as to the reasons for choosing a national flower for this country, and for choosing national flowers for other nations.

The school and time have unfortunately been too much broken up by measles of late to admit of preparation for any elaborate programme for Arbor Day.

At St. Mary's parochial school a tree will be planted, and there will be appropriate exercises by the pupils.

The celebration at the North Plainfield school will consist of various recitations and thoughts on Arbor Day, including the topics "Necessity of Planting Trees", "Famous Trees", and "Favorite Trees"; also extracts from different authors on "Beauties in Nature", and selections from the poems of Helen Hunt, William Cullen Bryant, and Longfellow, with appropriate singing.

Good Music, Funny Men, and Pretty Girls, To-night.

Magnificent scenery, gorgeous costumes, beautiful young women, delicious music, and an all-pervading air of luxurious life in the Orient, will attract Plainfield amusement lovers to Music Hall this evening, when Rice's great twenty-thousand-dollar production of his gorgeous "Corsair" is to be presented. No manager in this country understands the getting up of pieces of this description better than does Mr. Rice, and there is always an elegance, a richness and a completeness of detail in his productions that are often lacking in those of other managers. "The Corsair" is considered by many to be Mr. Rice's best effort. Its music is bright and tuneful, and the choruses are particularly catching. The action of the opera is brisk, and never flags, and the libretto affords ample opportunity for three comedians to display their ability to good advantage. In short, "The Corsair" contains all the elements of a popular success, for good music, beautiful scenery, gorgeous costuming, pretty girls and funny comedians are generally productive of good results.

The first act opens in the market place and slave bazar of Stamboul, a very effective oriental street scene, with the Bosphorus in the distance. The third scene in the same act represents, in a very realistic fashion, a ship at sea; and the swaying of the masts, and the rolling of the vessel amid the waves, were so natural as immediately to suggest seasickness. In the second act the pirates' grotto by the sea, and the gardens of the Pasha, are both resplendent scenes. In the latter a fountain plays amid prismatic lights, forming an effect of peculiar beauty. The most gorgeous scenic effects, however, are reserved for the last act. The harem of the Pasha is in the "Palace of the Curtains", where one rich curtain after another is drawn aside, disclosing tableaux of sensuous beauty. The transformation scene, at the close, the "Palace of Pearl", is a fitting finale to the series of brilliant pictures.

HARD LINES FOR MAYOR PLACE.

He Can't Arrange His Committees to Suit the Borough Council.

At the regular April meeting of the Borough Council, when Mayor Place appointed his standing committees for the new municipal year just begun, Councilman Hegeman declined to serve as chairman of the Committee on Streets. At last night's adjourned meeting the Mayor disposed of this declination by appointing a new list, as follows:

Auditing and Finance—Councilmen Hummer, Hegeman and Sebring.

Fire, Water and Lamps—Councilmen Sebring, Smalley and Buckle.

Laws, Ordinances and Elections—Councilmen Needham, Hummer and Smalley.

Licenses and Marshals—Councilmen Smalley, Needham and Hegeman.

Streets and Public Health—Councilmen Buckle, Needham and Hummer.

Printing, Stationery and Supplies—Councilmen Hegeman, Sebring and Buckle.

This, however, did not seem to be entirely satisfactory, for Councilman Smalley positively declined to serve as chairman of the Committee on Licenses and Marshals, and at the next meeting another list will have to be presented.

A petition from George H. Fairchild and others, asking that Grandview avenue be macadamized from Somerset street to Westervelt avenue, the property owners agreeing to pay a fair proportion of the cost, was referred to the Committee on Streets.

The bond of Borough Clerk Henry H. Brokaw, with Justus H. Cooley and Newton B. Smalley as sureties, in the sum of $500, was accepted, as was also that of Collector H. Newton Spencer, with Justus H. Cooley and Alfred I. Smalley as sureties, in the sum of $10,000.

Job Coddington, S. B. Wheeler, Francis Whitely, Lewis Conrad, David C. Allen, and J. C. Van Horn, were appointed special borough marshals, at a salary of 25 cents per hour while on actual duty.

The sum of $500 was ordered to be borrowed for use on the streets.

The Street Committee were authorized to receive estimates for the furnishing of crushed stone to the borough during the year.

Councilman Buckle presented a resolution that Thos. Rutledge be appointed Borough Marshal at a salary of $450 a year. The resolution was lost.

Ayes—Councilmen Buckle and Needham.

Noes—Councilmen Hummer, Sebring and Smalley.

Mr. Buckle suggested that some Councilman nominate some one as good as Mr. Rutledge, or better than him, but nobody did, whereupon Mr. Buckle said that he believed in holding on to what they had till they could get something better, and the meeting adjourned.

CRESCENTS STILL WINNING.

They Keep Steadily at the Top, in the Race for the Whist Championship.

The Plainfield Crescent League played their fourth game in the Central New Jersey whist tournament last evening, and won it. Their opponents were the Elizabeth Athletic Club, whose players met defeat for the first time. Among the Elizabeth players was Mayor Rankin. The players were all royally entertained by the Elizabethans. The game was a most interesting one, and resulted in the following score:

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Kittie Glen, of West Front street, is spending a week with friends in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Ronan, organist at St. Mary's church, is confined to the house with the grip.

The Misses Jebert have returned to their Newark home from a visit to Mr. and Mrs. R. F. R. Huntsman of Bay street.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Brown, who have been in California for a year or more on account of the ill health of Mrs. Brown, are on their way back to Plainfield. Mrs. Brown is not so well as when she left town, and Mr. Brown also is ailing.

Mrs. Hannah C. Pierson, widow of the late Daniel Pierson, died at her home, 86 Duer street, at 7:30 o'clock this morning, of heart failure, resulting from an attack of the grip. Mrs. Pierson leaves one son, the Rev. J. Judson Pierson, a Baptist minister at Woodbury, and one daughter, Mrs. Frank W. Bailey. She was a sister to the Rev. Joseph Buchanan and to Congressman James Buchanan of Trenton.

Oh, What a Cough

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

READY MIXED PAINTS,

Are unsurpassed (if equalled) in the following particulars:
They are painters' paints.
They are perfectly pure.
They may be used by an old-time painter, just as he would use White Lead mixed by himself.
They will save money to painters.
They are uniform.
They are as bright as the best tinting colors can make them.
They are permanent.
They are good for many years wear when properly applied.
They will stand unlimited brushing out.
They are cheaper than any similar color mixed by hand.
They will cover on a good surface 400 square feet, two coats, per gallon.
They will cover on a poor surface 300 square feet, two coats, per gallon.
When freely thinned out with pure, raw Linseed Oil, their spreading capacity is still greater.

ALLOTING THE SCHOOL TAX.

The Amount Apportioned Among the Counties is $2,052,560.

The State Board of Education has just apportioned the State school tax among the various counties of the State. The tax amounts to $2,052,560, based upon a school census of 410,512 at $5 per child. The payments are as follows: Atlantic county pays $24,203.37; Bergen, $53,678.37; Burlington, $75,120.17; Camden, $86,421.78; Cape May, $13,630.20; Cumberland, $45,381.94; Essex, $457,968.86; Gloucester, $45,813.68; Hudson, $384,535 98; Hunterdon, $63,366.45; Mercer, $123,460.50; Middlesex, $77,027.38; Monmouth, $120,695.56; Morris, $67,284 25; Ocean, $13,665.08; Passaic, $118,653.52; Salem, $47,001 93; Somerset, $52,629.38; Sussex, $30,789.51; Union, $93,983.34; Warren, $57,848 85.

Ten per cent. of the total of these sums goes into the reserve fund, which foots up this year $205,256.

In the apportionment of the tax some counties get back just what they pay. There are ten of these. Hudson breaks even with $4.14 to each school child; Passaic gets its own back with $4.30 to each child; Morris with $4.64; Bergen, $4.68; Cape May, $4.70; Middlesex, $4.93; Burlington, $5.11; Warren, $5.44; Union, $5 62; Gloucester, $5.98. Six counties pay more than they receive, the difference going to the poorer counties. The paying counties are: Essex, with an apportionment of $6.40 to each child, and is out $2,392.07; Monmouth, although it gets back $6.42 for each school child, is out just $6,350; Mercer, getting $6.50 for each, is out $1,470; Salem, which receives $6.68 for each child, is out $3,450; Hunterdon gets $6.70 each and pays the State $5,570 more than is returned to it; Somerset is apportioned $6 80 for each child, being the highest made, yet fails to get back what it pays for school purposes by $5,262.93.

Five counties receive money. Cumberland gets only $4.05 for each unit of its school census, and yet receives $3,590 more than its inhabitants are called on to pay for school purposes. Camden county, with the same small apportionment, overdraws its own amount by $3,840. Ocean gets an apportionment of but $4.11 per child, yet pulls in $7,610 raised by other counties. Atlantic emulates Ocean to the extent of $6,500, while receiving the low apportionment of $4.15 per child. Sussex, with $4 20 per child, draws $2,955 more than it pays.

Gone from His Old Post.

Most of the readers of THE PRESS, and all of the travelers on the Jersey Central Railroad, and especially the ladies, will regret the loss of that most efficient and popular police officer, James Humphry, who had been stationed on West street, in New York, for nearly 25 years, and who has become so great a favorite with every one who crosses that crowded thoroughfare. His genial face has not been seen for a week past, and THE PRESS is told that he has resigned his position as metropolitan police officer to assume a position in the new Central Railroad building on the corner of West and Liberty streets.

In connection with this building THE PRESS learns further that Charles Hotchkiss, of Rockview avenue, North Plainfield, is to have entire charge as superintendant of the building, employing a force of about 50 women and 25 men under him.

There are five Otis's hydraulic elevators constantly running, and such offices as are not occupied by the company are already mostly rented. The building is one of the most substantial of recent and modern construction, and is fitted up with every known and improved convenience.

Girls Who Love the Wheel.

Plainfield has many young women who have become very fond of the wheel. One of the cycling enthusiasts writes of the sport in highest terms. "It tones the system",—she says—"quickens the blood, and gives a power to the nerve force that is positively incomparable. It not only exhilarates but charms beyond any words. No feeling on earth can compare with the enjoyment; the freedom and delight of motion, and the general exercise of movement cannot find its equal in any other mode of conveyance. I can ride twenty miles a day without the least fatigue or unpleasant heat. Instead, I am strengthened and calmed."

A Mad Dog Killed.

At 6:30 this morning special policeman Stephenson R. Hope was called from his home on Richmond street and asked to take his pistol and shoot a mad dog that was causing excitement on East Fourth street. The dog ran along the sidewalk snarling and snapping at everything in its path, and tearing at fence pickets and tree bark with its teeth. It finally ran into the shed kitchen of C. E. Ball, where Mr. Ball killed it with a club. Before being dispatched it tore a coat to shreds with its teeth. The coat was covered with froth from its jaws.

Shooting.

There was a good attendance of lovers of trap shooting on the grounds of the South Plainfield Gun Club yesterday, and some fine scores were made at inanimate targets. Among those present was Milt F. Lindsley, agent for the renowned American wood powder, and his wife, who is an expert at the traps, under the nom de plume of "Wanda". Yesterday she made four straight kills at live birds in such a handsome manner as to bring forth the plaudits of all present. Jacob Pentz acted as official scorer in his usual satisfactory manner.

THE GOVERNOR ON BUILDING LOANS.

To Protect the Interests of the People He Disapproves a Suggested Law.

Among the bills left in the hands of Gov. Abbett on adjournment of the New Jersey Legislature was one increasing the opportunities of national building and loan associations to do business in the State, news of which will be read with interest by those who are members of local building and loan associations, or who may contemplate joining one of them.

It has been the custom of the Governor to refer to the Commissioner of Banking and Insurance all bills changing the banking and insurance laws. He did so in this case, and received the following report from the Commissioner:

"The practical effect of this act, should it become a law, would be the admission of building and loan associations organized under laws of other States to do business in this State.

"In a general way the bill is objectionable, because there exists no necessity or popular demand that I can find for the admission of foreign building and loan associations to do business in this State. The business done by such national associations is contrary to the theory of building and loan associations, which is, briefly, to enable neighbors to co-operate in building homes. The extension of the scope of such associations to enable them to do business in all parts of the country is not, in my opinion, warranted by existing circumstances, nor desirable to the people of this State, especially in view of the fact that this department would be practically helpless in any attempt which it should make to protect their interests. Moreover, if the business of national associations should become very extensive, it might check the present healthful growth of local associations throughout the State.

"For these reasons I am unable to recommend the enactment of this bill, notwithstanding its passage by both houses of the Legislature."

After receiving this report the Governor decided not to sign the bill, with the remark that he could see no reason to believe that it would serve any good purpose, and that to protect the interests of the people it was his manifest duty to disapprove the act.

Somerset Freeholders Meet.

The Somerset county Board of Freeholders met at the Court House at Somerville Tuesday. All the members were present.

The recent Borough act having abolished the office of Chosen Freeholder in North Plainfield township, the following resolution was passed:

WHEREAS, It has come to the knowledge of this board that by a recent act of the Legislature the office of Chosen Freeholder of the borough of North Plainfield has been abolished; and

WHEREAS, Jacob Long, Chosen Freeholder of said borough, has acted in the capacity of Chosen Freeholder from said borough, he not having been informed of the abolishment of said office; therefore, we hereby ratify and confirm his acts to this date.

The committee appointed to investigate the South Branch Railroad track at Riverside reported that in their opinion it would be of no avail to bring suit against the company for damages, as no witnesses could be procured.

The board adjourned to meet at J. F. Wilson's, North Plainfield, to-day, to take action concerning roads and bridges in the Green brook section.

The final meeting of the old board will be held at the Court House May 12. The next day, May 13, the new board will meet for organization and such other business as will be presented.

Rachel B. Boice v. Isaac W. Pangborn—contract. W. M. Stillman; C. A. Reed.

Oliver Dunster v. Calvin H. Dunham—contract, and the same in ejectment. John B. Vreeland; John A. Frech.

Injured by a Gun Explosion.

While Dan Terry, the well-known shot, was returning home from the shooting tournament of the South Plainfield Gun Club yesterday, accompanied by his brother-in-law, Douglas L. Darby, they saw a snake. Dan picked up his gun and placed a cartridge in it to shoot the snake, when the gun exploded and lacerated the thumb of the left hand to such an extent that it is feared it will be necessary to amputate it at the first joint. The snake escaped.

A Handful of Men Preventing Plainfield's Growth.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—H. H. Baker's remarks in yesterday's issue are noted. Comment is unnecessary. The truth of the matter is, Mr. Editor, that less than a dozen men and their influence are standing in the way of making this a thrifty city worthy of being called "The Central City of New Jersey". Weseman, Alonzo W. 100 ft on Richmond street.
Vail, D. S. 50 ft. East 5th street.

Property owners along the above route will be recorded for or against, as they desire, upon sending their names and frontage owned to THE PRESS office.

One Large Moist Laugh.

Proctor's Theatre, Twenty-third street, New York, is beyond doubt the home of successes. Gillette's new comedy, "Mr. Wilkinson's Widows", has made the hit this time. Nothing has been better done in the line of plays, and nothing ever will be done better. The best evidence of its success is told by the audience who sit and laugh continually for two hours. A few extracts from the able article of Allan Dale, the clever and reliable writer of the New York Evening World, on "Mr. Wilkinson's Widows", will give PRESS readers some idea of the comedy. He says:

"The funniest thing Gillette ever wrote or adapted, or evolved or developed or constructed (there are so many expressions, you know) is 'Mr. Wilkinson's Widows', now running at Proctor's Theatre. It is one large, moist, vociferous laugh from the time the curtain rises to the time it falls. It is the kind of genuine, pulsating and humane fun that appeals as irresistibly to the boxes as it does to the gallery, for it springs from absurd possibilities expressed with such delightful gravity that we are almost inclined to look on them as screaming probabilities. A man who could sit through 'Mr. Wilkinson's Widows' without laughing ought to write a few nice meaty sensational letters to his friends explaining how he got it and where he got it and why he got it and slip athletically from a dock. I don't advocate suicide as a rule, but in this case I think it might be justifiable. One of the most pleasing features of 'Mr. Wilkinson's Widows' is the way in which it is ended; there is no silly explanation, no wearisome reconciliations. The final curtain falls with a slap and a bang. You have seen it all. Now go home and talk about it; wonder why it was so, if you like. Ask John how a man could have two wives; get furious if he can't tell you. The farce ends as a farce should end; it is a little audacious, but it is infinitely effective. As for the cast, it has no weak spot, and a dozen strong ones. 'Mr. Wilkinson's Widows' is good for a year to come if the management care to keep it in New York."

Will Examine the Banks.

Col. G. B. M. Harvey, the State Commissioner of banking and insurance, has sent notices to the boards of managers of all the savings institutions in the State, that the department will begin immediately the examinations as required by the law, which provides that he visit and examine every savings corporation in the State at least once in two years. He expects to complete the first examination within the next two months.

High School Pupils to Select a Favorite Flower.

The High School pupils will decide, tomorrow, what is their favorite flower. Before the vote is taken, various reasons will be given why a national flower ought to be selected by every nation, and by this nation. In this way Arbor Day will be both entertainingly and instructively observed.

The great question of the day is: "How to keep the Irish dynamite excitement in a manageable condition." Easy enough. Give each man a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Price 25 cts.

The triumph of the age—Salvation Oil, a first-class liniment, for twenty-five cts.

A High Blaze.

A large evergreen tree on the premises of John F. Wilson, on Green brook road, was destroyed, at about 7:30 last evening, by lighted matches in the hands of boys. The burning of the tree caused a lofty as well as brilliant blaze for a few minutes. No alarm was sent out.

I HAVE been a sufferer from catarrh for years. Having tried a number of remedies advertised as "sure cures" without obtaining any relief, I had resolved never to take any other patent medicines, when a friend advised me to try Ely's Cream Balm. I did so with great reluctance, but can now testify that after using it for six weeks I believe myself cured. It is a most agreeable remedy—an invaluable Balm.—Joseph Stewart, 6th Grand avenue, Brooklyn.

Here's our card.

It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are not straightforward and upright in selling, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public esteem accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for telling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of Shoes.

SPECIAL NOTICE!

How the Fire Originated.

The fire of the 10th inst., in Pierson's Hardware Store was started by setting a two quart gasoline can on a hot oven of a gasoline stove. When the can was placed on the oven some gasoline was spilled and ignited, which set the gasoline in the can afire. The young man took the gasoline can, which was afire, and ran for the door, and before he could reach it he was burned so badly that he dropped it. He did not know that the oven was hot or that the stove had been lighted before that day. It was not the fault of the stove, as there was no explosion, and the stove and oven are as good as new.

ESTABLISHED 1856, AND STILL ON THE INCREASE.

"When a person squeals he must be hurt", says one merchant; but when a man's business is on the increase he cannot be hurt; thus proving that delusive advertising does not affect intelligent trade, and that the party who applied it made a wrong application; but all are liable to make mistakes. I have even seen in some advertisements, Cooper's Gelatine advertised as imported. I should think to substantiate such a statement would be a difficult matter. American goods sold for American, at

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

THE LIPS THAT TOUCH LIQUOR.

You may smile at my subject, and think it quite strange,
But, if you'll be patient, I'll try to arrange,
In prose or in rhyme, though not over nice,
A few simple thoughts as a piece of advice,
And if they're too pointed to suit all your views
I hope you will listen and try to excuse,
For, as you all know, "I'm a foe to the wine,
And the lips that touch liquor shall never touch mine."

The tales of deep sorrow how often we've read,
Of a heart-broken woman awaiting the tread
Of him who promised to love and protect
When, a few months before, as his bride she was decked,
But who now has dumped all the joys of her life
By terrible blight—a drunkard's wife—
Which she would not have been had she said this in time,
"The lips that touch liquor shall never touch mine."

There are hundreds of mothers all over the land
Who are pleading to-day, with penniless hand,
For help to support the children they love,
Whose fathers have left home beggars to prove,
Although it seems hard to censure or blame,
Yet 'twould have been better to all 'tis quite plain,
Had they said this when young: "I'm a foe to the wine,
And the lips that touch liquor shall never touch mine!"

There is many a one who has worked long and well
This terrible fiend of intemperance to quell;
But what can they do—young ladies will wed
Drunkards in spite of all that is said!
Then, if you would aid in this calling divine,
Say: "The lips that touch liquor shall never touch mine!"

Oh, take this advice, young lady, from me,
No matter how wealthy a young man may be;
No matter how handsome, how gay, or how fine;
No matter how grand be his station in life;
No matter how seldom or often he may take wine—
If he takes it at all, for your happiness' sake,
Say, when you are wooed: "I'm a foe to the wine,
And the lips that touch liquor shall never touch mine!"

You may say it's all nonsense; my heart is a stone;
And if I act thus, I will spend life alone;
I care not for that; my mind is made up
To do what I can 'gainst the poisonous cup;
And, if I must wed a drunkard or none,
Of the two great evils I'll choose the less one.
Yes, I'll live an old maid to the end of my time,
Ere the "lips that touch liquor shall ever touch mine!"

—Ida W. Ballinger, in Toledo Blade

TRAFFIC IN DRINK.

A Very Large Increase in Foreign Importations and Domestic Production.

General prosperity shows itself more quickly in the consumption of wine than in any other product, and according to the figures which have just been made up in the custom-house the last year has been one of unusual activity. The importations of expensive wines were greater than in any previous year. When times are dull and money is hard to get the average American does not drink so much champagne and compromises on beer, while even in the "400" "Chateau Lafitte" is likely to give place to the excellent but cheaper products of California. Last year, however, was apparently one of high revel, and enough rare wine was consumed to float one of the new American war vessels.

As nine-tenths of the wine importations of the United States come to this port the figures of the New York custom-house represent the tastes of the country at large. There were 4,800,000 bottles of champagne imported into this country last year from the vineyards of France, being an increase of 900,000 as compared with the importations of the previous year. The larger part of this wine was consumed in this city, and most of it was consumed within a radius of one mile from Madison square. It is not stated how many sore heads resulted from the imbibation.

The receipts of sherry for 1890 amounted to 835,000 gallons—more than in any previous year since 1883, and 200,000 gallons more than came in last year. It was also the biggest year for port that the country has ever had, showing a big jump over the importations of 1889, the total receipts being 111,787 gallons in wood and 279,960 bottles. Seven figures are required to denote the quantity of German and Hungarian wines which arrived in the United States last year, and was presumably consumed, being 1,121,900 gallons in wood and 757,192 bottles, or a larger amount of these wines than ever before came to this country in one year. A few years ago Italian wines were almost unknown in the United States, but the remotest corners of Europe are now giving up their choicest products for American consumption, and Italian wines have a large sale here which is growing steadily.

The importations of these wines last year were 100,000 gallons in wood and 512,600 bottles. Of red wines from Spain more came in last year than ever before, the aggregate being 247,700 gallons. Not since 1885 have the importations of brandy been as large as they were last year, for a great quantity was purposely brought in before the McKinley bill went into operation, in order to save the heavy duties imposed by that measure. The quantity of brandy imported was 250,000 gallons in wood and 625,788 bottles. The importations of British gin were larger than in any previous year, being 41,000 gallons in wood and 232,800 bottles. Holland gin showed a slight increase, the importations being 265,000 gallons in wood and 189,000 bottles.

St. Croix rum was imported to a larger extent than ever before, 20,000 gallons having come in, while of Jamaica rum there were imported 59,400 gallons in wood and 12,000 bottles. Scotch and Irish whisky show a falling off of imports, the totals being 37,800 gallons in wood and 168,000 bottles. Of cordials there were 63,500 cases imported. British ale and beer came in to the amount of 12,300 packages in bulk and 60,700 bottled, and German ale and beer 53,100 packages in bulk and 2,000 bottled. Of ginger ale 26,700 packages arrived; of cherry juice 5,600 casks. Of mineral waters there were 3,600,000 gallons imported and of Cette wines 125,700 gallons. Madeira was the only wine received from abroad that showed a decrease of importations, only 9,100 gallons having arrived.

But it is in the native California wines that the most wonderful growth in consumption in the east is shown. The receipts last year by water were far in excess of what they ever were before. The demand for California wines, it is thought, will in a few years exceed the supply. The receipts at New York last year were 3,608,000 gallons by water, while the shipments by rail amounted to 4,900,000 gallons. The arrivals of California brandy showed a corresponding increase, being 230,000 gallons by ship and 400,000 gallons by rail. The receipts at New York of domestic whisky last year were 87,400 barrels and of alcohol 107,675 barrels.—N. Y. World.

A POLICEMAN'S STORY.

The Terrible Effects of Drink on Fashionable Women.

The corridors of the station-house were lined with benches, on which sat a few burly policemen in their blue and gilt uniform. In the inner rooms were congregated old bloated drunkards, hardened women charged with crime, a terrified young girl and one or two children. A small man, with a keen, steady eye, also in uniform, answered the inquiries of visitors.

"Yes, we see strange things here," he said. "But one gets hardened, looking constantly at the black side of human nature. I've seen sights here, though, that would wring any man's heart. There was a woman one night sat on that bench yonder that was brought in for petty larceny. She was a pretty, gay little body, who had tried to keep her place in fashionable life with little money, but when she was pushed hard, stole a velvet dress. She wouldn't give her name, and cried pitifully, begging to be let go. But when one of the officers brought in her old father, she grew still as death. 'I will never disgrace you again,' she said, and turned her face to the wall.

"When they went to take her out to the prison van, she was dead. The action of her heart was weak, the doctors said, and shame and misery bore on it too hard. There was no use prosecuting a dead woman. Her father took her away, and the matter was kept out of the papers.

"But a thing happened one night that seemed to me more terrible than that.

"About midnight two or three carriages drove up, and a party of ladies and gentlemen came in, wrapped in their furs and opera cloaks. They had been at the theater, and had come down out of curiosity, because one of their companions had promised them 'a glimpse of real tragedy, more dramatic than any thing they would find on the stage.' So in their gay dresses and diamonds, some laughing, some ready to cry, but all pleased with the new excitement, they peered in at the poor wretches.

"Among the prisoners was an old hag, who was near to death with long faithfulness to vice and drink. She held out her filthy hand, begging. One of the ladies came up close, and looked at long and curiously. I heard her name, and knew it. She belonged to a good family in the city, and was famous for her beauty and recklessness. She had been married but a year and was already divorced. But there was about her an odd, affectionate sincerity which, people said, endeared her even to those who blamed her.

"She stood still, looking at this bleared old woman, her face growing white. Then she dropped a gold coin in the outstretched hand. 'I wonder,' she said, 'who will give me a gold-piece when I sit where you do now!'

"Her friends dragged her away laughing. I smelled champagne on her breath, as she passed me. But it was a terrible thing, for I knew she had foreseen what would happen to her. It would have been better if she had looked on her own dead body. Only we policemen know how many fast, champagne-drinking fashionable women end here at last."

The policeman's story was true in every detail. We tell it to show how short and steep is the road downward for the woman who, whether thoughtlessly or deliberately, enters upon it. To conceal such dangers from young girls is as false kindness as to send innocent children to walk over the hot, thin crust of a crater without warning them that death lies below.—Youth's Companion.

NOTES IN GENERAL.

A DRUNKEN wretch in Chicago so abused and starved his wife that she died, when he sold her body to a medical college and had a protracted spree on the proceeds.—Union Signal.

NO MATTER how paralytically inebriated a man may be when picked up by the St. Louis police, they always extract from him his name and address "by pinching the sinew that runs on the inside of the knee." It is a better recipe than that of clubbing the soles of a prostrate citizen's shoes.—Albany Argus.

THE Austie's limit of health was two ounces of alcohol a day. This quantity would increase the pulsations of the heart five thousand beats, and diminish the exhalation of carbonic acid from the lungs twelve per cent. The people of England, according to statistics, are using on an average over three ounces daily of alcohol.—Journal of Inebriety.

NOW IT turns out that all the blame for the recent mine horror in Pennsylvania rests upon the shoulders of a drunken fire-boss who was too maudlin to look after his duties. Men in whose hands are intrusted the lives of others can not be allowed to get drunk, and fire-bosses will have to be added to railroad engineers on the teetotal list.—Inter Ocean.

THE following is, says the Australian Sunday-School Teacher, from a boy's essay on total abstinence: "I abstain from alcoholic drinks, because, if I would excel as a cricketer, Grace says, 'abstain;' as a walker, Weston says, 'abstain;' as an oarsman, Hanlon says, 'abstain;' as a swimmer, Webb says, 'abstain;' as an orator, Bright says, 'abstain;' as a missionary, Livingstone says, 'abstain;' as a doctor, Clark says 'abstain;' as a preacher, Farrar says, 'abstain.' Asylums, prisons and workhouses repeat the cry, 'abstain!' We have heard a long speech with less in it.

DANGERS OF ALPINE LIFE.

Italian Soldiers Have Had a Hard Time During This Winter.

The Italian Alpine soldier has no easy life of it in winter, buried in small forts on the high Alps, and being obliged to march in storm and snow, the new military orders enforcing never-interrupted communication between fortified places, whatever may be the state of the weather. A Turin correspondent, says the Chicago Post, gives the particulars of the late accident when Lieutenant Zanzucchi and four of his six companions met with their death. The lieutenant, with six soldiers, was following some Alpine companies from Pieve di Telo across Mount Tanarello to Briga Marithima, but, as he was under free marching orders, he remained behind and passed the night at a small hamlet on the way. The day after he started with his six men to climb the Tanarello, and on arriving at the summit met with a strong wind, which shook the mass of snow, sending large quantities rolling into the ravines. A path most frequently used, as being the safest, descends from the summit of the mountain to Briga, but Lieutenant Zanzucchi, either to shorten the way or bewildered by the ice particles with which the wind filled the air, abandoned the path and turned to the left toward Mount Saccarello.

When the little party reached the top of the valley of the Droc they began to descend, but a wide and deep stratum of snow, undermined by water below or moved by the wind, suddenly gave way beneath the travelers' feet and they were precipitated more than one thousand six hundred feet to the bottom of the valley. The lieutenant and two soldiers were found dead afterward close together. Two of the men were farther away and after lying fainting on the snow for a time came to themselves, one with his arm, the other with his ears and nose frozen. They tried to dig up their companions, but had no proper tools and were also too weak, so had to renounce the attempt.

They drank all the brandy they had with them and then climbed down to Briga, fearing a catastrophe at every moment. When they reached Briga they were half dead, and for some hours had not even strength to relate what had happened. One other dead soldier was found alone, but the body of the fourth lies still beneath the snow. Only just a week ago a similar accident happened, but fortunately without loss of life. A party of a few soldiers and a citizen had set out from Fort Centrale, four thousand two hundred and twenty-seven feet high, to go to Fort Pepine, six thousand six hundred and eighty-seven feet high, and were overtaken by a storm. They thought for a moment of turning back, but the orders were strict, and they therefore marched on. All at once they felt the ground tremble beneath their feet, and a moment after they saw an enormous avalanche descending swiftly upon them with a loud whistling sound and a violent current of air. It overtook them and rolled them down the mountain with the speed of an express train; yet, strange to say, they were suddenly stopped on a level space, after a fall of six hundred and fifty feet, unhurt beyond a few scratches and being a little stunned. The avalanche went on its path to break to pieces in a ravine, and the young soldiers stared each other in the face, astonished to find that they were still alive.

JAPANESE PIPES.

Smoking Has Been Reduced to a Fine Art in the Island Empire.

To be quite Japanese, says a writer in Scribner's Magazine, we will begin by taking from our girdle the little brass pipes and silken tobacco bags, filling the kiseru and inhaling one or two fragrant whiffs of the delicate Japanese tobacco. In their use of the nicotian herb, as in many other things, the Japanese display a supreme refinement.

The rudest coolie, the coarsest farm laborer, equally with the lady of rank, the pretty geisha and the minister of state, are content with this tiny pipe, which does not hold enough to make even Queen Mab sneeze.

They stuff a little rolled pill of the fine-cut leaf into a bowl smaller than the smallest acorn cup, thrust it in the glowing charcoal and inhale deep into the lungs just one fragrant whiff of the blue smoke, which they expel by mouth and nostrils.

Then they shake out the little burning plug into the bamboo receptacle and load up again for a second ip uku, valuing only the first sweet purity of the lighted luxury and always wondering how we can smoke a great pipeful to the "bitter end" or suck for half an hour at a huge Havana puro. "Kiseru no shita ni floku arimas!" they say—"at the bottom of a pipe there lives poison."

Much fancy and fashion are displayed in the appurtenances of the pipe. Ladies carry them in little, long, embroidered silk cases, with silken pouches attached, fastened by an ivory, bronze, silver or jeweled clasp. Men wear stuck in their girdles a pipe-sheath of carved ivory, bone or bamboo, and the pipe itself may be a small, commonplace article of reed and brass or an exquisite object in bronze, silver or gold, worked up with lovely ornament in lacquer or enamel.

"Grape Fruit."

"Grape fruit" is a citrous fruit, closely resembling, and by some said to be identical with, the shaddock, named from the growth of the fruit in clusters. Its production in this country is chiefly confined to Florida. The tree is larger and handsomer than that of other fruits of its class. The fruit is large, frequently five inches in diameter, has a smooth, light-yellow skin, ripens later than the orange and is found in the northern markets from December to May. It has medicinal properties, and when well ripened is by many people considered superior to the orange. The bitter membrane that divides the pulp should be removed before the latter is eaten or the pulp should be scooped out from it. There are several varieties, and the number is enlarged by importations. The grape fruit is known also as the pomelo, pompelmouse and by other names.

A Poor Exie, Etc.

"Papa," said Mrs. Overdoit, as "papa" returned from his daily toil, "Sammy has been a very bad boy to-day. He broke my triplicate mirror, gave your box of cigars to some bad boys, and to-night when I told him to put your slippers by the fire to warm for you, he replied that he 'didn't have to.'"

"Neither he does," said Overdoit, promptly picking up a slipper. "I'll warm them myself. Come here, Sammy."—Jury.

A Fatal Case.

Mrs. Gotham—Dr. Brownston says he has a patient whose heart is on the right side, and all the digestive organs are wrong side to, and, in fact, his whole internal organism is topsy turvy.

Mr. Gotham—He always rides in a cab.—Good News.

Warm Sympathy.

Father (who has just returned from a trip off, and finds his boy howling)—What's the matter, Tommy?

Son—Mamma has just given me a whipping.

Father—Never mind, Tommy, don't cry! From now on I'll attend to that myself.—Texas Siftings.

He Enjoyed It Most.

Tims—Did you ever know anyone to laugh at a story Springer told?

Jingle—Yes; he told me one to-day, and one man laughed all the time he was telling it.

Tims—Is that so? Who was it?

Jingle—Why, Springer.—Boston Herald.

The Hand-Writing on the Wall.

When Daniel at the feast of Belshazzar interpreted the handwriting on the wall to mean the ruin of Babylon, it was considered a wonderful event.

There is a handwriting on the wall in the lives of most of us, which needs no wise Daniel to interpret—a handwriting which portends ruin no less terrible than that of Babylon.

"Brain Tire—Shattered Nerves—Nervous Prostration—Insanity—Death!"

Such is the handwriting which blazes in letters of fire in the lives of thousands, and it means ruin of health, ruin of body, ruin of mind, ruin of life.

Are you so blind that you cannot interpret the handwriting?

Do you not know that disordered stomach, torpid liver and irregular bowels will in time devitalize your blood and prostrate your body?

Can you not understand that spring debility, poor blood and low vitality will make an invalid of you after awhile?

Surely you must realize that to neglect that weak and tired feeling, that nervousness, sleeplessness, dull head and worn-out feeling will result in utter Nervous Prostration!

Weariness of the legs with numbness, cold feet, trembling limbs or prickling sensation means Paralysis.

Dizzy head, loss of memory, mental depression, sense of anxiety or foreboding, excessive nervousness, irritability, wakefulness and inability to think or study, with ease indicate the sure approach of insanity.

Read the handwriting on the wall, sufferers from these troubles, in time to ward off the fatal result. You can surely do it by using that wonderful health restorer, Dr. Green's Nervura, the great nerve and brain invigorant, the best regulator of stomach, liver and bowels and most perfect blood vitalizer. It will give back your strength of nerve, power of brain and vigor of body. It is perfectly harmless, being purely vegetable, and costs only $1.00 at the druggists.

READ! READ!! READ!!!

If it had not been for Dr. Green's Nervura I should have been dead before this time, and I can therefore give this wonderful remedy the highest praise. The facts are these, I had the Grip and it left me about prostrated, extremely nervous, limbs stiff in the joints; my bowels bloated badly and my breathing was terrible. I could not stoop without almost losing my breath, in fact I was almost a complete wreck and could do but little work of any kind. I commenced take Dr. Green's Nervura, and at the end of one week I had lessened in girth about my bowels two inches, and now my girth is five inches less, and I am able to do about a full day's labor.

CHARLES H. STEVENS,
South Effingham, N. H.

Dr. Greene, of 35 West Fourteenth St., New York, its discoverer, is the famous specialist in the cure of nervous and chronic diseases. The doctor has devoted special attention to the treatment of all forms of chronic diseases through letter correspondence, and will give by mail his opinion and advice in any case free of charge. The perfection of this system renders a complete cure almost assured, as his success in treatment by correspondence is wonderful and unequalled.

N. B. Send for symptom blank to fill out, or write Dr. Greene about your case, and a carefully considered letter, fully explaining your disease and giving you a perfect understanding of all its symptoms will be returned, free of charge.

Before the Fire.

Side by side they sat before the great roaring fire, while the wind without howled and yelled.

"Look, Rosalie," he cried suddenly, bending forward and pointing to a bed of red-hot embers. "See you not a royal castle—portcullis raised — drawbridge down—awaiting its guest? See you not a long hall, and then an empty throne where the queen will sit? Tell me, who will be the queen?"

"Couldn't say," she replied, carelessly.

"Ah, Rosalie," he sighed, "would that queen were you!"

The girl drew herself up proudly and pointed to the fire. "Sir!" she exclaimed indignantly, "do you take me for a salamander?"—Judge.

No Indecement.

A man at the post-office gave a newsboy twenty-five cents to go and get him a paper, and when the lad returned he was handed an extra nickel, with the remark:

"That is for your honesty, my boy."

"But—but—" stammered the boy as he looked from the coin to the man and back again."

"Well?"

"Why, sir, it's only five cents, and I could have run away with the whole quarter!"—Detroit Free Press.

Now They Don't Speak.

Bertha—Harry has proposed to me and I have accepted him.

Maud—Indeed? He meant what he said, then.

Bertha—Meant what?

Maud—He proposed to me yesterday, and when I refused him he said he would do something desperate.—Boston Herald.

THE GRIP'S VICTIMS

Alarming Mortality in Chicago and New York.

THE BIGGEST DEATH RATE YET.

The Disease is Raging With More Virulence Than Ever.

Chicago Reports 650 Deaths in Four Days—The Health Department Flooded With Letters Concerning the Condition of the City—Deaths in Brooklyn and Other Cities—How it Affects Washington.

CHICAGO, April 17.—After a brief let up the grip has begun to rage with more virulence than ever. Of the total mortality of 650 for the first four days of this week, a very large proportion is due to zymotic diseases.

Registrar of Vital Statistics Tomlinson says the sickness and mortality are simply appalling, and that if it keeps up the city will get an unenviable reputation.

The health department is flooded with letters and messages from all parts of the world, concerning the condition of the city. People in Europe seem to think that a plague is sweeping over it.

Undertakers' wagons are on the go all the time and physicians are overworked attending to grip patients.

NEW YORK'S ROLL.

The Total Number of Deaths for 24 Hours Was 227.

NEW YORK, April 17.—There were 225 deaths from grip in the 24 hours ending at noon.

Sixteen of these were females. The ages ranged from four months to 89 years. One of the deaths was from grip without complications.

The total number of deaths for the 24 hours was 227, the greatest mortality this year. The next highest was last Tuesday, when 215 deaths were reported.

The total number of deaths from grip since its outbreak is 813.

There are 190 policemen on the sick list from grip.

In five days this week no less than 984 deaths have occurred, of which number 645 have been reported during the last three days. Should this rate continue for the remainder of the week it will raise the total of deaths to 1,314, or over 50 per cent. above the average for the corresponding week in past years.

As a result of the great increase in sickness all the hospitals in the city are crowded with patients, and the question as to what disposition shall be made of the constantly inflowing stream of sufferers is becoming of serious importance.

CAUSE OF THE GRIP.

A Michigan Doctor, Well Known Among Scientists, Makes the Discovery.

LANSING, Mich., April 17.—Dr. H. B. Baker, ex-President of the American Health Association, and widely known among scientists, informed his colleagues of the Michigan Board of Health yesterday, that he had discovered the cause of the grip.

He stated that the germs of influenza are generally at all times present, but there must be certain coincident meteorological conditions to irritate the throat and air passage sufficiently to give the germ entrance to the body. These meteorological conditions in this instance were the excessive prevalence of north and northeast winds and the excessive amount of ozone during the last three months.

Two Deaths from Grip.

JERSEY CITY, April 17.—Two deaths from grip are reported from the Jersey City Hospital. Thomas Welch, aged 47, af 16 Beacon avenue, had been in the hospital since April 6. Henrietta Miller died about 10 o'clock. She and her husband, Reinhard Miller, were discovered last Monday in their rooms at 10 Corcoran place prostrated with the grip. The woman had become insane from her sufferings. They were removed to the hospital. Miller is still in a critical condition. Six new grip patients were admitted to the hospital.

Grip Turns the Hair Gray.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The queer discovery has been made in Washington that the grip turns the hair gray. An investigation of 12 cases in one city block showed that in seven cases, all young people, there had been a perceptible change in the color of the hair since the attack. Physicians say there is nothing improbable about the disease having such an effect. The grip is often accompanied by severe headaches and neuralgic symptoms.

Stole Nearly $5,000.

LYNN, Mass., April 17.—The expert's report shows the amount of the embezzlement of H. A. Plymton, formerly a clerk in the Board of Health, to be $4,600. The stealings extend back to 1877.

Received His Death Sentence.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., April 17.—James Kane has been sentenced to be hanged on the 21st of May for the murder of his wife.

EVICTED THE SHERIFF.

Strikers' Wives Throw Hot Coffee on Him and Pitch Him Out the Door.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 17.—Sheriff McCormick started out on his eviction tour early in the morning and was himself evicted before his task was completed.

He met with no trouble in setting out six families at Morgan's, but at the Trotter works in attempting to oust the family of Fred Strausach, a stalwart Polander, he met with a lively reception.

A crowd of strikers kept the deputies from entering Strausach's house, while the sheriff himself was met in the house by Strausach's wife and five other women, who charged on him furiously. They threw hot water and hot coffee on him and then pitched him out through the door. They were armed with new axes and mining picks, and would have killed the sheriff had he persisted. Subsequently Strausach went to Connellsville to prosecute the sheriff, when he was arrested and taken to jail. The sheriff will make another attempt with a larger force, and should resistance again be offered the Governor will be asked to send military aid.

A MUNIFICENT GIFT.

Half a Million Dollars Given by a Priest to the Washington University.

NEW YORK, April 17.—The Roman Catholic University at Washington is the recipient of a most munificent gift from the Rev. James McMahon, the rector of St. Andrew's Church, which is located on City Hall place in this city.

The gift consists of real estate estimated to be worth half a million dollars. the deeds to the property have been filed in the Register offices in New York and New Jersey, where the property is situated, and the consideration expressed in each case was $1.

The gift is made for the purpose of founding a School of Philosophy, for the erection of the necessary buildings for the department, and for beautifying the ground surrounding the University

STILL AT FEVER HEAT.

A Reward of $1,000 Offered for the Capture of the Richards Murderers.

ELKTON, Md., April 17.—The excitement is still at fever heat over the murder of Mrs. J. Randolph Richards and the attempted murder of Mr. Richards at Porter's Bridge. The prisoners at York, Pa., held on suspicion of being the murderers, were, after a thorough investigation, released from custody, no evidence being found to implicate them in the tragedy.

A railroad conductor states that Bram, who is under arrest here, rode on his train Monday morning, which contradicts the story told by Bram. The young lady with whom Bram claims to have spent Sunday evening also denies his story.

The board of county commissioners offer a reward of $1,000 for the arrest and conviction of the murderers.

Troy Citizens Denounce the Fight.

TROY, N. Y., April 17.—The mass meeting last night to denounce the recent Dixon-McCarthy fight in this city, was attended by 1,500 citizens, among whom were Justice Ingalls, late of the Supreme Court Bench, and a large number of clergymen, both Protestant and Catholic. The Rev. John Walsh presented a series of resolutions condemning the fight and the instigators of it, and calling upon all good citizens to see that no occurrence of the kind shall ever again take place in Troy.

Foreigners Will Erect a Factory.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., April 17.—After examining into inducements offered by the municipal governments, boards of trade, etc., of 27 American cities, Percy A. Legg, of Bradford, England, and M. Leclair, of Liege, Belgium, have, through negotiations with the city committee, agreed on terms for a site in Woonsocket on which to erect a manufactory of fine woolen and worsted yarns, now made by this firm in Belgium and sold in this country.

A Rubber Dealer Assigns.

BOSTON, April 17.—J. Francis Hayward, dealer in rubber goods, has assigned. The liabilities, it is believed, will exceed $70,000, but the assets are in excess of this amount. Mr. Hayward has retail stores in Lowell, Lawrence, Worcester, Fall River, Providence and Manchester. Attachments have been issued against Mr. Hayward's assets in both Providence and Manchester.

Scholars Representing Four Races.

CARLISLE, Pa., April 17.—At the Carlisle Presbytery, Dr. West, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Carlisle, in presenting his report of their Sunday school, says it must be considered the model school, as four races, Caucasian, Mongolian, African and Indian, are represented.

Many Cases at Wappinger's Falls.

NEWBURG, N. Y., April 17.—The ravages of the grip are assuming alarming proportions at Wappinger's Falls, Dutchess County. Fifty of the operatives of Sweet, Orr & Co.'s overall factory there and 75 employes of the print works are sick with the malady. There are also many other cases in the village, some of a serious nature.

IN THE MAGIC CITY

The President Royally Entertained in Birmingham.

MILITARY AND CIVIC PARADES.

The Chief Magistrate Steps from His Carriage to Kiss Two School Children.

They Present Him With a Beautiful Illuminated Address—He Attends a Reception Given by the Colored Citizens of the City—Starting for Memphis Amid Cheers of an Immense Crowd.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 17.—It was the warmest day of the season in Birmingham, but it was not warmer than the reception given President Harrison by the people of the "Magic City."

Booming of cannon and shouting from thousands of throats greeted the appearance of the President and party on the platform of the train. The temporary platform had been erected in the station, and to this the President was escorted by the Governor and Mayor. The enthusiastic shouts of the concourse ceased when Governor Jones on behalf of the State eloquently and feelingly welcomed the President to Alabama. The President then made an address which was vigorously applauded.

A military and civic parade had been formed to escort the President through the principal streets, and he went from the platform to an open carriage drawn by four caparisoned horses, the leaders led by grooms. With him were Governor Jones and Mayor Lane. The procession made the circuit of the city, headed by mounted police. Following in order were bands of music, the Birmingham Rifles, military companies from Selma and Montgomery, G. A. R. Posts, Posts of Confederate veterans, then the President followed by the Presidential party in carriages, Governor's staff, mounted; aldermen and citizens' committees.

He Kissed the Children.

As the procession passed the Opera House the members of a traveling opera company sang "America," and on one of the principal streets the school children of the city were assembled en masse. As the carriage containing the President was passing the children two little tots stepped forward and handed the President a beautifully illuminated address from all the school children in the city. Stepping down to the ground he kissed each of the little ones who made the presentation. The crowd cheered and the children sang "America" as the President drove on.

The drive ended at the Caldwell Hotel, where cars were taken by the Presidential party to South Highlands, where a birds-eye view of the city was obtained. The party returned from Highlands to the Caldwell Hotel, where a short reception was held, after which about 300 ladies and gentlemen sat down with the Presidential party to an informal lunch. President Harrison then went to a reception given him by the colored cititizens at the 16th Street Baptist Church and responded briefly to an address of welcome. After the reception he was driven to the train, which left for Memphis amid cheers of an immense crowd.

DANGEROUS COUNTERFEIT.

A Two-Dollar Certificate that Will Deceive the Most Expert.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Another counterfeit two-dollar silver certificate has been received at the Treasury Department. It was sent by a Washington bank. The counterfeit is a very dangerous one.

It is of the series of 1886, check letter B 1863. The note bears the portrait of General Hancock, and is signed by W. S. Rosecrans as Register and James W. Hyatt as United States Treasurer. The "1" in register is not dotted, and the "t" in States is not crossed. The geometrical lathe work is well done.

The back of the counterfeit is excellently executed, and the general appearance of the note is likely to deceive even the most expert.

The Sayward Case.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Attorney-General Miller is still confined to his residence by illness, and unless he is much better by Monday he will be unable to appear for the government in the Sayward case, which comes up in the Supreme Court. In the meantime Solicitor-General Taft is busily engaged on the government's case, and in the absence of Attorney-General Miller, unless a postponement can be obtained, will appear for the United States.

Calls Rittenhouse a Traitor.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Editor Dunning of the National Economist says that D. H. Rittenhouse had no authority to write Lieut.-Gov. Jones of New York in regard to the Farmers' Alliance and its intentions. Mr. Dunning pronounces Rittenhouse a traitor to the Alliance, and says he has been expelled from it for base conduct.

New Treaty With Spain.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Advices received at the State Department indicate that the new treaty with Spain has been concluded. It comes within the provisions of the reciprocity clause of the McKinley bill, and ex-Minister John W. Foster, who negotiated the terms of the treaty, will soon be back in Washington with the full text.

Is Mills Tired of Congress?

WASHINGTON, April 17.—It is reported that Roger Q. Mills has informed his friends in Texas, that if the people desire to keep him in public life they must send him to the United States Senate.

Fitzsimmons to Fight Ed. Smith.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 17.—Ed. Smith of Denver and Bob Fitzsimmons of Australia met last night and agreed to fight. The conditions are $2,500 a side, Smith to weigh in at 158 pounds at the ring-side, and the fight to come off before the club offering the largest purse.

HE WON A SINGULAR SUIT.

A Young Man Gets Nearly $10,000 for Being Good.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 17.—William E. Storey, of this city, has just secured the first verdict of its kind on record. On March 20, 1869, his uncle, William Storey, a Buffalo wholesale liquor dealer, told William, then a lad in knickerbockers, that he would give him $5,000 if he would not smoke or drink until he became 21 years of age.

The uncle added several other conditions, even coffee, cards and billiards being tabooed.

The incentive of a golden reward caused William to lead an exemplary life. On January 31, 1885, he attained his majority and wrote to his uncle claiming the $5,000. The uncle replied acknowledging the indebtedness, but said he desired to hold the money in interest until a future day. Soon after Mr. Storey died and his executor, Franklin Sidway, refused to pay the claim.

The case was tried in the Supreme Court and judgment recovered for $9,859.89, principal and interest. This judgment was reversed by the General Term, but this week was sustained by the Court of Appeals, and William E. Storey will get his money.

CAUSED BY A NAKED LAMP.

Two Men Killed by an Explosion of Gas in a Colliery.

TAMAQUA, Pa., April 17.—A terrible explosion of gas and firedamp occurred at No. 10 colliery, owned and operated by the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, a few miles east of this place, by which two men were killed and five others seriously injured. The killed and injured are:

James Haggerty, of Lansford, miner; body burned to a crisp; death instantaneous.

William Recus, of Tamaqua, miner; lived but a short time.

John Davis, of Coaldale; Frederick O'Donnell, of Coaldale; Charles P. Lilly, of Coaldale; Daniel Reese, of Lansford, and James Gallagher, of Gearytown, all seriously injured.

The explosion occurred in the main gangway of the second lift, and was caused by a naked lamp.

A MILLION DOLLAR FIRE.

Two Big Buildings Burned in New York This Morning.

NEW YORK, April 17.—At 1 o'clock this morning fire was discovered in the Ross Building, situated at the corner of Hudson, Bank, Greenwich and 12th streets. The building, which was of six stories, was occupied by numerous small firms and by Branch C of the New York Postoffice. It was entirely destroyed.

The Taggart General Storage Warehouse adjoining was also burned.

The loss is estimated at $1,000,000. All the mail matter in the branch postoffice was saved.

Gave Him the Strangle Hold.

CINCINNATI, April 17.—While Allen O. Meyers was standing in the Grand Hotel yesterday J. M. Hill, the well-known theatrical manager, came up behind him and putting his arm around his neck gave him the strangle hold. The strain was so sudden that it ruptured a blood vessel. A doctor was immediately called and, after receiving attention, Myers was taken home. The injury was not thought serious, but last night Myers had another violent hemorrhage and the doctors consider his condition very critical.

A Boy Burned to Death.

HONEOYE FALLS, N. Y., April 17.—A fire resulting in a loss of life occurred about 1 a. m. The fire was discovered in a barn in the rear of the dwelling occupied by Andrew Williams. Soon after the fire was discovered it became known that a son of Williams, aged five years, was in the burning building, and search resulted in the finding of the remains. There was among other things consumed a pair of horses owned by Mr. Williams.

The Spook Priestess Not in Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 17.—The statement made by a New York newspaper that Ann O'Delia Diss Debar the spook priestess, was staying at the Tremont House in this city, raised a great deal of unnecessary excitement throughout the city, and especially at the hotels. A thorough search through the hostelries, however, revealed no person that would in any way answer the description of the ghost controller.

He Refused to Join the Mafia.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., April 17.—Joseph Cartot was stabbed in the neck last night by some of his countrymen. Martin Zella and Andrew Zesa have been arrested for attempted assassination on Cartot's complaint, he alleging that these men asked him to join the Mafia, which he refused to do. The prisoners were held for trial.

Grent Demand for Sugar.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 17.—In an interview with a reporter a prominent wholesale grocer said: "The demand for sugar exceeds the supply It is impossible for us to get it fast enough to fill our orders. We are selling it by the barrel to parties who have heretofore bought it in 10-pound packages."

Withdrawing the Troops.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 17.—An order withdrawing the 10th Regiment from the coke regions will, it is understood, be issued to-day. The Governor has asked Gen. Snowden to convey to Gen. Wiley and Cols. Smith and Hawkins his appreciation of their services in the emergency.

An Old Clergyman Dead.

BOSTON, April 17.—The Rev. Ralph Willard Allen, D. D., died at his home in East Boston yesterday. He was born in Enfield, Conn., in 1812. He was the oldest member of the New England M. E. Church.

Two Deaths from Grip.

BROOKLYN, April 17.—Doorman Roger Farrell of the Twelfth police precinct and Thomas Melvin died during the day from the grip.

RUDINI WILL WAIT

The Italian Premier Not Ready to Give His Opinion.

THERE WILL BE NO TROUBLE.

He is Sincerely Desirous of a Friendly Solution of the Difficulties.

He is Awaiting the Receipt of the Full Text of Mr. Blaine's Reply—Rome Press Comment—A Rumor that Minister Porter is Going to Take a Three Months' Holiday—Bolivia's Consul Was Lynched.

ROME, April 17.—After the adjournment of the Chamber of Deputies, a correspondent called upon the Marquis di Rudini, and asked him if it was possible to give an opinion for publication in regard to the reply of the United States Secretary of State, Mr. Blaine, to his (the Marquis di Rudini's) last note on the subject of the New Orleans lynchings.

In reply the Marquis di Rudini said in substance that the cabled summaries of Mr. Blaine's reply, which had been sent to Rome and which he had seen in the public press in this city, were too brief and otherwise inadequate for him to form a definite opinion, much less give an opinion for publication, even if he felt justified in adopting the latter course of action. The Marquis added that he preferred not to say anything further while awaiting the full text of Mr. Blaine's reply, except that he was now and always had been sincerely desirous of a friendly solution of the difficulties at present existing between the Italian government and the government of the United States.

Though the full correspondence given out in Washington was telegraphed to London and was published in the English papers, only a summary was telegraphed from London to the Italian papers, on account of their disinclination to pay the tolls from London for the full correspondence.

The Tribuna says that Secretary Blaine aims above all to divert the attention of Italy from the real question at issue. But this, it adds, will not easily be done.

MINISTER PORTER'S TRIP.

A Report that He is to Leave Rome on a Three Month's Holiday.

LONDON, April 17.—A dispatch from Rome to the Chronicle says that Mr. Porter, the American Minister to Italy, is going on a three months' leave of absence.

LYNCHED HER CONSUL.

The Alleged Head of the Mafia in New Orleans Represented Bolivia.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—A singular fact in connection with the Italian matter, which has entirely escaped attention up to the present time, is that one of the leading Italians lynched in New Orleans was actually at the time of his death the recognized Consul at that port of a foreign government—not that of Italy.

Jose P. Machecha, the alleged head of the Mafia and the most prominent of the victims of the mob, still stands on the records of the State Department as the duly accredited and recognized Consul of Bolivia in New Orleans. He was a wealthy merchant. His firm of Machecha Brothers still continues the agency of one of the important steamship lines touching at New Orleans and trading with South American ports, and it was probably from this connection that Machecha came to be appointed Consul for Bolivia.

The hard fact remains that he was such Consul at the time of his unauthorized execution. Bolivia has no diplomatic representative here. Its most prominent agent is Consul Gen. Obarrio of New York. It does not appear that he has made any movement in the matter.

A British Steamer Sunk.

LONDON, April 17.—The British steamer Glamorgan, bound from Antwerp for Cardiff, was sunk in the English Channel in a collision with the Dutch steamship P. Calend, from New York for Amsterdam. The Glamorgan was struck on her broadside, and was almost cut in two. The vessel had twenty-nine passengers on board including two ladies and a number of children, all of whom were aroused from slumber in time to be rescued with the greatest difficulty and clad only in their nightclothes.

Order Restored at Tipperary.

LONDON, April 17.—The long sentences imposed on boycotters by the Lord Chief Justice at the Spring Assizes has had the effect of restoring order in Tipperary, and the tenants who have gone back to their farms, having made peace with Smith-Barry, are enabled to live without apprehension of the terrorism heretofore exercised. New Tipperary is almost deserted, and the old town has resumed much of its former activity.

Husbands Cannot Imprison Their Wives.

LONDON, April 17.—The Lord Chancellor stated in the House of Lords that the government would not introduce a bill giving husbands power to put their wives in prison for refusing to comply with an order of a magistrate restoring conjugal rights. Parliament had abolished the power to imprison a wife for refusing to live with her husband, and judges could not alter the law.

Members of Parliament in Trouble.

LONDON, April 17.—Secretary Matthews stated in the House of Commons that criminal warrants had been issued against two members of Parliament, that both had left the country, but that Captain Verney, one of the accused, had telegraphed from Italy, as soon as he heard of the warrant, that he had started for London to meet the charges.

Second Ballot Necessary.

BERLIN, April 17.—The Geestemunde returns are incomplete, but sufficient to make it certain that Bismarck will have to submit to the indignity of a reballot. This, however, is certain to result in his election. The reballot is expected next

THE TRESTLE COLLAPSED.

A Train of Cars Fall Fifty Feet and Three Men Killed.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 17.—Three men were killed and two seriously injured in an accident on the Maryland Central Railroad near Fallston, Md.

A north bound freight train made up of 13 cars and three engines was crossing the "Overshot" trestle, when the trestle collapsed, precipitating two of the engines and all of the cars into the stream below.

Four of the crew jumped and escaped injury. Of the others John Martin, James Dobson and Benjamin Sprucebanks were killed, and Charles Watts and Walter Hawkins were seriously injured.

The bodies of Dobson and Sprucebanks have not been found. It is supposed that they were burned along with the cars and engines, which immediately took fire. The trestle was 50 feet high and 400 feet long.

THE SECOND TRAGEDY.

Old Jesse Lockwood Takes Poison While His Keeper Was Absent.

PURDY'S STATION, N. Y., April 17.—Old Jesse Lockwood, who, while insane from the grip, clubbed his aged wife to death, and who has been confined to his home under the charge of Deputy Sheriff Hallock ever since, committed suicide late at night during the temporary absence of his keeper.

He poured kerosene oil into a cup and mixed it with a quantity of red pepper and alcohol. He drank this mixture to the dregs. When found he was dead. There was no hope of resuscitating him. Deputy Sheriff Hallock is censured by all for not having taken more precautions regarding his prisoner.

Coroner Drew will begin an inquest on Monday at 2 o'clock. Mrs. Lockwood will be buried to-day and her husband to-morrow.

A Pinkerton Employe Arrested.

NEW YORK, April 17.—John R. Crawford, who is employed by the Pinkerton Detective Agency in Chicago as an expert accountant, was held for trial to-day charged with passing worthless checks on hotel cashiers. Crawford said that the checks were sent to him by his uncle, George Howard Crawford of Bethlehem, Pa.

Organized for War.

NEWBURG, N. Y., April 17.—An artillery company has been organized at Highland Falls, one mile below West Point, for the avowed purpose of service against Italy in the case of war between that country and the United States. The company starts with 112 privates, and it is expected the number enrolled will reach 200 to-morrow night.

A Wife Beater Hangs Himself.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., April 17.—James Lynch hanged himself yesterday in the cellar of his house on Washington street. He was sent to jail for wife beating a short time ago. He was released Wednesday and beat his wife again. He committed suicide after he learned that he was again to be arrested.

Baseball Games.

NEW YORK, April 17.—This is how the American Association games yesterday resulted: Boston 11, Washington 0; Cincinnati 7, Louisville 5; Baltimore 15, Athletic 3; at St. Louis, rain.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Governor Russell of Massachusetts has named April 25 as Arbor Day.

The Bank of England has increased its rate of interest from 3 to 3 1-2 per cent.

The Dwight Mills at Chicopee, Mass., were damaged by fire yesterday to the extent of $30,000.

The directors of the Boston & Maine Railroad have declared a dividend of $4.50 per share on common stock payable on May 15.

Guy J. Brewster was sentenced at Tolland, Conn., to seven years' imprisonment for setting fire to and burning the barns belonging to his uncle, Henry Brewster.

Lizzie Bogard, an unmarried woman of Milan, Tenn., has been placed in jail at Mayfield for burying her child while it was yet alive. She acknowledges her crime.

The New York Assembly Committee on Privileges and Elections reported during the morning that Republican Assemblyman Aspinwall of Kings, Shaffer of Saratoga, and Gardenia of Columbia are entitled to their seats.

The Rev. James Y. Ashton, of Philadelphia, who was for years the chaplain and moral instructor of the Eastern Penitentiary, has submitted a long statement to the Legislative investigating committee in which the charges Warden Cassidy and the keepers of that institution with the practice of horrible brutality. Specific details are given in the statement.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—For New England: Fair; westerly winds; stationary temperature.

For Eastern New York and New Jersey: Fair; winds shifting to westerly; slightly warmer.

For Western New York: Light rain; easterly winds; warmer.

BY THE WAY.

—Again is your attention called to fast-black hosiery at Peck's.

—A gospel meeting will be held to-night in Manning's Hall, next to the M. E. church. All are welcome.

—The Music Hall employes are having great sport with the gas man over his first silk hat, which he recently donned.

—The Board of Trustees of the Crescent League at a meeting last evening, decided not to open the club house on Sundays.

—The Sunday-school building of Holy Cross church will be enlarged during the coming summer to double its present capacity.

—The thunder storm of last night freshened up the atmosphere, laid the dust, and aided in preparing charming weather for to-day.

—Workmen have broken ground to begin laying the foundation for the new Grace Protestant Episcopal church at Sycamore and Seventh street.

—Adam Smith, whose arrest for drunkenness and disorderly conduct was recorded exclusively in yesterday's PRESS, was fined $7 by Judge Codington.

—The United Tea and Coffee Growers' Association will make a big run on dried and canned California fruits, etc., to-morrow, as told in their advertisement to-day.

—One of the girls of whom Washington Park is so justly proud is an expert on the accordion, and wields the instrument with remarkable skill and persistency. The house next door is to let—but that's another story.

—If you are looking for first-class groceries, vegetables, etc., remember the fact that James K. Arnold, the Somerset street grocer, is selling just that class of goods, and his prices are as low as any in the business.

—Out of a total of 651 engines owned by the Philadelphia and Reading Company but one burns soft coal. The rest burn anthracite. The engineer who runs the soft-coaler is facetiously alluded to as the "sky painter".

—A number of the young society people over in the Park are stricken with the prosaic and inelegant measles, and are wondering why the absurd disease couldn't have arranged to visit them during Lent and be done with it.

—Stage manager Mattox of Music Hall says that the delay at the production of "The Corsair" last night was no fault of the local management. The leading lady was late, and kept a good-natured audience waiting three quarters of an hour.

—The base-ball team of the Somerville West Ends this year is composed of: Harkins, p.; Bowes, c.; Bergen, 1b.; J. Farrell, 2b.; Williams, 3b.; Moorehead, s. s.; Major, l. f.; Carbonell, c. f.; Davenport, r. f. All of these men have played on the West End Club in previous seasons. Williams will captain the team.

—The annual meeting of the Plainfield Boys' Club Association, will be held at its rooms, corner of North and Park avenues, this evening at 7:45 o'clock. All members of the Association, and all others interested in the work, are cordially invited to attend. This will be a good opportunity to see the practical working of the club.

—The Bible Training Class of the Young People's League of the First Baptist church, conducted by Charles B. Brown, will meet this evening in the church parlors from 7 to 8 o'clock. The subject will be "An outline study in the book of Leviticus." All of the young people of the city are cordially invited to join this class.

—The various townships of Somerset county have spent for bridges during the year the following amounts: Bedminster, $796 96; Bernards, $465 03; Branchburgh, $1,860 27; Bridgewater, $8,743 41; Franklin, $741 40; Hillsborough, $2,080 13; Montgomery, $818 93; North Plainfield, $646 58; North Plainfield Borough, $1,-134 31; Warren, $1,445.73; line bridges, $3,773.23.

—Considerable excitement was caused among the people who gathered on Front street last night in response to the alarm of fire by the way one of the hose-carriage horses was galloping down the street. He was going at such a tremendous gait that it was feared he was running away, and the hose carriage rocked from side to side in a way that threatened to throw violently to the ground the firemen who were clinging to the carriage. Only with great difficulty was the horse got under control and stopped.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The Rev. T. Logan Murphy will sail on the steamship "Majestic", June 16, to spend several months in Europe.

A very pleasant reception was held by the ladies of the M. E. church in Vincent chapel last night, to welcome the Rev. C. E. Mitchell in his re-appointment as pastor for another year.

To Build a Home for the Women.

A number of women of revolutionary descent met at the home of Mrs. Paul Revere, at Morristown, Wednesday, and organized the New Jersey Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. After the appointment of officers, a resolution was adopted, stating that one of the objects of the association would be to build and endow a home for impoverished women of revolutionary descent. Mrs. M. H. Mather offered fifteen acres of land in Somerset county as a site.

KILLED BY A JEALOUS RIVAL.

FATAL QUARREL OF TWO NEGROES OVER A GIRL.

Stabbed with a Pocket-Knife, and Dead in Fifteen Minutes.—A Hot All-Night Chase, on Foot, Across Country, for the Murderer.—The Fugitive in Hiding in South Jersey.

Will Carroll was yesterday the happiest colored man in Middlesex county, for a winsome lass whom he had long been courting had promised to become his bride; to-day he lies cold in death in the Lehigh Valley freight house at Bound Brook, and Sam Edwards is his murderer.

Both Edwards and Carroll, who were comparatively recent comers from the South, were well known in Bound Brook. Edwards worked on the farm of Miss Henrietta Boice, on the Raritan river road to New Brunswick, and Carroll was employed on the land of a neighbor, adjoining.

Edwards seems to have been a rival of Carroll in the race for the heart and hand of the dusky damsel who now mourns over her accepted suitor's clay. At any rate, the two men quarreled frequently over the girl, and their jealousy engendered bitter hatred, though once they were warm friends.

Edwards is said to have threatened repeatedly that he would "do" Carroll; indeed, he seemed to be given to threats of that sort against most of his acquaintances in general, and was always bragging about his abilities as a fighter and pointing with pride to ugly scars on his forehead and arms, relics of murderous battles in the South.

Last night, at about ten o'clock, Carroll and Edwards met in front of the Hotel Gaddis, at Bound Brook, and the old quarrel about the girl was renewed. The language of the two became so objectionable that they were ordered away from the premises. "As they walked into the street Carroll told Edwards that he would "do" him before he left town.

At about twelve o'clock Edwards started for home. Near the Lehigh Valley Railroad crossing Carroll stopped him and struck him a terrific blow in the face. Edwards instantly drew a large pocket-knife and plunged the largest blade into Carroll's groin. Edwards still had hold of the knife handle as Carroll sank to the ground, and wrenched the knife in such a way that the wound caused was a terrible one. The blade severed an artery, and Carroll bled to death rapidly.

The stabbing occurred just off the highway, beside the Lehigh Valley track. Carroll rolled down the embankment, but managed to crawl up again, and fell in a heap beside the tracks.

George Lawrence had heard Carroll cry, when he first fell, "I'm stabbed. Go for a doctor". He and Al. Sanderson tried to raise the wounded man and stop the bleeding. In fifteen minutes from the time the blow was struck Carroll was dead. The body was then removed to the Lehigh Valley freight house, and Coroner Compton and County Physician Wagoner were notified. To-day it was decided to hold an inquest to-morrow.

As soon as he had made the fatal knife-thrust Edwards ran down the track, and by the time police officer Sebring and a posse of eight men, chosen from among the crowd that speedily collected, were ready to give chase, he had gained a good start.

The entire night was spent by these nine men in pursuit of the assassin. They caught sight of him near Posumtown, and pressed him so closely that he threw aside his overcoat and a flask full of whisky. Edwards was fleet of foot, however, and wonderfully enduring. He was seen several times, and ordered to halt. A number of pistol shots were fired after him, none, however, of which took effect.

At daylight this morning the men lost the scent near the Landing Bridge, this side of New Brunswick, and returned to Bound Brook. They telegraphed on ahead, however, and New Brunswick police officers started on the chase. They are still, at half-past two o'clock, hot on the trail, but have not yet captured their man, despite the rumor that prevails in Bound Brook, that he has been captured eight miles below New Brunswick. He is supposed to be hiding in the marsh lands near Amboy.

Carroll was armed with a pistol, but made no attempt to use it during the fight.

The spot where Carroll's body was found is marked to-day by a pool of blood, which is viewed by curious crowds.

A white man is said to have urged the two colored men on to fight, and an attempt will be made to prove him an accessory before the act.

Commuters Delayed by a Broken Rod.

The rod connecting the two big driving wheels on the fireman's side of locomotive No. 173 went to pieces at the Evona station this morning, and as a result of the subsequent manœuvring of this train and the train following both were considerably delayed. The disabled locomotive was on the train leaving Plainfield at 8:31, and drawing the Howard club car. After waiting for orders and repeated shifting back and forth, locomotive No. 144 was taken from the 8:37 train and attached to the 8:31, which left Plainfield 40 minutes late. Drill engine No. 31 then took out the 8:37, 50 minutes late. A large crowd of delayed passengers gathered on the tracks during the period of waiting. Among those delayed were the members of Rice's "Corsair" troupe. A number of bright commuters took advantage of the accident to board a Philadelphia and Reading through express which was obliged to stop while the waiting trains were being drilled out of the way.

GOLDEN-ROD THE FAVORITE.

By a Large Majority It Is Named for National Flower.

Interesting exercises were held to-day at the local public schools in celebration of Arbor Day, according to the programmes published exclusively in yesterday's PRESS.

The vote of the pupils on their choice for a national flower will be completed this afternoon. At the High School this morning the vote was as follows:

	No. of votes.
Golden-rod	117
Violet	42
Daisy	30
Arbutus	12
Scattering	13
Total	214

Golden-rod's plurality over the violet, 75.

The vote at the Irving school this afternoon was:

Golden-rod	103
Violet	26

The vote at the Washington school was:

Ananias Never Tires.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—

An Associated Press dispatch from Minneapolis, dated Monday, says that "An electric car was completely burned up last night. What caused the fire is not known, but the question of the danger of the trolley system again arises."

The above is clipped from The Central Times of Wednesday, April 15, and is a true copy from the New York papers. The italics are ours. As the cause of the fire was unknown, of course the trolley must have been to blame. Had a gasolene stove not caused Pierson's fire I have no doubt the trolley would have been blamed for that.

But see how the other anti-trolley snoozepaper distorts and reconstructs the same item:

AN ELECTRIC CAR BURNED.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April 13.—One of the cars of the Electric Street Railway Company was burned up to-day. It is supposed that the car caught fire from a defective insulator in the roof. The destruction was very rapid, and could not possibly have been caused by lightning. B.

This is clipped from the "Deadly Snooze" of Wednesday, April 15. Truly, a cause must be weak indeed when such barefaced misrepresentation has to be resorted to. In his own words printed on the same evening such conduct is fitly characterized: "He does not apparently believe in straightforward, honest, journalism, and for the honor of the profession, we can safely say there are no others, in this State at least, like unto him. It is this trait which keeps him continually in hot water, and makes him so generally detested."

Consistency, thy home is "Somersault" street! VERITAS.

Mice and Matches Cause a Blaze.

Fire which Chief Engineer Doane attributes to mice and matches was discovered in the shoe store of Rogers Bros., 12 West Front street, at about half-past 9 o'clock last night. The blaze started among the drawers and shelving, and caused considerable damage. Police Captain Grant sent in an alarm from Box 12, but though the department responded promptly their services were not needed. Harry Connett, who lives over the store, entered the place from the rear and put out the fire with buckets of water.

The alarm drew a crowd from Reform and Music halls.

Rogers Bros. wish the public to appreciate the fact that but a small proportion of their stock was damaged, and that they can still fit any foot.

Toome—Marsh.

The marriage ceremony of Miss A. Bertha Marsh and John J. Toome of Hartford, Conn., took place at the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. John D. Bonner, Monday, April 13. Miss Marsh was formerly a resident of this city and is a daughter of Randolph Marsh. The bride wore a handsome traveling suit of heliotrope henrietta cloth, with hat and gloves to match, and carried a large bouquet of lilies of the valley. The presents were rich and numerous, and included a solid silver tea service and other valuable articles. The happy couple, after a wedding breakfast, left on the evening train for a tour through the south.

I HAVE been a sufferer from catarrh for years. Having tried a number of remedies advertised as "sure cures" without obtaining any relief, I had resolved never to take any other patent medicines, when a friend advised me to try Ely's Cream Balm. I did so with great reluctance, but can now testify that after using it for six weeks I believe myself cured. It is a most agreeable remedy—an invaluable Balm.—Joseph Stewart, 6th Grand avenue, Brooklyn.

Counselor Reed Goes Fishing.

The Somerville Unlocked-Gazette says that the "champion local trout fishermen are enjoying themselves in the brooks above Cresco. A party consisting of Judge Bartine, the Hon. C. S. Hoffman, Col. John T. VanCleef and Charles A. Reed, of North Plainfield, started for these fishing streams Wednesday. They met a party from Wilkesbarre and anticipate some fine sport. Mr Hoffman professes to be the expert of the party in manipulating the fly but Colonel VanCleef and Judge Bartine scarcely admit that. They will return Saturday. Mr. Hoffman has already fished the streams in this county and caught a number of nice fish."

—They are very busy at Peck's now, but will be glad to see you.

OVERCOME ALL DIFFICULTIES.

Trolley Street Railways Succeed When All Others Fail.

(From The Boston Evening Record.)

For some time there has been a dispute between the overhead wire people and the motor advocates as to which is the best system for street cars, the latter evidently being better in theory, but the advocates of the former persistently claiming that electric motors had not been developed enough to warrant their being used. The motor system has been employed for some time in New Orleans, but the papers of that city make only the briefest notice of its failure. We find the following editorial in the Cleveland, Ohio, Plain Dealer, which treats the two systems as they have been practically used in New Orleans and Cleveland.

The Plain Dealer says:

The hope that a solution of the problem of rapid transit in cities would be found in the storage battery motor system has again been deferred. For about a year the Electric Traction Co. of New Orleans has been manufacturing storage battery motors and running them by contract on the Crescent City Railway in that city. Up to last Wednesday eight cars were in operation on that line. On that day the motors were taken off the track and run into the shops of the traction company, then the works were shut down and the 200 workmen employed were discharged, the street railroad company returning to the use of mule power.

While the Crescent City company was experimenting with the storage battery system another street railroad company of New Orleans made a thorough investigation of its operation in other cities in order to determine what had better be done. President Walker of the New Orleans City and Lake RR. reported to his company as the result of his investigations that the storage battery would not answer their purposes. He said it has not been perfected as a motive power for tram railways and is more expensive than mule power. The experiments in New York on the Fourth avenue line were unsatisfactory and the Vanderbilts declined to adopt the system, although at first favorably disposed to it. Experiments in Indianapolis with two cars met with no better success. Other places have experimented for a short time with a single car, but in each instance the results were not encouraging. The New Orleans experiment was the most ambitious of them all, with the exception of that in New York, and now that has failed with the rest. President Walker considers there has been no advance or improvement in the storage battery system during the last four years, particularly in the matter of economy, which is the main and most important factor in operating railroads.

OVERHEAD SYSTEM THE BEST.

The overhead systems in use in Cleveland have their defects, but these have been corrected in those roads built since. So far, that method of electric transit has proved to be the only one which combines scientific and commercial success. Whether the comparative figures presented by the motor companies to the railroad managements to induce them to adopt electricity as a motive power were strictly accurate may well be doubted. It has without question cost the railroad companies more for repairs and for changes to meet unexpected difficulties than had been allowed for in the estimates of the motor makers, but it is equally without question that the improvements have been great and the outlay for "experimenting" will hereafter bear a smaller proportion to the total expenditures than during the first year. The gain to the public has been enormous. The facilities for handling a large and rapidly increasing traffic far surpass anything that could have been looked for under the old system, and the passengers have gained in time, convenience and comfort. What the introduction of rapid transit lines has done for the growth and prosperity of the city can be seen in the unprecedented conversion of waste tracts along these lines into thickly built streets, giving employment to hundreds of workmen and large amounts of capital. The last lingering doubt as to the successful working of the overhead lines in severe storms had been dispelled by the experience of the past winter, when every variety of snow, sleet and ice storms proved the ability of the lines to meet and overcome all difficulties likely to be encountered.

Crescent League Still at the Top.

At Fanwood, Wednesday evening, the games in the whist tournament, against Westfield's players, resulted in a victory for the former by a total of 274 to 226.

The record of the tournament to date is:

	Played.	Total.
Crescent League	4	1072
N. J. A. C., Bergen Point	3	767
Westfield A. C.	4	961
Elizabeth A. C.	3	765
Fanwood Club	2	545

The next games will take place April 23, when the Elizabeths will meet the Westfields at Westfield, and the New Jersey Athletics the Crescents at Plainfield.

A Talk on Business Elements from Bible Texts.

Mr. James McGee gave a most interesting and helpful talk at the Y. M. C. A. rooms last evening. The talk was practical, well attended and much enjoyed.

The subject "Business Elements" was illustrated by Bible texts and was treated as follows:

I.

In all labor there is profit.—Prov. XIV: 23.

Each word is emphatic. The essential idea is that at the bottom of success of any kind there is honest toil. No great mercantile project; no mathematical problem; no mental conception of any value is wrought out without toil of brain or brawn.

The rock on which many split is the desire to secure something for nothing. Many young men seek business instead of mechanical pursuits, because it appears to require less toil—but the proverb reads "In all labor there is profit." Whosoever honestly toils with either hand or heart, secures some good for himself and his fellows.

The profit is not always to be measured by dollars and cents. An idea, or a horse-shoe, may save or destroy life in accordance with the care by which it is evolved or applied. It is the desire to live at ease which makes the hurry to be rich. God's law for the physical man is toil, and the profit surely follows.

II.

Seest thou a man diligent in his business? he shall stand before kings; he shall not stand before mean men.—Prov. XXII: 29.

Kings are they who make possible the profit out of toil. Mean men are they who belittle and make useless the labor of their fellow men. In monarchical governments it is considered a great honor to be appointed artificer to his majesty, the king. "He who is diligent in business is an artificer to the king." What is it to be diligent? To apply with painstaking care and attention one's time and talent to our legitimate vocation. Some men make business their avocation and pleasure their vocation.

Whosoever would be appointed artificer to the king must be diligent. The legend tells of the workman who was bestowing diligent toil on work way up out of sight. When reminded that no one would see it, he replied: "The Gods will see it."

The thoughts of the diligent tend only to plenteousness, but every one that is hasty, hasteth only to want.

III.

A prudent man forseeth the evil, and hideth himself; but the simple pass on and are punished.—Prov. XXII: 3.

Prudence should go hand in hand with diligence. Diligence is aggressive. Prudence is defensive. Diligence is the General pushing his army forward, looking for new fields of conquest. Prudence is the Adjutant who sees that supplies are not lacking, that the army can be sheltered, and if need be, may even retreat in good order.

A prudent business man takes counsel of his better judgment. He does not allow impulse to silence caution. He takes counsel of experience. The pathway of business is full of beacon lights—if they are heeded, safety may be assumed. If neglected, shipwreck is imminent.

IV.

There is that scattereth, and yet increaseth; and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty. Prov. XI: 24.

You cannot raise a crop without sowing seed. In all successful business there must be a generous sowing. A good business man gathers about him helpful influences of men and facilities by a generous use of his means. A successful man is one who not only gathers but gives. Some men learn but one motion of the hand—they can close it up upon whatever comes within its reach, but they cannot open it when there is anything in it. Like those automatic savings-bank, that can only be opened at certain periods, they never release their hold till the contents fall in their own coffers. But it tendeth to poverty—poverty of soil, poverty of life and with full hands they die poor.

V.

The integrity of the upright shall guide them; but the perverseness of transgressors shall distroy them. Prov. XI: 3.

The Upright and Transgressors are aptly set over against each other. The upright keep on the straight line of rectitude. The transgressors pass over, break through, violate contracts.

Integrity is "wholeness," "soundness." Such an one is described as swearing to his own hurt and changing not. The integrity of the upright shall guide them. How? It guides them into the confidence of those with whom they deal. "When a man's ways please the Lord he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him." It guides them into security. "In the fear of the Lord is strong confidence and His children shall have a place of refuge."

VI.

Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and He will direct thy paths.—Prov. III. 5:6.

The promises of the Book assure nothing but bread and water but they do assure direction. "The blessing of the Lord it maketh rich and He addeth no sorrow with it." There are many things better than riches. "A good name is rather to be chosen than riches."

Wisdom is better than rubies, and all the things that are to be desired are not to be compared with her. "His fruit is better than gold; yea than fine gold and her revenue than choice silver." Heed her counsel. "Now, therefore, my son, hearken unto me, for blessed are they that keep my ways, whoso findeth me findeth life and shall obtain favor of the Lord, but he that sinneth against me wrongeth his own soul and all they that hate me love death."

The next of the series of popular talks to young men will be given by J. H. Cooley, M. D., on Thursday evening next. Subject: "Some things that men should know." All men are invited.

A VOTE ON THE TROLLEY.

Property Owners on East Fifth Street Say Herewith Record Themselves For or Against It.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS.—Surely the question of an electric street railway for Plainfield has been thoroughly ventilated. Now is the time for a vote, and I would like THE PRESS to open a poll in its columns for ten days, in this way:

The undersigned, property owners on East Fifth street, between Broadway and Richmond street, herewith record themselves and the amount of their frontage, for or against an electric street railway through that street.

IN FAVOR.	AGAINST.
Train, 55 ft on 5th st.
Moore, 50 ft on 5th st.
Murgatroyd, 40 ft on 5th st.
Milford, 45 ft on 5th st.
McKee, 45 ft on 5th st.
Milford, E. C. 450 ft on 5th st.
Keenan, 60 ft on 5th st.
Keenan, 80 ft on Richmond st.
Martin, 100 ft on 5th st.
Bunyon, 50 ft on 5th st.
MacDonald, 50 ft on 5th st.
Hurlbut, 70 ft on 5th st.
Langhorne, 35 ft on 5th st.
Alberti, 50 ft on 5th st.
Titsworth, 50 ft on 5th st.
Weseman, Alonzo W. 100 ft on Richmond street.
Vail, D. S. 50 ft. East 5th street.

Property owners along the above route will be recorded for or against, as they desire, upon sending their names and frontage owned to THE PRESS office.

The Rejected Suitor.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—The disinterestedness of the following clipping can be seen at a glance, when it is remembered that when Mr. Biker was addressing the Council on the night that the railway bill was passed to its first reading, he appealed to a well-known and responsible dealer in railway supplies—a resident of Plainfield—for some information regarding the cost of road-bed, etc., stating that he was probably more familiar with the question asked than was Mr. Biker. This would seem that the Plainfield gentleman had or would be likely to have business relations with the Newark Rapid Transit road. Hence these tears!

As the gentleman referred to is a well-known resident of Plainfield and possesses horses and carriages, it is likely he will be as anxious that the rails shall be of a proper kind as one who always "paddles afut".

Besides, all this is superfluous ragchewing, because the ordinance—published so that he who runs may read—expressly stipulates what kind of rail shall be laid, or the $20,000 bond and the $2,000 per mile will be forfeited.

"Trifles light as air, to a mind diseased seem confirmation, strong as proofs of Holy Writ"—

No MOONSHINE.

The clipping referred to is as follows:

O, HO! HOW'S THIS?

DOESN'T IT CONFIRM ALL WE HAVE SAID ABOUT THE MATTER?

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ——:—Some time ago I had a call from Mr. Thomas Nevins of Orange, N. J., regarding rails for a street railway in your city. 'Should this man build a road in Plainfield in the way he talked of, I would unhesitatingly pronounce it disgraceful for even a logging road in the woods, let alone a road to carry passengers in a city like yours. He simply wanted a tee rail, spiked to the ties. This of course you know would be an outrage upon the inhabitants of any town, as it would also be to grant a franchise for putting in such a street railway.

A franchise in a city like yours should require the very best construction for the road bed, similar to either the form I have sold to the Essex Passenger Railway of Newark, N. J., or to my box form of construction as shown on pages 8 and 9 of my catalogue, but with a rail having a top of the form shown on page 20. This will give the teams a chance to get out of the rail very easy, and there will be no liability of horses getting their toes under the flange of the rail, and ripping their hoofs off, when crossing at right angles, as very often happens when tee rails or common girder rails are used. R. F. WHITE.

Two Officers from Plainfield.

The Elizabeth Presbyterial Society for Foreign Missions held its twentieth anniversary at Rahway, Tuesday, in the First Presbyterian church. The auxiliaries and bands from most of the churches in the Presbytery were well represented. At the morning session the annual reports were presented, the treasurer's report showing the amount collected by the society during the year to be $4,894. A full report of the last annual meeting of the Philadelphia Society at Washington was given by Mrs. J. A. Liggett, of Rahway. In the afternoon a very bright paper entitled "Our Machinery," was read by Mrs. Fredrick Pierson, of Elizabeth. Then followed a lively mission band conference led by Miss Nelson, of Philadelphia, in which many of the delegate took part. This was followed by an address from the Rev. Mr. Bryan, for five years a missionary in Japan. The Rev. Mr. Mitchell, who was to have spoken, was detained at home by serious illness in his family. The officers elected for the next year are: President—Mrs. John Gillespie, Elizabeth; Vice Presidents—Mrs. C. H. Langdon, Elizabeth; Mrs. J. A. Liggett, Rahway; Mrs. J. G. Mason, Metuchen; Mrs. S. E. Lewis, Rahway; Mrs. S. J. Rowland, Clinton; Miss Kate High, Westfield; Mrs. Samuel Milliken, Plainfield; Mrs. Frederick Pierson, Elizabeth; Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. William Scribner, Plainfield; Recording Secretary—Miss E. M. Cotton, Elizabeth; Treasurer—Mrs. E. P. Tenney, Roselle; Assistant Treasurer—Mrs. W. P. Stevenson, Roselle.

STRIKERS THREATEN RIOT.

But the Sheriff is on Hand with a Posse to Preserve Order.

The employes in the silk mills of Megrose, Potier, Slachter & Co., at Sterling, a mountain village back of North Plainfield, are on strike. They are mostly Frenchmen and Italians. They struck because the firm insisted on their doing Sunday work against their wishes.

Some of the Frenchmen wanted to return to work Wednesday, when the Italians objected and attacked them. No one was seriously hurt, nor was much damage done. The Italians threatened the Frenchmen with violence if they returned to work. The Frenchmen refused to go to work yesterday unless they were protected by the firm from the violence of the strikers. The firm telegraphed to the sheriff of Morris county, who arrived with a posse of twenty-five men to protect the non-strikers.

The men claim it is a lockout because they want the mills to be union mills. The firm says it is a strike. They have notified the men who are on strike to vacate their houses by May 1. The houses are owned by the firm. They will not take back any of the strikers. The sheriff will remain at the mills until all danger of an outbreak is over.

Fishermen Must Beware.

Fish Warden C. L. Honeyman, of Somerset county, has given notice that under the law it is an offence to set any trap of any kind for the purpose of catching fish within 900 feet either above or below the dam erected across the Raritan river between the village of Bound Brook and the city of New Brunswick. Warden Honeyman purposes seeing that this law is enforced.

Here's our card.

It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are not straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public esteem accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for telling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of shoes.

ESTABLISHED 1856, AND STILL ON THE INCREASE.
"When a person squeals he must be hurt", says one merchant; but when a man's business is on the increase he cannot be hurt; thus proving that delusive advertising does not affect intelligent trade, and that the party who applied it made a wrong application; but all are liable to make mistakes. I have even seen in some advertisements, Cooper's Gelatine advertised as imported. I should think to substantiate such a statement would be a difficult matter. American goods sold for American, at

BUILDING A HOUSE.

Important Suggestions for People of Moderate Means.

The Duties of Architect and Builder—What Kind of Materials to Use—Plans and Specifications for a Pretty Home.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891, BY A. N. KELLOGG NEWSPAPER CO.]

This handsome dwelling is to contain seven rooms and can be built for $2,600. It is calculated to prepossess anyone in its favor, while the plan, with the somewhat original feature of a living room, is conducive to comfort and economy of space.

The front porch is 10x11 feet, hall 6x10 feet, living room 14x14 feet, kitchen 14x14 feet, pantry 5x6 feet, three chambers 14x14 feet, 11x14 feet, 10x14 feet, bedroom 9x10 feet, and an alcove 6x10 feet. The house is piped throughout for gas and furnace.

The materials employed in the construction of the building are fully described in the following specifications of material and labor required in the erection and completion of a dwelling house, according to plans, and under the superintendence of the owner.

SPECIFICATIONS.

DRAWINGS, ETC.—The contractors will make no alterations from drawings or specifications, but should any error or inconsistency appear in these during the progress of the work, it shall be the duty of the contractors to duly notify the owner, who will make the proper adjustments.

The drawings and specifications are to be used for this building only, and are the property of the owner, and are to be carefully treated and returned to him on completion of the work. The drawings and specifications are to be signed by both owner and contractor, for the purpose of identification.

GENERAL REQUIREMENTS.—The contractor is to furnish all transportation, labor, materials, scaffolding, etc., for performing the work in the best manner. All materials shall be the best of their several kinds, and all work done in a thorough and workmanlike manner, to the true intent and meaning of the following specifications and accompanying drawings, which are intended to include everything requisite and necessary to the proper and entire finishing of the work, notwithstanding every item necessarily involved by the works is not particularly mentioned. All work, when finished, to be delivered up in a perfect and undamaged state.

Any portion of the work done by the contractors of a quality not approved by the owner, shall be forthwith removed by and at the expense of the contractor and replaced by him in a proper and satisfactory manner.

The contractors must do all the necessary cutting and patching, and make good after all mechanics, also clean out building when required by the owner, also cart away all rubbish that may accumulate at any time during the progress of the work and is not required on the premises, but he can put the same in any suitable place, if any such place can be found on the premises.

All masonry to be laid to be properly protected from the weather by the mason, and the carpenter must provide suitable protection to all openings to keep out the cold, rain, etc. The carpenter will provide set centers, etc., required by the mason.

EXCAVATIONS.—Make excavation for cellar the full size of house, as shown on cellar plan, to about the depth of four feet below the line of the present grade, and place the earth in a convenient place for grading.

GRADING.—Fill in around and pack the earth against the cellar walls, after the mortar is dry, and grade the excavated earth around to the height of about one foot six inches above the line of old grade, and slope off the ground on all sides of the building as directed.

CONCRETING.—Concreting to be composed of coarse gravel and cement. One part cement and two parts lime, and sharp sand, also concrete the cellar bottom to the depth of three inches, with the upper surface left straight and level.

—First Floor Plan—

BRICKWORK.—Build piers, chimneys, etc., to the heights and thickness as shown of good, hard burned brick laid in mortar composed of one part cement, two parts lime, and the necessary quantity of clean, sharp sand, laid true and plumb with flush joints. Build flues in chimney stacks as shown. Leave all flues clean and smooth, and plaster all chimney stacks on all sides, as they are laid up to the under side of roof. Also build all other brickwork as shown on plans.

STONEWORK.—Build all outside basement walls of rubble stone 16 inches thick, well bonded and bedded.

FOOTINGS.—Make footings of all walls, piers, posts, chimneys, etc., with large pieces of rubble stone.

LATHING AND PLASTERING.

LATHING.—Lath all walls, partitions, ceilings in first and second stories and ceiling in kitchen with sound lath of full thickness, laid on ¼ of an inch apart and thoroughly nailed, joints broken every 16 inches. Under no circumstances must lath stop and form a long, straight, vertical joint, nor any lath put on vertically to finish out corners or angles; nor must there be any lath run through angles and behind studding from one room to another; all to be formed and nailed solid in angles before lathing. Should there be any not properly secured, stop and notify carpenter.

PLASTERING.—All walls, partitions and ceilings in first and second stories to be finished with best two-coat work, to be properly put on and applied with sufficient force to secure strong clinches; level and float up the brown coat and make it true at all joints. Cover all the brown mortar with a good coat of best white hard finish, composed of finishing lime-putty and plaster of paris and clean, washed white sand; mix in proper proportions, so as to secure a good and workmanlike job; all lathing and plastering to extend clear down to the floor, and all walls to be straight and plumb, and all angles to be sharp and regular; do all the necessary patching after other workmen, and leave everything in a perfect and complete state.

CARPENTER WORK.

TIMBER.—The timber used throughout this building to be of good quality, well seasoned and free from sap, shakes, large or loose knots or other imperfections impairing its durability and strength. All to be of spruce excepting where otherwise mentioned.

FRAMING.—Size of timbers: Girders in cellar, 8x10 inches, of spruce timber; sills, 6x8, halved and spiked at angles; posts, 8x8; girts, 4x6; plates, 4x6; braces, 4x4; floor joists, 2x10, placed 16 inches centers; roof rafters, 2x4 placed 20 inches to centers; collar beams, 2x4; studs for filling in outside walls, 2x4, of hemlock; partition studs for inside partition, 2x4, of hemlock; hip and valley rafters, 2x6; ridge, 2x10; trimmers and headers, 4x10. Veranda timbers: Sills, 4x6 inches; plate, 3x4; floor joists, 2x6; rafters, 2x8. All trimming of verands to be of white pine.

The frame to be thoroughly braced at angles, posts to be mortised into sill, girts well framed into posts and beams notched on to sill and girts, etc., and all framing to be done in a substantial manner and to the satisfaction of the owner.

CROSS BRIDGING.—Bridge each tier of beams with two rows of cross bridging to each tier except attic, which will have one row, with 1x2 inch stuff.

HEADERS AND TRIMMERS.—All headers to be 4x10 inches, properly framed together, leaving all openings of sufficient size for the finish of stairs, chimneys, etc., and in no case allow the wood to come within 1 and ½ inch around chimneys; care must be taken in framing, so that important timbers will not require cutting for chimneys, heater pipes, plumbing, etc. Cross furring for first-story ceiling of 1x2 inch stuff.

EXTERIOR WORK.

SHEATHING.—Cover the whole frame with matched fencing laid with close joints and thoroughly nailed to frame.

BUILDING PAPER.—Cover the sheathing of all outside walls and roofs with best sheathing paper, carefully tacked on and lapped 3 inches, and neatly fitted around all openings, dormers, gables, etc., in roof. Rosin-sized sheathing paper to be used.

CLAPBOARDING.—Put on best quality of clear, dry white pine siding, all laid perfectly even gauge of not over 4 inches; cut close joints against all castings, etc., and all well nailed to every stud, with nails set in for puttying.

CORNER BOARDS.—Casings, bands, etc., to be as shown and about 1 and ¼ inch thick, and all other trimmings to be as shown. All this work to be of well seasoned pine (white) free from large, loose knots, etc.

VERANDA.—To be as shown, rail and brackets, cornice, etc., all to be of white pine.

Lay the floor with tongued and grooved white pine flooring about 4½ inches wide, blind nailed and laid close. Construct steps as shown, to have cove under nosing, etc.

SHINGLES.—Where shown, shingle outside walls with good quality white pine shingles, laid to the weather about 5½ inches and applied in the best manner.

ROOFING.—Carpenter shall frame and construct all roofs in the most thorough manner, all thoroughly spiked and braced. Do all the necessary framing as required for gables, chimneys, etc., provide and fix the ends of rafters of size as shown, and cut to the forms shown, all to be nailed to main rafters. Also provide and put in place, a gutter with molded face, well nailed and supported, of white pine, and pitch the water to points indicated for leaders.

—Second Floor Plan—

Make all the molded cornices on gables, etc., and all other work in gables, etc., as shown. Make cresting, etc., as shown out of 1¼ inch stuff, and furnish all finials as shown.

Shingles to be put on in the best manner, properly laid, joints broken, each shingle to be well nailed, and to stand way from angle of valleys 1¼ inches. These shingles to be of best quality white pine and laid about 4½ inches to the weather.

WINDOWS and window frames to be as shown, made in the ordinary manner, with boxes or weigh weights, to be of well-seasoned white pine, weather-lapped meeting rail, and to be hung with the best hemp sash cord and cast-iron weights. Cellar windows and windows in gables, as shown, to swing and made watertight.

GLASS.—All the windows in first and second stories to be glazed as shown, with clear, double thick, American sheet glass. The glass for sashes in roof and cellar to be glazed with single thick sheet glass. Provide and hang to all windows in first and second stories, outside blinds, in two folds with rolling slats, hung with hinges and secured with proper fastenings, primed before coming to building. Do all other outside wood work shown on drawings, but not particularly mentioned.

INTERIOR WORK.

FLOORING.—Lay all flooring in first and second stories with white pine flooring, tongued and grooved, not over 5 inches wide and well nailed to beams and free from large knots, shakes or other bad imperfections. All flooring to be tongued and grooved, and laid close to the outside wall; closing up all spaces completely. All joints to be leveled off smooth.

BASE BOARDS.—There will be a 9 inch base board on first and upper floors, with molded top.

DOORS AND ARCHITRAVES.—All door and window openings to have a 4-inch architrave, with turned corner block and base block high enough to receive the full base, all to be thoroughly nailed and put up in the best manner. For inside of closets a plain casing to be used. All windows on first and second stories will be finished down to sill with apron piece.

DOORS.—There will be a glazed front door, as shown on elevation 2¼ inches thick. All doors on first and second stories and attic shall be four panel flush molded 1⅜ inches thick and of the sizes shown on plans. Closet doors to be 1⅜ inches thick and molded on one side.

CLOSETS.—All closets on second story one row of shelves and the necessary number of closet hooks.

PORTABLE COAL SLIDES.—Construct a portable coal slide to fit cellar window, of ⅞-inch plank, and made so that they can be taken out and in with ease.

COAL BINS, ETC.—Construct bins in cellar with hemlock boards as usual.

MAIN STAIRCASE.—To have risers and treads, tongued and grooved together. Treads to have nosing with cove under, finished work of stairs to be put up after plastering is finished dry; wall strings to be 11½ inches, top edge molded to correspond with adjoining base. All to be of the best white pine.

NEWELS, RAILS AND BALUSTERS.—To be as shown and to be of selected dry red oak, all to be properly secured. Main newel, small newels and balusters to be as shown.

PRIVY.—Build a privy 5x7 feet where directed, with seats, risers, etc., to be of the usual height inside, roof hipped and shingled, window inside about 20 inches square, swinging sash, and glazed with single thick glass, paneled door, with butts, lock and bolt, exterior walls shingled, eaves molded.

TINNING.—Use the best I. C. charcoal tin for all hips, ridges, valleys, gutters, dormers, etc., the side of each sheet painted one coat before laying, and all valleys, hips, gutters, etc., painted three coats before the shingles are put on.

GUTTERS.—Line the gutter of main roof, and run the tin up under the shingles at least 10 inches; bring the tin over the face of cornice and tack it down and well soldered. Do all necessary tin flashing and top of window caps, etc., and do all other necessary flashing; go over the work and stop all leaks after other craftsmen, and leave everything tight.

LEADERS.—Put up and properly connect with gutter a 4-inch tin leader in front of house from main roof, with the necessary elbows, bends, etc., to convey the water from the gutter. Have suitable shoes at bottom, to throw the water away from the building.

HARDWARE.

LOCKS.—The main entrance and vestibule doors to have mortised locks with keys, said doors to have imitation bronze fronts, butts and knobs. All other doors on first and second stories to have mortise locks with white porcelain trimmings and iron loose joint butts. All outside bedroom doors to have mortise bolts on second story. Rim locks to all closet doors. Furnish all the necessary locks, keys, butts, drawer pulls, etc., of imitation bronze.

SASH PULLEYS, WEIGHTS AND SASH LINE.—To all windows suitable size sash pulleys, best hemp cord and weights, etc. Furnish all hinges and fastenings for outside blinds.

CLOSET HOOKS, ETC.—Furnish all necessary closet hooks, black japanned.

Furnish all other hardware necessary to make this building complete, of a quality as above specified and carefully put on so that all doors will look and be in good order when left.

PAINTING.

Furnish all material and perform all labor for the full completion of all the wood work. All lead and oil must be of the best and most serviceable make. All wood work must be thoroughly cleaned off, sandpapered, cracks and nail holes stopped with putty, knots properly killed, and wood work free from dirt and dust.

FIRST STORY.—All wood work on first floor to be painted three coats of such colors as directed by the owner.

SECOND STORY.—All wood work in second story to have three coats in two colors as directed by the owner.

NEWELS, BALUSTERS AND RAIL to main staircase to be filled with patent wood filler properly applied, rubbed down and cleaned off, and finished with two coats of hard oil finish.

OUTSIDE WORK.—Paint all outside work included in this specifications, including all roofs, etc., three coats of best white lead and linseed oil paint of such colors as the owner may direct, and all work both inside and out must be to his entire satisfaction. All paint and varnish spots to be cleaned off of walls and floors at completion of the work, and all left in a perfect state.

PLUMBING.

Furnish all materials and perform all labor requisite and necessary for putting up and completing all the plumbing work in a thorough workmanlike manner, according to drawings and specifications.

All water pipes must be so put in that they can be readily got at at any time for examination. All lead pipes to be secured with hard metal tacks and screws, and all lead waste connections to iron pipes to be made through brass ferrules. Iron waste pipe to have joints calked with oakum and run with molten lead.

SINK.—Furnish and put a galvanized iron sink, lined with white porcelain, where shown in kitchen, with cold water supply and brass cocks, and waste through a two inch lead pipe with trap and trap screw, and connected with two-inch iron cold water connections.

PUMP AND SUPPLY PIPE.—Set in kitchen, alongside of sink, a double-acting pump, and make all the necessary connections with one inch galvanized iron pipe from well.

ELECTRO-PLATING.

The Principle Lying at the Foundation of the Interesting Process.

Whenever a current of electricity passes through a liquid which contains a metallic salt in solution, the metal of the salt will be deposited upon the place where the current leaves the liquid. The ends of the wires which bring and carry away the current are called electrodes. The electrode which is connected with the zinc of the battery is the one which receives the deposit.

This principle lies at the foundation of the process of electro-plating, by means of which any cheap metal is covered with a thin coating of a dearer metal.

To experiment with electro-plating you will need three things—a battery, a plating bath and a means of cleaning the article which is to be plated.

For a battery, three cells of any of the batteries hitherto described will suffice. Connect the zinc of No. 1 to the copper or carbon of No. 2, the zinc of No. 2 to the carbon of No. 3, and the remaining terminals of No. 1 and No. 3 are connected with the bath.

As a receptacle for the solution, use a pint bowl—a cheap finger bowl, or a bread and milk bowl with wide bottom, will do. Across the top of this place two bright copper or brass wires, an eighth of an inch in diameter. Connect the ends of these with the terminals of the battery.

To plate with copper, fill the bowl with a solution made by dissolving two ounces of blue vitrol in a pint of boiling water. To plate with silver, use a solution of seventy grains each of silver cyanide and potassium cyanide in a little less than a pint of water. These salts are poisonous, and the hands should not be brought to the mouth after handling them. Upon the wire, which is connected with the zinc of the battery, hang, by means of an S-shaped hook of bright copper wire, the article to be plated. Upon the other wire suspend in the same manner a piece of sheet copper about the same size as the article.

In order that the article may receive an even coating of metal, it must be thoroughly cleaned. In practice, regular platers pass it through several baths. For most work it will suffice to dip, for a few minutes, in a solution of common commercial potash and water. After its removal, wash it in boiling hot water.

After this it should not be touched by the hands, but must be handled with tissue paper. The perspiration from the hands would prevent the deposit from adhering. In some cases it is necessary to dip the article, for a few moments, in nitric acid, and then thoroughly rinse with water.

After the articles have received a sufficiently thick coating, they may be removed from the bath and washed in an abundance of water. The copper needs no further attention; but silver-plated articles appear dull, and will need to be polished. This can be done with a chamois skin and any ordinary polishing powder.—Youth's Companion.

Eczema from the Virginia Creeper.

The Lancet (London) relates a number of unmistakable cases of eczema produced from gathering leaves of the Virginia creeper. The effect, rash, heat, and irritation of the skin is the same as that caused by ivy and dogwood on some persons.

THE DRESS IS FINISHED, SO AM I."

A gorgeous costume flashed beneath the brilliant lights of a ball-room; "a queen of society is radiant to-night."

The nervous hands of a weak woman have toiled day and night, the weary frame and aching head have known no rest—for "the dress must be finished in time."

To that queen of society and her dressmaker we would say a word. One, through hot-house culture, luxury, and excitement, and the other, through the toil of necessity, may some day find their ailments a common cause. The Vegetable Compound will enable both to meet the demands of society.

IN GOOD COMPANY.

Miss Bliss—Your friend, Mr. Parker, has not favored us with his presence this afternoon, Mr. Idlewild.

Idlewild—It is strange that Charlie has not put in appearance. I saw him only last evening strolling down the avenue with a well-known club man.—Munsey's Weekly.

A Long Wait.

Dashaway—An amateur performance I attended the other evening was delayed an hour because one of the leading actors was ill. They got a fellow from the audience to take his place.

Cleverton—I don't see why getting a fellow from the audience delayed them an hour.

Dashaway—They had to wait for one to come in.—Judge.

He Disproved His Own Words.

Van Duder—It's all very well to talk about the splendid forms of the Greek statues, but we modern men are far superior to the ancients in physique. Don't you agree with me, Miss Cutting?

Miss Cutting—Well, Mr. Van Duder, I can't say that I see much evidence of it at present.—Munsey's Weekly.

Nothing Wrong About That Top.

Mamma—Willie, you must not spin that humming top of yours to-day. This is Sunday.

Willie (whirling it again)—That's all right, mamma. It's humming a Sunday-school tune.—Chicago Tribune.

An Anatomical Proposal.

"Why did you refuse the learned and rich Mr. Sighence?"

"He is too precise. When he proposed he asked me for my hand and liver. He says the liver has been proved to be the seat of affection. Fancy living with that sort of a man!"—St. Joseph News.

Her Training.

"I don't see how Miss Summit ever became such a good conversationalist. She used to be the shyest girl I ever knew."

"Well, you see, she has been going regularly to the opera ever since she 'came out'"—Puck.

A MATTER OF INSTINCT.

—Life.

The Old Gentleman's Prerogative.

"Let me give you a weigh," remarked young Dolley, as he motioned Miss Amy to step on the scales.

"My father is the only person who can do that," replied Amy, archly.—Munsey's Weekly.

No Doubt of It.

Teacher—Who was it that said first, property is robbery?

Boy—I don't know. I suppose it was some fellow who didn't have any.—Texas Siftings.

Anchored for Keeps.

Teacher—Miss Blithersome, why don't you rise for your recitation?

Miss Rollison—Please, ma'am, she can't. She's been sitting on her spruce-gum.—Judge.

Experientia Docet.

Dying Wife—Oh, John, if you marry again, be very careful in your choice!

John—You bet I will, the next time.—Jury.

Ontario Center, N. Y.
May 7, 1890.
F. E. C. Medicine Co., Rochester, N. Y.:
For seven or eight years my wife has been troubled with some kind of kidney trouble. She tried many different remedies but all in vain. She continued to grow worse. Last fall I induced her to try the F. E. C. Remedy, and before using one bottle she began to improve, and now, after using six bottles, she is entirely cured. I have recommended it to many and it has benefitted in every case heard from.

The True Test for Baking Powders.

The severe analytical tests to which the various baking powders have from time to time been placed have demonstrated clearly to the public the relative merits of the different brands from a scientific point of view. The Government investigations, for instance, have shown that the Royal Baking Powder gives off the largest amount of leavening gas, and therefore is the most economical for general use. They also show the Royal to be absolutely pure and wholesome. For these reasons the Royal was recommended for Government uses, and is now used in the War and Navy Departments.

But the crucial test of the kitchen is, after all, the most satisfactory to the housekeeper. A baking powder that never fails to make light, sweet, wholesome and palatable bread, biscuit, cake, etc., is the one that will be selected by the practical housekeeper and received into her kitchen for continuous use. This test the Royal Baking Powder has stood for twenty-five years without failure, and hence its reputation as the best baking powder made has spread from house to house, until its use has become as universal as its merits are unrivaled.

GUESTS FRIGHTENED

Vice-President Morton's Shoreham Flat Falls In.

ACCIDENT CAUSED BY A JACK.

The Damage Was Confined to the South End of the Structure.

A Man of Many Trials to be Court Martialled Again—Not Desirable Immigrants Violated the Alien Contract Law—The Kaiser's Latest Idea—Contract Awarded for Iron for the Treasury Department.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Five floors of the apartment house owned by Vice President Morton crashed in yesterday afternoon, caused by the pressure of the hydraulic jack on the upper floor, where improvements were in progress. Workmen had just finished clearing away the debris on the lower floor when the crash came. No one was injured.

Guests were at dinner in the north wing when it was reported that the building was falling. All rushed into the street. The damage was confined to the south end of the structure, which was constructed two years ago, and cost $1,200,000. Senator Stewart, of Nevada, and a number of other distinguished men were among the guests. The building was called the Shoreham, after Vice-President Morton's native town. That official was in Washington to attend a dinner given by the British Minister.

A MAN OF MANY TRIALS.

An Army Officer Will Again be Court Martialled.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—An order from the War Department directs that Lieut. Hampton M. Roach be tried on a new set of charges, consisting of absence without leave and drunkenness.

Lieutenant Roach was taken back to Fortress Monroe on Saturday last, having been arrested at Governor's Island, where he had appeared in an intoxicated condition after several day's unauthorized absence from his station at Fortress Monroe, where he was under arrest for duplicating his pay accounts. The same court that tried him on this charge will be reconvened for his trial on the new charge.

Not Desirable Immigrants.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Collector Dow, of Portland, Me., reported to the Treasury Department that on April 14 the Oregon landed at that port 15 immigrants. She had previously touched at Halifax and landed there 494 immigrants. Inquiry among the immigrants landed at Portland developed the fact that those who had been landed at Halifax intended to cross over into the United States at the first opportunity. From information obtained from Halifax Colonel Dow says that they were a very low and degraded class of immigrants.

The Kaiser's Latest Idea.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—A Berlin despatch says that the Kaiser's latest idea is to have a German edition of the World's Fair to be held in Chicago, to be held in Berlin immediately after the Chicago Exhibition. It is to be an international exhibition of industries, and a committee is soon to take charge of the movement. The certainty of the absence of France casts a gloom over the undertaking.

Violated the Contract Law.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Special Agent Lester reports to the Treasury Department that he has discovered that four men employed by W. N. Saied & Co. of Louisville, Ky., were brought over to this country under contract. He considers the case a clear violation of the Alien Contract law and recommends that proceedings be instituted against the

JOHN'S WIFE INDIGNANT.

She Denies That She Intends to Join the Salvation Army.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 18.—John L. Sullivan's wife is indignant at the stories circulated about her in connection with the Salvation Army.

She denies she is going to join the Salvation army post at Natick, or any where else. The story of her proposed baptismal immersion she brands as an utter falsehood, and has grieved her deeply.

She intends to accompany her husband on his travels through this country, and also to go with him on his trip to Australia.

A Murderer Escapes.

BALTIMORE, April 18.—William Blaney, who was recently convicted of murdering his grandmother and aunt, and who was sentenced by Governor Jackson to be hanged on June 12, has escaped from the Baltimore Jail. The sentence was to have been read to Blaney this afternoon, but when looked for his cell was found to be empty. Blaney's crime was particularly atrocious. He was caught in the act of robbing his grandmother, who had supported him for years, and he slit her head open with an axe. His aunt then appearing on the scene, he also butchered her. His trial was a long one, resulting in a verdict of guilty. Blaney's friends then said that he would never go to the gallows.

Mutiny on a Brig.

NEW YORK, April 18.—A mutiny occurred on board the brig Henrietta G. as the vessel was off Liberty Island on her way to Cuba. The crew, four in number, were intoxicated and refused to obey orders. They attacked First Mate Libby with knives, and he shot two of them in self defense. The captain and second mate then came to Mr. Libby's aid, and the sailors were soon overpowered. The wounded men, whose injuries are slight, were taken to the hospital, while the others were locked up. Mate Libbey was also arrested.

Washburne Probably Elected.

CHICAGO, April 18.—The work of the Election Board is nearly completed, and the Democrats are willing to concede Mr. Cregier's defeat. The Republicans have been satisfied for several days that their candidate, Hempstead Washburne, had a safe majority.

Bismarck to the Kaiser.

BERLIN, April 18.—Prince Bismarck, receiving delegates from the Conservatives of Kiel at Friedrichsruhe, said that the Kaiser would do well to desist from conceding further changes, and that he ought to revert to the conservative policy of his grandfather.

Against Admitting Women.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., April 18.—One hundred and three votes were cast in the Methodist Conference here on the question of admitting women as delegates to the General Conference. The majority against their admission was 55.

Died After Thirty Years in Bed.

MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., April 18.—Mrs. Mary White died after an illness of more than 30 years, during which time she never arose from her bed. A physician has administered to her every day during her illness.

Dr. Kennedy Dead.

CAPE MAY, N. J., April 18.—Dr. Henry A. Kennedy, one of the most respected of citizens and the most skilful surgeon and physician in this part of the State, died at his home in this city during the early hours of the morning. Dr. Kennedy had not been feeling well for some time, but was not taken down to his bed until two weeks ago, when he was prostrated with the grip, after which a complication of diseases set in and conquered him. His name has been on every tongue here for the last 48 hours.

THROUGH ARKANSAS

The President's Monotonous Journey in the Swamps.

SERENADED BY A NEGRO BAND.

His Reception at Little Rock Was Very Enthusiastic.

The President Made a Short Speech—The Houses Along the Line of Route Profusely Decorated—Gov. Hogg of Texas to Meet the President—Will Not Review the Sunday School Children.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 18.—The Presidential train arrived in Little Rock last evening, after an uneventful run from Memphis. The great Arkansas swamp region through which the train passed was rather monotonous, but the President seemed to enjoy the green foliage and picturesque negro cabins. At Madison, a small village on the banks of the St. Francis River, the train was brought to a standstill to enable the President to hear a serenade by a band of negro musicians. At Forest City a large crowd cheered the President as the train went by, and at Brinkley a salute was fired from a cannon, and several hundred people gave vent to their lungs. Carlisle, a village 30 miles from Little Rock, turned out 100 people to greet the President. Here the wife of Gov. Eagle and other ladies, forming a committee of reception, met the train and proceeded with it to Little Rock.

The President's reception at Little Rock was enthusiastic; cannon boomed and whistles blew. Escorted by military organizations the Presidential party proceeded to the State Capitol, in front of which a gaily decorated stand had been erected. The Presidential party were given seats on the platform, with the Governor and State officers, Federal and State Judiciary, Reception Committee and Mayor and Town Council. In front of the grand stand several thousand people were packed in a solid mass, and they cheered lustily when the President was introduced by Governor Eagle. The President made a short speech, and Postmaster General Wanamaker and Secretary Rusk followed him with a few brief remarks.

After the President had held a short reception he was driven back to the depot, and just before 7 o'clock the Presidential train left for Galveston. The houses along the line of route in Little Rock were profusely decorated with bunting, and the Capitol building was covered with flags.

Gov. Hogg, of Texas, has telegraphed that he will meet the President at Palestine, in that State, and Brig.-Gen. Stanley, commanding the Department of Texas, and his personal staff, will join the party at Galveston and accompany it to San Antonio. Brig.-Gen. McCook will accompany the party through his department from El Paso to Los Angeles.

The President has informed the committee in charge of arrangements at Galveston that he preferred that there be no demonstration in that city to-morrow, as it is his desire to devote the whole day to much needed rest. The review of school children arranged for that day will therefore be abandoned.

A DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

A Young Machinist Shoots His Wife and Himself.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., April 18.—Samuel Clark, a machinist, 24 years of age, shot and fatally wounded his wife Sarah, aged 23, last evening. Clark then shot himself, and his wounds are also considered fatal. Clark had been out of work of late, and this probably prompted the tragedy.

The couple lived at No. 206 Concord street and were the only tenants of the house, and nobody, therefore, knows exactly why or when the shooting occurred.

Neighbors saw the two children of the couple, aged respectively 6 and 3 years, playing on the street at 3 p. m., and, suspecting that something was wrong, notified the police, who found the couple weltering in their blood in their apartments. The woman was still conscious when found, and informed the police that her husband had committed the terrible deed. She then relapsed into unconsciousness, and the cause of the tragedy could not be learned.

Must Not Delay Immigrants.

NEW YORK, April 18.—The war between the railroads of the Trunk Line Association and the Chicago & Alton has caused a great deal of delay and confusion among the immigrants who arrive here and desire to go West. Col. Weber, the Commissioner of Immigration, has notified all the roads concerned that no immigrant must be delayed hereafter by the trouble between the roads. The roads over whose lines the ticket of the immigrant takes him must carry him straight through to his destination.

THE FUNERAL STOPPED.

Murder Suspected and an Autopsy Reveals Bruises Which Probably Caused Death.

NEW YORK, April 18.—The funeral procession of Mrs. Catherine C. Deringer, 28 years old, was stopped while en route to Calvary Cemetery by a deputy coroner. The remains were taken to the morgue, where an autopsy revealed bruises about the woman's head which probably caused death.

The woman died suddenly, but the first examination of the coroner did not reveal what was brought out at the second autopsy.

The woman's relatives suspected there was something wrong about the death and questioned the 5-year old daughter of the deceased, who told them that her father had struck her mother and thrown her to the floor. These facts were reported to the coroner, and he had the funeral stopped with the above result. The husband will be arrested.

GRIP RELEASING ITS HOLD.

It Is Still as Fatal, But There Are Fewer Cases.

NEW YORK, April 18.—The fine weather is at last showing its influence on the public health. Only 183 deaths were reported during the day, a decrease of 20 per cent. from the preceding day's list. This is entirely due to the fact that the majority of diseases, which vary slightly from day to day, proved less fatal than usual. Grip has in no way lost its effect, except that a slight decrease in the number of new cases is noticeable.

Though only 23 of those dying yesterday were afflicted with the epidemic, two less than on Thursday, five of these cases were uncomplicated with any other disease, thus showing that it has in no way decreased in vigor, as the average is considerably lower.

As usual it attacked both young and old. One of yesterday's victims was less than 4 months old, but those of extreme age suffered the more severely. One old man had reached 90 years, and two women were aged respectively 70 and 86 years.

The hospitals are still overcrowded and must continue so for some time to come, as recoveries are slow, and the death rate is lowering. Other contagious diseases show no increase. Incoming steamships have brought in a few more cases of smallpox, one of the patients dying while undergoing removal to the pest house. The typhus patients on North Brother Island are favorably reported, and no signs of infection have appeared in either Bellevue Hospital or the houses in which the persons sickened.

CHICAGO'S CONTEST.

The Official Count Gives Washburne 309 Plurality.

CHICAGO, April 18.—The official canvass of the city election has been completed, and Hempstead Washburne, Republican, for mayor has a plurality of 309 over Cregier.

The canvassing board adjourned until Monday for the purpose of taking up the large number of precinct returns which have been held over for revision, and at that time Judge Prendergast will present proof of alleged Republican frauds. If these proofs are of such a nature as to invalidate the election of mayor, then the board may act, otherwise the certificate of election will go to Hempstead Washburne. If the certificate of election is issued, the only redress Mayor Cregier has is to go into the courts, but it is not likely that he will go into protracted and expensive litigation.

The vote for mayor is as follows: Hempstead Washburne, Republican, 46,907; De Witt C. Cregier, Democrat, 46,598; C. H. Harrison, Ind. Democrat, 42,931; E. Washburn, Ind. Republican, 24,047; Thomas Morgan, Socialist, 2,376.

SCHWATKA GOING TO ALASKA.

To Explore Places Where No White Man Has Ever Penetrated.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 18.—Frederick Schwatka, the writer and explorer, left here during the night for the Pacific coast on his way to Alaska, where he expects to explore a large section of the country from the Yukon River west. In speaking of his trip he said:

"We will begin our explorations at the Yukon River and go as far west as possible. It may be to the Behring Sea, if we are not stopped by the Indians—and I do not anticipate any such trouble. The distance to be covered in a straight line would be some 400 miles, but our mileage will be governed by the distance we deviate from this course. We expect to cover 1,000 miles. No white man, so far as is known, has ever entered this country, so no one can make any predictions as to what it will be like. This is my third exploring trip to Alaska, and I can truthfully say it is a wonderful country."

Supposed to Have Been Murdered.

MOUNT CARMEL, Pa., April 18.—The mangled body of Joseph Burk, a Pole, was found on the railroad tracks here. An inquest was held during the day, at which facts came out that lead to the belief that the man was first murdered and then placed on the tracks. Several bad bruises were discovered about the head, which had evidently been made by some blunt instrument, and $40, which the man was known to have had in his possession, was missing. The police authorities are investigating the matter.

An Overissue of Stock.

BOSTON, April 18.—A circular has been issued by the Boston Water Power Company announcing an overissue of stock by 21,366 shares. It is proposed to the stockholders that at the annual meeting on April 28 they vote to reduce the issued capital stock from 116,782 shares back to 94,416 shares, and that they surrender all of their shares and receive three shares for four now held.

Rev. Charles Bennett Dead.

CHICAGO, April 18.—The Rev. Charles Bennett, D. D., LL. D., Professor of Historical Theology in the Garrett Biblical Institute, at Evanston, died during the morning from Bright's disease of the kidneys, together with a complication of other troubles. Professor Bennett was born at East Bethany, N. Y., on July 18, 1838, and was one of the foremost Methodist educators in the country.

Says the Charges Are Exorbitant.

WORCESTER, Mass., April 18.—The suit of Thayer & Rugg, a law firm of this city, against Thomas McQuaid, of Webster, has been begun. The plaintiffs sue to recover $1,000 for professional services in defending the defendant's son, T. B. McQuaid, on the charge of the murder of Lillie Hoyle. The defendant alleges that the charges are exorbitant.

Rhode Island's Chief Justice.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 18.—Charles Matteson, senior Justice of the Supreme Court of Rhode Island, was to-day elected Chief Justice by the Legislature.

Test it Yourself.

Test it for Purity. Cleveland's Baking Powder is perfectly pure. The same claim is made for powders adulterated with ammonia and alum, but you can settle the question yourself. "Boil a teaspoonful of the baking powder in a teaspoonful of water; if adulterated the smell of ammonia can be detected in the steam."

Test it for Strength. Cleveland's Baking Powder is the strongest. It is the most effective and economical. Try it. A teaspoonful of Cleveland's will do more and better work than a heaping teaspoonful of other powders.

Test it by Results. Food made with Cleveland's keeps moist and fresh for days, but if made with others soon dries out and becomes "husky." Cleveland's leavens evenly, making fine grained, delicately fibred breads and cakes, results produced by no other leavening agent.

Cleveland's Baking Powder
Stands all Tests.

RIOTING IN BENARES

Danger of a General Uprising in the Sacred City.

PARNELL ISSUES A MANIFESTO.

Anarchists in Paris Break Up a Meeting and Run It Themselves.

Prince Bismarck Is Confident of Election on the Second Ballot—A Grand Duchess Commits Suicide—Irish Immigration to America—Both Amendments Rejected—The Report Denied.

BENARES, April 18.—The excitement in this city, originating from the demolition of a temple in order to provide for a new water works, increases every hour. All the shops in Benares are closed, and all the natives in the city and district have sullenly stopped work and are gathering in large crowds in and about the principal thoroughfares of the holy city. The result is that serious riots have already occurred between the disturbed natives and the local authorities of Benares, who are supported by the British troops quartered in that vicinity.

The British troops are guarding all the banks, public buildings, and also occupy in force many points of vantage throughout the district and city. It is consequently presumed that the troops will be able to suppress promptly any serious outbreak on the part of the natives, but the eventual effect of the spirit of resentment and indignation among the Hindoos, already felt far and wide in India, cannot for the present be correctly estimated.

Benares, the most populous city in the northwestern provinces of British India, numbering 190,700 souls in 1881, is one of the most ancient cities on the globe.

PARNELL'S APPEAL.

A Manifesto Issued to the English National League.

LONDON, April 18.—Parnell has issued a manifesto to the members of the English National League. He says that his policy has been to make English parties subserve Irish interests. This was a success in the Land Arrears and Home Rule bills, when we had the support of both the English parties. We are now weak because of the desertion of raw recruits and terrified captains. It is sought to make our organization subserve English interests. This would be ruinous.

Mr. Parnell dwells briefly upon the plan of the seceders, under the spell of English dictation, to drive him from public life, and he turns from the Anglo-Irish, and appeals to the national instincts of the Irish race to show that Irishmen alone shall regulate Irish affairs, from selecting a leader in the English Parliament to the fullest control of national affairs in an Irish Parliament.

BISMARCK IS SATISFIED.

He is Confident of Election to the Reichstag on the Second Ballot.

HAMBURG, April 18.—Prince Bismarck received with equanimity the result of the voting at Geestemunde, and was rather gratified at not suffering defeat in view of the active opposition of the Government and Socialists. The Prince, his friends say, is confident of election on the second ballot, and is well satisfied with the prospects of going to the Reichstag. Hamburg Socialists are disappointed because they did not elect their candidate, as they had expected and as Bismarck's friends apprehended, for the latter were already preparing another seat for him.

Anarchists Break Up a Meeting.

PARIS, April 18.—While a number of workingmen were gathered for the purpose of making arrangements for participating in the May Day labor demonstration, the proceedings were interrupted by an incursion of Anarchists, who, after effecting an entrance, stormed the platform and otherwise made things unpleasant for the audience. The orators of the occasion were ingloriously driven from the rostrum and their places usurped by the speakers of the Anarchist intruders. These gentlemen vehemently denounced the proposed May Day demonstration, which they declared would inevitably end in disaster to the cause of the wage earners at large.

The Grand Duchess Committed Suicide.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 18.—There no longer remains and doubt that the Grand Duchess Olga Feodorovina, sister-in-law of the Czar, and the mother of the Grand Duke Michael Michaelovitch, who was recently secretly married to the Count of Maremburg, daughter of the Duke of Nassau at San Remo, strongly against the Czar's wish, committed suicide by taking poison.

Irish Immigration to America.

LONDON, April 18.—All signs indicate that the immigration from Ireland to America will be at least as large this year as last. The emigrants are young men and women, the flower of the agricultural districts, there being very few tradesmen or mechanics. Fully two-thirds have their passage prepaid to America.

To Satisfy Bismarck.

BERLIN, April 18.—A hundred thousand copies have been sold of a pamphlet addressed to the Kaiser, requesting him to satisfy Bismarck, the great historical figure of the empire, to whom he can make advances without a sacrifice of dignity. The demand for the pamphlet is insatiable and cannot be supplied.

Both Amendments Rejected.

LONDON, April 18.—In the House of Commons, Mr. Morley's amendment requiring the consent of county councils to advances for Irish land purchase was rejected. Mr. Parnell's amendment providing that such consent should be required as soon as county councils were established in Ireland was also rejected.

The Report Denied.

ROME, April 18.—The report that Mr. A. G. Porter, United States Minister to Italy, is about to depart from this city on a three months' leave of absence, is officially denied.

Three Men Executed.

NEW ORLEANS, April 18.—William Green, a negro, was hanged here for the murder of Joseph Proper on Jan. 6, 1890. Green did not deny the crime, but held that it was done in self defense.

TAHLEQUAH, I. T., April 18.—The Dunaway brothers, Indians, were executed here.

To Star the Jersey Lily.

LONDON, April 18.—Lord Abingdon, the well known sporting man, in conjunction with six men about town, has undertaken to float Mrs. Langtry next season. He has subscribed $175,000, and his associates will each contribute $500 a week to the fund. The entire expenses of the enterprise will be borne by the syndicate.

Arrest of Moonshiners.

BRADFORD, Vt., April 18.—The sheriff of Orange County raided an illicit still in full operation in Corinth, and arrested the owner of the place, Warren Eastman, his son and Charles Barnes. The moonshiners will be tried in the United States Court.

Twelve Inches of Hail Fell.

YANKTON, S. D., April 18.—In Hutchinson County hail is reported to have fallen to the depth of 12 inches. In many instances young trees are completely ruined and windows broken. It was the worst hail storm ever experienced in that section.

Ninety Persons Drowned.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—The steamship Manowai has arrived here from Sydney and Honolulu. She reports that the British ship St. Catharis has been wrecked off the Caroline Islands, resulting in the drowning of 90 persons.

Contract Awarded.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Bids were opened at the Treasury Department for the excavating and furnishing the iron work, &c., for the first floor of the public building at Newark, N. J. Leach & Son, of Chicago, Ill., were the lowest bidders, at $40,000.

A Prisoner's Desperate Jump.

PITTSBURG, April 18.—Last night, while officer McDonald was taking a prisoner, Sandy Wilson, by train from West Newton to the Greensburg Jail, Wilson broke away and jumped from the rapidly moving train, landing in front of a passing freight train. He was ground to pieces, and the officer, who jumped after him, was fatally injured.

Tortured His Tormentor.

LITTLE NARROWS, C. B., April 18.—A blacksmith's apprentice named Logan, being annoyed by some boys, drew a red-hot iron rod from the fire, and, seizing one of the boys named Matheson, held the rod against his abdomen until a hole had been burned in it. The boy will die.

PLAINFIELD'S SEWER BILL SIGNED.

TRENTON, April 18—Governor Abbett approved Senate bill 83, yesterday. This is the bill allowing the city of Plainfield to contract with outsiders for the putting in of a system of sewerage free of cost to the city. ELMORE D. MOFFETT.

BY THE WAY.

—A devotional meeting will be held in the W. C. T. U. rooms at 7:45 this evening.

—G. S. Whitlock is making screen door and windows at prices that will surprise customers.

—Are you about to purchase a horse? J. H. Fosher has a card in the advertising columns.

—Cadet Groscloude will leave the Plainfield branch of the Salvation Army to-morrow. She will hold her farewell meeting in the evening.

—The Pierson Hardware Company have moved to Laing's Hall, next to Miller's Hotel, where they will be pleased to see their friends and patrons.

—Ladies will find in Lederer's new advertisement to-day interesting information concerning hats and millinery, cloaks, jackets and blazers.

—All members of the Young Men's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. are urged to attend the meeting to be held next week on Monday instead of Tuesday evening.

—The regular Directors' meeting of the Plainfield Building and Loan Association will be held in the office of Jackson & Codington, Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

—The Plainfield Bicycle Club base-ball team have just received their new uniforms from Merwin, Hulbert & Co., through their representative, E. B. Ryder.

—The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of Warren Mission chapel will meet as usual Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be led by Frederick Moon. All are welcome.

—John J. Kenney has received at his store, corner of Front street and Park avenue, a handsome new line of men's fine shoes, for spring wear. The stock is the finest, he says, this city has ever seen.

—The best time yet made by a five-car train on the Reading road between the Delaware River and Bound Brook is reported as three miles in 140 seconds, which is at the rate of seventy-seven miles an hour.

—A horse owned by Mr. Zeglio of Mt. Bethel ran away on Manning avenue and other borough thoroughfares this afternoon. The horse was cut, and the buggy was smashed. The driver was thrown out, but was uninjured.

—Lives of great men oft remind us we can make our lives sublime; if some citizen will find us watches that will keep good time. Step around to Collier's; you'll find them there guaranteed to beat time for the "music of the spheres."

—Housekeepers will find VanEmburgh & White's a good place to visit the coming week. They are offering special bargains throughout every department. They call particular attention to a line of granite iron ware which they will offer at greatly reduced prices.

—A ladies' aid society of twelve members was organized on Thursday, at the Monroe Avenue chapel. Mrs. L. C. Batson was elected President, and Katrina Haff Secretary. The society decided to give a house-warming at the new chapel within the next two weeks; the date will be published later.

—All who are interested in saving money to secure a home can learn how it is done by attending the annual meeting of the Home Building and Loan Association, Monday evening, April 20, at their rooms, 73 West Front street. The books will then be opened for subscription to the seventh series.

—One of the best stocked stores in the city is Sherwin's shoe store, and to judge from appearances people appreciate this fact, for one will always find customers in his place. Sherwin says that it pays better to sell goods at a small profit and get the money, than to drag along trying to get the regulation shoe dealers' profit of thirty per cent. on goods, and then wait for the bill.

—Mrs. Mary McCormack, wife of flagman Pierce McCormack, died last Saturday morning. The funeral services were held Monday morning at Holy Trinity church, and the interment took place in Plainfield. The church was filled with the many friends of the deceased, and a long line of carriages followed the remains to their resting place. Mr. McCormack says that during his seventeen years of married life there was never a harsh word passed between himself and his wife.—Westfield Standard.

Young Folks Have a Pleasant Time.

A very pleasant entertainment was provided by the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor at Warren Mission chapel Thursday evening, when the following programme was carried out:

Hymn.
Prayer.
Violin solo.....Miss Lulu Carman
Hymn.
Dialogue—"The flower of the family; or, Obadiah Thompson's wooing."
Hymn.

Refreshments were served, and a very enjoyable time was had by all.

MONEY FOR CITY EXPENSES.

Amounts Named by the Common Council for the Coming Year.

The Plainfield Common Council last evening went into a Committee of the Whole, with Councilman Ackerman in the chair, to consider the matter of making appropriations for the year.

The various committees estimated that the amounts needed would be as follows:

Aims—$4,000; last year the appropriation was $4,500. Fire and Buildings—$10,000, same as last year. The committee has in mind improvements to be made to the engine house on Second street, which is badly in need of them. Police, Salaries and Elections $15,500, $2,000 more than last year, partly due to the increase of salaries. Public Lights—$9,,300, an increase of $300, Streets—$15,000, same as last year. Water, Printing and Stationery—$1,500, same as last year. Board of Health—$800, same as last year. Finance Committee — nothing; last year, $200. Public Library—$2,800, $300 more than last year. General city purposes—$25,000, same as last year.

The Council adopted the recommendations of these appropriations of the Committee of the Whole, and passed on first and second reading an ordinance appropriating the sums named.

When the Assessor has completed his work for this year and has made known the total assessed valuation, together with the county and school tax, the new city tax rate can be determined. The Council fixed the salaries for the year as follows:

Assessor — $1,000; Treasurer — $600; City Judge—$600; Corporation Counsel—$1,000; City Clerk—$750; Overseer of Poor—$400; Chief Engineer—$600; First Assistant Engineer—$150; Second Assistant Engineer—$75; Captain of Police—$1,080; regular police—$720; engine horse driver—$40 per month; janitors—$10 per month: City Council janitor—$50 per year, and $3 per special meeting; Street Commissioner—$1,500; City Physician—365.

The Committee on Streets reported back the matter of widening and extending Peace street, said that they were at present unable to do anything towards accomplishing the desired improvements, and recommended that the Committee on Laws and Ordinances prepare an ordinance to cover the case so that the plan of widening and extending may be consummated.

The Council adjourned till Tuesday evening, April 21, when street railway matters will probably receive consideration.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

All the ministers of this city now have bicycles excepting Dr. Yerkes and the Rev. Mr. Dilts.

Mrs. Ann Drake died at her home, corner of Warren and Pearl streets, yesterday. Funeral Monday.

The Rev. John C. Bliss, formerly pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, will preach both morning and evening of tomorrow in the First Presbyterian church.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. F. Brown arrived in Plainfield on the 5:24 train this morning, and are at the home of Mrs. Brown's mother, Mrs. Wm. L. Smalley, on Craig place.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kyte of Fanwood celebrated the seventeenth anniversary of their marriage Tuesday afternoon and evening. The afternoon was devoted to the ladies, and in the evening the gentlemen joined in the festivities, which were kept up until a late hour. The rooms were filled with fragrant flowers, the gifts of admiring friends.

James L. Anthony, of Netherwood, was one of the interested spectators present yesterday at the trial in New York of Charles J. Peshall, President of the New Jersey Kennel Club, charged with libeling A. P. Vredenburgh, Secretary and Treasurer of the American Kennel Club. This morning's World, in consequence, contains a picture said to be that of Mr. Anthony, but only the buttonhole-boquet bears any resemblance to him.

Why Not Blame this to the Trolley?

[From The New York World.]

Three persons were injured and travel delayed for an hour yesterday afternoon by the displacement of an electric-light wire which crosses Hudson street at Christopher street.

A steam boiler on a heavy truck became entangled in the wire and pulled down a pole at No. 130 Christopher street. The pole struck James Conklin, a blacksmith, of No. 21 Harrison street, and knocked him senseless. He also received an electric shock, but walked away without need of medical attendance.

Blue flame leaped between the wires and the street-car tracks which they crossed, and a larger crowd gathered. A bystander raised the wire in an attempt to let the street cars pass under it. He gave a loud cry and fell to the ground helpless, but soon recovered. Another man tried to cut the wire, but dropped his shears and fell as soon as they came in contact with the light wire.

While the police were trying to raise the wire with ropes several employes of the electric-light company arrived and adjusted it to the poles. The injured persons all walked away without giving their names.

Welcome Friends.

By a rare accident I was made acquainted with Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills, and have used them for two years. They act gently and like a charm, correcting the secretion and preventing other diseases. I subscribe myself your friend, as your pills are welcome friends to me.

Planning for More Effective Work!

The Plainfield Reform Club has recently adopted important changes in its constitution. Hereafter there will be three constitutional working committees in addition to the Executive and Finance Committees, namely: A committee on laws and ordinances pertaining to the liquor traffic; a committee on suffering, to engage in philanthropic work made necessary by the liquor traffic; and a committee on entertainments and speakers. Much interest was developed by the proposition to make these changes, and they were adopted unanimously after thorough discussion. It is hoped and believed the club will now be organized for more effectual work.

To enable a prompt transaction of business when necessary, the constitution has also been changed to make 15 members in good standing a quorum at any meeting of the club. Since the Sunday night services have been suspended, because of the renting of the hall to the Salvation Army, the Thursday night meetings of the club have not been so numerously attended as had been hoped.

Proud of Its "Capacity to do Such Work."

A decaying daily of this city, without brains or subscribers, and filled with dead adv's, said yesterday:

NOW WE BLOW.

When you read to-day's NEWS remember this fact: It is the only newspaper on this earth with capacity to do such work. And it was conceived and completed since our last issue. We have spent thousands of dollars and years of labor to "get there," but we "get there just the same," and don't idly boast either. This is our stamping ground, and proudly we roar for it—a defiance to foes, but a cordial welcome to friends. Let the envious sneer that "Even Bartholdi's Statue of Liberty turns her back upon New Jersey! This we snort back: New Jersey is the power behind the throne; and Plainfield is "The Queen City of New Jersey, likewise the Colorado of the East." And don't you forget it, we're in it every time—in it to stay—at least this time.

A complete search of the paper reveals the fact that the only original performance which the editor can claim as his own, "conceived and completed since his last issue," is the theft of the Arbor Day public school programmes from THE PRESS of the day before. True it is that "It is the only newspaper on this earth with capacity to do such work."

Ought Not to Wait for the Law.

(From The Fireman's Herald.)

Fire-escapes are to be placed on all the school buildings of Plainfield, N. J. There is nothing remarkable in this item. But it is remarkable that a body of men who have the responsibility of the safety of the school children in their charge should wait until they are compelled by the law to place fire-escapes upon the school buildings. Even if there was no law compelling the placing of fire-escapes upon buildings the Board of Education of a town or city should see to it that the buildings occupied by children should be surrounded by every possible safeguard against fire and panic. Fire-escapes should be placed upon every school building over one story in height, and fire drills should be introduced into all schools as a means of clearing a building quickly in case of need.

Results of Stocking.

A beautiful specimen of brook trout was caught by Charles Lyman in the Raritan river, below the dam, yesterday, while that gentleman and ex-Councilman Wilbur were fishing for perch. The trout weighed one pound and four ounces, and measured fourteen inches in length. This is not the first trout that has been caught in the waters during the past five years, their appearance being the result undoubtedly of the stocking of streams in this vicinity with trout fry some ten years ago under the direction of the New Jersey Game and Fish Protective Society.

Two Plainfielders Building Mammoth Water Works.

Probably the largest contract ever given for a system of water works, is that recently secured by Emil C. Woltmann of West Seventh street, and now in process of construction. It consists of 46 miles of pipe and supplies nine towns that surround the city of Montreal. Two millions of dollars will be the expense of its completion. The only water works as large now being built in the World, are those at Havana for which H. G. Bunkie of West Eighth street has the contract.

The Grand Chancellor's Lodge on a Visit.

Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, of this city, propose to pay a visit to Lodge of the Castle at Somerville next Monday evening. They will leave the Plainfield station at 7:30. Fully one hundred Knights are expected to attend. A special train has been chartered to return at 1 a. m. The Amplified Uniformed Rank will be worked by Lodge of the Castle in costume, after which a banquet will be given. Grand Chancellor John Ulrich will accompany his lodge on this fraternal visit.

Dunellen's New Pastor.

The Rev. Walter C. Kinsey, formerly of Everettstown, has been appointed pastor of the M. E. church of Dunellen, and the members of the church are well pleased with the appointment. Mr. Kinsey is a young man of rare ability as a preacher and an earnest worker among the young people. With his accomplished wife, who is not a whit behind him in good works, the church will find itself well equipped for work. Mr. Kinsey will preach tomorrow.—Bound Brook Chronicle.

NEW OFFICERS FOR THE BOYS' CLUB.

Interesting Anniversary Exercises, With Reports of the Year's Work.

Last evening the annual meeting of the Plainfield Boys' Club Association was held at their rooms on North avenue. The rooms were opened at seven, and the boys were permitted to play their games and to read until eight, to show the people what was done every evening. At eight o'clock the President of the Association, A. M. Powell, called the meeting to order, and with a few well chosen remarks told what had been accomplished by the Association during the last year. Miss Alice Holmes then sang a very pretty ballade in a charming manner. The reports of the Executive Committee, Treasurer and Superintendent were read and accepted. The speakers of the evening were Mayor Alexander Gilbert, the Rev. E. M. Rodman, the Rev. W. R. Richards and Father Freeman. The addresses were made especially to the boys, although the visitors enjoyed them as well. Miss Holmes rendered another song and received hearty applause.

The election of officers for the coming year followed. W. B. Wadsworth was elected President in place of Mr. Powell, who on account of pressing business was unable to serve. The Executive Committee are as follows: W. B. Wadsworth, Mrs. D. W. Pond, Mrs. W. L. Patton, Dr. W. H. Murray and George Wharton Edwards. There were present about two hundred persons, most of whom were boys. The meeting was very gratifying to all who had worked so hard during the last year, and shows how well the people of the city are interested in this great work of saving the boys from the streets. The exercises of the evening closed with an exhibition drill by twelve members of the Edwards Guards, who did themselves credit, considering the space left to drill in.

Superintendent Miner read the following first annual report:

Mr. President and members of the Plainfield Boys' Club Association:—At the request of your Committee, through Mr. J. C. Collins of New Haven, Conn., I assumed my duties as Superintendent of the Plainfield Boys' Club, Oct. 13, 1890. The club rooms, which are situated in the building corner of Park and North avenues, were opened the same evening, there being present 102 boys and 15 visitors. The club opened with a membership of 60 and we have now enrolled 325 members. The average age of membership is thirteen; the youngest member being six and the oldest twenty-two years. The rooms have been opened one hundred and fifty-nine evenings from seven to nine. The largest attendance in any one evening being one hundred and two, and the smallest seventeen. This does not include attendance at our entertainments. The average attendance per evening from October 13, to April 16, was fifty-two boys and three visitors. Out of the average attendance of the season about one-third spent the evening in pursuing literature of an instructive and entertaining character, while the rest were occupied with the recreation offered by harmless games, etc. Out of the total membership about two hundred attended school and nearly seventy-five work in shops and stores. An average of twenty visits per week have been paid to the homes of the boys by the Superintendent.

It is a touching fact and one showing the urgent need of such an institution as this, that nearly one hundred boys are without one or both parents; without the club the boys who come from these broken homes would often have no refuge but the street.

The piano which was purchased Feb. 20, has proved a source of much pleasure to the boys. Seven entertainments have been held with an average attendance of ninety boys and twenty visitors.

At each entertainment some one gentleman has talked, from ten to twenty minutes, on an interesting subject to the boys. The following gentlemen, to whom we are very grateful, have spoken: Rev. Mr. Clark, Rev. Mr. Goodrich, Messrs. W. B. Wadsworth, J. C. Collins, G. W. Edwards, E. C. Pease, C. W. Opdyke and Isaac L. Miller. The local papers have rendered valuable aid in keeping before the public our institution and have also generously furnished it with one to two copies of their issue daily. The interest of our townspeople is shown by the fact that to April 15th 523 persons have visited the Club. Donations of books and games, papers, etc., have been received and are always acceptable to us. A small gymnasium was opened on the evening of Dec. 12, and is opened every Monday, Wednesday and Friday to those boys who behave themselves properly while in the room. On New Year's Day the rooms were opened from three to five in the afternoon and seven to nine in the evening. Refreshments were served at both sessions. There were present in the afternoon one hundred and twenty-five boys and the thirty visitors, and in the evening fifty-two boys and twenty-five visitors. January 15th a military company was formed by thirty members of the club; they are known as the "Edwards Guards" and have met for drill every Wednesday evening with an average attendance of twenty boys. The company hope to make its appearance on the street May 30th, in full "Zouave uniform." A ball team has lately been organized with the Superintendent as manager and expect to spend Saturday mornings in enjoying this sport.

Every effort has been made to exercise a refining and elevating influence over the boys and a pleasing feature of the work is the respectful decorum of the boys.

A great deal of praise is due to my young assistants, Masters Gillard Apgar and Clarence Sutphen, who have taken a great interest in the work.

Respectfully submitted,
Signed, W. H. MINER,
Supt. P. B. C.

Plainfield, N. J., April 17.

The Young Pastors Must n't; the Old Ones May.

Five candidates for the ministry stood before Bishop Mallalieu, the Revs. C. B. Mitchell and J. L. Hurlbut of this city, and the other members of the Newark M. E. Conference, at Washington, last Saturday, for examination for deacon's orders. One of the disciplinary requirements was that the young men should promise not to use tobacco in any form. When the question was put to them three answered promptly that they would keep from the use of the weed, another hesitated and then gave the same answer, and still another, after hesitating still longer, replied, in a low tone:

"I'll try."

"No, no! That won't do"—ejaculated a number of the older ministers.—"Say that you will, brother."

The Bishop said he could not ordain the young man unless he promised not to use tobacco, and finally the young man plucked up courage and said:

"I will."

He was commended for his action by the Bishop and the older members of the conference.

"How is it"—asked a reporter of one of the older members of the conference—"that you insist on new members giving up the week, while a number of the old members are great smokers?"

"Oh, well"—was the reply—"we can't reform the old preachers, but we can refuse to take in young ones unless they promise not to use tobacco."

"But if its use is wrong in young men it is in old ones: is it not?"—the reporter asked.

"Yes, I suppose so"—the minister hesitatingly replied.

On Monday morning three ministers who are prominent in the conference and hold good appointments strolled off to a spot on a byroad to enjoy a smoke where the young men who had just been deprived of the solace of a cigar could not see them. But it happened that the Rev. Dr. Nott, pastor of the Washington Presbyterian church, and three newspaper men, chanced to ride that way, and espied the ministers with cigars in their mouths. A great shout went up from the carriage, and innumerable jibes were hurled at the smokers, who had little to say but looked inexpressible things.

What the guileless reporters have since been trying to settle is: Why is there a discrimination between young and old ministers in this respect?

The History of Davy's Rifle.

The rifle which Frank Mayo will carry in his play, "Davy Crockett," at Music Hall, April 27, was presented to him eighteen years ago by Gen. George A. Custer, who fell in the massacre of the Little Big Horn a few years later. In a letter accompanying the gift of the weapon, which is an exact pattern of those used in the real Davy Crockett's days, Gen. Custer gave its history as follows:

"The rifle was captured from the Indians at the battle of the Washita (Wash-e-tah), Nov. 27, 1868. The Washita is a beautiful stream rising near the line separating the northwest corner of the Indian Territory from Texas. My command consisted of 800 troopers, splendidly mounted, equipped and organized. We attacked the Indian Cheyenne village at daylight, supposing no other tribes were within hundreds of miles of us. On the contrary, however, the villages of the Comanches, Arrapahoes, Kiowas and Apaches, were located on the same stream and within sound of our guns. These, embracing all the warlike tribes of the southern plains, hastened to the relief of the Cheyennes. We had managed to surround the latter, but by 11 a. m. we found ourselves surrounded by the other four tribes. The fight was closely contested from daylight until dark and resulted in a complete, but dearly purchased, victory for us; the Indians left 103 killed on the battle ground—besides upwards of sixty prisoners in our hands and nearly a thousand ponies. Our loss was one Major, one Captain and nineteen men killed, three officers, including my brother, wounded. Among the other captures made was that of the rifle I send you."

Much Expense to Save a Trifle of Time.

A great improvement has been made on the Central Railroad of New Jersey at Greenbrook, near Dunellen, and on the Philadelphia and Reading's Delaware River bridge, in the construction of track tanks. These tanks are built between the rails so that the fast trains of the Bound Brook route can make the run between Jersey City and Philadelphia without stopping, taking water while running over the tanks. A continuous run of eighty-nine miles can be made without a slow-up. Arrangements are being made so that engines can run through, thereby saving the delay of changing at Bound Brook. It is said the change of system will not make much difference in the running time, because the Bound Brook engines have always been kept in readiness to shift without much delay, while with the tank method the speed of trains will be somewhat reduced while engines are drawing water.

AFTER using Ely's Cream Balm two months I was surprised to find that the right nostril, which was closed for over twenty years, was open and free as the other, and can use it now as I could not do for many years. I feel very thankful.—E. H. Cressingham, 218 10th Street, Brooklyn.

A VOTE ON THE TROLLEY.

Property Owners on East Fifth Street May Herewith Record Themselves For or Against It.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS.—Surely the question of an electric street railway for Plainfield has been thoroughly ventilated. Now is the time for a vote, and I would like THE PRESS to open a poll in its columns for ten days, in this way:

The undersigned, property owners on East Fifth street, between Broadway and Richmond street, herewith record themselves and the amount of their frontage, for or against an electric street railway through that street.

Oh, What a Cough

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

HERE'S OUR CARD.

It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are not straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public esteem accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for selling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of Shoes.

ESTABLISHED 1856, AND STILL ON THE INCREASE.
"When a person squeals he must be hurt", says one merchant; but when a man's business is on the increase he cannot be hurt; thus proving that delusive advertising does not affect intelligent trade, and that the party who applied it made a wrong application; but all are liable to make mistakes. I have even seen in some advertisements, Cooper's Gelatine advertised as imported. I should think to substantiate such a statement would be a difficult matter. American goods sold for American, at

RELIGIOUS MATTERS.

FROM BEHIND THE WOOD.

We stood within the long, brown lane,
On either hand the fields stretched bare,
Save where the earth-stained drifts lay, fain
To mourn their vanished whiteness fair.
No sound the Sabbath-stillness broke;
We seemed from human life apart,
And closer pressed, though neither spoke;
Hand touching hand, heart close to heart.

The sunset's glory filled the world,
Poured in a stream as red as blood—
And waved cloud-banners, well-nigh furled,
To share the radiance of the flood—
Then paled, and dimmed, and slowly fell,
With all its wealth of rosy light,
Into the West, that loved it well,
And seemed to boast: "There is no night!"

But not unto the horizon's rim
We followed it, with lingering glance,
For, ere the glory had grown dim,
We saw each ray, a glimmering lance,
Stream from the tangled boughs where stood
Between us and the glowing sky
The trees that marked a little wood,
We watched there with spell-fastened eye.

While lower, lower sank the sun,
Behind that screen, so dense and dark,
Till, all too soon, the day was done—
Vanished from sight the last red spark.
Slowly, and with reluctant feet,
We moved upon our homeward way,
And sadly thought, how sure and fleet
The night would follow vanished day.

When suddenly, with rapturous start,
Each answering each, in glad surprise,
We saw once more the sunbeams dart
To our half-doubting, questioning eyes.
For, as we traced our homeward path,
We'd passed beyond the shadowing wood,
And now, in gracious aftermath,
The gold fell round us where we stood.

Again we watched it sink from sight,
But this time, with no sad regret,
For well we knew the sunbeam's light,
Still further on, must linger yet,
And while again we homeward went,
Though each swift moment twilight brought,
Each pondered, in still, glad content,
The lesson that the sunset taught.

How sometimes in life's long, brown lane,
The sunset seems for aye to come;
We bow in shadow and in pain,
And dread the dark and long for home.
So high and thick the obstructing wood
Of fear, or loss, or grief, or care,
Shut out from us the sunlight good,
We do not know the sun is there.

But, ah! if still we onward trace
The narrow path that leads us home,
Where ever shines the Master's face
Before us, while His voice says "Come,"
The shadowing wood will soon be passed.
And once again the way be bright
With gladness, for the best is last;
"At eventime it shall be light."
—Ida W. J. Sweezy, in Christian at Work.

PURE IN HEART.

Keep the Mind Thinking of Good and Beautiful Things and Avoid Being Tempted.

To be pure in heart is to have pure loves. But that which we love we think about, nor is it possible for us to love any thing without first thinking that we love it. And we can choose our thoughts. We can sit in judgement upon them; decide which are good and which are evil, retain the good and discard the evil. The secret then of being pure in heart is to choose and retain pure thoughts.

Ah, if bewildered humanity only knew this! if it only knew that the way out of its tangle of vice and error was just to get hold of one pure, good thought, and cling to it till another came to it by the law of attraction, and then cling to that, and so on until evil thoughts were displaced and temptations disappear because the soul has climbed above them. But thoughts blossom into action and feeling, and thus our thinking controls our living. A human being can not perform a single action without first thinking that he will perform it, nor can he love or hate any thing without thinking that he loves or hates it. He can not even feel too warm or too cold until he first thinks about it. The wise man truly says that "as a man thinketh in his heart so is he." We can not cherish an evil thought without being hurt by it, nor can we entertain a pure thought without being helped by it. So the preacher, teacher, book, picture or paper that suggests pure thoughts to the world is a benefactor of the race.

I feel profoundly sorry for the soul that is born in an environment of vice, sin and ignorance. One is so apt to entertain the thoughts that the surroundings suggest. Yet after all the soul is free. If it wills, it can no more be kept down by unfortunate surroundings than an eagle can be caged by fencing it in by high walls. As long as the top is left open the eagle can fly away; and so the soul, fenced in by unhappy encompassments can always find a way out if it takes the upward route. And the soul's freedom lies in its power to think what it pleases. Circumstances may control the body and force it to live in the sight and sound of vice and vulgarity; but the sounds may fall unheeded upon the ear, the sights pass unobserved before the eye, if the mind be occupied with other things. A poor sewing girl was once obliged to work in a room full of rude women, where oaths and obscene language were constantly passing from mouth to mouth. At first she bent over her sewing machine with blushing face. Then she fell to singing as she worked, or repeating pleasant bits of poetry or prose. After a little she obtained such perfect control of her thoughts that she seldom heard what was going on around her unless personally addressed. Her thoughts remained pure, so her face lost none of its innocence, her character none of its nobility by the trying ordeal. Then we form habits of thinking which as time goes on become fixed, and without conscious effort on our part, the mind takes up the thoughts suggested to it, that are along the line of previous thinking, and thus pure-heartedness becomes easy and natural. It is so such a heart, pure from long habits of pure thinking, that God reveals Himself, for the reward of the pure-hearted is that they shall see God.

One of the saddest things about sin is its blinding power. The debauchee can not see any beauty in virtue, the gambler discerns no attraction in regular work, the infidel beholds no reason in faith. But the pure-hearted man sees that virtue is its own reward, that work is a constant pleasure to those who engage in it rightly, and that faith is sweetly reasonable. Habits of pure thinking keep the mind open toward Heaven, so that the light of the unseen world comes in and illumines the life and is unconsciously reflected in the face. Sometimes in passing through a crowd we see a face that attracts us by its sweetness of expression. Perhaps it is an old face, crowned with gray hair, yet love, joy and peace shine out of every dot and crinkle in it. But whether old or young, when we see that unmistakable soul-light in a face, we know the heart behind it is pure, the life good. It was once my fortune to stand before an audience of three hundred men in a State's prison. Every man before me was a condemned criminal. As I stood and talked to them, I was struck with the dark and dull expression of their faces. Afterward, I stood before an audience of nearly the same number of young men belonging to the Salvation Army, and I could not help exclaiming to the companion who was with me: "How bright their faces are." Neither audience was educated, and many of the Salvation Army boys came from humble homes and miserable surroundings. What made their faces so bright? It was because they loved God and each other and were just then thinking about these pure loves.

To keep the mind occupied with good, pure, useful and beautiful thoughts precludes the possibility of thinking about and thus being tempted by any thing sinful, low or gross.—Eva K. Griffith, in N. Y. Observer.

GOOD IN THE WORLD.

There Are Bits of Brightness to Be Picked Up Here and There for All.

If Sir Thomas More could write to his wife, as he did, on the eve of his execution: "I pray thee, dear wife, be merry in God," the most doleful among us can surely charge ourselves to be cheerful under our lesser misfortunes.

"Serve God and be cheerful," was the motto of good Bishop Hacket, and another voice worth hearing has told us that

"Cheerfulness is a hymn of praise to God."

There is excelent common sense, also, in keeping up a good heart. Rev. F. Arnold, author of "Three-Cornered Essays," says that when Chatterton committed suicide, people were just beginning to inquire about him, and would presently have come to his rescue.

A certain Englishman destroyed himself through fear of coming to want, and all the time a large legacy was lying ready for him. The man who persistently believes in better days is the man who sees them, for he patienly "holds on a little longer."

Perhaps he does so because he has by nature a sunny disposition, and possibly because he loves his kind, and prefers not to inflict on them the sad sight of a woeful countenance. He subscribes to that healthful, hearty verse which tells us:

If the world's a wilderness,
Go, build houses in it.

He is clever enough to have learned that there are bits of brightness to be found everywhere, even if they only flash back from wave-wet pebbles on the beach. Though it may not be bright enough to give us warmth, God's sunshine smiles at us from many such insignificant bits of creation.

Lord Melbourne once told a melancholy friend, who was walking with him late at night through the London streets, that he might at least have amused himself by seeing the lights flash from the backs of the lobsters in the fishmongers' shops.

There are few of us who can not take the humorous suggestion to heart, and adapt it to the varying needs of our days.—Youth's Companion.

GEMS OF THOUGHT.

—Good fruit, though it does not constitute the goodness of the tree is necessary to demonstrate that the tree is good.—Dr. Bunting.

—I believe that if you and I were more to heed the whispers of our Father we should not have so many of His thunders.—J. Hurington Evans.

—The sacred Scriptures teach us the best way of living, the noblest way of suffering, and the most comfortable way of dying.—Flavel.

—An Agnostic is a man who vows he knows nothing, and gets wrathy and vexed with you if you believe him. He says he doesn't know any thing, but he really believes he knows every thing.—N. Y. Ledger.

—In our religious life the further we travel, the nearer we get to the light and the brighter it becomes, "the path of the just is a shining light that shineth more and more unto the perfect day."—Standard.

—In the religious life there will be a temptation to think much of our emotions. The great concern we need to have is for a certain faith in Christ, a faith that rests on Him and out of which spring all Christian graces.—Christian Inquirer.

—The best mode of keeping improper thoughts out of our minds is to keep those minds so filled with good thoughts that there will be no room for improper thoughts. He who acts upon this rule will generally have not much trouble with bad thoughts. Such thoughts will not be his usual companions.—N. Y. Independent.

—There is only one door into Heaven: that door is faith. There is only one ship that sails for the skies: her name is Faith. There is only one weapon with which to contend with opposition: that is faith. Faith is the first step; faith the second step; faith the third step. We enter the road by faith; we contend against adversities by faith; we die by faith. Heaven is the reward of faith.—Talmage, in N. Y. Observer.

—In every age there have been men who have been timid about submitting beliefs or traditions to the test of truth. There is a true form of conservatism, but this is conservatism in its weakest aspect. It is so much easier to defend the traditions upon which we were reared than to examine the grounds upon which they rest; it is so much easier for some to sit encushioned in easy self-complacency than to trouble their brains to examine, investigate, and see if these things be so.—Christian Register.

Accident and Art.

Young Wife—Just to think, Harry, dear, my new hat blew into the street to-day and was run over by three wagons, four carts and a cable car!

Harry—Humph! That means a new hat, of course.

Young Wife—It was rescued, and I took it to Madame Wayuppe's, who was perfectly charmed! The wagons had mangled it into the most fashionable shape imaginable, and it is to be trimmed just as it is. You never saw any thing so utterly fetching!—Pittsburgh Bulletin.

HE'D LET IT BURN.

Countryman (in hotel, to his wife)—I can't get to sleep, Relindy, if thet bright gas-light burns all night.

Belinda—Ain't yer goin' to put it out?

Countryman—No; it's ag'in' the rules. Look at thet blame sign hangin' from the gas-jet.—Lippincott's Magazine.

Mixed Emotions.

A New York policeman was called on to arrest a man who was raising a row in a saloon. When he saw who was the disturber, he turned to a brother policeman and said:

"You arrest that fellow. He is an infernal scoundrel."

"Why don't you arrest him yourself?" asked policeman No. 2.

"Because," replied policeman No. 1, weeping, "he is me own brother. He is the baby in the family, and I haven't got the heart to arrest the wretched outcast, on account of the estame I have for his rispectable relatives."—Texas Siftings.

His Highest Ambition.

Visitor—Are you going to be a great man when you grow up, Willie?

Willie—You bet! I'm going to be an Arctic explorer.

"An Arctic explorer's life is full of hardships, Willie."

"Yes'm. But I can stand 'em I reckon."

"I like your spirit, my boy. There is a great deal of glory to be gained in a career of that kind."

"Yes'm. And you don't never have to wash your face!"—Chicago Tribune.

A Rough Guess.

Mr. Ardentcourt—I am going away into the far West for some time. I know that I shall long for your delightful society. I will think of you everywhere. I will send you a real Chicago bouquet.

Miss Gusher—Oh, how kind of you, Mr. Ardentcourt! I do not know just what a real Chicago bouquet is, but I suppose it is a ham; and I am so fond of ham!—Judge.

Following the Fad.

Gawge—Why, girls, smoking cigarettes?

Girls—Yes, it's the latest fad of the English ladies.

"Don't the howld things make you sick?"

"Yes; but they also make the English ladies sick; so if we were not sick we would not be following the style so completely."—Texas Siftings.

Literature by the Yard.

A man who suddenly came into possession of wealth, wished to fit out a library. He addressed a letter to a bookseller, which ran as follows: "In the first place, I want for the vacant shelves six feet of theology, the same quantity of school metaphysics, and about a yard of old civic law in folio."—N. E. Magazine.

Astonishing Progress.

Aunt Miranda (to little city nephew)—I'm glad you go to school reg'larly in th' city. What d' ye study?

Little Nephew—Oh! every grade has a different set of text-books.

Aunt Miranda — Land sakes! The way things is goin'! Can't folks find texts enough in the Bible now'days?—Good News.

For Her Brother's Welfare.

Miss Winthrop—Poor Jack has now been a full-fledged architect for six months, and he hasn't had a single commission. He designs beautiful houses.

Mr. Townes—Miss Winthrop—Rosalie—can't I persuade you to let your brother design a nice, country house for—for us?—Harper's Bazar.

Just So.

Ketchum—What is Sharp doing now?

Takem—He's working on the Fleet burglary case.

"How does it happen that he is doing that? He is a regular thief himself."

"That's all right; don't you know the old saying: 'Set a detective to catch a thief.'"—Texas Siftings.

"Variety Is the Spice of Life."

Hoffy (at the club window)—Haw! Bah Jove, I'm tired of stahnding at the window looking out this way.

Hocky (wearily)—Aw! so am I. Let's cwoss to the window yondah, and look out some othah way!—Puck.

Appearances Do Not Always Count.

Stranger—Who is that large, fierce-looking man?

"Oh, that is Bagley. He teaches the infant class in the public school."—Texas Siftings.

Accounted For.

"Man was made of the dust of the ground," remarked the minister.

"That is the reason his name is so often mud," replied Satta.—Munsey's Weekly.

Fashion Item.

"What kind of a hat would you wear with this soot?" asked the Flue. "A chimney pot?"—Puck.

A Good Excuse.

Biddy—There's a couple o' ladies called, Missus De Vere.

Mrs. De Vere—Oh, dear, I can't see any one now. Excuse me, Biddy. Tell them I'm asleep.

Biddy—Missus De Vere presents her compliments, an' says she's very sorry, but she's asleep.—Texas Siftings.

Cemeterial Streets.

Mr. Suburb—I understand you came near being buried alive. Were you in a trance?

Friend—No; I attempted to walk through the streets of New York City.—Judge.

Very Proper.

Genevieve (the knowing)—Did he ever press you to marry him?

Laura (the innocent)—Oh, dear, no! I shouldn't permit him to until we were engaged.—Munsey's Weekly.

Fine Taste.

Winks—That old friend of yours seems like a man of fine parts.

Jinks—Yes, he's all broke up.—N. Y. Weekly.

BLOODSHED FEARED

A Feeling of Great Anxiety in the Coke Region.

NUMEROUS EVICTIONS ORDERED.

Virginia Negroes Hired to Take the Places Vacated by Strikers.

A Mass Meeting to be Held at Mt. Pleasant This Afternoon—Its Purpose Not Known—A Repetition of the Morewood Horror Expected by Sheriff Clawson—Large Number of Deputies Sworn In.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., April 20.—There is a feeling of great anxiety over the outcome of the numerous evictions to be made in the coke regions this week. Nearly all the strikers at the Summit mines, where attempts are being made to resume work, have been notified that they must leave the houses.

It has been learned that part of the labor to be brought to the region will be Virginia negroes. It is stated that several carloads will arrive during the present week.

The position that no discrimination will be made, said a coke man yesterday, will be withdrawn to-morrow, and the works will be manned with those of the old employes who voluntarily return, and new men to the exclusion of those who refuse to accept the terms of the general amnesty on or before Tuesday.

A mass meeting will be held at Mt. Pleasant this afternoon. Its purpose is not known.

The fact that several car loads of Italians have already been brought into this region, coupled with the report that negroes are to be brought from the South to work and occupy the strikers' houses, has put the strikers in an ugly humor, and Sheriff Clawson openly says that riot and bloodshed seem inevitable, and that he feared a repetition of the Morewood horror.

The coke companies say they will resume to-day at all the plants where men apply for work and in defiance of the strikers, be the consequences what they may.

Sheriff Clawson has been on the jump all day impressing men to serve as deputy sheriffs. Adjutant-General McClelland has returned here, and is conferring with the authorities.

WELCOMED THIS TIME.

Veterans of the Sixth Massachusetts Regiment Again Invade Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, April 20.—After a lapse of 30 years some of the warriors who marched through Baltimore in the early part of the War of the Rebellion again invaded this city yesterday.

But what changes time had wrought! How touchingly and pleasingly this reception contrasts with that one score and 10 years ago! The volleys of stones are now changed into volleys of cheers and hurrahs. The hands that held clashing swords are now clasped in friendship, and the jeers of the angry mob have softened into words of welcome from hospitable hosts.

These martial visitors were the Worcester Light Infantry, Company C, Second Regiment, accompanied by 11 veterans of the old Sixth Massachusetts Regiment, which went through and was attacked by a mob in the streets of Baltimore on the 19th of April, 1861, and 61 honoraries and veterans, who left Worcester, Mass., for a week's pleasure trip in this city and Washington. They were accompanied by Company B band.

They arrived at 25 minutes past 3 at the Baltimore & Ohio station, where they met Duchesne Post, with drum and fife corps, and the Post Guard, under command of Captain Nolan; a detachment of the Eleventh Camp of the Sons of Veterans; commanded by Captain Ladd, and a section of Lincoln Post, No. 7. They were introduced to Mayor Davidson, and after a short exchange of compliments the visitors were escorted to the Carrollton Hotel, which will be their headquarters.

Here the Mayor delivered an eloquent address, saying that in a spirit of welcome the citizens received them to their city, their hearts and their homes.

Captain E. C. Sisson, secretary of the Sixth Massachusetts, and Captain Davis, each in a few words, acknowledged the warm welcome accorded by the Mayor. General Ross presented Captain Sisson with what he termed "the night key to the city of Baltimore," and the reception exercises were over.

In the evening Duchesne Post entertained the visitors in the great dining hall of the Carrollton.

Shot By a Man Who Had Been Buried.

BURLINGTON, Ia., April 20.—Word has been received from Madison county of a fatal fight. Ed Carter, James Smith, and Bob Carter were carrying on a drunken revel at the house of Thomas Smith, when a quarrel arose, in which Smith was knocked senseless. He was carried into the yard and buried under a lot of rubbish. The gang then continued its carousal. In the meantime Smith regained consciousness, and, having secured a shot gun, emptied both barrels into the gang of revellers, fatally wounding Ed Carter. Smith has disappeared.

LOOKING FOR SLAVIN.

The Pugilist's Visit This Week Will Cause a Flutter Among the Talent.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Frank P. Slavin will plant both feet firmly on American soil Wednesday, and then the prize ring cloud which is always in his wake will sweep across the fair Republic from New York to San Francisco, and where before there stood many good, stalwart American citizens, there will be naught but the battered forms of a myriad of whipped prize fighters. At least, that is Slavin's professed belief, but, considering the company that he is traveling in, he can scarcely be held responsible for his utterances. They are beyond doubt the effusions of Charlie Mitchell, whose faculty for boasting is well known on this side of the water, and Slavin, not wisely, has allowed him to have his say. For him Slavin should not be held responsible.

Jim Daly, who will spar three rounds with Slavin at the reception to be tendered the latter at Madison Square Garden, will be the first man to stand up before him in this country. In the selection of the Philadelphian to be the first man to meet Slavin Billy Madden's fine managerial hand is seen. Daly is a very handy man, and a game one, too, but he is not numbered among the first lights, and the probabilities are that there are some second rate men who could whip him. It would never do if Slavin was whipped or given a hard tussle either by the first man who should meet him. This would be disastrous, financially, to his proposed tour of the United States. For this reason a man whom he can whip beyond a doubt is selected to put up his hands with him. The result will be that he will go off in a blaze of glory and meet the good men who are to struggle with him with more confidence.

CLOSE CALL FOR FIREMEN.

Imprisoned in a Burning Building by the Roof Falling.

BOSTON, April 20.—A fire occurred early in the morning in the Chipman Building, occupied by Bailey & Rankin, dealers in carpets, and several other firms. The fire was extinguished after causing a loss of $5,000 on the building and $15,000 on the contents. The losses are fully covered by insurance.

While the fire was at its height the roof suddenly fell and imprisoned 20 firemen. Several were able to extricate themselves immediately from the wreck and escaped without serious injury. The firemen who were at work on other portions of the building turned their attention toward rescuing their comrades and succeeded in rescuing every one of the imprisoned men.

Chief Webber was the first taken from the ruins, and while badly bruised and burned, his injuries were not serious. Chief Reagan, Captain Willets, Captain Griffin and District Engineer Creswell and the rest of the firemen were taken out and all were painfully bruised. None were injured seriously, however.

Creswell was the last one taken from the ruins, it requiring an hour's hard work to reach him. He was located soon enough, but he was pinned down by heavy beams, which could only be removed by slow and laborious work. Despite the efforts of the firemen the flames crept steadily toward Creswell, and it was only when the flames were within a few feet of him that he was rescued.

AN INSANE WOMAN'S DEED.

Committed Suicide by Hanging After Hacking Herself with a Pair of Shears.

HOBOKEN, N. J., April 20.—Mrs. Frances Conrad, 59 years of age, committed suicide at her home here during the morning by hanging.

She hacked herself with a pair of shears at first, severing an artery in her leg and the arteries of both wrists, as well as gashing her throat. She then hung herself with a picture cord. She is believed to have been insane.

Two Killed by a Premature Blast.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., April 20.—Matthew Julian and Antonio Lizze were killed and Angelo Petrunio seriously injured by the premature explosion of a blast in a stone quarry below this city yesterday. The men are all Italians. Friends of the victims claim that the men did not want to go to work, but that they were threatened with dismissal if they did not. The owner of the quarry, Evan T. Dyer, will be prosecuted, and suits for damages will also be brought.

Shot and Killed a Chinaman.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 20.—Charlie Lee, a Chinaman, was shot and killed last night in the laundry of June Lee by Charles Gong, also a Chinaman. Gong surrendered himself to the police. He said he killed Lee, because the latter had ruined his business. An article appeared in one of the papers the other day accusing Gong of enticing small boys into his laundry for immoral purposes. He believed that Lee furnished the information, hence the tragedy.

A Murder Mystery.

NEW YORK, April 20.—The woman who was found at 90th street and Park avenue with her throat cut has been identified as Mrs. Emily Taylor, a widow, 35 years old, of 1215 Third avenue, this city. No cause for the crime has as yet been learned, but the police are hard at work on the case, and expect to get at the facts now that the woman has been identified.

BIG BOOM IN WHEAT

Highest Prices Since the Great Keene Corner.

THE EXCITEMENT NOT OVER.

Damage to European Crops the Cause of the Advance.

Reports Circulated that There is Another Corner—The Rumor is Doubted—Futility of Previous Attempts to Corner the Cereal—Continental Demand for American Wheat Very Heavy.

NEW YORK, April 20.—There is a boom in wheat. The highest prices since the corner in the cereal which "Jim" Keene engineered half a dozen years ago, and the failure of which swept away his fortune, are now quoted. For several days the prices have been struggling upward. The bears have been selling in large quantities both here and in Chicago to keep them down, but they could not be restrained. The more wheat was offered, the more buyers were found.

The particular reason for this advance in wheat is the great damage to the European crops by storms and floods. The Continental demand for American wheat will, if expectations are realized, be very heavy. It is not at all likely that the excitement in wheat is yet over. There are likely to be rapid fluctuations, thus giving scope for operations on both sides. At the same time this kind of a market is dangerous for a person who is not skilled in speculation and who does not closely watch the situation.

There are reports that there is a corner in wheat, but this is doubted. The futility of attempts to corner the cereal has been demonstrated so many times that no one is likely to repeat it. James R. Keene, with $13,000,000, could not make the operation a success. He had based his calculations on the visible supply. That was bought up, and millions of bushels in addition, and still there was no diminution of the supply. The farmers who had put by wheat for home use found that they could get a good price for it and resolved to sell it.

It is reported that several small houses in Chicago will be forced to suspend.

THE PRESIDENT'S TRIP.

He Leaves Galveston for San Antonio Accompanied by State Officers.

GALVESTON, Texas, April 20.—In accordance with the wish of the President, Galveston people allowed him to spend Sunday quietly. Accompanied by Mrs. Dimmick, Postmaster General Wanamaker and Mayor Fulton, he attended services at the First Presbyterian Church and heard a sermon by Rev. Mr. Scott. The church was crowded, and a number of persons shook hands with the President after the services.

President Harrison went for a walk after luncheon along the beach, with Mrs. Dimmick and Mrs. Russell Harrison, and on returning to the Beach Hotel he found waiting a large bouquet of roses, which had been presented by 30 girls of Galveston from the Ursuline Convent, who had called during his absence.

A number of other floral tributes were sent to him during the day. The Presidential party left the Beach Hotel at 10 o'clock last night for the station, and the train left for San Antonio shortly after midnight.

The crowd at the station greeted the appearance of the carriages with cheers. General Stanley, Commander of the Department of Texas, part of his staff and Mrs. Stanley accompany President Harrison to San Antonio. Governor Hogg, Congressman Crain and the San Antonio reception committee left early for the place by a special train.

CONSUL NEW'S REPORT.

The Exports and Imports of Great Britain for the Past Year.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Consul General New, of London, in a report to the Department of State on the commerce of Great Britain, says that the total value of imports into the United Kingdom in 1889 was $2,138,167,975 and exports $1,573,528,705, or together a total trade of $3,711,716,680. The imports and exports both exceed those of any previous year and were in the proportion of $98.12 per head of population of the United Kingdom.

These totals do not include the value of gold and silver bullion, of which there was imported $135,497,195 and exported $125,608,150, nor the goods imported for transhipment, the value of which was $58,905,060.

Imports in 1889 increased $200,009,260 as compared with the previous year.

The principal articles of import were: Corn, value, $255,000,000, a slight decrease; raw cotton, $228,000,000, an increase of $38,000,000; silk manufactures, $59,000,000, an increase of $6,500,000; sugar, $115,000,000, an increase of $22,500,000; wood, $90,000,000, an increase of $20,500,000; wool, $143,000,000, an increase of $12,000,000; woolen manufactures, $49,000,000, an increase of $4,500,000; tea, $50,000,000, a slight decrease; metals, $108,500,000, a decrease of $6,500,000; flax, jute and hemp, $60,000,000, an increase of $12,500,000; provisions (bacon, hams, beef, butter, cheese, etc.) $107,500,000, an increase of $21,000,000, and animals, $45,000,000, an increase of $15,500,000.

Exports in 1889 increased $84,102,525 compared with the previous year.

A Minister's Family Poisoned.

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 20.—The family of the Rev. W. S. Fleming, consisting of Rev. Fleming, his wife and little daughter and Mrs. Fleming's sister, Alice Williams, were poisoned yesterday by eating beef tongue. Their condition is extremely critical.

END OF A LONG STRIKE.

The Spinners in Clark's Mills at Kearney to Return to Work.

NEWARK, N. J., April 20.—The strike of the spinners of the Clark O. N. T. mills has at last been declared off. Senator Howard, who has worked energetically in the interest of the spinners to adjust the trouble, had a conference with the Clark Company, when terms were finally agreed upon to end the strike.

By this agreement No. 3 mill is to be opened next Saturday, when 40 of the spinners who have been on strike will be put to work. The company will take back the other men as soon as room can be made for them in the mills. Superintendent Walmsley will continue in his old position, and he has promised to give the strikers places as soon as possible. Superintendent Walmsley has been instructed to treat the men who have been on strike in a respectful way and not to allow past troubles to prejudice him against any of the men who have been taken back to work.

THE CINCINNATI MEETING.

Clarkson Slated for the Presidency of the League.

CINCINNATI, April 20.—The big hotels are taking on a convention air. The arrivals of visitors are unexpectedly large for this early stage and presages a very large attendance at the convention of Republican clubs.

The Blaine sentiment continues the dominant one, but it carries with it no bitterness toward Harrison and seems wholly founded on what the friends of the former claim is expediency.

Each arrival only confirms the fact that Clarkson can have the presidency of the League if he desires it. The Pennsylvania delegation cuts the widest swath here, and is the lion of the occasion in the way of getting talked about.

Indiana is not largely represented yet, and those here from the Hoosier State are not saying much. Young men are in great preponderance, and "Protection" is their war cry. There is little log rolling for positions, and a very quiet day has been passed.

DUNN'S BODY FOUND.

The Missing Hardware Merchant Fished Out of the Delaware River.

TRENTON, N. J., April 20.—The body of Alexander Dunn, the missing hardware merchant, was found yesterday in the Delaware River, five miles below this place.

A singular circumstance in connection with the matter is that J. B. Wilson, who discovered the body yesterday, found the body of Dunn's father, who drowned himself 20 years ago because the son opposed the father's remarriage.

Alexander Dunn was last seen on the evening of March 20. When he disappeared the opinion was general that he had committed suicide because of financial embarrassments. His affairs are badly involved, and a receiver is now winding them up. It has been ascertained that Dunn was guilty of many irregularities, and his suicide is now believed to be due to fear of discovery of his questionable methods.

Colonizing Eastern Prussia

BERLIN, April 20.—The German government, with the view of retaining some of the young men who are pouring out of Germany to evade military service, has undertaken to colonize the extensive and barren moors of Eastern Prussia. Peat works have been erected, and colonists are assisted to establish homes for the purpose of attending to the peat products. The prospect is a gloomy one for settlers, and it is believed that the government will have to employ convict labor at the task, as it will be difficult to get free labor to work there.

Seven Negroes to Be Shot to Death.

PARIS, Texas, April 20.—To-day seven men will be shot to death at Ocmulgee, the capital of the Creek Nation, in accordance with the laws of that Nation. The men are Ross Riley, Jeff Brown, Pars Johnson, Douglas Brown, Cudge Barnett, Lake Andy and Price Johnson. They were tried at Ocmulgee last week and a verdict of death returned by the jury. They were convicted of the murder of Robert Reed and Riley Walls in the Creek Nation, October 20, 1888. The condemned men are all negroes, while their victims were Creek Indians.

Chased by an Italian.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 20.—Last evening, while J. Frazer, of the "After Dark" theatrical company, was strolling along with two other gentlemen, he was crowded off the sidewalk by an Italian named Tony Frank. Upon remonstrating with the Italian, the latter replied that the road was good enough for Mr. Frazer, and, drawing a razor, chased Frazer for some distance, but was finally overpowered by Frazer's friends and arrested.

Both Die of Pneumonia.

SARATOGA, N. Y., April 20.—The wife of Dr. Charles von Spiegal, a prominent physician here, died Saturday night of pneumonia. The doctor himself died yesterday of the same disease, aged 73 years. He was a wealthy slaveholder and planter in the South before the war. He came to this place after the war and has since had a large practice.

Mrs. Spencer Ordained to the Ministry.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 20.—Mrs. Anna Garian Spencer was ordained to the ministry in Bell Street Chapel and installed over the society worshipping there. Rev. W. J. Potter, of New Bedford, preached the ordination sermon. Rev. Charles Gordon Ames, of Boston, sent a letter of welcome to the ministry to Mrs Spencer, which was read.

Funeral of Capt. Mackenzie.

NEW YORK, April 20.—The funeral services of the late Capt. G. H. Mackenzie, the celebrated chess player, were held at St. Mark's Church. The interment was at Greenwood Cemetery. The Manhattan Chess Club had charge of the funeral arrangements.

SHIPPING SICILIANS

Italy Offering Criminals Free Passage to America.

SOME OF THEM HAVE A MISSION.

A Roman Gentleman Says the New Orleans Leaders Will Die by Violence.

There Is a Row in the Kaiser's Household—The Empress May Take a Journey to Schleswig—The Primrose League Want Parliament Dissolved—Parnell Denounces the McCarthyites.

LONDON, April 20.—A Rome dispatch says the government has agreed to give free passage to America to any of the informers and other witnesses in the Mala Vita prosecution that may desire it, and it is believed that the offer will be gladly taken advantage of by all.

Several witnesses who testified in the case have already reached Naples under police protection, and are undoubtedly awaiting the first chance to emigrate to the United States.

Another suspicious feature of Italian emigration has been the arrival at Naples of considerable numbers of Sicilians bound to America, and it is current talk in Naples that some of them have a mission in connection with the New Orleans tragedy.

A Roman gentleman informed a London correspondent that while he hated and despised the Mafia, he recognized that the vendetta was inevitable, and that the leaders in the American tragedy would die by violence sooner or later, though perhaps not for two or three years. He said that this was the chief reason in Italy for punishing murder with imprisonment instead of death, as vendetta had always followed the capital penalty.

THE NEW ORLEANS REPORT.

The Investigation of the Prison Tragedy About Concluded.

NEW ORLEANS, April 20.—It is authoritatively learned here that by the end of this week the famous report of the grand jury which is investigating the tragedy at the parish prison and the result of whose labors has been so anxiously looked forward to will be presented to the public.

The jury has been at work on the matter for nearly a month, and a large number of witnesses from all walks of life have been examined.

The steamer Olympia arrived here yesterday from Palermo, having 450 Sicilians aboard. The immigrants were turned loose this morning.

A ROYAL ROW.

The Kaiser and His Wife Are Said to Be Very Unhappy.

LONDON, April 20.—There is a row in the Kaiser's household, Berlin dispatches state, and the Empress may take a journey to Schleswig.

The imperial couple are said to be unhappy for several reasons, one being the growing influence of the Empress Frederick, who, in the opinion of the Kaiserin, usurps some of the importance that ought to attach to the Kaiser's consort, and another is the harshness shown by the Kaiser recently to near relatives of the Kaiserin.

The Kaiser has been a devoted husband since the suicide of Prince Rudolph of Austria, it having had the effect of making him mend his habits, but he expects the same sort of worship in his family that he requires from his people, and this has led to the trouble.

The affair has become sufficiently prominent to attract attention and arouse gossip outside of court circles. It is thought that it may amount to no more than strained relations for a few days, as the imperial pair are very much devoted to their children.

They Want Parliament Dissolved.

LONDON, April 20.—The chiefs of the Primrose League, which numbered over a million yesterday, and which may be said to embody a preponderant share of Conservative sentiment, are clamoring loudly for the dissolution of Parliament on the ground that now is the best time to meet the Gladstonians and defeat them. The government, however, does not view matters in that light and considers that it would be dangerous to go to the country with the Irish Land Purchase bill unsettled. Both parties recognize that the bill is unpopular in England, the British taxpayers being opposed to putting out any more money for Ireland.

Parnell Denounces the McCarthyites.

DUBLIN, April 20.—At Irishtown, Mayo, Parnell addressed a large throng of admirers. He denounced the McCarthyites for opposing the Land bill, which, he said, could not fail to be of great benefit to the Irish farmers, and which, therefore, it would no doubt please the opposition to see defeated.

Newfoundland's Delegates Slighted.

LONDON, April 20.—It appears that Newfoundland's delegates were not invited to Lord Knutsford's reception on Friday evening, although the newspapers stated that they were. This deliberate slight, by a member of the Cabinet, has greatly embittered the Newfoundlanders.

Royal Honors for Justice Stephens.

LONDON, April 20.—Justice Stephens, who has retired from the bench on account of the development of mental peculiarities that indicated insanity, has been selected for the honor of knighthood in token of the royal esteem for his long service on the bench.

A Momentous Question.

ROME, April 20.—Signor Imbriani has given notice in the Chamber of Deputies that he intends to question Premier Rudini in regard to the refusal of Inspector Byrnes, of New York city, to accept the decoration sent to him by King Humbert.

WHAT ONE STRIKE DID.

Corning Said to Have Lost the Electric Bulb Business.

PITTSBURG, April 20.—W. J. Dillon, secretary of the American Flint Glass Workers' Union, has returned from Corning, N. Y., where he has been for over a week making an official investigation of the condition of affairs, both as regards the operation of the plant and the strikers. He furnishes some rather startling figures to show that the strike at the great Corning Glass Works, which has lasted so many months, is already won by the Union. Mr. Dillon says:

"Electric light bulbs are now being made at one factory in Findlay, O.; one at Millville, six in Brooklyn, two in Ottawa, Ill.; one at Watercure, Pa., and one in Toledo. The manufacture of the bulbs at no one of the plants is experimental. Their united daily output is 100,000, or just 2,000 less than the daily consumption. The Corning Company, with its output of 8,000, makes up the amount required. The consumption of bulbs is enormous, and is rapidly growing. The Edison Company alone had by its last report 1,371,000 incandescent lamps. Now 20,000 more bulbs are being made daily than were made by the Corning Company before the strike.

"The companies engaged in the manufacture of the bulbs are enabled to turn them out because they have the skilled glassworkers formerly employed by the Corning Company. They have been sent to the other factories by the Flint Glass Workers' Union as they were needed. Three-fourths of the Corning strikers are now working elsewhere. The electric light bulb industry at Corning is irredeemably crippled and its trade is helplessly demoralized."

SHOCKING SUICIDE.

The Proprietor of a Park Cuts His Throat With a Butcher Knife.

CAMDEN, N. J., April 20.—While merrymakers enjoyed themselves in Pavonia Park, East Camden, yesterday, Christian Eckert, the proprietor, drew a huge butcher knife across his throat and died.

Eckert was one of the best-known Germans in Camden, being a member of nearly a score of social and secret organizations. Twice before within the past few years he has attempted to end his life, once with the fragments of a lamp chimney which he had broken and once with a knife.

Gone to Meet the President.

DENVER, Col., April 20.—A dozen prominent citizens, accompanied by Senator Teller and ex-Congressman Bowers, have gone to Galveston, where they will meet the Presidential party. Their object is to enter a protest to Secretary Rusk against the establishment of the quarantine line in Texas recently ordered by him. They will ask that the order be recalled. Colorado men will lose a million and a half if the quarantine is maintained.

Died After His 100th Birthday.

CLEVELAND, O., April 20.—Mr. Meyer Strauss, who celebrated the 100th anniversary of his birth Wednesday, March 4, died early in the morning at his residence. He was quite feeble at the time of the celebration of his birthday anniversary and was obliged to keep to his bed during the day.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

A financial crisis is feared in London.

The strike at Essen affects 15 collieries, employing 2,000 men.

General Miles and party left the City of Mexico for Chicago last night.

The prospect is that at least 5,000 men will strike in New York on May 1 for the eight-hour work day.

It is officially denied in Brussels that Henry M. Stanley has been appointed Governor of the Congo Free State.

An Assyrian immigrant, brought to New York by La Burgogne, was found to be suffering from malignant typhus fever.

The grip is prevailing at Lockport, N. Y., to an alarming extent. There are several hundred cases and the doctors have their hands full.

It is rumored in Berlin that the Czar gave the French government a rebuke for the manner in which the Empress Frederick was treated in Paris.

The equestrian statue of General Grant in Lincoln Park, Chicago, will be unveiled on the Fourth of July under the auspices of the Society of the Army of the Tennessee.

Miss Jane Vedder, a prepossessing young woman of Baldwinsville, N. Y., has sued Deacon William Read, a leading member of the Baptist church in that place, for slander.

A disease called spotted fever is raging around Milan, Tenn. Over thirty persons have died within the past two days. Not a single person so far has recovered. People are fleeing and all the immediate towns have quarantined against the stricken towns of Newbern and Gates.

At Exeter, N. H., Murphy, Woods and Mrs. Reed have been jointly indicted by the grand jury as principals in murder of the first degree, and Mrs. Reed also as accessory after the act, to her husband's murder. They will be arraigned to-day and the trial will begin a few days later.

Solomon J. Gordon, a prominent patent lawyer of New York city, died at his home in Springfield, Mass., yesterday afternoon. He was born in Weymouth, Mass., September 24, 1826, graduated at Harvard in 1847, practised law for a time in Boston and then removed to New York.

The property of J. K. Spang, a prominent iron manufacturer, of Reading, Pa., has been attached by the sheriff to satisfy a judgment of $95,000. Mr. Spang is a resident of Lenhartsville. He owns valuable property in Greenwich, Albany and Windsor townships and also in Lenhartsville.

Death of Banker Thompson.

NEW YORK, April 20.—John Thompson, the veteran banker, who has been ill for some time, died last evening, aged 68 years.

BARN BURNERS STILL AT WORK.

Another Attempt at Incendiarism in the Heart of the City.

An attempt was made Saturday night to burn the barn occupied by George A. Moore, the butcher, situated at the rear of Dr. Probasco's East Front street residence, and adjoining the other old outbuildings on the Gardner estate.

Inflammable material saturated with kerosene was set on fire, but fortunately the fire either died out of its own accord or was extinguished by the shower of the evening. Had the flames gained headway a bad fire must have resulted. The barn is situated not far from the one that was recently burned at the rear of the Stiles building. It contained four horses, which must surely have perished had the fire gained any headway, so carefully was the inflammable material arranged, and so near was the oil-soaked waste and straw placed to the stalls. The authorities desired to be able to keep the matter quiet, hoping to secure a clue to the fire bug, but the news of the attempted incendiarism spread about town yesterday, and is now on hundreds of tongues. Numerous people visited the barn yesterday and poked their canes in the half-burned rubbish, in search of some article the recognition of which might lead to the discovery of the identity of the incendiary.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The Rev. T. Logan Murphy preached in St. John's church, Elizabeth, yesterday.

Clarkson B. Hope, who has been under a siege of illness all winter, was able to go out for a drive yesterday.

Mrs. Julia Wilkins died at her home on East Third street yesterday. Funeral services will be held to-morrow afternoon.

Dr. J. H. Cooley will tell "Some Things that Men Should Know", at rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association, Thursday evening.

The Rev. P. LeBas Cross, assistant rector of St. John's church, Elizabeth, conducted the services at Holy Cross church yesterday morning.

The wedding of Miss Anna Anderson to John Emil Strandberg was solemnized by the Rev. E. M. Bodman at the bride's residence in this city Saturday morning.

The Daily Continent remarks that Colonel Mason W. Tyler, of this city, presents a striking contrast to his law partner, General Henry E. Tremain, the former being dark of visage, and the latter the lightest shade of blonde.

The marriage of Chas. Holstein to Miss Lavina Weston took place Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's father, this city. Miss Hangliter was bridesmaid, and Edward Hangliter was "best man". A wedding supper was served after the ceremony.

Leo Daft is convalescent from a recent severe attack of the grip, and engaged in settling his business affairs and disposing of his property in the East, prior to his departure with his family in a few weeks for Tacoma, where he will make his home in the future.

The Rev. Dr. John C. Bliss, formerly pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church of this city, preached to large congregations, morning and evening, at the First Presbyterian church, yesterday. He was the guest during Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Closson, 133 East Front street.

A very pretty christening took place in St. Mary's church yesterday, when the name of Helen was bestowed by the Rev. P. E. Smyth on the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lynch, of Madison avenue. Peter Flynn, Jr., was chosen godfather, and Miss Maggie Lynch godmother.

Funeral services over the remains of Hester V., widow of the late James C. Tingley, were held from her late residence, 87 Third avenue, Newark, Saturday afternoon. Deceased was a sister-in-law of Mrs. Asenath T. Nelson, of 117 West Front street, and had many friends in Plainfield. She was 75 years of age.

At the recent wedding of Miss Isabel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Washington Elliott Langley, to Frederick Gebhard Blancke, son of the Hon. Ferdinand Blancke, at Grace Protestant Episcopal church, Linden, large numbers of prominent society people were present from New York, Philadelphia, Linden, Plainfield, Brooklyn, Chicago and Cincinnati. Miss Louise Depew of this city and Miss Helen Gill of Brooklyn, were the bridesmaids. The Rev. Dr. Thomas Gallaudet of New York performed the ceremony.

At the funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Hannah C. Pierson, from her late residence, 86 Duer street, yesterday afternoon, the Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes spoke most tenderly on the appropriate text, "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints"—Ps. CXVI: 15—, and a choir consisting of W. E. MacClymont, L. H. Bigelow, Miss Boice and Miss Runyon sang beautifully the selection "Some Sweet Day, by and by". Today the remains were taken to Cherryville, Hunterdon county, and laid to rest beside those of her late husband.

The will of the late Rufus King, one of Ohio's best-known jurists, and uncle of Thomas W. King, of Sandford avenue, this city, has been admitted to probate. The estate is valued at $300,000. More than $100,000 is given to public institutions and religious objects. Valuable heirlooms received by the testator from his parents and grandparents, together with all his books, pictures, plate, and similar valuables, are to be shared by the testator's three nephews, Wm. M., Thos. W., and Rufus King, Jr., who will also share a portion of the estate valued at $30,000.

ARBOR DAY IN THE COUNTRY.

Pleasant Celebration by a Mountain Village School.

Arbor Day was appropriately observed by both teachers and scholars of the public school at Washingtonville. Entertaining exercises were held, and were largely attended by parents of the pupils and friends of the school. The evident care bestowed on the parts assigned to each one showed the unison of teacher and scholar in their work together for the promotion of the interests of the school. Mr. Gifford is a teacher of ability, and in his chosen profession shows the possibilities of education as brought out in the advancement of the scholars in their studies during the past term. The satisfaction of the parents and trustees with the work done by the school through the zeal of the teacher is evident. The following is the interesting Arbor Day programme:

Song—"Let's Be Happy".....by the school
Bible Reading.
Prayer.
Recitation—"Woodman Spare that Tree" by Harry Ackar
Song—"Spring".....by the school
Quotations....by a class of four boys and four girls
Song—"Swinging 'Neath the Old Apple Tree" by the school
Recitation—"A Buttercup".by Carrie Bullman
Recitation—"Our Finance".by John Simpson
Song—"The Brave Old Oak".....by Ed. Clark, Etta Ackar and Carrie Bullman
Recitation—"Somebody's Knocking" by Bertie Clark
Recitation—"The Whistle".....by Willie Ackar
Song—"The Stream of Life".....by the school
A Class Recitation—"The Spring Time"
Sketch of Whittier's Life..by Robert M. Clark
Recitation—"Jack in The Pulpit" by Ed. Clark
"Tree Planting Song" (tune, "America") by the school
An Allegory—"The Return of the Wanderers," consisting of eight characters:

FLAG RAISING AT NEW MARKET.

Great Speech from a War Veteran, and Tree Planting by the Pupils.

At the New Market public school Arbor Day was enthusiastically celebrated.

During the day the pupils set out trees and recited appropriate selections on Nature from the great American poets.

A splendidly straight and tall flag pole, the gift of Charles Coriell, son of postmaster Abner Coriell, was raised amid songs and cheers, and from its top a beautiful specimen of the American flag, raised by popular subscription, was flung to the breeze.

The exercises were very enjoyable in every way, and reflected great credit on principal Campbell and his assistant, Miss Mamie Titsworth.

Parents of the children provided enjoyable refreshments.

A rousing speech was made by war veteran Henry Barnes.

The attendance was very large.

FISTIC ENCOUNTER IN AN ORCHARD.

It All Happened Because Barry Thought He Had Been Slandered.

Charles Barry has of late been annoyed by the circulation of a report that he is a married man, which report had reached the ear of his sweetheart and had caused trouble. Publication of a notice in THE PRESS that he would prosecute the slanderer if the story were not stopped did not succeed in sealing the lips of the offender, and last Friday night Barry approached John Schorb personally and accused him of being the originator of the malicious fabrication. A heated dispute followed, and as a result of challenge and counter-challenge the two men adjourned to an orchard over the brook and fought the matter out to a finish. Those who have since seen the combatants say that Schorb was the more badly punished of the two. At any rate, Barry seems satisfied, and considers that in pummelling Schorb he has vindicated himself against the stories that have been afloat.

Resolutions of Condolence on the Death of Margaretta A. Dawe.

The following resolutions were passed by a unanimous vote at a special meeting of Mizpah Lodge, No. 1, U. O. of I. O. L.:

WHEREAS, In view of the loss we have sustained by the death of our friend and sister Margaretta A. Dawe, and of the still heavier loss sustained by those who were nearest and dearest to her, therefore be it

Resolved, That it is but a just tribute to the memory of her to say that in regretting her removal from our midst we mourn for one who was in every way worthy of our respect and regard.

Resolved, That while we deeply sympathize with those who were bound to our departed sister by the nearest and dearest ties, we share with them the hope of a re-union in the Better World where there is no parting, and where bliss ineffable forbids a tear.

Resolved, That these resolutions be copied in full on our minutes and be sent for publication to THE DAILY PRESS and a copy be given to the bereaved husband.

The whist tournament that is in progress along the line of the Central Railroad of New Jersey is giving the game quite a boom. The clubs represented are the Bergen Point, Elizabeth Athletic Club, Westfield Athletic Club, Fanwood Athletic Club, and the Crescent League of Plainfield. The Crescents have now a lead of 67 points in the series, having lost but one game. On Wednesday night they defeated the strong team of the Elizabeth Athletic Club by 18 points in one of the most brilliantly contested games of the series.

A COLD of unusual severity developed into a difficulty decidedly catarrhal in all its characteristics, threatening a return of my old chronic malady, catarrh. One bottle of Ely's Cream Balm completely eradicated every symptom of that painful and prevailing disorder.—E. W. Warner, Rochester, N. Y.

WHEN I began using Ely's Cream Balm my catarrh was so bad I had headache the whole time and discharged a large amount of filthy matter. That has almost entirely disappeared, and I have not had headache since.—J. H. Sommers, Stephney, Conn.

DEFENDING PEOPLE'S RIGHTS.

THE COUNCIL CAN PROTECT THEM AGAINST PRIVILEGED CORPORATIONS.

Extracts From Corporation Counsel Marsh's Brief in Reply to the Water Supply Co's Proposition That Because it Has a "Charter" it Can Make Store-houses of the Streets, Dig Them Up and Pump Water Through Them Without Regard to the Comfort or Health of the Inhabitants.

NEW JERSEY SUPREME COURT.

The Plainfield Water Supply Company, Prosecutor, vs. The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, Defendant.

The ordinance sought to be reviewed in this case is a general ordinance of the City of Plainfield for the preventing or removing from the streets of the city of obstructions, encroachments, encumbrances and nuisances, and also concerning the laying down of pipes for the conveyance of water or gas, in the city streets.

That the ordinance was regularly adopted, approved and published in accordance with the charter requirements is not denied by the prosecutor.

The first section requires any person or corporation desiring to use the surfaces of streets for the storing of materials, to apply in the first instance to the Common Council for a designation of streets that may be used for such purpose and of the manner in which the materials may be placed thereon.

The second section requires any person or corporation desirous of tearing up the surface of any street to obtain preliminary designation by the Common Council of the streets to be used and the manner in which the work may be done.

The third section requires any person or corporation desirous of laying down pipes for conveyance of water or gas in the streets of the city to obtain the preliminary designation by the Common Council of the streets in which the pipes may be laid, in what part thereof, and in what manner they may be laid.

The fourth section imposes a penalty for failure to remove from the streets materials deposited thereon contrary to section 1.

The fifth section imposes a penalty for failure to remove from the streets pipes laid down contrary to section 2.

The sixth section permits repairs to pipes already laid.

The seventh section prohibits the maintenance of a system of water-works by any person or corporation until adequate provision is first made to carry off such water as may be supplied by the water-works, so as not to endanger the health or well-being of the city.

***

In the absence of any proof of circumstances surrounding the case, the assertion that the ordinance in question is an attempt to annul the prosecutor's charter must be regarded as gratuitous. The ordinance is a general one applicable to all persons and all corporations. Although counsel in his brief shrewdly prefaces his argument with the concession that it is the prosecutor's duty to exercise its franchises with due and careful regard for the interests of others and to comply with all reasonable regulations that may be made by the local authorities of Plainfield concerning the use of the public streets, the real logic of his argument is in support of the proposition that the water company, because it possesses a charter, may make store-houses of the city streets for the deposit of pipes, castings and machinery, may tear up the streets of the City of Plainfield and lay therein its water pipes, and pump through them millions of gallons of water daily, without regard to the convenience, comfort, health or lives of the public at large.

***

Besides the implied inherent power of Plainfield as a municipal corporation, the charter provisions already quoted expressly confer the authority upon the Common Council to deal legislatively with the subject matter embraced in the ordinance. The duty of the Court will be done if it determines, whether, under any possible state of facts that may have existed to call into existence the ordinance in dispute, such an ordinance would be reasonable. Suppose that for over twenty-one years prior to the adoption of the ordinance (that is to say, during the whole period of the existence of the prosecutor as a corporation) the Plainfield Water Supply Company never laid a pipe; that during that time Plainfield changed from a small village to a populous city, densely crowded in many portions of its territory; that by reason of the settled grades of the streets, the nature of the soil and the methods of disposition of sewerage, it was susceptible of demonstration in the minds of the local legislative power of Plainfield, that to permit a system of water-works to be maintained at this time in the City of Plainfield without there first being provided an adequate means of disposing of the surplus water to be furnished through the water-works system, would be highly dangerous, not only to the comfort but to the health and lives of the people in that community; that all this was proved by men of science who are experts in matters of water-works and sewerage; would it be pretended that despite the danger of pestilence, the Plainfield Water Supply Company could do the thing that would invite the danger?

The Common Council assert that the facts supposed are true; but whether they are true or not, it is respectfully submitted that if any conceivable state of facts would render the ordinance valid, the Court will, on well settled principles, refuse to declare it void.

The ordinance does not seek to prohibit the exercise of the charter rights of prosecutor. It does attempt to say that, in order properly to protect the public against danger, the company shall first see to it that some means are provided by which the millions of gallons of water per day that it proposes to distribute throughout the city shall, after distribution, be safely carried off and not left to menace the community with a plague.

***

The statement in the brief of opposing counsel:

"That the Common Council have declared in the Seventh Section of the ordinance that no water-works shall be constructed in the city except by a particular company," etc., was doubtless not intended to mislead the Court. What the Seventh Section does say on the subject is as follows: "But nothing in this ordinance contained shall be construed to apply to or interfere with the contract heretofore entered into between said city and the Water-Works Company of Plainfield." What that contract was, does not appear in the case. If it did, it would clearly appear that the danger with which, in the opinion of the Common Council, the Plainfield Water Supply Company menaces the community had been carefully guarded against in the contract referred to in the ordinance. The attempt, therefore, on the part of prosecutor to make it appear to the Court that the ordinance in question favors a given water company must fail. Whatever valid contracts had been made prior to the adoption of the ordinance, whether with the water company therein referred to or with any other company, could not be invalidated by the ordinance.

***

Neither did the ordinance undertake to declare the works of the prosecutor a nuisance as would seem to be intimated in the brief of opposing counsel. The ordinance is a general one, applicable to all persons and corporations seeking to use the streets of Plainfield. It is a rule for the future. It did not declare the works of prosecutor a nuisance, for prosecutor had no works.

***

If in the fourth point of prosecutor it was meant to be contended that it was not within the power of the Legislature to modify or repeal the charter rights of the Plainfield Water Supply Company, I cannot yield assent to the proposition. It is too familiar law in this State that an act of incorporation passed subsequent to the general act concerning corporations approved in 1846 may be modified or repealed by the Legislature, to require any citation of authority. Such modification or repeal, I respectfully submit, may be effected by an Act of the Legislature which expressly so provides in terms, or it may be effected by any general act in which are found apt words to express such a legislative intent. If upon enacting the Charter of Plainfield, the Legislature intended to confer upon that city the power to say to the Plainfield Water Supply Company: "You shall not exercise your franchises in a manner inimical to the health or well being of the public; you shall not in exercising your charter rights impede travel through the streets of Plainfield by piling up your pipes and machinery in its thoroughfares; you shall not be superior to the representatives of the people whom we have clothed with authority, to guard the health and well-being of that city, and to determine whether millions of gallons of water may be distributed through your pipes daily before you or somebody else provide safe exit for such water after use and contamination": would there be any doubt as to the rights of Plainfield's Common Council to enact the ordinance in question? And can there be any doubt that the Legislature intended to confer upon the Common Council precisely that power? Can the prosecutor, and other corporations similarly situated, be heard to insist because they were not expressly enumerated in Plainfield's Charter, that therefore, the salutary provisions of that Charter looking to the health and well-being of the city had no application to them?

***

The ordinance is not made to invalidate rights secured by statute, but on the contrary, to secure to the people those rights which it is the privilege and the duty of the Legislature to place for safe keeping in the custody and control of local legislative bodies. The prosecutor accepted its charter subject to the power of the Legislature subsequently to modify or repeal it. The Legislature has modified it so far as the health and well-being of Plainfield are concerned, to the extent of placing within the power of the Common Council of that city the right to protect the public in those respects even against the privileged corporation.

The suggestion that money was invested by the prosecutor upon the faith of its charter prior to the adoption of the ordinance in question has no foundation in anything that appears in this case. For aught that appears in the case, not one dollar was ever invested by the prosecutor until it was fully advised by official notice of the intended adoption by the Common Council of the ordinance in dispute.

***

Against the first and fourth sections of the ordinance in question, none of the arguments addressed to the Court by counsel for prosecutor appear to have any application. Even assuming that by its charter the prosecutor acquired in 1869 a right, despite the subsequent charter of the city, to tear up the city streets and turn on the water regardless of the question whether by so doing the public are inconvenienced or subjected to danger of fever or pestilence, there is nothing in its charter which authorizes the company to use the surfaces of the streets as the receptacles and places of storage for its pipes and other apparatus in lieu of storing and caring for them upon the company's own property.

The company may exercise every right named in its charter without coming in conflict with these sections. The pipes may be kept on the company's own premises until they are needed.

The ordinance, however, does not prohibit the temporary use of the city streets for such purposes; it simply requires that the company shall first obtain from the Common Council a designation of what streets may be so used and of the manner in which the use shall be enjoyed. The Council owe a duty to the public, for example, to prevent the use for such purposes of such narrow streets as bear the burden of great traffic in the heart of the city, and to require the company to consult the convenience and comfort of the public in that regard, and this was doubtless the object of the first an d fourth sections of the ordinance.

CRAIG A. MARSH,
Counsel for Defendant.

GUILTY $8 WORTH.

"Innocent" Prisoners Submit Cheerfully to City Court Punishment.

John Sloane was a prisoner before City Judge Codington this morning on the charge of drunkenness and fighting on the street. Thomas Fahey, who had been implicated with him in the row, stood trial and paid a fine of $12 weeks ago, but until recently the police had been unable to lay their hands on Sloane. He said that that was n't because he was hiding, but because he was off looking for work. He claimed to be entirely innocent in the matter, and said that he was sober and was going to his boarding place when Fahey stopped him on the street, insulted him, and began to strike out with his fists. Of course a fight followed, but he had acted solely in self-defense. Fahey, he concluded, was the guilty party.

When the court set the case down for trial at 4:30 this afternoon Sloane objected. He had all his witnesses on hand to swear to his innocence, and insisted that the trial should proceed immediately.

"I won't agree to no postponement"—he said, but when Sergeant Lynch ordered him, in a new-fire-gong tone of voice, "not to put on so much lugs", he quieted down for awhile.

Later he said that while he was not guilty he was willing to retract his plea and plead guilty for the sake of having the case promptly disposed of. He did n't think he ought to pay a fine of more than $5, though.

Sergeant Lynch told him he could n't plead guilty to any specific amount. He could n't plead guilty $5 worth. The court suggested that he might, if he so desired, plead non vult contendere, which Mr. Sloane said was just what he had in mind to do. Cheerfully and without a murmur he received the information that he must pay a fine of $8, and said he was thankful not to have to waste any more of his valuable time over so trivial a matter. His landlady loaned him the price of the fine.

John Burke, another "innocent", guilty against his will, was fined $10 for drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

Thomas Dowd, who was accused of having knocked over a lamp and smashed things generally at the home of Edward Kline on Plainfield avenue, while intoxicated, was ordered to appear for trial this afternoon at half-past four.

NOTES FROM THE PASTOR'S PAPER.

Interesting Jottings About the Congregationalists.

From the April issue of Our Church, the interesting little monthly of which the Rev. C. L. Goodrich is editor, the following extracts are taken:

The home department of the Sunday-school has started with a membership of 62.

Mrs. Potter will remove from the hospital to her former home on Fifth street near New about the first of May.

John Burnett is now living at 47 East Fifth street. Mr. Nightingale has moved to 18 Broadway, and Mrs. Phebe Clarkson Davis to 63 West Fourth street.

At a sociable to be held Friday evening, April 24, Miss Clark will read a paper on Africa, which she read recently at the Monday Afternoon Club; and a quartette in costume will sing.

The pastor was called out of the Sunday-school, March 22, to unite in marriage Frank L. Zellers, of Newark, and Lamson Sliber, of Clinton. The witnesses were A. N. Garvey and Mrs. R. N. Garvey.

Clara Force deserves a medal. For four years she did not miss a single session of the Sunday-school except during the weeks of the summer when she was out of town. It is a pity that one absence last month broke the fine record.

A little girl, daughter of a Massachusetts minister who is a friend of the pastor, was much displeased one communion service because they did not give her any bread. At the next communion service her mother noticed that the little thing had brought her own bread.

The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor held its semi-annual election of officers Wednesday evening, April 1. Miss F. F. Clark was elected President; Miss Jessie Clark, Vice Presidents Roy Suffern, Treasurer; Miss Capitola Donovor, Secretary; Augustus Powlison, Corresponding Secretary.

Our good friend, trustee, treasurer and general standby, G. W. Rockfellow, has been taking a much needed rest of two or three weeks in southern Florida. He comes back much benefited, speaking highly of the climate, telling fish stories, and it is rumored that his esteemed wife who accompanied him has become a successful angler also.

L. C. Batson merits the sincere thanks of the congregation for his services as precentor. Though against his inclination and with the protests that his voice was not suited for leading congregational singing, he consented to act as precentor for a time, and has done so faithfully and gratuitously, for many months. His throat troubles him so much that he now feels that he must resign the position.

That Mission Band again! What have they done? They have had a sociable and a smashing of jugs. They selected a rainy night for it, so that it was quite impossible for many of the honorary members to attend, but every one of the Band, even the smallest and the youngest, was present. The breaking of the jugs was assigned to the pastor, in appreciation, doubtless, of his destructive abilities, which began to manifest themselves at a very early age, as certain members of his family could testify. The result of the smash was the commendable total of $22.00. But the cracking of pottery and the jingling of coins was not the only music heard. Miss Nellie Winckler gave "Titania" and a "Finland love song" as piano solos in a very creditable manner, and Miss Nella Whiton with the violin, accompanied by Miss Mary Whiton at the piano, played Verdi's "Il Trovatore" and Case's "Romance" very finely. Refreshments were served, games were played, and everybody voted that it was a good time.

Blame This to the Trolley!

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—In to-day's World I find this item:

A FIREMAN SHOCKED TO DEATH.

CHATTANOOGA, April 19.—During a fire to-night at the corner of Ninth street and Georgia avenue, Charles Werner, head hoseman of Lookout Fire Department, went to the top of the long ladder and was playing the hose in a third story window, when he got a shock from an electric light wire and dropped dead to the ground in the presence of an immense crowd.

This should have been done by the trolley, but it was n't.

I expect the consistent obstructionists will now demand the pulling down of the electric light poles.

Truly, they let their light shine before men in an "awfully jolly" shocking way.

N. O. BUNKUM.

Hires' Root Beer is essentially a temperance drink, and, as such, ought to find a place in every larder in the land. It is so cheap, too. A 25 cent package makes five gallons.

"Et tu Brute," as the young lady, who had just carried off the honors from a fashionable boarding school said, when her mischievous beau swallowed the last spoonful of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

Thanks to the introduction of Salvation Oil, our young bicyclers need not fear a fall. 25 cents.

Plainfield Clergymen Will Assist.

Ascension Day, May 7, St. John's Commandery, of Elizabeth, is to attend divine service at St. Luke's church, Roselle, by invitation of the rector, the Rev Mr. Malcolm. The rector will be assisted by the Rev F. M. McAllister and Sir Knight Glazebrook of Elizabeth, together with the Revs. E. M. Rodman and T. Logan Murphy of Plainfield. The music on this occasion will be of the high order for which the choir of St. Luke's is celebrated. It is expected that Bishop Scarborough will be present. Immediately after the service the commandery and its guests will be provided with an elaborate banquet at Van Court Inn.

Shiloh's Cough Cure

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10c., 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

Here's our card.

It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are not straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public esteem accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for selling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of Shoes.

"When a person squeals he must be hurt", says one merchant; but when a man's business is on the increase he cannot be hurt; thus proving that delusive advertising does not affect intelligent trade, and that the party who applied it made a wrong application; but all are liable to make mistakes. THE MILKMAN.

The milkman is coming, a merry tune humming,
He stops at the gate, and he jingles his bell;
I haste to the wicket, to give him a ticket,
And get the white treasure my babe loves so well.

His merry "Good morning" rings out as a warning
To frowns from all faces which meet him to flee;
For Fritz is so jolly it seems to be folly
For any who greet him sad-visaged to be.

His merry voice singing, his merry bell ringing,
Are sounds which the folks of the town love to hear;
He gives them good measure, and wishes them pleasure,
Fulfilling his wish by his own words of cheer.

And still he goes ringing, and still he goes singing,
Till down yonder street, at a house small and brown,
His greeting is lower, his hand becomes slower
In filling the measure than elsewhere in town.

For there, after ringing, he ceases his singing,
As Gretchen comes out with a pitcher for milk.
Her round face is rosy and sweet as a posy,
Her blue eyes are gentle, her hair soft as silk.

He lingers unduly for business, but, truly,
He cannot be censured for lingering there;
For Gretchen is smiling, and coyly beguiling
And tangling his heart in her soft yellow hair.

'Tis whispered, in springtime—by poets called "ring-time"—
A happy event will occur in the town;
And then little Gretchen no longer will fetch in
The milk from the gate at the house small and brown.

—Martha Glen Sperbeck, in Good Housekeeping.

BRANSCOME'S BURGLAR.

A Night's Experience Which Mr. B. Never Relates.

Branscome sat in his cozy parlor with the soles of his slippered feet turned up to the fire and his hands clasped behind his head. His eyes were shut, and, but for the wreaths of smoke curling from the fragrant cigar between his lips, he might have been supposed asleep. Branscome, however, was not napping, but was in that beatific state that is superinduced in a man with a clear conscience and perfect digestion, by a good dinner. It is astonishing, really, to contemplate the influence that the physical nature of a man exerts upon his moral and spiritual part. If a person who is wet, hungry and cold can feel any spark of love for his fellowman and show any consideration for him, warmed and fed that man must be an angel indeed.

Branscome always felt at peace with the world after dinner, and upon this particular night his post-prandial content was augmented by the contrast of the cheery room, bright with lamplight and the glow of the fire, with the storm that raged without. The day had been of that kind which is of frequent occurrence in March in this latitude. In the morning the weather had been damp and clammy and of a particular disagreeable quality for mortal lungs to inhale. At noon a thaw had set in and the snow-covered streets become a mass of slush, and now, at night, the rain was beating against the windows and the wind shrieking as if the concentrated spite of the elements was to be at once poured out upon the earth.

Branscome was a Christian man, but he smiled softly to himself as he pictured the discomfort of the pedestrains who were wading through the slush, battling with the wind which turned their umbrellas wrong side out and flapped their garments about them, and Mrs. Branscome, who sat opposite her husband and was gazing lovingly at him, smiled also.

Mrs. Branscome's mind, too, had been making an excursion into the darkness and storm. She thought of the homeless creatures who might be abroad, shivering and wretched, for whom awaited no warm fireside and good cheer, and her tender heart grew sad. Then she pictured some brutal, half-starved wanderer gazing in upon them, as they sat surrounded by luxury and warmth, and being goaded to some crime or to madness by the contrast. She shuddered, and laying down the bright worsted with which she had been working, smiled as we have before related, and arose to draw the curtain.

Branscome opened his eyes lazily, watched his wife's movements and was staring meditatively into the fire when she returned to her chair.

"Dave," said Mrs. Branscome.

"Eh, well, my dear," answered her spouse.

"Martin's house was robbed Tuesday night, and burglars entered Mr. Smith's house last night, and, had they not been frightened away by Mr. Smith lighting the gas to investigate a noise he heard in the basement, would, no doubt, have secured a large quantity of plunder. As it was they took all the silver in the house."

"Smith was a fool to light the gas," answered Branscome.

"But, my dear, he could not investigate without a light."

"Nonsense! Mrs. B. Smith is a coward. Now if burglars should get into my house, what do you think I would do?"

"I don't know, I'm sure," said Mrs. Branscome, with a shudder, "but I hope you would do as Mr. Smith did, strike a light and frighten them away."

"Yes, or make a target of myself. I think that I'm a match for an ordinary burglar, and I think I should try and surprise him."

Branscome was indeed a match, even more than a match in physical strength for any common marauder, and may therefore be pardoned for making the statement. Of magnificent proportions, he was a trained athlete and had been the crack oarsman of the college crew, could run, box and fence like a professional.

When Branscome's after-dinner cigar was naught but a fragrant memory and the hands of the clock pointed to ten the gas was turned out in the parlor and, after Mrs. B. had inspected the fastenings of the windows and doors of the rooms upon the basement floor, the dining-room, kitchen and store-room, she ascended with her husband to their bed-chamber. The sound of the rain lulled them to sleep and for two or three hours the silence of the house was unbroken.

Suddenly Mrs. Branscome awoke out of a sound sleep with every sense alert. The door leading from the bed-chamber into the hall was open. Surely she heard a stealthy step in the parlor below, then a slight noise, as though some one unfamiliar with the room had, in the darkness, stumbled against some article of furniture.

"Dave!" she cried, in a terrified whisper, at the same time seizing him by the shoulder. "Wake up, Dave, there is some one in the house."

Branscome sat up in bed, sleepily rubbing his eyes. The sound was repeated and he was wide-awake in an instant.

He placed his hand over his wife's mouth and said in a whisper: "Lie perfectly still, and whatever happens do not strike a light or make a sound until I call to you."

"Oh, Dave," began his trembling wife.

"Be silent," he whispered, sternly, "and obey."

Branscome arose softly and groped his way to the corner of the room where he knew he would find a pair of Indian clubs. He seized one firmly and softly entered the hall. Again he heard the sound of a footstep. He stole to the end of the hall and listened at the door of the room where Bridget, their one servant, slept. A heavy snore proclaimed to him that she was within and sound asleep. Softly descending the stairs he entered the parlor—all was dark and silent. The storm had ceased and the night was still, the darkness intense.

Branscome stood several minutes listening; then came the sound again, and this time he was able to locate it in the dining-room, directly below where he stood. It was evident that the burglars felt themselves safe, knowing that the entire parlor-floor intervened between them and the sleeping-rooms of the family, and they went about their work with no little noise. Branscome heard a chair overturned and then the clink of silver.

Now Branscome was an enthusiast in regard to antique silver. His sideboard was laden with choice early Italian and old English plate, which he used every day upon his table and never locked in the safe at night. The thought that he was about to be robbed of these roused him to a grim fury against the vandals who had invaded his home to despoil him of his possessions. He set his teeth hard, grasped the Indian club firmly and made his way toward the basement stairs.

The door creaked loudly as he opened it, and for ten or fifteen seconds there was silence, then directly below him, apparently approaching the foot of the stairs, he heard a sound like muffled footsteps.

The burglars were frightened, he thought, and were about to escape.

The basement hall was enwrapped in inky blackness. Branscome had descended the stairs when he heard again an approaching sound. The miscreant seemed about to ascend. Raising his Indian club, Branscome sprang forward, striking at the same time a blow that would have killed an ox.

The blow fell—on empty air, and Branscome fell, face first, into ice-cold water, which dripped from his single garment as he rose, sputtering and cursing and called to Mrs. Branscome to bring a light.

What Mrs. Branscome had suffered, lying silent in the darkness, expecting any moment to hear the sound of a struggle and the cries of the wounded, may be imagined. At the call of her husband she sprang from the bed, lit the lamp and with trembling limbs hurried downstairs. Bridget, too, had been aroused, and in a picturesque combination of red flannel and green plaid shawl followed her mistress.

At the head of the basement stairs Branscome, shivering and swearing, with streams of dirty clay-colored water streaking his features and dripping from his robe du nuit, dawned upon them.

I grieve to relate it, but those two heartless women laughed long and loud at the sight, while Branscome in offended dignity sought the seclusion of a dry nightgown, and the spare room, and was seen no more that night.

The heavy rain had so overflushed the sewer that the water had "backed up" and laid the basement floor fourteen inches under water. The movement of this miniature flood had produced the sounds resembling footsteps, and the overturned chairs and light tables, floating on the surface of the water, bumping against each other and coming in contact with the walls had been mistaken for the movements of a burglar.

Branscome likes to tell a good story, but he never relates this night's experience, and I venture to say that when next he goes on a still hunt for a burglar he will take Mrs. B.'s advice and first strike a light.—Lou V. Chapin, in Chicago Graphic.

The Wicked Bosom-Pin.

As every one knows in the early days of Methodism a considerable degree of strictness was maintained in regard to the wearing of jewelry or costly attire. An eminent divine of that church gives an amusing incident. A preacher had just gone to his new charge, and was in the midst of his sermon, when a woman rose and went out, slamming the door with unnecessary violence. Of course, he supposed he had said something which gave offense; but, on making inquiries, he learned that the woman left because "the minister wore a bosom-pin." The fun of it was that he had driven to the service over bad roads, and one drop of mud had settled on his immaculate shirt bosom, deceiving the tender conscience of the good sister.—Wide Awake.

—Answered in the Negative.

"I beg your pardon," said a man, as he tapped Dinwiddie on the shoulder, "but are you Owen Brown?" "No, sir," replied Dinwiddie, with strong emphasis, "I paid Brown's bill day before yesterday."

A Short History of Boston.

A New Yorker recently delivered his conviction to this effect: "Boston was the first solid bit of ground in the universe. The more intelligent and highly organized animals of the miocene and pliocene periods lived in Boston. Here the pterodactyl mused over the past and the megatherium pondered over the future. The first man was a Boston man. He was developed from spores out of Boston mud. He took out a patent for himself, so that he could not be imitated. Boston was vaguely known to the Greeks. It is the real site of the fabled Atlantis. Moses would have got to Boston had not the Israelites been so stupid and obstinate. King Solomon always had an aspiration to get to Boston. Plato died longing to visit the neighboring groves of Concord and hold sweet communion with the Concordians. Galileo involuntarily turned the first telescope in the direction of Boston. The Egyptians built the pyramids hoping to see Boston from their summits. Diogenes was rolling his tub toward Boston when death overtook him."—Boston Transcript.

Choked Off.

He was reading a newspaper in a Michigan avenue car. After awhile he folded it up and said to the man on his left:

"Do you think the principles of gravitation will ever be overcome so as to enable any sort of a machine to fly?"

"No, sir!" was the brusque answer

"But why not?"

"No need of it."

"Do you understand the laws of gravity?"

"I do, sir. Plainest thing in the world, sir. All a street-car nuisance has to do is to go out on the platform and step out into space. Gravity will land him on the earth. Try it, sir—try it."

The inquiring man looked at him with sorrow expressed on every line of his face, and then turned away and took a seat at the other end of the car.—Detroit Free Press.

PRESSED OUT.

His Gentle Helpmate—William Julius Musgrave, I understand you have been contributing to the press on "Is Marage a Failure?" Now, what ground did you take?

Mr. Musgrave (in a very much muffled tone)—I-t-t-took th' b-background.

H. G. H.—All right. Now get up and brush your hair.—Judge.

Tender-Hearted.

Judge Q——, who once presided over a criminal court down east, was famous as one of the most compassionate men who ever sat upon the bench. His softness of heart, however, did not prevent him from doing his duty as a judge.

A man who had been convicted of stealing a small amount was brought into court for sentence. He looked very sad and hopeless, and the court was much moved by his contrite appearance.

"Have you ever been sentenced to imprisonment?" the judge asked.

"Never, never!" exclaimed the prisoner, bursting into tears.

"Don't cry, don't cry," said Judge Q——, consolingly; "you're going to be now."—Youth's Companion.

The Way of the World.

"My dear," said young Mrs. Fitts at the play, "it is a humiliating confession for me to make, but I am positively nervous for want of a piece of gum." "I'll go get you some as soon as the curtain falls," said Mr. Fitts. And various of their acquaintances, as they saw him disappear, said what a pity it was that so sweet a young woman should be bound for life to such a slave of the demon drink that he could not even wait until the play was over to satisfy his depraved appetite.—Indianapolis Journal.

Could Not Account For It.

She—You seem rather "blue" this evening, Jack.

He—Yes, I have had a headache all day, and I don't know how I came to have it.

She—What were you doing last night, eh, sir?

He—I don't know what I was doing after about ten o'clock.—Munsey's Weekly.

"WHY, ARE YOU SICK?"

"I know precisely how you feel; it is that nervous, irritable feeling, your back troubles you, and when you try to read a little, your head aches. Isn't that so? I knew it. Oh, bother the doctor! Get a bottle of Vegetable Compound, and take it faithfully, as I have done. I've been through this thing myself, but am never troubled now. Do as I tell you, dear."

Prudent women who best understand their ailments, find in the Compound a remedy for all those distres ing ills that require prompt and effective treatment as a guaranty to good health.

Send stamp for "Guide to Health and Etiquette," a beautiful illustrated book.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Is the only Positive Cure and Legitimate Remedy for the peculiar weaknesses and ailments of women.

It cures the worst forms of Female Complaints, that Bearing-down Feeling, Weak Back, Falling and Displacement of the Womb, Inflammation, Ovarian Troubles, and all Organic Diseases of the Uterus or Womb, and is invaluable to the Change of Life. Dissolves and expels Tumors from the Uterus at an early stage, and checks any tendency to Cancerous Humor. Subdues Faintness, Excitability, Nervous Prostration, Exhaustion, and strengthens and tones the Stomach. Cures Headache, General Debility, Indigestion, etc., and invigorates the whole system. For the cure of Kidney Complaints of either sex, the Compound has no rival.

All Druggists sell it as a standard article, or sent by mail, in form of Pills or Lozenges, on receipt of $1.00. LYDIA E. PINKHAM MED. CO., LYNN, MASS.

THE HOME AND BUSINESS.

Story of a Man Who Never Brings Business into His House.

They had been discussing a business affair of some magnitude and were about to separate.

"I'll look up the papers at once," said the little man with the gray mustache. "And then—let me see. Will you be at home to-night?"

"Yes," replied the stout man.

"Well, I'll drop around about 8 o'clock."

"I'll be glad to see you."

"I'll bring the papers and we'll—"

"No; leave the papers."

"Leave them! Why, then we can't discuss—"

"Exactly. I don't wish to. I never discuss business at home."

The little man looked surprised. Then he said:

"Ah! wife?"

"Partly wife, but mostly home," replied the stout man.

"I don't understand you."

"Well, I make my house my home, never my office. Do you see the distinction? I used to take business home with me and make business appointments occasionally for my house, but I stopped it. It got so that my house wasn't my home; it was just a place where I slept when I had no business to attend to. I would go home to dinner, my thoughts busy about that little conference I was going to have with Jones about a mine in Colorado. After supper I would go to the library and do a little figuring. Then Jones would come and we would be closeted until 11 or 12. By that time my wife and children would be in bed, and I would follow them after smoking a cigar. Dream of business? Of course I would.

"I noticed that my wife looked at me rather reproachfully as I retired to the library night after night. Finally she spoke about it.

"'John,' she said, 'why don't you make your house your home?'

"I asked her what she meant.

"'Why don't you leave your business at the office?' she asked. 'The children and I see hardly anything of you, and I am sure that you can't feel as though this were home.'

"Well, I began to think of the thing, and it occurred to me that she was right. I had an appointment for the next night, but I changed the place. I made it for the office instead of the house.

"And when the time came I didn't want to go; I was too comfortable at home. But I kept it, and when I got back I assure you it did seem more like home. I found that it was not much fun to go out at night, but I kept to my resolve. By a little close figuring I postponed my next appointment to the following morning.

"Occasionally I stayed at the office later than I had formerly done in order to finish up the business of the day, but when I went home my mind was free, and from that day to this I have never allowed business to cross the threshold of my home. I may have to break that rule some day—there are exceptions to every rule—but I shall only break it when absolutely necessary. My house is my home, not my other office, and if you will put the same rule in force I'll guarantee that you'll find that most of the business you do at home now can be done just as easily at the office, and that your home will be so much more to you that you will be amply repaid for the nights that you may have to go out on business.

"I should like to have call to-night—indeed, I should like so have you dine with me. I should like to have you meet my wife and children. But don't bring the papers."

The little man was silent a moment. Then he said:

"I'll go with you, and I won't open my head about business. I'll bring the papers to the office to-morrow morning."

"And if necessary," said the stout man, "I can come to the office earlier than usual."—Chicago Tribune.

He Was Not Lonely.

Stranger—Have you always lived in this place, my little man?

Boy (respectfully)—Yes, sir.

Stranger (pityingly)—It must be very dismal here.

Boy (cheerfully)—Oh, no, sir! I have lots of fun with the guys who come along nearly every day and ask foolish questions.—Golden Days.

Reason Enough.

"There are no Indian agents there."—Puck.

The Government Baking Powder Tests.

The latest investigations by the United States and Canadian Governments show the Royal Baking Powder a cream of tartar powder superior to all others in leavening strength.

Statements by other manufacturers to the contrary have been declared by the official authorities falsifications of the official reports.

THE MINERS ANXIOUS

They Are Ready to Demand the Eight-Hour Day.

SEVERAL MINE OWNERS SUBMIT.

The Immediate Effect of the Strike Will be an Advance in Coal Prices.

Rioting by Strikers Continues in the Coke Region—Explosions of Bombs and Firing of Guns Heard at All Hours—Herr Most to Lend His Assistance to the Strikers—Pinkerton Men Sent For.

PITTSBURG, April 21.—There is as yet no sign of yielding on the part of the bituminous coal operators to the demand of the miners for an eight-hour day from May 1. Unless the situation changes entirely within the next 10 days, 75,000 skilled miners will lay down their picks and as many more mine laborers will go into idleness with them.

Of the miners who are going to make this stand 25,000 are located in Pennsylvania, and twice that number in the great coal fields of Ohio, West Virginia, Indiana and Illinois. Back of the movement is the American Federation of Labor with all its strength.

The miners are united in making the demand, but the operators are not in harmony in resisting it. Already several of the Western individual mine owners have agreed to the short day. Several in the Pennsylvania fields will make the concessions also, notably W. P. Rend of Chicago, who has extensive mines near Pittsburg. The miners are paid by the ton and the laborers by the day, and it is upon the adjustment of day wages that most of the difficulty will be met.

The immediate effect of the strike will be an advance in prices for coal. Operators and miners unite in declaring that the strike will have a widespread effect outside of the gas belt. The two months' suspension in the coke region has already materially crippled the iron business, but a shutting off of the coal supply will go still further and interfere with every branch of trade.

It is claimed by the miners that they will have the active aid of union railroad employes, who will refuse to handle cars loaded by non-union hands should the operators attempt to produce coal in defiance of the United Mine Workers.

RIOTING CONTINUES.

Herr Most is to Lend His Assistance to the Coke Workers.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., April 21.—Rioting by the strikers continues in the coke regions. The Leisering No. 2 plant of the Frick Coke Company has been kept in an uproar continuously since Saturday night. The works are surrounded by the mob day and night.

Explosions of bombs, firing of guns, blowing of horns and beating of cans can be heard at all hours. The whole community seems to be dazed, and no one knows at what moment the worst may come.

The coke companies have sworn out injunctions against 33 of the leaders and have brought criminal charges against them.

Herr John Most is to lend his assistance to the coke workers. Yesterday he passed through this place and sent a letter to the labor headquarters to the effect that he will return to-day. There are hundreds of men here who need but the stimulus of his inflammatory utterances to start them out with torch and gun. An attempt will be made to prevent Most from making a tour of the region.

There is a report in circulation that Pinkerton detectives will be imported into the region and stationed at the works where attempts are being made to resume.

Baron Fava Talked on the Steamer.

PARIS, April 21.—A newspaper here states that during the passage from New York to Havre Baron Fava declared to passengers who conversed with him that the Marquis Imperiali, now in charge of Italian affairs at Washington, would also be recalled; that Italy would have no diplomatic representative in America, and that Sir Julian Pauncefote would be requested to represent Italian interests there until a settlement of the New Orleans affair was reached.

Four Vetoes by Governor Hill.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 21.—Governor Hill sent to the Senate last night four vetoes. Three were of bills introduced by Republicans and one by Senator Jacobs. He also vetoed a bill by Hamilton Fish, jr., ceding to the United States jurisdiction over a spot of ground near Hewlett's Point for the purpose of erecting a fortification for the protection of the entrance to New York harbor by way of Long Island Sound.

Icehouses Burned by Incendiaries.

NORTHBRIDGE, Mass., April 21.—Three icehouses filled with ice were burned here during the day. They were owned by Carpenter & Sons of Providence. The origin of the fire was probably incendiary.

MET BY A MOB OF WOMEN.

They Kept the Sheriff at Bay Until the Military Arrived.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., April 21.—Two outbreaks occurred in Fayette during the afternoon, one of which resulted in the calling to arms of Company C. Their appearance in battle array was, however, sufficient to restore order, and violence was not resorted to. The cause of the trouble was an attempt by Sheriff McCormick to evict two Slavs named Jos Hartman and Andrew Dunchko at Leith Works.

The sheriff was met by a mob of women armed with hatchets and other weapons, their husbands being in the background. The mob kept the sheriff at bay for nearly an hour. The sheriff narrowly escaped the fury of the mob, and was forced to back up against the house and face the angry crowd.

The men offered no assault, but the women were furious. Finally the sheriff sent for the militia. The crowd, observing this, quickly dispersed.

THE GANG OF TRAIN ROBBERS.

Martin Manning, the Supposed Leader, Has Made a Confession.

PITTSBURG, April 21.—Martin Manning, the supposed leader of the train robbers' gang that has annoyed the Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio and Lake Erie Railroads for a year, who was arrested Sunday night, has made a confession.

He says the band had 19 members and implicates a Pittsburg clerk of the Baltimore & Ohio, who, he says, furnished valuable information to the thieves. Manning admits to 53 robberies, some of them of considerable magnitude.

Detectives Cook, Sheppard, Patterson and Jones arrested James Hocker and Charles Riley, of McKeesport, where the gang had headquarters. It is thought the others will be arrested within a week.

MASSACRE IN MADAGASCAR.

A Governor and Fifty-seven Soldiers Horribly Mutilated.

MARSEILLES, April 21.—The latest mails from Madagascar bring a report that the Sakalavas of Murrampo have massacred the Governor of Tulear and 57 Hova soldiers, after the Sakalava King had promised the Governor an audience.

The victims' bodies were horribly mutilated. Thirteen Hova customs officials were also murdered. The inhabitants of Tulear fled in terror to the French colony on the island of Nossi-Be, near Madagascar. At last accounts a French gunboat was cruising along the Madagascar coast waiting for Hova reinforcements.

Didn't Want to Stay in the House Nights.

PITTSBURG, April 21.—Ada Young, about 19 years of age, whose home is at Buffalo, N. Y., is held at the Allegheny City police headquarters to await the orders of the Buffalo police officials, who ordered her arrest. What the charge against her is is not known. Miss Young says she left her home in Buffalo on account of having to stay in the house at night, and came to Allegheny City to make her own living.

Rhode Island Knights of Labor.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 21.—At a meeting of District Assembly 59, K. of L., resolutions were passed denouncing the Rochester, N. Y., clothing combine for locking out its employes, pledging its intention of boycotting the products of the combine. P. H. Quinn was selected to represent the district assembly at the National Conference to be held in Washington July 20.

Eva Mann's Application Denied.

NEW YORK, April 21.—Surrogate Ransom has denied an application made in behalf of Evangeline L. Mann to resettle the decree admitting the will of Robert Ray Hamilton to probate. One of the proposed changes was to grant her an allowance for counsel, as she had been brought into court by the citation issued by the heirs of decedent.

Buildings Damaged by an Explosion.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 21.—An explosion of benzine in John Ragey's dyeing establishment last night caused a loss of $3,000; fully insured. The Central Presbyterian Church and other buildings were also damaged by the explosion, making a total loss of $6,000. Two dyers were badly burned and a fireman was seriously hurt by falling from a ladder.

Tried to Assault the Judge.

CHARLESTOWN, W. Va., April 21.—Sim Johnson, colored, convicted of assault on Miss Eva Bailey, white, was sentenced to be hanged by the court here. After Judge Snyder pronounced sentence Johnson suddenly sprang up and made a desperate attempt to assault the judge, but was seized and overpowered after a fierce struggle. Johnson is only 18 years old.

Licked Out at the World's Fair.

CHICAGO, April 21.—Chaos prevailed at the World's Fair work at Jackson Park at noon. Over 500 laborers who had demanded an increase of 25 cents daily were discharged, bringing work to a standstill. A large force of police is on hand and no trouble is yet reported.

SEVERAL TRAGEDIES

A Young Man Uses His Revolver With Effect.

TWO COMPANIONS SHOT DOWN.

The Murderer Then Cuts His Own Throat from Ear to Ear.

Desperate Work of an Italian—After Using the Stiletto on Two Victims He Is Killed by His Brother-in-Law—A Young Couple Commit Suicide in a Hotel—Shot Down in a Saloon Fight.

CUMBERLAND, Md., April 21.—A bloody tragedy occurred at Oldtown, a small place 13 miles from here, in which one man was instantly killed and two others mortally wounded.

The murderer is Garrett Luteman, a prominent young man of 23 years, and his victims W. W. Carder and William Foley, both equally well known citizens.

Luteman was employed by J. W. Carder, father of one of the victims, in his store as a clerk. He and the two men have been having some trouble for several weeks, resulting over money matters.

At 9:30 o'clock he walked up to William Foley, who was standing in front of Carder's store, and without a word drew a revolver and fired, the bullet lodging in Foley's heart, the latter falling over dead without uttering a word. Luteman then walked inside the store where young Carder was engaged in waiting on a customer. Luteman fired at once on Carder, the ball penetrating his lung, fatally wounding him.

Luteman's brother, who was standing near by, sprang on him and wrested the revolver from him. The desperate man wrested himself free from his brother, and sprang back of the counter, where he seized another revolver, and fired two shots into his head. Then picking up a razor before his brother, who was rooted to the spot, could interfere, he cut his throat from ear to ear, completely severing the windpipe.

The physicians say that he and one of his victims, Carder, will not live the night out. Foley was a married man about 51 years old. The others are unmarried. Intense excitement prevails.

HOBOKEN'S TRIPLE TRAGEDY.

The Murderous Stiletto Brought Into Play by Italians.

HOBOKEN, N. J., April 21.—Great excitement was caused here by an early morning tragedy between Italian in a Grand street tenement. Angelo Gaboth, aged 35, of New York, murdered his mother-in-law, dangerously stabbed his father-in-law and was slain by Conoquilo Chinchella, aged 18, a son of the murdered woman.

Gaboth and his wife, who is the daughter of Chinchella were visiting the Chinchellas. Gaboth is a worthless fellow. It is believed he visited the Chinchellas for the purpose of robbing his father-in-law and of obtaining a certain sum of money which he knew him to possess.

At 12:30 a. m. while all the others were sleeping, Gaboth rose from his bed and went into his mother-in-law's room. The next instant a shriek rang through the apartment. It lasted but an instant, for Gaboth with one blow had sunk his stiletto into the abdomen of his mother-in-law. Gaboth then stole into the room where old Chinchella slept, and a moment later he thrust the stiletto into the neck of the latter. Chinchella gave a cry which woke up his son Conoquilo, who was sleeping with his brother in the next room.

The two brothers armed themselves and rushed upon the murderer. A terrible fight with stilettos took place and Gaboth fell to the floor dead.

DIED IN LOVING EMBRACE.

A Man and Woman Found Dead in a New York Hotel.

NEW YORK, April 21.—A young couple registered at the Grand Union Hotel, 42d street and Fourth avenue, Sunday morning as E. Behrend and wife, and were assigned to a room on the third floor. Last night at half-past 8 they were found locked in each other's arms, cold in death.

They had employed the familiar method of inhaling gas through rubber tubes held in the mouth to bring them to an untimely end.

On the woman's breast lay a large and beautiful bouquet of roses. This showed conclusively that the self murder had been carefully planned by the couple, as it was in many respects similar to what the reported suicide of the Archduke Rudolph was like, and of which the couple had evidently read. The man was about 25 years old and the woman 22.

The couple left four letters, two to Mrs. Muller, of this city, one to the coroner and one to Fritz Betrand of South William street. Their contents have not yet been made public and no cause has yet been learned for the rash deed, but there is little doubt that a romance will be developed.

An Old Man Kills a Woman.

ROCHESTER, N. H., April 21.—At his house, on the outskirts of the town, during the night, James McDuffe murdered Kate Lawrence, who has for the past seven years been housekeeper for McDuffe's son, William. The murderer, who is 75 years old, was arrested near the village. He said that Kate arrived home about 11 o'clock accompanied by a young man, both under the influence of liquor. McDuffe ordered them away, but the pair gained an entrance to the house whereupon the old man secured a shot gun and emptied the barrel into the woman's body, killing her instantly.

Shot Down in a Saloon Fight.

AUSTIN, Pa., April 21.—In a saloon fight at Eakertown, seven miles from here, Herman Nelson shot John VanCoy dead and fatally wounded Walter Woodard. The murderer was taken to Coudersport jail.

O'MALLEY MAKES THREATS.

He Grows More Defiant and Dares the Committee of Fifty.

NEW ORLEANS, April 21.—D. C. O'Malley, the detective who was recently indicted by the grand jury for alleged perjury and bribery, grows daily more defiant. He says that the committee of fifty and the district-attorney dare not bring him to trial.

"The truth of the matter is," said O'Malley, "they have no evidence against me and they are afraid to go to trial. The fiat has gone forth from the committee of fifty that I will either go to the penitentiary or be killed. Neither will be done. They know they have no case against me and are staving off my trial as long as possible in order to back out of their bluff as quietly as circumstances will permit.

"Before I surrendered this committee of the 'best citizens,' backed up by the newspapers that they had bulldozed into supporting them in their lawless acts, were pretending to be almost dying to get hold of me, but now that they have me they want somebody to help them turn me loose. When my case comes to trial—if it ever does—the public will be made acquainted with the damnable plot that has sent 11 men into eternity and placed me in the pillory of public contempt. Those men killed in the parish prison were as innocent of the murder of Chief Hennessy as an unborn babe, and when the world is made acquainted with the infamous conspiracy the brand of Cain will be stamped on the brow of every man that participated in the horrible butchery. Time rights all things, and this affair will be no exception to the rule."

BLANEY'S BRAVADO GONE.

The Young Murderer Has to Listen to His Death Warrant.

BALTIMORE, April 21.—William Blaney, the convicted murderer, whose escape and recapture created such a sensation here, had hardly recovered from his spree during the morning, but it was decided to put off the reading of the warrant no longer. He was informed early that the sheriff would come at noon, and as that hour approached Blaney became more and more nervous. He begged for some whiskey to steady him, but, as it was against the doctor's orders, the request was refused.

When he was finally notified that the sheriff had arrived and was summoned to the warden's office he became so nervous that two deputies were obliged to almost carry him. It was quite evident from the replies he made that he had not the slightest idea what was said to him.

THE MOREWOOD VERDICT.

Labor Leaders Displeased With the Finding of the Jury.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Pa., April 21.—The coroner's jury announced its verdict in the Morewood riot case as follows: "That the deceased came to his death at Morewood on Thursday morning, April 2, 1891, about 3 o'clock, by a bullet discharged from a gun or revolver in the hands of the deputies of the sheriff of Westmoreland County." This applies to each man killed in the riot.

The verdict of the coroner's jury is not pleasing to the labor leaders in the coke region. The general opinion seems to be that the coroner's jury should have placed the blame on Deputy Loar and his squad of assistants.

Horrible Work of Young White Caps.

ERIE, Pa., April 21.—At Northeast, a party of 12-year-old boys decided to White Cap a certain boy against whom they had a grudge. Late at night they tied handkerchiefs over their faces, caught the doomed boy and taking him to the park gagged him, tied him to a tree and left him to his fate. When liberated at daylight it was found that through fright and exhaustion he had become demented. The perpetrators are horror-stricken. Arrests will probably follow.

Labor Rioters Not Ready for Trial.

MT. PLEASANT, Pa., April 21.—The injunction suit brought by the Schoonmaker Coke Company against about 40 of the labor leaders for rioting at Jimtown three weeks ago was called up in the Fayette County Court shortly before noon. The attorney for the labor people stated that his clients were not ready to go on with the case. Judge Ewing thereupon continued the injunction against the whole party until June.

Grip's Ravages in Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 21.—The ravages of influenza are becoming very serious here and the situation is fast growing alarming. A prominent undertaker says that if the epidemics continue the city will have to secure more carriages, as there are not enough now to provide for the numerous funerals.

Young Mrs. Blaine's Movements.

CHICAGO, April 21.—Mrs. James G. Blaine, jr., wife of Secretary of State Blaine's son, is at the Richelieu Hotel, accompanied by her maid. Mrs. Blaine is on her way to Washington State, and it is said that she intends to reside there long enough to get a divorce in that State.

Officers of the Society of Tammany.

NEW YORK, April 21.—The regular election of the Society of Tammany occurred last night. Last year's officers were re-elected, with but three exceptions. Among the sachems are Hugh J. Grant, Richard Croker and W. Bourke Cochran.

Another Colliery Resumes.

MT. CARMEL, Pa., April 21.—The Bellance colliery has resumed after a long suspension. It is said that the other collieries, which have been shut down pending a decision in the Lehigh Valley Railroad case, will resume in a few days.

Accused of Corrupt Practices.

HALIFAX, N. S., April 21.—The return of the Hon. C. H. Tupper, Minister of Marine, and Sir John Thompson, Minister of Justice, to the House of Commons has been contested. Corrupt practices are alleged.

NEAR MEXICO'S LINE

The President Reaches El Paso This Morning.

HE RECEIVES A WARM WELCOME

Representatives of President Diaz Greet Our Chief Magistrate.

The Governor of Chihuahua and His Staff Allowed Free Entry Bearing Arms—The Reception at San Antonio Interfered With by a Storm—Visit to the Fort Sam Houston Military Post.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, April 21.—President Harrison and party arrived here in a driving rain storm. His reception was enthusiastic, but all the street decorations were spoiled, and the out door exercises had to be abandoned.

A military salute of 21 guns welcomed the President, and he was escorted through a line of Grand Army men and Confederate veterans. They were taken in carriages to the Grand Opera House, where addresses were made by Governor Hogg and Mayor Callahan, to which President Harrison, Secretary Rusk and Postmaster-General Wanamaker responded.

A public reception was then held, after which the party made a visit to the military post at Fort Sam Houston, where they were entertained by General Stanley and staff.

EL PASO, April 21.—There was a great outpouring of people here to-day to welcome the Presidential party. The collector of customs received instructions from Secretary Foster to permit the entry into the United States of the Governor of Chihuahua and his staff, bearing side arms and a battery of artillery. These officers came to El Paso as the representatives of President Diaz of Mexico to greet the President of the United States.

The Governor's staff numbers 25 officers. He turned over to Mayor Caples of El Paso the 11th Battalion band of Mexico, consisting of 45 instruments, to participate as ordered by the mayor in the reception.

The city is crowded with people from New Mexico, Arizona and Old Mexico.

PREPARING FOR A FIGHT.

British Settlers in Mashonaland Will Make War on the Portuguese.

LONDON, April 21.—Advices from Capetown confirm the statement previously cabled that the British settlers in Mashonaland and Manicaland are everywhere preparing for a fight with the Portuguese.

Gungunhama has sent messages repudiating allegiance to Portugal, and asking to be taken under the protection of the British. The chief is said to be deeply enraged at the abduction by the Portuguese of his two sons and one daughter as hostages. The sons were taken to Portugal to be educated, and the daughter is detained at Mozambique.

Gungunhama was frightened into submission at first, but a British trader has informed him that the Portuguese would not dare to injure the children, and now he wants to fight.

The young chief, Umbati of Gungunhama's kraal, to whom the daughter was to have been married shortly, has already started with a band of warriors to fight the Portuguese.

Banks to Get Fractional Coin.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Secretary of the Treasury Foster intends asking the smaller banks to take a certain per centage of their money from the Treasury for the redemption of United States notes, silver certificates and national bank notes in small coins in order to get the subsidiary coin out and in active use. The receiving of uncurrent subsidiary coin to the extent of $3,000,000 will begin July 1. Mr. Foster also thinks that the time for establishing the government rate of interest on bonds at 2 per cent. has arrived.

The New Orleans Report Not Ready.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—United States District Attorney Grant writes to Attorney-General Miller that it will be fully a week before he completes his report of the killing of Italians at New Orleans by the mob. He says he finds much difficulty attending the investigation of all the circumstances leading up to the killing of the alleged members of the Mafia. He has asked for certain instructions, which were forwarded him.

Eighteen Cases of Yellow Fever.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Surgeon-General Hamilton, of the Marine Hospital Service, has received the following dispatch from Dr. Hargis at Pensacola, Fla.: "Ship Curlew, 47 days from Rio, arrived here on the 17th; had 18 cases of yellow fever on the passage, three resulting fatally, the last case and death occurring March 10. Ordered the ship to Chandleur quarantine station, and she has left this harbor."

Good Feeling Over the Chicago Contest.

CHICAGO, April 21.—At the meeting of the board of election commissioners, the attorneys for both parties waived their objections to the count as it now stands. The revision was promptly dropped, and apparently nothing but good feeling exists between the incoming and outgoing parties. Next Monday Hempstead Washburne will take his seat as mayor of Chicago.

Return of Secretary Halford.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Private Secretary Halford has returned from Indianapolis. He has been urged to join the President's party in California, but has declined. With his daughter he will in a few days go to the seashore to remain during the President's absence from Washington.

Republican League Convention.

CINCINNATI, April 21.—The national convention of the Republican League opened in this city at noon to-day.

SHE USED A HEAVY WHIP.

A Church Organist Chastises a Young Man for Talking About Her.

PITTSBURG, April 21.—Owing to the endeavors of interested persons to keep it quiet, it has only just become known that Miss Wilma Schuck, daughter of Charles Schuck, living near Allegheny City, severely chastised John Kayler, an employe at the Verner Mills, using a heavy blacksnake whip with such precision and surety that Kayler will carry a scarred face and welted back for many days.

Miss Schuck was the organist of Father Woelfel's church, and Kayler was a communicant. Miss Schuck claimed that Kayler had circulated stories derogatory to her character. Kayler denied the assertions. Father Woelfel summoned the two young people to the church for the purpose of settling the difficulty. Kayler again asserted that he had said nothing for which he should apologize, and, after an unsatisfactory conference, started away.

Miss Schuck ran after him and drawing the whip from the folds of her dress cut Kayler a heavy slash across the face. Kayler turned to run and was struck several terrible blows before he escaped. Father Woelfel witnessed the assault, took the whip from Miss Schuck and at once discharged her from the position of organist at St. Leo's Church.

WHY DAVITT WAS REJECTED.

The Government Leader Explains in the House of Commons.

LONDON, April 21.—In the House of Commons last evening, Mr. William Henry Smith, the government leader, responded to a request for information as to the reasons which influenced the government in declining to appoint Mr. Michael Davitt as a member of the Royal Labor Commission.

Mr. Smith said that evidence which had been submitted to a special commission in connection with Mr. Davitt's political antecedents and relations, coupled with that gentleman's conviction in 1870 for treason-felony and his sentence to 15 years' penal servitude, had convinced the government that he was a person unfitted to serve on the Royal Labor Commission, the composition of which was announced a few days ago.

It will be remembered that in the latter days of the Fenian organization Mr. Davitt was arrested on the charge of treason-felony in London in May, 1870. He was tried at the Old Bailey and sentenced to 15 years' penal servitude. Towards the end of 1877 he, with other Fenian prisoners, was liberated on ticket-of-leave.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Prof. Dwight says there is no outbreak of scarlet fever at Yale College.

Congressman-elect M. H. Ford died of the grip at Grand Rapids, Mich.

Ex-Speaker Reed has arrived at Rome, where he will remain for two weeks.

The trial of Rev. H. W. George for malpractice was postponed at Catskill, N. Y., until October.

The likelihood of an extra session of the New York Legislature is the news from Albany.

Alexander McLaughlin, five years of age, was struck and killed by an electric car at Atlantic City, N. J.

The charter election at New Rochelle, N. Y., is being held to-day. There are Democratic, Republican and Citizens' tickets in the field.

General A. L. Burdick, a prominent business man of Newport, R. I., is dead. He was a Democrat, and served in the Legislature a number of terms.

Malvern Hill, about 12 miles below Richmond, Va., the scene of the famous battle, has just been sold to William H. Hale, of New York city, for $17,250.

Mrs. Annie Mildgroma, wife of Nathan Mildgroma a shoemaker in Orchard street New York, has been committed to Bellevue Hospital insane from the grip.

The race horse St. Elmo sold to Mr. Chambers of Louisville, Ky., a few days ago for $3,000, died at Jeffersonvill, Ind., suddenly, on his way to Greencastle.

David A. Neely, while very ill, fell upon a stove at his residence in Minisink, N. Y., and was probably fatally burned. His brother John is also very low. Both are aged men.

Among the passengers on the steamer Aurania at New York from Liverpool were Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris, Miss Ida Urian and Rosemary Sartoris and Lionel Sartoris.

Rev. Henry Darling, D. D., LL.D., president of Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., died of bronchitis at his home in Clinton yesterday. He was elected president of Hamilton College in 1861.

THE DAILY PRESS.

W. L. & A. L. FORCE, Publishers and Proprietors.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - Managing Editor.

BY THE WAY.

—Friday, April 24, come to Peck's and see the work of the Demorest sewing machines.

—The Rice-Shotwell case on the calendar at Somerville, to-day, was amicably settled without trial.

—F. M. McAllister sends in his name to be recorded with 75 feet frontage on Putnam avenue, in favor of the proposed trolley road.

—There will be religious services in Monroe avenue chapel, Thursday evening, at 8 o'clock. The nature of the meeting will be a Bible reading led by Willard Hoff.

—A meeting of the Y's will be held at Bethel chapel to-morrow afternoon, at 4 o'clock, when the report of the Committee that attended the Conference will be read.

—To see Martin back in his old place as short stop for the Crescents, next Saturday and thereafter, will do more than anything else to help revive the public's interest in base-ball.

—A meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of Monroe Avenue chapel will be held Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the chapel. All ladies in the vicinity are cordially invited to attend.

—Roads in this city and vicinity were well patronized Sunday by cyclists who took advantage of the fine weather. A large number of members of the Orange Wheelmen seized the opportunity to visit Plainfield.

—The topic, "Some Things Men Ought to Know", on which Dr. Cooley will speak, Thursday evening, at the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association, is of vital interest to all young men, and it is to be hoped that a large number will avail themselves of the privilege thus afforded, and welcome Dr. Cooley on the occasion of this his first address under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

—At a meeting of North Plainfielders held in Spencer's Hall last evening another step forward was taken towards the proposed extension of Peace street as North Broadway into the borough. L. M. French was added to the committee in charge of the matter, and the committee were authorized to procure from a competent surveyor a survey of the proposed route. A report of the survey will be made at a meeting to be called by chairman Place.

—THE PRESS has repeatedly warned Plainfielders against paying money to strangers in advance for jobs ordered done. It has especially cited time and again the case of a man claiming to be William Wright of New Brunswick. It seems, however, that the people are still being swindled by this fellow. He works on the sympathies of the women by displaying a deformed hand, represents himself as being an expert cabinet maker in hard luck, gets an order, secures pay ranging from $2 to $8, in advance, and never shows up at that house again. Almost every week some householder brings to THE PRESS a bitter tale about this fraud. It is the public's own fault if it is fooled any more by the swindler. His latest field of operations is in Washington Park.

A Bicycle for Their Pastor.

The members of the Seventh-Day Baptist church have taken their pastor, the Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, literally "off his feet", by presenting to him a handsome safety bicycle. The scheme started at a business meeting of the church, but was kept sub rosa from beginning to end. Two of the young men volunteered to collect the amount needed to push the matter through, and everybody spoken to heartily fell in with the proposition. Soon the safety arrived, and in a meek and unsuspecting way was left at the parsonage. The surprise was complete. Whether or not the doctor called in the neighbors and had a great rejoicing is not recorded, but at any rate his progress will henceforth be more rapid than at any other time in his theological course, and those of his flock who have hitherto escaped a pastoral call because of their distant residence need not wonder in the least at receiving one any moment, during these charming spring days.

Issue from the Grip.

When the section gang of the Jersey Central Railroad at Westfield was going to work near the Fanwood cut last Friday an excited woman rushed out on the track and told Foreman Probasco that a man was wandering around in the woods nearby, yelling, muttering and otherwise acting in a crazy manner. Probasco sent two of his men to investigate. After a long tramp through swamps and bushes they located the man by his ravings, and finally captured him. He proved to be Barney McGown.

At his home it was learned that he had been suffering with the grip for some time and that he had wandered away while temporarily out of his mind. From the disconnected story McGown told it would seem that he had wandered for many miles through the woods and swamps between Westfield and Rahway before he was found. The exposure aggravated his disease, and he has since died.

Paying Off the Debt.

The Ladies' Christian Work Society of the Trinity Reformed church have done nobly in their work of paying off a large portion of the church debt, and will not rest content until the debt is entirely wiped out. In order to raise further money for the debt fund they purpose giving a tea at the residence of Mrs. F. A. Church, Craig place, Thursday evening, from 4 to 7. They will be glad to see all their friends at the tea. Though no admission fee will be charged, they will accept offerings of 25 cents or more. A very pleasant social time is expected.

BRUTAL HIGHWAY ASSAULT.

If Barry's Story Is True, His Assailants Are Fit for State Prison.

Yesterday Charles Barry was proud and happy because he had pummeled John Schorb for circulating slanderous stories about him. The fight in which this pummeling occurred seems to have been a fair one, as both men had an equal chance to defend themselves. The story of the battle, with the names of the combatants, and the ill feeling and quarrel which lead up to the fistic encounter, was published exclusively in yesterday's PRESS.

To-day Barry is far from proud. Instead he is angry and sore and sick. Last evening — he says— he was sent by Augustus Vandeventer, for whom he is coachman, to the post-office for the mail. He thinks Schorb must have seen him pass down town and must have planned immediately to waylay him. At any rate, on his return homeward he was most brutally assaulted.

His story is that as he was passing up Washington avenue, a short distance above the bridge, in the borough, Schorb and a companion jumped out from a hedge where they had been hiding in ambush, and struck him terrific blows on the head with their fists. The attack was so furious that he was flung headlong to the ground. While prostrate —he continues—his assailants kept up a rain of heavy blows on his head and face, and kicked him unmercifully. When they left him he was a mass of ugly cuts and bruises, and was weltering in blood, which poured profusely from his wounds.

As soon as he could gather strength to crawl away, he sought out Thomas Rutledge, ex-marshal of the borough, and asked him to have the two men arrested. He said that Schorb's companion was "Lish" McCready.

As Mr. Rutledge no longer held office and was powerless in the matter, he referred the injured man to Mayor Place, and that dignitary told him that the best plan was to go before the Grand Jury in session at Somerville to-day and secure immediate indictment of the offenders. Barry said that he would do so, and this morning visited Prosecutor Steele and urged him to press the case so that he might speedily secure justice.

Schorb denies that he waylaid Barry.

"I was passing along the avenue in company with McCready"—he says—"when we met 'English Charlie'[by which name Barry is familiarly known about town], with a big rock in each hand. He said 'Hit me, and I'll smash your head and knock out your brains". I saw he meant to do me up if he could, so that rather than give him a chance to get in a blow with the rocks I sailed in and whipped him." McCready—he adds—merely stood by ready to assist. He speaks rather boastfully of the affair, and says that he would n't hesitate to "do Barry up" again if occasion required.

Schorb says further that Barry invited him, last evening, to come outside and settle it. He therefore went over the brook and waited for Barry. When Barry saw him he picked up a big stone in each hand. Schorb says: "I said, 'I'll do you if your hands are full of rocks and your pockets full of revolvers.'" According to Schorb's story no one touched Barry but himself. "I had a second,"—he says—"but I licked Barry alone."

Barry has the reputation of being a peaceable, sober, industrious man. His friends are very bitter against what they term "the Schorb gang", and hope to see his assailants landed behind prison bars.

Barry's friends think it impossible that Schorb could have inflicted such wounds on Barry without assistance, and believe that McCready, who is a big powerful man, must have aided in the outrage. Barry to-day is a most pitiful sight. His head and face are a mass of lumps and cuts, and his body is covered with bruises. The spot where the assault took place is marked by a pool of blood.

MYSTERY IN THE BOROUGH.

What Woman's Screams Were These Startling People from Their Sleep?

Residents of the borough are greatly mystified, because of strange screams that disturbed the peace and quiet of the Somerset street and Craig place neighborhood last night.

No one seems to know just what hour it was when the screams were heard, but it was some time after those who retire early had gone to bed, for several were awakened by the sounds. People in the street thought the noises came from some one of the houses in that part of the borough, but were puzzled to locate the screams exactly. They thought surely that murder was being committed. For a moment a woman's shrieks were heard, shrill and clear; then the sounds seemed gradually muffled, as though the woman was being throttled.

Some time after the screams died away a man was seen to drive hurriedly away in a buggy. Just where he came from no one knew. The neighborhood is to-day greatly excited, but no explanation of the strange noises has been attained. A man who found a broken collar-button, stained with blood, in an alley, thinks he has struck a clue. But the affair is still a deep mystery.

THE HILLSIDE TENNIS CLUB.

Only Organized a Year Ago Yet Already in Possession of an Olden Home of Its Own.

THE HILLSIDE Tennis Club, with grounds on Hillside avenue near Broadway, was organized a year ago under the following named officers:

President—Robt. S. Morrison.
Vice President—M. M. Truman.
Treasurer—DeW. C. Ivins.
Secretary—George P. Mellick.

The Club built two fine tennis courts which were in constant use during the Summer and Autumn by the members and their wives, daughters and sisters. This Spring the Club increases the size of the courts and builds an excellent croquet ground. There will probably also be prepared a quoit ground and an archery field.

Mrs. Emma Fox, who so long owned and occupied the picturesque old red cottage upon the grounds, has lately moved into her newer home on Hillside avenue, and she most kindly placed the old cottage at the disposal of the club for the purpose of a club-house. This was gratefully accepted and a committee appointed, of which Charles W. Opdyke was Chairman, whose duties were to suitably fit up three rooms on the ground floor for the Club's comfort.

This has been most admirably done, and the appearance is antique and unique as befits so old a house. The walls have been colored yellow, a handsome colonial brick fireplace is built, a bright rag carpet woven for the floors, an abundance of really old furniture procured, curtains hung and a number of old steel engravings added. A most interesting piece of the furniture is a spinet, the original of the modern grand piano. This one is known to be very old, and there is reason to believe that it was brought to this country by Lord Stirling about the middle of the eighteenth century. The club is also receiving as loans, some interesting articles from members, and there seem to be abundant reasons to believe that the enterprise of the Tennis Club will result in adding greatly to the social pleasures of its section of Plainfield. One of the rooms is exclusively the "ladies room" and from its bay window commands the club grounds, so the games can be pleasantly witnessed from inside when desired.

On holidays and Saturday afternoons the ladies will probably in turn serve tea to the players and guests.

At the annual election just held the following officers were chosen:

President—Mr. Mellick.
Vice President—Mr. Opdyke.
Treasurer—Mr. Ivins.
Secretary—Mr. Depew.

There are now about twenty-five members. The authorized number is forty, so there are vacancies for desirable candidates.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

An extra Assembly is to be held at The Casino, next Monday evening.

Miss L. Loeffler, of Staten Island, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. F. J. Horr, of Bay street.

School Trustee J. B. Probasco, M. D., will sail on Saturday by steamer "Obdam", for Rotterdam.

Gen. Eli Long and daughter Maggie, of Penn Yan, N. Y., and formerly of North Plainfield, are the guests of Mayor Place.

The Rev. Cornelius Schenck united in marriage at the parsonage, Monday evening, Martin D. Coddington and Miss Katie Stahl, both of North Plainfield.

The second private musicale of The Melopoia is to be given at The Casino, this evening. Only subscribers are to be admitted, and those members of the press who have not prostrated themselves in worship before Conductor Chapman, are distinctly excluded. Nevertheless, THE PRESS to-morrow will, as usual, give the people the only true account of the affair.

The Rev. Theodore C. Williams, successor to the Rev. Dr. Bellows as pastor of All Souls church, New York city, will give a talk on "Japan", at the Unitarian rooms, Second place, Wednesday evening. To this talk the public are cordially invited. Mr. Williams has recently returned from an extended tour in Japan, and will tell of his experiences and impressions.

Further information regarding the provisions of the will of Rufus King, shows that the share of his nephew, Thomas W. King of this city, will be greater than THE PRESS surmised yesterday. The $300,000 left is to be thus divided: $100,000 goes to public institutions and religious objects; $100,000 to the wife of the testator; and $100,000 shared equally by the three nephews.

Edmund A. Seely died at his home in Scotch Plains, this morning, after a week's illness of grip. He was 71 years old, and well-known from a long residence in this vicinity. The big mills that were swept away in the flood of 1889, bore his name and represented the fortune that he had spent a lifetime in building up. He was a member of the New Jersey Game and Fish Protective Society, and other organizations. Funeral services will be held at his late home, Thursday afternoon at two o'clock. By his request, Jerusalem Lodge, F. & A. M., of this city, of which he has long been a member, will bury his remains with masonic ceremonies.

Whom the Crescents Will Bowl Next.

Four matches with first-class visiting teams, will keep the Crescent League's alleys warm during this week and next. To-morrow night the New Brunswick Y. M. C. A.'s will come over and meet the following strong team under Captain Van Emburgh: Thiers, Rogers, Doane, Teel, Pelletreau, Davis, Haven, VanWinkle, Vail and VanEmburgh.

Saturday evening, the "Echos," last year's champions of Brooklyn, will bowl a match on the Crescent alleys; Wednesday of next week the Somervilles; and Friday, May 1, the Westfield Athletic Club will send a team here.

A COLD of unusual severity developed into a difficulty decidedly catarrhal in all its characteristics, threatening a return of my old chronic malady, catarrh. One bottle of Ely's Cream Balm completely arrested every symptom of that painful and prevailing disorder.—E. W. Warner, Rochester, N. Y.

WHEN I began using Ely's Cream Balm my catarrh was so bad I had headache the whole time and discharged a large amount of filthy matter. That has almost entirely disappeared, and I have not had headache since.—J. H. Somers, Stephney, Conn.

Fertilizer Wagner Tells Railroad President Sloan Not to Worry.

Almost everybody in Plainfield knows Jeptha Wagner. He may be seen on the streets of the city any day, with a sprig of a budding peach tree which he tells was forced to bloom in a few days or so, Summer or Winter, by the use of his particular fertilizer. He was in THE PRESS office the other day, and the secret came out that he has brought suit against the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company for $50,000, charging that he had been roughly handled by a conductor on a train. His complaint sets forth that he claims $50,000 "because his life was worth that to his family and very many thousands more to his nation of 65,000,000 people."

Incidentally he tells President Sam Sloan of the road how he can make fortunes by "using the odoriferous refuse of Hackensack meadows to make fertilizing material. You [President Sloan]."—he added—"can change the meadows into gold bars at a trifling expense. Now this priceless refuse is being daily wasted by being thrown into the great deep."

Mr. Wagner went down to Exchange place, New York city, one day last week, and brought the good news that the company need n't worry about the big suit. The fertilizer owner had a young peach tree in his arms. He wanted to present it to President Sloan, but that official was unfortunately out.

"You need n't distress yourself about my law case,"—he said cheerfully.—"That's only a friendly suit, anyhow. I want to teach the conductors that they can't monkey with me."

The company's employes have been unable to find out when any conductor was rude to the New Jerseyman. They told him so, and he said that it might be all right if it did n't occur again.

Mr. Wagner then produced a four-ounce bottle filled with a light-colored fluid. He remarked that it would be a good thing for President Sloan to try. "It was invented by one of my ancestors"—he said.—"It cures everything. We have used it in our family ever since 1620. My ancestor brought it over when he came here in 1630."

None of the employes wanted any of the panacea, and the litigant went out with his peach tree and his remedy for everything, seemingly as happy as a cricket.

She'll Escape by a Rope, To-morrow Night.

The Philadelphia Record says of Anna Ward Tiffany and her company, who are to appear at Music Hall, to-morrow evening: "While Peggy Logan was engaged in thwarting the machinations of a wicked stepmother at the Park Theatre last evening the audience was kept almost constantly in a roar of laughter. There is nothing especially humorous in the idea of a cruel parent; but Annie Ward Tiffany's impersonation of the honest, big-hearted and loud-voiced Irish serving-woman whose business it was to thwart villany in general was so naive and so racy with genuine humor that the comical situations were more acceptable than the rest of the play.

"There is a plot, but one forgets about it while Peggy Logan is about. The Ruby (the stepdaughter) of Rose Tiffany was an excellent bit of acting, and Revel Germaine as the wife's lover was manly and pleasing. The Mrs. Edgerton of Annie Barclay was up to the requirements—a smiling villain, whose first thought at her husband's death was "freedom." There were some sensational scenic episodes, one of which—Peggy's escape from a tower by means of a rope—was greatly applauded. Miss Tiffany was repeatedly recalled, and she may be fairly classed as a new and successful star."

Big Majority for Golden-rod.

At every public school in Plainfield the Arbor Day vote on the pupils' choice for a national flower was by a large plurality in favor of the golden-rod. THE PRESS published exclusively, last Friday, the same day the balloting took place, the vote in detail of all the schools except the Bryant. The vote in the Bryant school was as follows:

Golden-rod	47
Arbutus	35
Violet	25
Daisy	1

This completes the list. The total vote of all the schools on the four leaders in the floral race stands as follows:

Golden-rod	541
Violet	125
Arbutus	82
Daisy	71

Shiloh's Cough Cure

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10c., 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS.

Interesting Items from South Plainfield, New Market and Dunellen.

G. Elston Lowrie and E. H. Graves were added to the Board of Trustees of the New Market First Baptist church, at the recent annual business meeting.

At a recent meeting of the congregation of the Baptist church at South Plainfield it was voted to extend to the Rev. Ernest Thompson, of Lakewood, a unanimous call to the pastorate.

The Rev. J. W. Seran, who has been succeeded by the Rev. Walter C. Kinsle, formerly of Everittstown, as pastor of the Dunellen Methodist Episcopal church, has retired from active ministerial work.

The Rev. Goyne Talmage will give his renowned lecture on "How to get married and how to keep house", in the Presbyterian church Dunellen, Thursday evening. Mr. Talmage is a brother of the Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage of Brooklyn. His home is in Somerville.

The Rev. L. O. Grenelle, of Dunellen, formerly pastor of the New Market First Baptist church, has been ill with influenza at the home of his son-in-law, Dr. Williamson, at Asbury Park. He is now resting at Dunellen, and hopes to preach at Old Bridge next Sunday as usual.

Members of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor built the fires, opened the church, and rang the bell, of the New Market First Baptist church for Sunday services and Friday evening prayer meeting, last week, the grip having visited the home of Sexton Maitland as well as that of many other families in New Market and Dunellen.

The Rev. J. A. Cubberley, pastor of the New Market First Baptist church, who has been seriously ill, is now recovering. During his absence the pulpit has been supplied by the Rev. L. E. Livermore, the Rev. Mr. Newton and the Rev. Mr. Greaves of Westfield. Mr. Cubberley attended the recent communion service, but did not preach. Several members of the pastor's family also have been ill.

Martha A. Ingham, who died recently at Amityville, N. Y., was well-known in this vicinity. She was the wife of Thomas Ingham. Her native place was Williamstown, Mass., where she was born August 3, 1817. In 1866 she moved to Lamington, N. J., where she lived three years. During her residence in Lamington she was connected with the First Baptist church of Somerville. In 1869 she moved to New Market, where she lived 21 years, during which time she was connected with the First Baptist church, teaching a class in the Sunday-school as long as her health would permit. She was President of the Woman's Missionary Society of the church from the time of its organization until her death, and was a life member of the society. About a year ago she became unable to manage her household duties and went to live at the home of her son in Amityville. The immediate cause of her death was congestion of the lungs. She was ill only a week.

And Now Everything is Denied.

Begging pardon for again referring to the article of March 27, entitled, "Is it a Woman's Daring Plot or a Case of Man's Basest Treachery?", THE PRESS would now state that the information then given is now denied, even by the informant; and having learned that the stories circulated have wrought harm and injury to the young ladies involved and their family, it becomes the duty of THE PRESS to undo such wrong as may be done.

The family unfortunately brought into this notoriety is a most respected one, and THE PRESS has been assured by them, and those interested in them and in a position to know the truth, that there is no foundation in fact for any of the stories in the article referred to as being matters of public rumor. The charges of other than proper and becoming conduct between the parties named, or of frequent public and private interviews and the proposed little scheme for "the jolliest kind of a lark", are now emphatically denied by all the parties implicated and appear to be entirely untrue. The story of wrong done one of the young ladies is now denied by the young lady herself, and by the mother of the young lady who in explicit terms denies the story told THE PRESS that any such charge was ever made, or thought of, or that any suit of any kind for damages was contemplated or threatened or any compromise suggested.

THE PRESS is informed that the family have always enjoyed a good reputation in other towns where they have lived, and never until this occasion has any reflection been cast on them. In a more recent issue of THE PRESS, setting the accused young man right, the public rumor was mentioned that the young lady had tried a similar scheme in the town in which she lived previous to the removal of her family to Plainfield. This is also denied, and the family say that "Many prominent citizens of the last place of residence of the young lady, stand ready to testify to her good character and to repel the insinuation of any such conduct by her or her family."

Not being willing to be a party to any act whereby innocent persons may suffer, and feeling that the stories referred to, which were publicly circulated before publication in these columns, have cast a cloud upon the family involved and held them up to public ridicule, and that the fair name of the young ladies has been dragged into unpleasant notoriety and that their sensitive natures have been greatly wounded by the accusations, we publish this article.

Hires' Root Beer is essentially a temperance drink, and, as such, ought to find a place in every larder in the land. It is so cheap, too. A 25 cent package makes five gallons.

TICKET-OF-LEAVE IN NEW JERSEY.

Convicts to be Put on Their Honor in Hope of Reform.

Among the acts which Governor Abbett has signed is one establishing the Court of Parole and giving it ticket-of-leave powers. The Court of Parole is to consist of the Court of Pardons and the State Prison Keeper ex-officio. It is invested with the power of dismissing convicts of whatever degree on their good behavior. The act does not require that they shall have served an appreciable part of their term before being made the subject of clemency, but the applicant for release must have had a good record in prison and must be able to convince the court that on release he can obtain immediate employment. He must even present with his petition a contract for employment, which he or his friends may have previously arranged.

When the person paroled is released from the prison or penitentiary, he must lead an exemplary life, must avoid evil companions, must not use intoxicating liquors, and must work continuously. He cannot leave the State of New Jersey. The Governor of the State becomes his legal guardian, and on the first day of each month he must report in writing to the Governor, informing him how much he has earned and accounting for all of his time and money.

As soon as it may be discovered that the paroled person is going wrong, any police officer may pick him up and return him to the prison. If rearrested for any crime, he must serve, in addition to his last sentence, the time remitted by the Court of Parole. Those who are paroled and serve the time of parole with good record will be given discharge certificates and shall be free men with all the rights of citizenship restored.

A VOTE ON THE TROLLEY.

Property Owners on East Fifth Street May Herewith Record Themselves For or Against It.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS.—Surely the question of an electric street railway for Plainfield has been thoroughly ventilated. Now is the time for a vote, and I would like THE PRESS to open a poll in its columns for ten days, in this way:

The undersigned, property owners on East Fifth street, between Broadway and Richmond street, herewith record themselves and the amount of their frontage, for or against an electric street railway through that street.

Vail, D. S. 50 ft. East 5th street.
McAllister, F. M. 75 ft. frontage on Putnam avenue.

Property owners along the above route will be recorded for or against, as they desire, upon sending their names and frontage owned to THE PRESS office.

A Progressive Plainfield Church.

The Sabbath Recorder, published at Alfred Centre, N. Y., has among its news from New Jersey in its latest issue the following about a Plainfield church:

"The pastor of the Congregational church publishes a monthly paper called Our Church, devoted, as its name implies, to the interests of the church and Sunday-school. The Sunday-school is organizing a Home Department, the design of which is to encourage systematic Bible study on the part of those who are not able to attend the regular sessions of the school. The interest of the boys has been elicited by the organization of a boys' cent-a-day club. Among its officers are some eight or ten collectors who call at stated times upon the members for their club dues. These, together with the Girls' Mission Band, the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, and the Chautauqua Circle, would seem to furnish plenty of work for any ordinary congregation, and yet their prayer meetings are better attended, and the readiness to take part in them is greater, than ever before, while the average attendance at the Sunday-school has increased in the last year about twenty-five per cent."

A New Vice-President on the Central.

W. G. Oakman, first Vice-President of the Richmond and Danville Railroad Company, has resigned, and has accepted the office of First Vice President of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, in place of Joseph S. Harris, of Philadelphia, who has also resigned. Mr. Oakman will assume his duties in connection with the Central Railroad about May 1, and will have his offices at Liberty and West streets. He is President of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company.

It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are not straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are in public esteem accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for telling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of Shoes.

ESTABLISHED 1856, AND STILL ON THE INCREASE.

"When a person squeals he must be hurt", says one merchant; but when a man's business is on the increase he cannot be hurt; thus proving that delusive advertising does not affect intelligent trade, and that the party who applied it made a wrong application; but all are liable to make mistakes. I have even seen in some advertisements, Cooper's Gelatine advertised as imported. I should think to substantiate such a statement would be a difficult matter. American goods sold for American, at

FOR LITTLE PEOPLE

THE ARTFUL ANT.

A Tragic Tale.

Once on a time an artful Ant
Resolved to give a ball,
For tho' in stature she was scant,
She was not what you'd call
A shy or bashful little Ant.
(She was not shy at all.)

She sent her invitations through
The forest far and wide,
To all the Birds and Beasts she knew,
And many more beside.
("You never know what you can do,"
Said she, "until you've tried.")

Five-score acceptances came in
Faster than she could read.
Said she: "Dear me! I'd best begin
To stir myself indeed!"
(A pretty pickle she was in,
With five-score guests to feed!)

The artful Ant sat up all night,
A thinking o'er and o'er,
How she could make her scanty store,
Enough to feed five-score.
(Between ourselves, I think she might Have thought of that before.)

She thought, and thought, and thought all night,
And all the following day,
Till suddenly she struck a bright
Idea, which was—(but stay!
Just what it was I am not quite
At liberty to say.)

Enough, that when the festal day
Came round, the Ant was seen
To smile in a peculiar way,
As if—(but you may glean
From seeing tragic actors play
The kind of smile I mean.)

From here and there and everywhere
The happy creatures came,
The Fish alone could not be there.
(And they were not to blame.
"They really could not stand the air,
But thanked her just the same.")

The Lion, bowing very low,
Said to the Ant: "I ne'er
Since Noah's Ark remember so
Delightful an affair."
(A pretty compliment, although
He really wasn't there.)

They danced, and danced, and danced, and danced;
It was a jolly sight!
They pranced, and pranced, and pranced and pranced,
Till it was nearly light,
And then their thoughts to supper chanced to turn. (As well they might!)

Then said the Ant: "It's only right
That supper should begin,
And if you will be so polite,
Pray take each other in."
(The emphasis was very slight,
But rested on "Take in.")

They needed not a second call,
They took the hint. Oh, yes,
The largest guest "took in" the small,
The small "took in" the less,
The less "took in" the least of all.
(It was a great success!)

As for the rest—but why spin out
This narrative of woe?—
The Lion took them in about
As fast as they could go.
He went home looking very stout,
And walking very slow.)

And when the Ant, not long ago,
Lost to all sense of shame,
Tried it again, I chance to know
That not one answer came.
(Save from the Fish, who "could not go,
But thanked her all the same.")

—Oliver Herford, in St. Nicholas.

FLAMINGOES.

These Found in Europe Are Exceedingly Large and Have Queer Habits.

What curious creatures they are; so large and ungainly in appearances, yet so carefully made and so brilliantly dressed. Have you ever seen one of the awkward fellows stalking about? I find I had no idea of their size until I began to study them. Think of a bird measuring four feet from the tip of his bill to the tip of his tail, and fully six feet from bill to claws! Yet that is said to be the average size of those found in Europe. The males are of a brilliant red color, with purple wings. They have very curious bills; near the middle they make a sudden curve down, precisely as though a joint had been broken at that place. This is what a traveler thinks when he first sees one, but as they travel in groups, by the time he has watched dozens of them fly by, he concludes that it would be hardly possible for them all to have broken bills, and discovers that the wonderful Being who made them, planned these same bills with a view to the life they would live.

These great birds have web feet, and can swim as well as fly, though they do not seem to be very fond of the former method of travel; in fact their long legs are rather in the way of graceful swimming, and the web foot is used chiefly for moving about on soft, thick mud.

When a flamingo eats his dinner his "broken" bill comes into use; he wades through the soft mud of shallow water, dives his long neck down, placing the bill in such a way that the upper part becomes the under, and with it he gathers the choice bugs or worms or fishes which are to form his meal. The nests of flamingoes are built, if possible, near shallow water, where there is plenty of mud; in fact, it is mud which forms their chief building material. They make little hills about eighteen inches high, carefully built up of mud, and leave a place in the center for eggs. It seems it is not proper to speak of these birds as "sitting" on their nests, for the simple reason that they do not sit, but stand, with their feet in the water, and their bodies resting on the edge of the mud nests. In this way they lay their eggs and hatch their young.

Two eggs at a time are all that seem to be allowed in these nests. It is said that if the flamingo had the habit of sitting on her eggs, as do other birds, her body is so heavy that she would be almost certain to injure them. Is it not a remarkable thing that she was created with instinct enough to know this, or at least if she does not know any thing of the kind, with habits suited to her duties?—Pansy.

PLAYING COWBOY.

What Cured a Small Boy of His Desire to Live on the Western Plains.

It was a warm winter day. The snow was moist enough to roll good. Hadley and Ray had just finished making a splendid snow-man, when Neighbor Henries came up the path.

Neighbor Henries lives upon a large cattle ranch in Texas every summer, and he had come to say good-bye, for he was going there the next week. He sat by the open window, and told papa stories of a "cowboy's" life until Hadley wished he could go with him, and be a "cowboy," too.

"Well, may be you can, if you learn to use the lasso," and Neighbor Henries' eyes twinkled. "Got a good rope handy?"

Hadley soon found one, and the lesson began. He was an apt scholar, and soon he could throw the noose over things very nicely—if these things did not move.

"Now try your skill on that heifer, my boy," and Neighbor Henries pointed to a sleek two-year-old heifer which stood near the barn chewing her cud contentedly.

"All right!" and young Hadley crept up behind her like a young Indian. He coiled the rope and threw it. It settled fairly over the short white horns of the heifer, and the fun began. Plucky Hadley held on as hard as he could, and away they went—a frightened heifer at one end of the rope and a frightened boy at the other.

"Ha, ha, ha! That looks like Texas, only we haven't the snow to make a soft place to land in!" laughed Neighbor Henries.

How the snow did fly! The heifer bellowed, and Hadley yelled as she dragged him along, and the mad race went on until Hadley's breath was very nearly gone, then it ended in a sudden way. The heifer ran close to a high, steep bank, as if she was going to leap over it.

Hadley let go of the rope, but he was going so fast he could not stop, and plunged over the bank and out of sight in the huge snow-bank at the bottom. It took both papa and Neighbor Henries to dig him out, and when he was safe once more Neighbor Henries said:

"A pretty 'cowboy' you'd make, my lad! You'll have to stay at home a while longer yet."

"I mean to!" said Hadley, promptly. "I don't want to be a 'cowboy.' I wouldn't if I could as well as not. I'd rather be—I'd rather be the President of the United States!"—Daughters of America.

WASHINGTON'S BIRD.

One of the Early Spring Songsters That Is Deserving of Much Honor.

Of all our birds of passage the pewee is the pioneer. He is usually present by the twenty-second of February, and so he has received the name of Washington's bird.

It seems to me there is something in pewee's character which merits the name bestowed upon him. He certainly possesses courage and hardihood, for he is willing to breast the boisterous winds of March, and to sing upon leafless boughs. Most birds do not return until the leaves are about one-third grown.

If the weather be sunshiny and pleasant pewee helps honor Washington's birthday with the cheerful carol: "Pee wee, pee wee!" If it prove to be bleak and drear he sounds the plaintive lay: "Ah, me! ah, me!"

Washington's bird is a plain, brown little creature, with a yellowish tinge. It does not build its nest in trees, but prefers old bridges, mills or eaves. A pair of birds always consult in reference to the selection of the best place for a nest. Madame never gives in to Mr. Pewee, and if there is a difference of opinion a new site is selected which is agreeable to both.

"Birds in their little nests agree," but it is after the "tiff" is over. The nest is made of grass, mud and moss, and has a soft lining of hair and silky grasses. The eggs are pure white, spotted with red, so that at least two of the National colors appear, as is proper on the part of so patriotic a bird.

There is a peculiarity about the pewee, noticed by the Poet Lowell. He is the first bird to pipe in the early morning, but always preludes his song with a slender whistle, unheard at any other time. It is said, too, that his song grows more melancholy toward autumn. Let us fancy that it is because he is soon to leave the human friends to whom he has become attached by building his nest for many years in or near the same spot.

This affection for people may also account for his early return, in which case it is clear that so intelligent and devoted a bird deserves this name of honor—Washington's bird.—Our Little Ones.

SEWING ACHES.

The Kind Little Jessie Had When Her Mother Had Work for Her.

Jessie sat down by her mother to sew. She was making a pillow-case for her own little pillow.

"All this?" she asked in a discontented tone, holding the seam out.

"That is not too much for a little girl who has a work-basket of her own," said her mother.

"Yes," thought Jessie, "mother has given me a work-basket and I ought to be willing to sew," and with that she took a few stitches quite diligently.

"I have a dreadful pain at my side," said Jessie, in a few minutes. "My thumb is very sore," she said, in a few minutes more. "Oh, my hand is so tired!" was the next. Next there was something the matter with her foot and then with her eyes, and so she was full of trouble. At length the sewing was done. Jessie brought it to her mother.

"Should I not first send for a doctor?" said her mother.

"The doctor for me, mother?" cried the little girl, as surprised as she could be.

"Certainly. A little girl so full of pains and aches must be ill, and the sooner we have the doctor, the better."

"Oh, mother," said Jessie, laughing, "they were sewing aches. I am well now."

I have heard of other little girls besides who had sewing aches and pains whenever their parents had any work for them to do. This is a disease called "selfishness," and I hope none of my little girls are afflicted with it."—Christian Inquirer.

Little Lilian's Scare.

Little Lilian went out for a walk on a windy day. A sudden gust enveloped her in a cloud of dust. When her breath returned sufficiently she gasped: "Oh, mamma! I'm turning to dust and blowing away."—Judge.

SCIENTIFIC DROPS.

Artificial musk as good as the animal musk is now successfully manufactured.

Hemp culture is being made an important culture in the Bahama islands, over 40,000 acres being under development.

A 2,000,000 candle power electric light in a lighthouse off the coast of Jutland is said to be the most powerful electric light in the world.

Incandescent lamp globes blacken more readily with alternating currents than with the direct currents, while the life of the filament is shortened.

California will exhibit at Chicago the widest plank in the world. It is sixteen feet wide, and is now at the depot at Humboldt awaiting shipment.

The Otis Steel Company, of Cleveland, O., recently rolled a 20-inch square ingot into a three-quarter-inch plate at a single heat. The ingot weighed 8,500 pounds.

The camera shows that the star Vega, one of the brightest in the northern heavens, is apparently a double star, composed of two suns, each revolving around a point midway between them.

A new process of refining sugar depends largely upon the use of fluosilicate of lead. As applied to beet sugar the process is said to cost practically nothing, owing to valuable residuary product.

Another new photographic developer has appeared which is described as having cocaine for a basis. It is known as cristallos, and is said to be the most powerful of agents, being three times the strength of pyro.

A prominent photographer expresses the opinion that the gallery of the future will contain no skylight. A high room, with the north wall entirely of glass and a roof open to the sky, will produce the best results. The inside painted in light color gives admirable illumination, without the disadvantages of sunlight.

AMUSING SCIENCE.

How to Distinguish a Cooked from a Raw Egg.

Place an india-rubber band around the raw egg, A. Do the same to egg B. Suspend both by wires, the hook passing through the india-rubber band. This done, give each egg a certain number of twists, and let go. The hard egg, B, will revolve rapidly this way and that before stopping, while the raw egg, A, will, on the contrary, stop almost instantly. The reason for this is thus explained: The mass inside the cooked egg is hardened against the shell, and turns with it, while in the raw egg the shell alone rotates, the interior liquid not participating in the movement.—Once a Week.

HOW TO DISTINGUISH A COOKED FROM A RAW EGG.

NEW KIND OF SAW.

Its Teeth Riveted Together Into a Flexible Chain.

An English engineer has designed, and is now manufacturing, a portable crosscut saw—that is, a large two-man saw, that can be folded up into small compass. It is really a flexible chain of saw-teeth riveted together as shown by this cut:

When folded up it can be put into a case 8 inches long, 4 inches wide, 1¾ inches thick. Its weight is only two and a quarter pounds. The saw is designed for the use of surveyors, explorers and others to whom portability is an important consideration.

Wall-Leveling Rifles.

The new rifle with which the German army and navy have been armed during the last few months is a terror in the way of small weapons. The gun has a bore of .31 inch and throws a projectile of lead coated with nickel-steel weighing 14.5 grains, or about half an ounce. The cartridge used weighs nearly an ounce, and is 3.25 inches in length. The magazine of the rifle carries five cartridges. The speed of the bullet on leaving the muzzle of the gun is about 2,100 feet per second, and the limit of its effective range is a little under two miles. Brick walls of small thickness are not absolute proof against this gun, as several shots striking the same spot will make a breach.

Rubber Tires for Wheels.

Rubber tires are now proposed for carriage wheels. They are said to wear well and render the progress of a vehicle almost noiseless. Forty thousand London vehicles are thus equipped. Recent American inventions have greatly improved the rubber used for this purpose.

Smallpox.

While Germany loses only 110 persons yearly from smallpox, France loses 14,000 in the same time. This astounding difference is attributed to the rigid enforcement of vaccination in Germany, and to carelessness about the matter in France.

Is This How You Feel?

If you are weak, tired and nervous with lifeless feeling and no ambition to work, it will restore your strength, vigor and energies. If you are sleepless and wake tired mornings with dull head, bad taste in the mouth, no appetite depression of mind and extreme nervousness, it will clear your head, tone up your nerves, invigorate your blood and put vim and life into you.

Dr. Greene, the famous lecturer and specialist in the cure of nervous and chronic diseases can be consulted free at his office, 35 West 14th St., New York, personally or by letter.

Mixed-Up Relations.

Pretty Servant—No'm. He ain't no relation of mine mum. He's one of yours.—Good News.

A Cause For Coolness.

For some time Mrs. Ferguson and Mrs. Clamwhooper have not spoken. Mrs. Ferguson, who lives on Madison avenue, is known among her acquaintances to be very stingy. Not long since she visited a neighbor, Mrs. Clamwhooper, who is very sarcastic and reckless in her conversation. They were conversing about cockroaches and Croton bugs, which are very numerous in New York. Mrs. Ferguson said that she had great trouble keeping them out of her pantry.

"You should not try to keep them out of your pantry if you want to get rid of them," replied Mrs. Clamwhooper, with a malicious laugh; "just let them get into your pantry and then they will all starve to death."

And now there is a glacial coolness between the two prominent society ladies.—Texas Siftings.

ON THE BALL FIELD

The League Clubs Open the Season This Afternoon.

GREAT ENTHUSIASM AROUSED.

The Giants and Bostons Have a Tally-Ho Coach Parade in New York.

Twenty Thousand People Expected to See To-Day's Game in the Metropolis—Ward's Brooklyn Team Open in Philadelphia—Cleveland Faces Cincinnati and the Chicago Club Plays in Pittsburg.

NEW YORK, April 22.—One of the greatest events of the season in this city in baseball circles will be the grand opening game at the Polo Grounds this afternoon, when the New York and Boston clubs will inaugurate the League championship series here.

It is pretty generally believed that fully 20,000 spectators will witness the game.

The New York and Boston teams started for the Polo Grounds from the foot of Wall street on tally-ho coaches at 12 o'clock, noon, sharp. They were all in full uniform. The club conveyances were followed by a whole string of gorgeously decorated tally-ho coaches containing college students, business men, Boston visitors and clubmen of every description.

Rusie will probably pitch for the New Yorks to-day and Clarkson for the visitors. Each team will put its best men on the field, and the game will be a battle of the giants surely.

The other League teams play as follows to-day:

Brooklyns at Philadelphia.
Chicagos at Pittsburg.
Clevelands at Cincinnati.

BRITISH SOLDIERS UNEASY.

Four Companies of the Grenadier Guards Refuse to Obey Orders.

LONDON, April 22.—Mutiny has broken out in the Third Battalion of Grenadiers stationed at Chelsea.

Four companies refused to go out for parade, claiming that the order was contrary to precedent. Several of the oldest members were placed under arrest.

It is understood that an investigation of the affair will be ordered. Discontent among the guardsmen has been steadily on the increase for a long time past. It is claimed by the mutineers that the issuance of orders to the battalion to parade in full marching order upon a day when the men are expected to mount guard at the palaces and elsewhere, as was the case this time, is unprecedented.

The men also assert that they have long been subjected to excessive drilling for which there was no necessity, but which was solely for the convenience of officers who are thus enabled to leave London on pleasure excursions. Popular sympathy is with the Grenadiers and public meeting will be held to bring the matter before the Queen.

Pensions for Judges.

PHILADELPHIA, April 22.—Senator Crouse, of Philadelphia, is making a close canvass of the State Senate to ascertain the strength of the bill pensioning Common Pleas judges after a continuous service of 25 years. This measure has been hanging fire on third reading for weeks, there being no disposition to call it up. Senator Crouse's canvass discloses 20 Senators who favor the bill, which is six less than is required for its passage. There is a strong feeling existing among the country Senators against the bill, they declaring that their people are opposed to the principle of a State pension system.

Evidence in the New Orleans Affair.

NEW ORLEANS, April 22.—The Criminal District Court presented quite an animated appearance all day. Two hundred and seventy witnesses who had been summoned to appear before the grand jury were in the court. It will take fully a week to examine these witnesses and the grand jury report is not expected for some days. There were many prominent citizens among those summoned, and it is thought they will be questioned regarding the Mafia case.

TEST BATTLE OF THE STRIKE.

The Trouble in the Coke Region Will be Fought at West Leisenring.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 22.—Sheriff McCormick denies that the several car loads of new men landed in the coke region are Pinkerton men. He admits that part of them will do guard duty, and he swore them in for that purpose at West Leisenring. The rest, he says, will go to work in the places of the striking miners and will be joined by several car loads of other men from the anthracite region.

It is now thought that the test battle of the strike will be fought at West Leisenring, and the service of the 63 injunction writs yesterday restraining the leaders from interfering with the running of the works was preparatory to this battle, which has now opened in earnest.

WATCHING IMMIGRANTS.

The Government Sends Special Agents to the Canadian Border.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The Treasury Department has sent a number of special agents to the Canadian border to assist those already there in preventing immigrants landed at Halifax and other ports coming into the United States in violation of the immigration laws.

Assistant Secretary Spaulding says he does not believe the law is being violated as extensively as some of the collectors think. At the same time, he says, the difficulty in detecting violations is very great. Such immigrants do not come in a body, but slip in in half-dozens by rail, no two in a car, but scattered through a train.

TO PRISON FOR LIFE.

He Killed a Young Woman Because She Refused to Dance With Him.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., April 22.—J. P. Davis, who killed Eva Holden, of North Amherst, retracted his former pleas of not guilty, pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to State prison for life. The murder was committed after a country dance. Davis was in love with the girl, who refused to dance with him, and on her way home with another man Davis fired from the roadside and shot them both, killing the girl.

The Fitzsimmons-Hall Fight.

CHICAGO, April 22.—Bob Fitzsimmons and Jim Hall will probably be matched to-night to fight for the middleweight championship of the world. A telegram was sent last night to the Astoria Athletic Club, Astoria, Ore., asking if its offer of $17,000 for a fight between the two men still holds good. If the reply is satisfactory the fight will take place before the Astoria Club. If unsatisfactory, the $12,000 offer of the St. Paul Club will be accepted and the fight will come off at St. Paul July 22.

National Banks Pay State Taxes.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 22.—The National banks of this State have just paid the State $39,950 for State taxes due for several years. The banks refused to pay the tax on the ground that it was illegal. The amount was about $70,000, and suit was brought in the United States Court here in 1888 to recover and they won their case. The case was then taken to the United States Supreme Court, and pending action there, a compromise was made for the amount paid and to be paid.

Cleveland's Silver Views.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Ex-President Cleveland, in an interview with State Treasurer Stephens of Missouri, considerably modifies his stand on the silver question as declared in the Reform Club letter, pronounces the present law wise generally speaking, and says "If I should be elected in 1892 a free coinage bill would not reach me until 1894."

Stone Masons Locked Out.

PITTSBURG, Pa. April 22.—The Master Masons' Association have ordered a general lockout of stone masons in this city and Allegheny. It is believed the trouble may result in the early lockout of all the men engaged in the building trades, because the union men may order the big strike 10 days ahead of the time announced for it.

The Royal Templars of Temperance.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 22.—The executive committee of the Royal Templars of Temperance held their quarterly meeting in this city. Over $300,000 in claims were audited and $200,000 in total disability claims were paid. It is probable that the next session of the Grand Lodge will be held in this city.

Nine More Train Robbers Captured.

PITTSBURG, April 22.—Nine more of the gang of train robbers who have been stealing from the different roads entering this city have been arrested at McKeesport and placed in jail there.

Vote to Increase the Capital Stock.

PHILADELPHIA, April 22.—The stockholders of the Philadelphia & Reading Terminal Company voted to increase the capital stock of the company from $3,000,000 to $8,500,000.

Gold Discovered in Maine.

BYRON, Me., April 22.—The channel of Swift River having been changed, gold has been discovered in the old bed. Miners are flocking here in great numbers.

SHOT THREE TIMES

A Butcher Decoyed Into the Woods by a Stranger.

KNOCKED DOWN AND ROBBED.

Discovered by Two Workingmen Lying in a Pool of Blood.

The Stranger Escaped and the Affair is a Mystery—The Wounded Man Taken to a Hospital and He Will Probably Die. He First Met His Assailant in Castle Garden—Another Cold-Blooded Murder.

RUTHERFORD, N. J., April 22.—A shooting affray occurred at Delawanna, one mile from here, last night. George Kraus, a German, 21 years old, was taken from Castle Garden, New York, during the afternoon by a stranger, who, on arriving at Delawanna, led him into the woods, it is said, fired three shots at him and escaped.

The affair is a mystery. Robbery is supposed to be the cause of the crime. Kraus came from his home in Elberon, Germany, on July 12, 1888, and went to work as a butcher in New York.

Last week he went to the employment bureau at Castle Garden and said that he wanted a chance to go on a milk farm with the prospect of buying an interest if the place suited him.

Hired by a Stranger.

Yesterday afternoon a well-dressed stranger went to Castle Garden and said he owned a big milk farm in New Jersey, and Kraus agreed to accompany him.

The two men left Hoboken on the 6:30 train of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad. The stranger bought two single tickets for Lyndhurst, and at that station they both got out.

They walked up the railroad track for nearly a mile, when the stranger turned into the woods, saying that it was the nearest way to his house.

Attacked in the Woods.

Kraus went ahead and the man drew a revolver and sent a bullet into Kraus' neck. The pistol was so close that it scorched his coat.

Kraus fell forward and the stranger at once started to search his pockets. Feeling that he was being robbed, Kraus arose and grappled with his assailant. He got him down and took a butcher knife out of one of his bundles.

Before he could use it the stranger fired twice, both balls taking effect, one in the wrist and one in the thumb. The man then picked up the biggest bundle and escaped.

Henry Wessel and Henry Weed, returning from work, heard groans and found Kraus lying in a pool of blood.

They took him to the house of John Kehoe. Marshal Collins and Coroner Young were at once sent for. Dr. Hollister found the wound in the neck very dangerous, and the man's ante-mortem statement was taken.

He was taken to the hospital at Paterson. He will probably die.

A COLD-BLOODED MURDER.

Light Thrown on a New York Mystery by a Voluntary Witness.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Albert McMullen, the room-mate of Henry Fanning, under arrest for the murder of Mrs. Emily Taylor on upper Fourth avenue on Saturday night, made an affidavit during the day which discloses a most shocking and cold-blooded murder.

Fanning returned to his room at midnight Saturday night, McMullen says, and told him that he had killed Mrs. Taylor. He said he was walking with the woman along a lonely part of the avenue and asked her to stoop to show him a scar on her face. She turned her head to one side, when Fanning drew a razor across her throat, cutting the jugular vein and partially severing the windpipe.

The Cincinnati Convention.

CINCINNATI, April 22.—President Thurston at the Republican League convention created a sensation last night when he introduced Hon. William McKinley as the next Governor of Ohio and one of the future Presidents of the United States. Mr. McKinley drew a comparative and historical picture of the two great political parties. He made a statement of the Republican party's position on public matters for many years, saying that it was well to remember its history. His reference to "that matchless man, Harrison," was loudly cheered.

The Presidential Convention.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Gen. W. W. Dudley says the proposition to hold the Republican Presidential nominating convention in May of next year instead of June, as heretofore, is meeting with great favor. He and ex-Assistant Postmaster-General Clarkson, both of the National Committee, are advocating the proposition with a view to having the convention in cooler weather than usually, and the prospects are that the convention will meet in May.

Concealed $9,000 in Her Bustle.

PITTSBURG, April 22.—A girl named Schutt, who lived with a family named Bennett, died suddenly the other day. After the funeral the daughters of the family cleaned up the dead girl's room, and concealed in an old bustle they discovered $9,000 in bank notes.

Charged With Heresy.

TROY, N. Y., April 22.—Moderator Reed of the Troy Presbytery charged Dr. Dawin of the First Presbyterian Church with heresy. Dawin's congregation, the most wealthy in the city, warmly defend him. He will demand an inquiry.

Will Have the Cuban Giants.

WINSTEAD, Conn., April 22.—Arrangements are being made whereby the Cuban Giants will probably represent this city in the State League the coming summer.

GEN. BUTLER ORDERED OUT.

Ejected from a Court Room by a United States Marshal.

BOSTON, April 22.—Gen. Benjamin F. Butler was ejected from the United States District Court room at noon, by order of Judge Carpenter, who declared the famous lawyer to be a disorderly person.

Gen. Butler appeared to argue a motion in the case of his client, Mrs. Johnson, in a perjury case, and the Court refused to hear him. Words followed between the two, who are old enemies.

The Marshal in attendance forcibly escorted the General from the room under the direction of the Judge.

This is the sequel to several other spirited scenes occurring during the progress of the same case. On the last preceding occasion Judge Carpenter forbade Gen. Butler's addressing him.

The General was seen later, and said: "Of course, I shall take legal steps in connection with the matter. When a man lays his had on me, and has no right to, he generally gets sued for assault and battery. I had to do that once before. Of course, there are other remedies also. All in good time I shall take care of them."

THE GROUND SINKING.

All Trains Compelled to Run Slow in the Section Affected.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., April 22.—The ground along the line of the Delaware & Hudson Railroad near Parsons, four miles from here, began to settle last evening, which continued until it had sunk about 15 inches.

The cave-in is over the workings of the old Hillman mine. Fears are entertained that the depot at Parsons may be wrecked if the settling continues. All trains are running slowly in the section affected.

TWO GHASTLY SUICIDES.

A Negro Cut Thirteen Holes in His Head and Lived an Hour.

FINDLAY, O., April 22.—Two men committed suicide in this city during the day. Fred Jackson, a negro, with a hatchet cut 13 holes in his head, fracturing the skull, and died within an hour.

Adolph Schuffelberger shot himself in the head, cut his throat from ear to ear and then threw himself in the river, where he was found dead. Both men were unmarried and without known relatives.

Four Men Seriously Burned.

BRADDOCK, Pa., April 22.—Last evening a frightful explosion of gas occurred in the "bottom house" in the rear of the converting department of the Edgar Thomson Steel Works. One of the workmen opened an oven door, when a huge volume of gas shot out, and, bursting into flames, enveloped John Soles, Thomas Rantrauff, David Hoon and Otto Onedrake, burning them very seriously. They may possibly recover.

Shut Down Their Factory.

HAVERHILL, Mass., April 22.—Wallace, Elliott & Co., on of the largest shoe manufacturing firms here, doing a business of nearly $500,000 a year, have discharged all their hands and shut down their factory. The company's action is due to the general condition of business. The company's factories in other towns are not affected. Labor troubles have something to do with the firm's action.

They Do Not Want the Militia.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 22.—The strike leaders telegraphed Gov. Pattison that they do not want the militia stationed in the coke region; that they are not needed; that the sheriffs can secure all the deputies necessary if they will pay for them. The telegram was signed by all the prominent labor leaders and endorsed by Col. T. B. Seabright, the well known Democratic politician.

The Cashier Tried to Kill Himself.

LEWISTON, Me., April 22.—It is now stated that Cashier Percival of the National Shoe and Leather Bank of Auburn attempted to kill himself by shooting, but succeeded only in inflicting a slight wound. The investigation of his accounts is still in progress, and nothing is known beyond the statement made by the directors of the bank.

Opposed to the Internal Revenue Collector

LANCASTER, Pa., April 22.—The dairymen of Eastern Pennsylvania met here and adopted a resolution denouncing the open violation of the oleomargarine law in Philadelphia and demanding that the collector of internal revenue for that district be removed. A committee was selected to go to Washington and lay the matter before Secretary Foster.

McDurfee Held for Kate Lawrence's Death.

ROCHESTER, N. H., April 22.—The coroner's jury which has been investigating the murder of Kate Lawrence returned a verdict holding James McDurfee responsible for her death. McDurfee was arraigned in the police court and pleaded not guilty. He was remanded to await the action of the grand jury.

Lost His Life and His Bet.

SPRING VALLEY, Minn., April 22.—John Wright bet one dollar that he could run across the Milwaukee bridge in advance of an approaching train, but the train overtook him, and he lost his life and the bet at the same time.

May Be Made a Bishop.

BOSTON, April 22.—It is stated that the conservative churchmen will present for the office of bishop the Rev. Henry Yates Satterlee, D. D., now the rector of Calvary Church, New York.

To be Tried for Reed's Murder.

EXETER, N. H., April 22.—Daniel Murphy, Frank Woods and Lucy Woods pleaded not guilty to an indictment for the murder of Elbridge Reed, of Salem. Their trial will begin on Monday.

Strikers Vote to Return to Work.

FALL RIVER, Mass., April 22.—The Robeson Mill strikers voted to go back to work to-day. No further trouble is anticipated.

KILLED BY NATIVES

A Garrison Overpowered and the Soldiers Massacred.

PORTUGAL IN MORE TROUBLE.

Lord Salisbury Threatens War Unless Britain's Interests Are Respected.

Baron Fava Arrives in Rome To-day—His Correspondence Guarded by Soldiers—An Alleged Document by Bismarck—Anarchists Preparing to Make Trouble on May-Day—Russian Officials Accused.

LONDON, April 22.—The natives of Portuguese Guinea, west coast of Africa, have revolted and have hoisted the French flag. The garrison on the Island of Bissoa have been overpowered and all the Portuguese officers and soldiers have been massacred.

The rebels on the island of Bissao number 6,000. They have had two battles with the Portuguese and have completely routed them. Over 400 of them and their native allies and four Portuguese officers were killed and 21 men were wounded. Seventy-one men are reported missing.

Re-enforcements will be sent from Lisbon to the scene of the revolt.

HEAPING BLAME ON FAVA.

Italy's Late Minister Arrives in Rome To-day With the Correspondence.

ROME, April 22.—Baron Fava, Italian Minister to the United States, arrived in Rome to-day. The official correspondence on the subject of the Italian massacre at New Orleans was locked in a chest and guarded by soldiers.

Fava was reticent as to the situation, but admitted that he differed much from his government regarding the way Italy should treat America.

Fava is accused of a slip of the pen in translating the first Italian note. The note, as sent from Italy to be communicated to Mr. Blaine, demanded giudiciro (judicial prosecution) of the lynchers, which Fava wrongly translated "punishment."

It is further considered that Fava exaggerated the tone of Premier Rudini's protest, or did not comprehend that Italy was compelled to assume an air of decision in order not to break too suddenly the traditions of Crispi's foreign policy.

TROUBLE FOR PORTUGAL.

Great Britain Will Fight If the Attacks Are Not Stopped.

LONDON, April 22.—Public attention is again concentrated on Portugal, and it is reported that Lord Salisbury is preparing to present to that power an ultimatum, to be followed by war, should the Portuguese persist in their attacks on British interests.

The probable results of such a war are being discussed, and one result would certainly be the seizure of Goa, the last remnant of Portuguese dominion in India. As for Africa, the greater portion of the Portuguese territory is in the hot belt, and not worth seizing.

It is stated, on semi-official authority, that England would have resented the course of the Portuguese as far back as last October, but for the condition of affairs on the Continent, which it has been apprehended might at any time drag Great Britain into a struggle of far greater magnitude.

An Alleged Hint from Bismarck.

BERLIN, April 22.—An anonymous pamphlet, believed to be from Bismarck's pen, has been published at Dresden, entitled "The Ruin of Austria." It suggests that Germany's truest policy is an alliance with Russia and Italy, and says that Germany should not hesitate to allow Russia to pursue the historical route to Constantinople through Bulgaria, if that would avert a European crisis.

Anarchists Ready for Trouble.

LONDON, April 22.—In view of the approach of May Day, Anarchists are busy throughout Europe organizing for a general strike. In Paris and Madrid they are distributing fiery circulars. Fifty thousand of these circulars are said to have been distributed in the barracks of Paris surreptitiously during the past week.

Preparing for a Naval Battle.

BUENOS AYRES, April 22.—The latest advices from Chili state that the government men-of-war Imperial, Lynch and Condell, all of which are supplied with torpedo catchers, are starting for the north under orders to attack the squadron which is commanded by officers who have revolted against the Government.

Young Blaine and Wales.

LONDON, April 22.—J. G. Blaine, jr., who was presented at the levee of the Prince of Wales, was specially honored by His Royal Highness, who conversed with him in a most pleasant manner and at unusual length on an occasion of this kind.

Russian Intrigues.

BERLIN, April 22.—The Cologne Gazette says that the Bulgarian Diplomatic Secretary at Bucharest has made a confession of his own complicity in the Russian intrigues against Bulgaria, and implicates many Russian officers.

Gives Mayors Absolute Appointing Power.

BOSTON, April 22.—A bill has been reported in the Legislature by the Committee on Cities empowering the mayor to make appointments of city officials without the sanction of the Board of Aldermen.

Ground to Pieces in a Crusher.

KINGSTON, Pa., April 22.—While Charles Evans, who has charge of the coal crusher at the Kingston mines was standing on the platform above the crusher he slipped and fell into the machine's gaping mouth. He was drawn in by the rollers and literally ground to pieces. He leaves a large family in destitute circumstances.

THEY FEARED THE GANG.

A Conviction that Will Probably End a Reign of Terror.

ROCKVILLE, Conn., April 22.—The trial of James Costello in the County Superior Court on charges of sacrilege and wilfully damaging the Mansfield Congregational Church building, has for the past five days been the reigning sensation in this section of the country.

This trial is the outgrowth of a reign of terror which has prevailed for the past two years in and around the quiet farming town of Mansfield. During that time depredations and atrocities have followed each other in rapid succession; animals have been wantonly disemboweled, barns have been burned, and vandalism and larceny in all degrees have been committed.

The terrorized citizens, although reasonably certain of the identity of the guilty parties—a number of disreputable young men—took no steps to secure their arrest, fearing the vengeance of the gang. A few months ago, however, the Mansfield Congregational Church was defaced with black paint and profusely decorated with grossly obscene cartoons. The tombstones in the church cemetery were similarly profaned, and the citizens were at last aroused to action. But so great was the fear inspired by the culprits that the sheriff of a neighboring town was compelled to make the arrest, while none but an outside justice would try the case.

Late in February Deputy Sheriff Clark, of Willimantic, arrested James Costello, of Eagleville, upon a charge of defacing the church. He was examined before Justice Turner, of Stafford, and bound over to the April term of the Superior Court on a double charge—of defacing the church and of illegal liquor selling. The trial began Thursday morning and the case went to the jury last night, resulting in a conviction within 20 minutes on both counts. Sentence will be pronounced to-day.

James Costello is one of three brothers owning a good sized farm near Eagleville. The family is rich, but James is an acknowled reprobate. His defense was that on the night of the church trespass he was drunk and in bed.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

There has been a large failure of merchants in Bombay.

The Daily Herald, an evening penny paper of Auburn, N. Y., has ceased publication after an existence of five months.

Mayor Chapin of Brooklyn, N. Y., has appointed as a member of the Board of Education T. McCant Stewart, a colored lawyer.

At Colorado Springs, Col., Sunday, an operation was performed upon Miss Myra Higbee, who was born blind, which enables her to see perfectly.

Donald D. Hatch, well known in Boston musical circles has disappeared, leaving a number of creditors. He was at one time connected with the Duff Opera Company.

A dispatch from Paris states that Baron Hirsch, the great Jewish banker, has purchased an immense estate in Pennsylvania where he will establish a colony of Russian Jews.

The story that Mme. Diss De Bar, the notorious spook medium, was going to California under the patronage of Senator Stanford, is indignantly denied by both Senator Stanford and his wife.

"The Change of Attitude Toward the Bible" was the subject of a lecture delivered last night before the Universalist Club, Boston, by Professor J. H. Thayer of Harvard College.

The Union Pacific Railroad's February statement shows gross earnings for the whole system in February $2,779,093; increase, $49,502; net earnings, $703,509; increase, $49,652.

Rev. Thomas Sherman, of St. Louis, in discussing the report that a testimonial is being raised for the unmarried daughters of Gen. Sherman, said he should advise his sisters to accept the fund.

John J. Driscoll, aged 34, of Haverhill, Mass., was found dead early in the morning, in a low dive on Locke street, that city. A deep wound on his head causes a suspicion of murder and an investigation is being made.

Nineteen Chinese Freemasons were fined in the police court at Cleveland, Ohio, for disorderly conduct. They have been holding a continuous conclave, and their noise became a nuisance. The conclave will conclude next Sunday.

Wm. Muscoe, alias Wm. F. Jordan, who murdered Policeman George T. Seal in Charlottsville, Va., was hanged in the jail-yard in that city at 9 o'clock. He made a full confession of the crime in his cell a few minutes before execution.

O'Brien & Clark, the New York contractors, have surrendered their big $350,000 contract for the new reservoir in Buffalo, N. Y. They have become financially embarrassed through their immense aqueduct contracts and other operations.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—For New England: Fair; southerly winds; warmer.

For Eastern New York, Eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey: Warmer; fair; southerly winds; rain during the night.

For Western New York and Western Pennsylvania: Rain; southeasterly winds; stationary temperature.

THE DAILY PRESS.

W. L. & A. L. FORCE, Publishers and Proprietors.

J. A. DEMAREST, Managing Editor.

BY THE WAY.

—All are invited to see what the Demorest sewing machine can do, Friday, the 24th, at Peck's.

—"Oh yes!" is the heading of Edsall's new advertisement to-day. It will be found interesting reading to all in need of goods in his line.

—The lecture which Dr. Cooley was to deliver at the Y. M. C. A. rooms to-morrow evening will be postponed, on account of the death of his mother.

—The regular business meeting of the Woman's Temperance Aid Society will be held in Reform Hall parlors to-morrow afternoon at half-past three o'clock. A full attendance is solicited. A. T. MAXSON, Secretary.

—Edward Apgar, H. C. Drake, Charles White and William Jennings, the "Scattered 4," gave another of their pleasureable dances at Mt. Bethel Hall, last night. Seventy couple from this city and vicinity took part.

—To-day opens the Elkwood cafe, on West Second street near Park avenue. Proprietor Miller has engaged L. H. Dupre, chef of the Hotel Brunswick, New York, and he proposes to satisfy the public at any cost.

—George Demler secured from the Somerset county courts yesterday a renewal of the license to keep the inn and tavern which he has successfully conducted for more than 20 years. The other North Plainfield applications were laid over.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Counselor Reed has returned from a highly enjoyable fishing trip. He caught 60 trout.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cooley, mother of Dr. J. H. Cooley of North Plainfield, died Monday morning at the Sanitarium, where she had been ill a long time. She was in her seventy-second year. Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

The remains of Barney McGowan were interred in this city, Monday, after funeral services with high mass at the Catholic church of Westfield. He was a well-known and esteemed citizen of that town. His death occurred on Wednesday of last week. The property he leaves will be inherited by his nephew, Louis M. Feehily, of Boston.

Among the pleasant possibilities of the very near future is that the charming club-house of the Hillside Tennis Club, described exclusively in yesterday's PRESS, will become the headquarters for the proposed Plainfield chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, for the Tandem Club already in existence, and for the Four-in-Hand Club that is now being projected.

The Play and the Player.

"The Stepdaughter," in which Annie Ward Tiffany stars as Peggy Logan, an Irish nurse, is to be given at Music Hall, this evening. When the author of this production wrote it especially for Miss Tiffany he not only succeeded in bringing to the front an actress of rare talent, but constructed a drama interesting both in plot and story.

The greatest interest, however, centers in the role assumed by Miss Tiffany. Being the only character of that kind ever starred it is something of a novelty as well as a skillfully conceived creation, and in the use of a rich, melodious Irish brogue, she certainly shines as a genius. Her comedy is of the spontaneous variety, full of unexpected flashes of brilliancy and bright from first to last.

In the third act, which could be done in ten minutes, a few specialties are introduced simply to stretch it out. Martel does a song and dance, and Miss Bender sings a medley of popular modern airs.

Yesterday's Record.

Take a copy of THE PRESS of yesterday, for instance. It contained 17¼ columns of live advertising, and 14½ columns of local, telegraphic and miscellaneous reading matter.

Yet the other daily has dwindled down to 12½ columns of advertising, over half of which is either dead or only kept in by the advertiser through fear of the paper's vilification.

Another evidence that THE PRESS is the paper, is the fact that yesterday's issue contained 23 cent-a-word advertisements and the other paper contained only 14.

Dr. Thiers's Big Score.

The highest score at bowling ever made by an amateur in this city, was that rolled this morning on the Crescent League's alleys by Charles R. Thiers. Among those present was John H. Doane who endorses the accuracy of the score and certifies that there was not a foul. Mr. Thiers made nine successive strikes, but unfortunately got a bad break in the tenth frame, with only 8 down on his first ball, 8 on his second, and 9 all. This was the score:

30 60 90 120 150 180 210 238 256 265

Welcome Friends.

MELOPOIA'S SECOND MUSICALE.

A Very Pleasing Affair Throughout, Though Not Pretentious.

The second private musicale of the Melopoia Society was given at the Casino last evening, and was as successful an entertainment as those preceding it. The soloists were good, the choruses well rendered, and the programme varied.

Miss Alice M. Stoddard, the solo soprano of the evening, needs no introduction to many, as she formed a prominent part of the concert given last year under the auspices of the Crescent Avenue church choir for the building fund. She was last night, as then, well received, and sang beautifully two compositions of W. R Chapman's, Summer Song and Lullaby, which are very sweet. She was accompanied by the composer. Miss Stoddard thoroughly understands the capabilities of her voice and uses it in a way that is very telling.

Not the least among the leading singers was Miss Alice Holmes. As was shown last night there is sometimes honor in one's own country. She sang a cavatina from "Semiramide", Rossini, which displayed the flexibility of her voice, and was well within her range. She was encored.

Frederick C. Hilliard possesses a baritone voice of rich sympathetic quality, which gave great pleasure to the audience. He hardly did himself justice, however, as his voice sounded tired at times. He sang Meyer Helmund's "Gondolier's Love Song", with "My Love is Like a Red, Red Rose", as an encore.

Alexander Lambert, Director of the New York College of Music, was well received and was given an encore for his first selections, which were not, however, those named on the programme. Aus der Ohe made the same mistake in imagining that the people of Plainfield cannot appreciate the best. Had he played the Valse de Concert by Moszkowski as announced, he would have been better praised. He also substituted another selection for the Chopin ballade in the second part. He was particularly a disappointment to those who had heard rumors of the possible presence of Mr. Pachmann.

A duet, Caracciolo's "Nearest and Dearest", by Miss Stoddard and Mr. Hilliard was also an important feature of the evening's entertainment, as were also Miss Stoddard's solos, Neidlinger's Serenade and "Old Folks at Home", sung with humming accompaniment by the chorus. The latter selection had been arranged in very sweet harmony by Mr. Chapman and was sung by request.

Not the least among the individual performers was Miss Jessie Utter. Before he knew that Plainfield possessed anything so good in the way of an accompanist, Mr. Chapman had engaged Mr. Harris for the season. Through a mistake on the part of the latter he was not present last evening, but nothing was lost as Miss Utter proved herself thoroughly capable.

Of the chorus work, the a capella songs were uniformly good. "Thou art mine all", arranged by Cortada, was especially sweet. Garret's "My love is like a red, red rose" is old but pleasing, and was very well rendered. Kjerulf's "Sleep, my flower", was not sung quite so smoothly as the others.

The choruses which were given from Vogrich's Captivity were "The Prayer", Chorus of Priests, Chorus of Israelitish Women, the Cyrus Chorus and the final Choral. They were well sung, but from disjointed selections one can hardly appreciate the great work of the composer. "The Captivity" is undoubtedly the greatest production of its kind that has appeared for years. It will be given in its entirety for the first time next Tuesday evening at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York city, by Mr. Chapman's various societies, making a chorus of several hundred voices. In this concert the Melopoia Society will bear an important part and will attend as a body the final rehearsal to-morrow evening.

The last concert of the season will probably be postponed to May 25, when the subscribers are promised Madame Vogrich, Herr Dipple and Herr Fischer.

How the Cranks Will Yell When They See This Game!

A game to delight base-ball lovers and cranks may be expected next Saturday between the Crescents and the Ponds. The Ponds have an exceptionally strong team. Bonner, catcher, from the Rhode Island State League, is a fine player. Corey, of the last year's Mystics, at short, is too well-known to need description. McMurray and Walker, "back numbers", but just the same ball players all the time, will certainly give a good account of themselves. Lindy is said to be, and his record proves him to be, a great twirler. Holly is looking the new grounds over in order to get the range of the fence, as it is just possible he will want a box of the Tee Kay's. Niles, formerly of the Commercials, with Ellis and Driscoll, help to make up a nine that will undoubtedly put up as strong a game as any team coming here this Spring.

Shiloh's Cough Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10c., 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

PLAYING BASE-BALL FOR FUN.

Already the "Bi." Boys Are Having a Jolly Good Time.

The base-ball team of the Plainfield Bicycle Club have entered on a season of liveliest sport. Last Saturday they met and conquered a picked nine of North Plainfielders. This was their first game. They recorded it a victory by the score of 23 to 16. There was considerable excitement during the playing, and had any ladies been present they would have found an excellent opportunity to shed tears of sympathy over the injury to catcher Wyckoff, who split his hand severely. He pluckily kept at work some time after receiving the hurt, but had to retire at last in favor of Erickson. Burt was pitcher, J. Sandford short stop, F. Walz first baseman, Tilney second baseman, S. McCutchen third baseman, Roger Murray left fielder, R. Erickson right fielder, and Gus Shepard centre fielder.

This week Saturday the team will play a "scrub" nine from among the other members of the "Bi" club. May 2 they will play against the Leal school nine. May 9 the Westfield Athletic Club players will be their opponents. The morning of Decoration Day they will astonish the natives at Somerville, with their brilliant playing against the team of that place. The morning of July 4 the Somervilles will play against them here.

The club have grounds of their own on Park avenue, opposite E. L. Finch's. They are playing base-ball for fun, and don't charge any admission fee. If the girls want to see a good game they will be accommodated with comfortable seats, but the boys are independent, and don't care whether they have a big crowd of spectators or not.

We're Ahead of New York.

There was a very distinct and audible snicker at the dinner table of a certain Broadway boarding-house the other day. A city man and his wife are stopping at the house and during the progress of the meal the city woman, charmed with the many evidences of culture and refinement that surrounded her as well as with the rural beauties of this radiant town, looked out of the window and, in lieu of something else to gush about, exclaimed:

"Oh, isn't this a lovely, quaint way your people have of filling the dear little watering-carts on the private grounds of the citizens!"

And the other guests gazed out across the lawn to where the people next door were having their cesspool cleaned, and fainted dead away.

Dry sermons are bad enough, but for the minister to preach them through his nose is inexcusable. Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup will save both minister and sermon if taken in time. Price 25c.

When you go to the sea-shore take along a bottle of Salvation Oil; it kills pain. 25 cents.

A Pension Agent Held for Trial.

BOSTON, April 22.—A. J. Powelson, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was held in $1,000 here for trial on the charge of receiving more money in a pension case than is allowed by law. The victim of his alleged extortion is an aged lady of this city, a soldier's widow.

The Minister May Ride.

CHICAGO, April 22.—Bicycle riding is forbidden in the suburban town of Austin, but the trustees yesterday granted a special permit to Rev. Henry Healy, a new pastor, on the ground that his calling requires him to go about town more than ordinary citizens.

Desires Gen. Johnston's Remains.

RICHMOND, Va., April 22.—The City Council in joint session last night adopted a resolution requesting that the remains of Gen. Joseph E. Johnston be interred in Richmond.

RAPID TRANSIT WINS AT LAST.

THE STREET RAILWAY ORDINANCE ADOPTED BY A VOTE OF 10 TO 1.

Councilman Ginna the Only One Opposed to Its Final Passage.—His Associates "Rise Above Personal Feeling" for the Good of the People.—Legal Consents Secured All Along the Route.—Another Important Midnight Council Meeting.

The ordinance granting to the Plainfield Street Railway Company a franchise to construct and operate in Plainfield a street railway of the electric trolley pattern was adopted on its third reading and final passage at last night's meeting of the Common Council. Ten Councilmen voted for the ordinance. Councilman Ginna alone voted no.

It was nearly half-past nine when the routine matters before the Council had been disposed of and Councilman Hetfield moved to call up the street railway ordinance for final consideration.

Councilman Rushmore promptly asked where were the written consents of the property-owners along the proposed route. He was informed that they were in the hands of the City Clerk, as the law required. He then suggested that the ordinance lie on the table till the Committee on Laws and Ordinances should have opportunity to examine them. Both he and Councilman Ackerman said that personally they were strongly in favor of the railway, but they insisted that before adopting the ordinance a careful investigation of the consents should be made.

Councilman Hetfield said that the consents were all legal, and that everything was now lawfully ready for the passage of the ordinance and the construction of the road. He therefore urged that the ordinance be promptly taken up and passed.

Councilmen Ackerman, Rushmore and Ginna sought refuge in a resolution adopted at a previous meeting, providing for the examination of the consents by the Committee on Laws and Ordinances. President Smith pointed out that that resolution had insisted that the committee should report on the examination of the consents by April 6. He held that since the committee had not reported within the specified time the resolution was dead. Councilmen Ackerman, Ginna and Rushmore insisted that the committee were being cheated of examination of the consents by a mere technicality, a trick, and held that the true meaning of the resolution was to give the committee a chance to make proper examinations just as soon as the consents should have been filed. Of course—they concluded—they could not have examined the consents by April 6, for none had been filed by that date.

Councilman Hetfield said that when the resolution fixing April 6 as the date of the report was passed it was supposed that the consents would all be ready for examination before that time. The company had then had 90 per cent. of the property-owners in favor of the road. Withdrawals of consent had cut that figure down for a time, so that the necessary majority was reduced to a useless minority. It was only within the past two or three days that the necessary majority had been secured and legally acknowledged. All of the consents now in the hands of the City Clerk were properly authenticated, and there was no question about any of them. They were there to speak for themselves.

The Law and Ordinace Committee again insisted that they had been promised opportunity to examine thoroughly the consents. Councilman Hetfield therefore moved that the Council go into a committee of the whole, and that all of the Councilmen be given four hours to examine the papers.

Councilman Ginna said that such a proposition was ridiculous, and the gentleman knew it. Proper examination was a matter of days, not of hours.

Councilman Ackerman argued that it was advisable to be deliberate in this matter. If all the Councilmen were given a fair show a unanimous vote for the ordinance was certain.

The motion to go into a committee of the whole was carried by a vote of 6 to 5, Councilmen Ackerman, Ginna, Johnston, Rushmore and See voting no. Councilman Ginna thereupon exclaimed that he refused to consent to take part in such a hurried and unsatisfactory investigation. Councilmen Ackerman and See said the same. The Councilmen then all left their seats, and considerable time was spent in lobbying and caucusing. After a while all of the Councilmen agreed to examine the consents, and in two hours, at half-past eleven, Councilman Hetfield as chairman of the committee of the whole, reported to the Council that the committee of the whole had examined the consents and the maps of the proposed route on file with the Clerk, and had found them correct. The committee therefore reported favorably on the application for a franchise, and recommended that the ordinance be put on its third reading.

Councilmen Ackerman and Rushmore supplemented this report by saying that they were satisfied that to all appearances, so far as the property-holders' acknowledgments went, the company had secured the necessary legal majority of consents along the route.

Councilman Hetfield moved to take up the street railway ordinance on its third reading. The motion was carried by a vote of 6 to 5, Councilmen Ackerman, Ginna, Johnston, Rushmore and See voting no.

The ordinance was then adopted on its third reading and final passage by the following vote:

Ayes—Councilmen Ackerman, Gallup, Hetfield, Johnston, Moffett, Roberts, Rushmore, See, Smith and Spangenberg—10.

No—Councilman Ginna—1.

Councilman Ackerman explained his vote by a short speech.

We think—he said—that the gentlemen on this side of the house should have been consulted when the street railway matter first came up. We hardly feel that we have been treated with the fairness that the occasion demands. Advantage has been taken of a technicality to frustrate the proper handling of the matter which the gentlemen on this side of the house had intended. The ordinance was faulty. The compensation the company were to give for the franchise was not adequate. The corporation ought to be bound to agree to observe all future ordinances of the city. Still, the consents appeared to be all right; the railway system was a fairly good one, and he believed it would be a benefit to the city. He would therefore overlook the personal treatment he and his fellows had received from certain of the Councilmen. Though that treatment had been very severe, he would rise above it. He believed the introduction of the road to be in the interests of the city, and would therefore vote aye.

Applause from the lobby rewarded his speech.

Councilman Ginna explained that he was not opposed to the railroad, but was opposed to the positive irregularity which had just been exhibited in overriding a resolution whose object was the careful examination of the consents. Therefore he would vote no.

Councilman Hetfield said that the Council had been accused of rushing the ordinance. But—he said—the street railway matter has been under consideration here for more than a year. Everything that had been done and that was being done was honest and honorable. He and his councilmanic friends were working solely for the people's interests. If they did n't know that the consents were all right, and that everything was legal and proper, he and all his associates would vote against the ordinance very promptly. There was nothing to conceal, nothing underhanded, about the matter. The consents were there to speak for themselves. If the matter was not all right not one Councilman present would vote for it.

Councilman Rushmore said that he felt keenly the personal treatment he had received in the matter, but would overlook it, since he believed that the best interests of the city demanded the railway. He would gladly see the ordinance changed relative to compensation to the city in return for the franchise, and relative to the company's agreeing to observe future city ordinances, but taking all things into consideration he would vote aye.

The route of the railway as now finally adopted is as follows:

Beginning at a point in Somerset street at the line of North Plainfield Township and running therein southerly to Front street, thence through Front street easterly to Park avenue, thence through Park avenue to Sixth street, thence through Sixth street westerly to Plainfield avenue, thence through Plainfield avenue southerly to Seventh street, thence through Seventh street, westerly to Monroe avenue, thence through Monroe avenue northerly to Fourth street, thence through Fourth street easterly to Grant avenue, and thence through Grant avenue northerly to Front street, thence through Front street easterly to Park avenue, thence through Park avenue southerly to North avenue, thence through North avenue northerly to Peace street.

Another question that caused considerable discussion was the proposition, set forth in an ordinance introduced by Councilman Ackerman, to macadamize Madison avenue according to the terms of an ordinance that has long been on the books.

Councilman Hetfield insisted that the matter be tabled until it could come up in proper shape. By that he meant till property-owners along the street to be improved should agree to pay a fair proportion of the cost—at least 15 cents per running foot of frontage. It was unfair—he considered—to seek to saddle on the city all the expense of macadamizing this thoroughfare, especially since the citizens were willing to pay fair subscriptions.

Councilman Ackerman said that his resolution merely asked for the enforcement of an existing law. To this Mr. Hetfield replied that there was an ordinance fully as old providing for the macadamizing of Third street. On that thoroughfare—he added—most of the residents were comparatively poor people, yet all were willing to pay the customary percentage of the cost of macadamizing for the sake of having the street put in good condition. If these were to be compelled to contribute,—he concluded—before their street could be attended to, the wealthier residents of Madison avenue ought to be held to a similar obligation. The Madison avenue people were just as willing to contribute as were the Third street people.

The resolution to macadamize Madison avenue without requiring any contribution from the property-owners was tabled by a vote of 6 to 5, Councilmen Ackerman, Ginna, Johnston, Rushmore and See voting no.

The application of Frank E. Miller for a six-months' liquor license at Hotel Netherwood, together with the application of James O'Neill to keep a saloon at 178 South Second street, was referred to the Committee on Licenses.

Councilman Ginna, of the special committee appointed to present to the Jersey Central Railroad people the matter of the proposed removal of the freight house, reported that the committee had had a very pleasant interview with President Maxwell and the other officers of the company, but had come to no definite understanding. The company—he said—thought that the city ought to make concessions. The report was received and filed as a matter of progress.

The Committee on Laws and Ordinances, through Councilman Rushmore, chairman, recommended that no action be taken in the matter of the proposed refunding of alleged illegal New street sewer assessments amounting to $500, until the city's liability should be clearly shown. The recommendation was adopted.

The claim of policeman Patrick Lynch, for $60, being salary for one month when he was not on duty, was reported correct by the Committee on Laws and Ordinances, with the recommendation that it be paid at once.

Councilman Hetfield moved that the report be received and tabled, in order that the written opinion of the Corporation Counsel might be obtained on the case. Councilman Rushmore said that Counselor Marsh had already told him that the bill was correct and ought to be paid. Councilman Hetfield replied that probably the Corporation Counsel was not yet familiar with the facts in the case. Policeman Lynch—he explained—had absolutely refused to do duty during the time to which the bill referred. Because he had been served with a copy of a complaint against him he had voluntarily declined to serve on the force while the charge was pending against him. For refusing to do his duty he could have been laid off altogether. The city had no right to pay him for work which he had refused to do.

The matter was tabled by a vote of 6 to 5, and by a unanimous vote it was referred to the Corporation Counsel for his written opinion, to be given at the next meeting.

The Committee on Laws and Ordinances reported that the claim of Tunis J. Carey, as Captain of Police, for a year's salary for work which he did not do, was incorrect, as it claimed pay for time when his office had expired by limitation, and by unanimous vote it was referred back to him for correction.

A written opinion of the Corporation Counsel was read, stating that the Council was at liberty to accept Sandford avenue as a public thoroughfare, and by a unanimous vote the avenue was accepted, and it was ordered that four electric lights should be placed on the street.

The Corporation Counsel having informed the Committee on Laws and Ordinances that the Council had no right to appropriate money by resolution as had been done in offering a reward of $500 for the capture of incendiaries in the city, Councilman Rushmore introduced an ordinance legally offering the reward. The ordinance was passed on its first and second readings, and was ordered engrossed and advertised.

It was several minutes past midnight when the Council adjourned.

THE TROLLEY CAR CURE.

A Paralyzed Woman Restored to Health by Persistent Riding on Them.

(From The Bangor News.)

Mrs. Isa Harriman, who arrived at her home in Cherryfield, Me., to-day, left there eight weeks ago a confirmed invalid who did not expect to live over three months. She returns, as she expresses it, "completely cured, and as young as I was at 16, when I could jump over a five-rail fence without touching a hand".

Twelve years ago she was a stout, fleshy, red-faced healthy woman, the wife of a well-to-do farmer, and capable of doing all of her housework without aid. One day in March, 1879, she went to her kitchen sink to get a dish of water. As she raised her hand she felt a tremor and a sharp pain pass up and down her left side, her head began to whirl, and she fell to the floor helpless.

For six months there was little change in her condition. She could not speak or feed herself at all. Then she gradually began to mend, and at the end of a year was able to be lifted out of bed and to sit in a chair bolstered up. In another year she gained strength enough to articulate; but the use of her left arm and leg did not come back, and she and her friends supposed she was a crippled paralytic for life. At least a dozen different doctors attended her first and last, and they all said she could never hope to be any better.

For ten years she endured her malady patiently, waiting for death to set her free. From a woman weighing over 200 pounds she fell away until she did not weigh a hundred. Last fall her appetite gave out, and in spite of tonics and the best of care she began to sink rapidly. Having a married daughter living down toward Hampden in Bangor she went to see her two months ago, hoping a change would give her the relief from dyspepsia which the doctors had failed to do.

Her daughter's house is near the southerly limit of the electric street railway track, and during the pleasant days of March she often took her mother out to ride about the city. These rides were very exhaustive at first, though Mrs. Harriman insisted they did her good. In about a week her appetite showed a marked improvement and she began to regain her lost flesh, and what was still more remarkable, her paralyzed limbs became less hard to handle.

In all of their rides Mrs. Harriman occupied the corner seat at the end of the car, while her daughter sat by her side to ward off any danger that might happen to the invalid. Mrs. Harriman enjoyed these rides very much. She talked and laughed more than she had for years; and after she had ridden nearly two weeks she assured her daughter that she felt a strange, pricking sensation in the hand and foot that were paralyzed, as if they were asleep. As both limbs had been without sensation for years it was thought to be remarkable, and the rides were doubled.

Nothing but benefit came from these daily street car rides; and the way Mrs. Harriman grew better was a surprise to her and a miracle to her friends. In five weeks she discarded her crutch for a cane, and in a week more she had no use for the cane, and went alone without help.

All the time she had been taking no medicine. Yet her strength grew. Her recovery was so alarming that one of Bangor's best physicians was called in to see what ailed her.

"She seems to be as well as I am,"—said the doctor,—"and I do not see any need of my aid." He was told the story of her late trouble, and asked to assign a cause for the cure.

"It was wholly due to the currents of electricity passing through the car,"—he replied.—"She is naturally sensitive, and what to most people would be too weak a current to be felt, acted as tonic to her, and, coming when it did, it led to her recovery. I should give her plenty to eat, and take her out to ride on every possible occasion. In two weeks the last danger from paralysis will have disappeared, and she can go home a well woman."

The doctor's prediction was verified. She is perfectly well to-day, and looks fully ten years younger than she did when the stroke overtook her, twelve years ago.

Here's our Card.

It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are not straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public esteem accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for telling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can't afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of Shoes.

THE NORTH STAR.

When twilight's purple veil is furled
Beyond the western verge of day,
And slowly o'er the darkened world
The stars come forth in bright array—
When Venus hides her burning face
Upon old Ocean's troubled breast,
Or, weary of his march through space,
Mars camps behind the mountain crest;
The sailor on the moonless sea,
The pilgrim of the trackless plain,
The boatman panting to be free,
Turn northward and take heart again;
For there, above unmeasured heights,
An emblem of eternal truth,
Unchanged amidst the changing lights,
The North Star lifts her crown of youth

Self-centered in the boundless blue,
Calm dweller of the vast unknown,
Forever tender, strong and true,
Serenely from her distant throne
She gazes down the voiceless deep
While worlds are drifting at her feet
And mighty constellations sweep
Around her like an endless fleet;
The Northern Lights across her fling
The glory of their dancing spears,
The Morning Stars beneath her sing
The chorus of Creation's years—
And while the systems sink and rise
And planets to each other nod
The light streams from her tranquil eyes
As steadfast as the love of God.
—James G. Clark, in Youth's Companion.

A WOMAN'S ADVENTURE.

What It Was That Came Pitapatting After Her.

THE DINNER DISHES were done; the bread molded down and set to rise for the last time. Baby had been fed, and then, as Martha Wadsworth cuddled the sleepy little head against her bosom, she pressed a rapturous kiss on the chubby hand clinging to her kerchief, saying: "Bless his little heart! Mamma would like to rock him all day. She wishes there was nothing else to do." But as this reminded her of her work, she stopped fondling him, and crooning softly, swayed back and forth in the creaky rocking chair. Baby popped his thumb into his mouth, sucked it vigorously for a moment, then grew quieter and quieter. Mother rocked more and more slowly, and at last sure that his majesty was sound asleep, rose and laid him carefully down in the rough oaken cradle. She tucked up the blanket and stood for a moment patting him and gently jogging the cradle. Bruno came from his place by the fire and poked his black nose inquiringly into baby's rosy face. With a lifted, warning finger, Mrs. Wadsworth bade him: "No, no, sir! Go lie down!" Then she built up the big fire, gave a knowing little poke to the fat loaves, took her knitting, and, with one foot on the rocker, settled herself for a quiet afternoon.

She glanced around her cozy kitchen with a smile of approval. To be sure, the frontier home in the wilds of New York State was not like old Connecticut, but then it was snug and cheery. "I know mother has no better fire than this, at any rate," she said, gazing musingly into the ruddy coals. "They said a pioneer life would be so hard, but it isn't—very, and then I have Jack to myself so much, and I couldn't do that at home," and the dimples crept around the loving mouth. But with something very like a sigh the girl-mother whispered to baby: "If it only wasn't quite so far away so that your grandma could see you once before you are a big boy."

Pausing in her meditations, she listened a moment and then glanced from the winter sunshine on the floor to the little Dutch clock on the shelf, saying aloud: "Why! only three o'clock and the cows coming home already! Jack said he had put their fodder in the little pasture where they would be sheltered from the wind."

She rose and went to the window, murmuring: "Perhaps a wolf has frightened them. Well, the gates are open and they've gone into the yard."

Baby, roused by her exclamation, uttered a sleepy protest at being waked from his nap for even the most astonishing cause; so, sitting down, she hushed him to sleep again and then went on with her knitting, saying sagely: "I need not worry, if it is anything, it won't come into the clearing by day-

THE WORDS DIED ON HER LIPS.

light, and Jack will be home before it is dark."

Meanwhile the sunlight slipped quietly away from the little window, the firelight grew redder and redder, and the shadows darkened as the early winter twilight came on. Mrs. Wadsworth rolled up her knitting and put the bread in the oven. Baby had waked and was growing restless, so she took him up, pausing in her plans for Jack's supper to assure her "little man" that he should have his dinner—"yes he should." Glancing at the frost gathering on the window, she added: "It's cold, and he'll be terribly hungry, but the biscuits will be hot and I'll just cook up some eggs to eat with them. Now I wonder what I did with those I found this morning. Yes, I left them in the barn. Dear me, they'll be frozen. I must run right out and get them."

She put baby down hastily, hung a string of spools from the cradle top, then set it rocking, and while he struggled with sturdy, ineffectual clutches to grasp the swing wonder, she caught up the little red blanket, threw it over her head and started for the barn.

The trees stretched a lace-work of bare branches against the golden-tinted sky, the crescent moon was a silver thread, all tempting her to linger, but the frosty air hurried her on down the snow-trodden path to the barn. She heard Bruno's step pitapat, pitapatting at her heels, and put out her hand, saying cheerily: "Nice old fellow!" but instead of responding with a touch of his cold nose, he seemed to pause and draw back. Yet Martha, without looking behind her, stepped briskly on to the barn. As she neared it she again spoke to her four-footed escort: "I forgot about the cattle, Bruno. I am just as well pleased that you came. Let's hurry!"

She half paused at the door; then, with an uneasy laugh, forced herself to go on.

It was as dark as a pocket inside, but she remembered just where she had left the eggs, on the meal-bin in the corner. Feeling for them her hand struck the basket and picking it up she hurried out, feeling a vague sense of danger.

She walked with a rapid footstep, for it was pretty dark and—but then she heard Bruno's steps behind her, and with him she was safe. However, she was glad to reach the house, and running up the steps flung open the door and turned back with a joyful, "Come in, Bru—"

But the words died on her lips, for it was not Bruno that she saw, but a long crouching figure with flaming eyes! The real Bruno sprang growling from the fire.

Quick as a flash, she crowded to the door and dropped the heavy bar; then sprung and slammed and barred the massive window shutters; then stood with set teeth listening to Bruno's savage baying and for something else. What was it that had been following her so steadily, so stealthily, in the dim light? What should she do? Were they safe now?

She looked at Baby. He was kicking up his heels, happy as a kitten. Bruno had stopped barking and only went from window to door, growling deep in his throat, as if from the memory of an enemy. Should she let him out? No, if he should be killed there would be no protection for herself—and then her husband! She ordered Bruno to lie down and he obeyed, but with watchful eyes and deep growls.

"I COULD SEE HIM ON THE FENCE."

Taking down the shotgun she loads it with buck-shot, trying to keep under this terrible fear at her heart by saying: "He has his rifle and must see it—it isn't very dark yet."

She had hardly finished loading her gun when there rose a sudden bawling among the cattle. Bruno sprang baying to the door. Should she let him go? He might be able to protect the cattle or he might be killed, and then, how could she give the alarm to Jack? These thoughts had hardly passed through her mind when a rifle shot rang out above the other sounds. Her husband!

Quickly opening the door she let Bruno out; then stood trembling and sick with her hand on the bar. Minutes, they seemed hours, passed and then a firm step came creaking over the snow. In a moment the door flew open and Jack burst in full of excitement, but instead of paying attention to his joyous exclamation: "O, Mattie, come and see what I've shot," she dropped on the floor and cried. This was all the answer that her bewildered husband got to kisses and petting protestations, that "It's all right, little woman. Why, there is nothing to cry for:" "I thought it was Bruno—and—oh, dear! I'll never go out to the barn again!"

But she did, the next morning, just to see her escort of the previous evening, and it was the biggest panther ever killed in those parts.

"There," said Jack, "as I came down the road, I heard the cows making a great racket. So I ran across the field, and there I could see him sitting on the yard fence, showing black against the sky, and I dropped him at the first shot."

The great, glossy, tawny skin made a splendid rug for baby to play on before the fire, but it always gave his mother the "creeps" to see it, for, said she: "To think of my putting my hand back and almost on that panther's nose! I know if I had happened to stop or started to run he would have sprung. Ugh! I never see the old skin but I hear his cushioned paws pitapat, pitapatting after me!"—Gertrude Wimans, in American Agriculturist.

THE AMERICAN PREMIER.

A Comparison Between the American and English Speakers.

The parallel between the English and the American premiers is, of course, by no means exact. In the first place, our speaker is powerful only in the house, writes Albert Bushnell Hart in the Atlantic on "The Speaker as a Premier," while the premier, through his majority in the house of commons, may, and frequently does, overawe the house of lords. The senate is not bound to recognize the leadership of the speaker of the house of representatives; but even here there is an evident convenience in having a party chief, capable of laying down a policy of successive measures and of urging those measures through. Whenever hereafter the two houses are controlled by the same party, it is probable that some junto, of which the speaker is the leading member, will arrange a programme of legislation for both houses. In the second place, the speaker is chosen for a definite term of two years, unless by vote compelled sooner to resign. But parties in the United States are much more stable than in England. The party which elects the speaker invariably holds its majority to the end of that congress. Nothing, therefore, but the disregard of the wish of his own followers is likely to destroy the speaker's power; and when his followers no longer stand by him, his position is much like that of the premier against whom the house of commons has passed a vote of want of confidence.

The speaker must resign, and his political influence will be destroyed. The executive part of the premier's power is not within reach of the speaker; but if the tradition of party action through the speaker continues, the general policy of the party will be formed so as to include executive action. A president who wishes to stand well with his party is likely to aid in carrying out the programme arranged by the junto of which the speaker is the leading member.

This most recent addition to the speaker's power has not been conferred by a recent vote of the house in adopting rules, and in fact is not expressed in the constitution, the acts of congress, or the rules of the house. It is a natural growth, and part of the tendency throughout the national, state and municipal systems to put responsibility upon individuals rather than upon boards. It is a wholesome reaction from the divided irresponsibility and wasteful system of conducting the business of legislation. It secures at least the consideration of the measures held by the leaders of the majority to be most important. Those measures may or may not be for the public good; but under the new system the public has a better opportunity to place responsibility upon those members of congress, who, under any system, must control its operations, namely, the great leaders of the majority. The system is, therefore, likely to be continued in principle, if not in the same form, by each party when in the majority. The powers now exercised by the speaker will probably be exercised by each succeeding speaker, and will somewhat increase. Since the legislative department in every republic constantly tends to gain ground at the expense of the executive, the speaker is likely to become, and perhaps is already, more powerful, both for good and for evil, than the president of the United States. He is premier in legislation, it is the business of his party that he be also premier in character, in ability, in leadership or statesmanship.

SPOTTERS ON STREET CARS.

Soon Spotted by the Conductors, They Are Given the Sixth Degree.

Every street-car line in New York employs from forty to sixty "spotters," who are paid twenty cents a round trip, and whose business it is to see that all fares received are rung up on the car indicator.

"It's the easiest thing in the world," said a Broadway car conductor to a World man, "for us to spot them. In the first place they have to keep track of every person who gets on the car and they can be seen taking notes. The usual method is for the spotter to carry a pocketful of beans. As a passenger gets on the car he transfers a bean from a full pocket to an empty one, and when he leaves the car, as he usually does when it nearly reaches the terminus, he looks at the indicator, and at his leisure counts the beans and sees if the number tallies with that shown on the register.

"Usually the spotter gets on the car about five blocks from the starting place. One of them once told a friend of mine that he had two pockets in one, so he didn't have to take his hand out at all. The spotter's word is always taken, and it is seldom that a conductor gets anything but his dismissal notice.

"There is no appeal from his report. Seven trips a day is the average made by these men, and if they do not report a man or two a week the officials think they are not attending to business. There is one consolation to honest conductors, however, and that is that the spotters have men to watch them, and no one spotter is known to another. Their statements are all mailed to the car superintendent at his residence, and they get their pay each month by mail. It sometimes happens that two will board the same car unknown to each other, and perhaps give in different reports. Whenever I am sure of a spotter I give him the sixth degree as he gets off the car.

"I can't tell you how it is done, but it works to a charm, and before night four or five other conductors know him, and the next day he is known to as many more, so that in a few weeks most of us 'get on,' as the boys say. It never fails, and the spotter becomes a walking sign to the men on the road whose eyes are as keen as can be."

She Got Him.

A belle of Dawson county, Tex., after waiting half an hour in the office of a justice of the peace for the man she was to marry, got impatient, borrowed the justice's revolver, and started to look for her intended. At the end of twenty minutes she returned, driving the lagard before her, and the ceremony was performed.

"WHY, ARE YOU SICK?"

"I know precisely how you feel; it is that nervous, irritable feeling, your back troubles you, and when you try to read a little, your head aches. Isn't that so? I knew it. Oh, bother the doctor! Get a bottle of Vegetable Compound, and take it faithfully, as I have done. I've been through this thing myself, but am never troubled now. Do as I tell you, dear."

Prudent women who best understand their ailments, find in the Compound a remedy for all those distressing ills that require prompt and effective treatment as a guaranty to good health.

THE FORCE OF HABIT.

Queer Story of a Smoker Told by a Staid and Prosaic Physician.

It was after dinner at Young's, says the Boston Globe. A well-known Commonwealth avenue physician had been dining with a few professional cronies, and, as the cigars were lighted, the talk drifted to the tobacco habit, first in its effect upon the race at large, and then, in its peculiar effects upon various individuals.

"I know a man," said the elder physician, whose income, by the way, runs into five figures, "in fact, he is now in my employ, who is the victim of the strangest whims in regard to the use of the weed that ever came under my observation. He is a Scotchman about sixty years old. Twelve years ago he deserted from the English navy and came to this country, when I gave him a position as coachman.

"One morning I went into the stable and noticed that a hole about two feet square had been cut in a partition between two stalls and a little shelf had been nailed up underneath it. I wondered what on earth it had been done for, but Donald was away at the time, and when he came back it had slipped my mind.

"It was as much as a week afterward before I had occasion to go into the stable again, and when I did I found Donald standing on a stool, leaning his elbow on the shelf, with a long clay pipe in his mouth, smoking away like a good one and blowing the smoke through the little window he had cut. Upon my questioning him he told me that of the twenty years he had passed in her majesty's service ten of them had been on board a powder ship, where the rules against smoking were very strict.

"During all this time he had been accustomed four times a day to stand upon a chest and lean out of a porthole to smoke, so that no one could smell him, and when at last he took French leave he found that he could not get any satisfaction out of a pipe unless indulged in in the old posture, and so, from that day to this, you can find him after each meal, and for half an hour before going to bed, standing on that stool, blowing his smoke through the little window."

Edgar's Presence of Mind.

"Edgar!"

There were italics in her voice that sent a thrill of apprehension through him.

"What is it?" he cried.

"A hair on your coat lapel!"

"It can't be anyone's but yours."

"Do not think to deceive me. My hair is brown; this is blonde, very blonde."

Edgar was silent for several heartbeats, and then, with a sigh of relief, said:

"Yes, my dearest. But this is an old coat. When I last wore it to see you blonde hair was the fashion."—Washington Post.

Only Vulgar Evidence.

They were from Chicago, and rich. The daughter was taking lessons in coyness and social small talk. "A penny for your thoughts," she archly remarked to an abstracted visitor, and then felt, from the look of horror that overspread her parent's face, she must have been guilty of a false step. "Why don't you offer him a dollar?" was that lady's criticism, after the visitor's departure. "We've got money, and you mustn't be afraid to let folks know it."—Philadelphia Times.

Sat and Considered.

Wife (from the upper window at one a. m. to tipsy husband)—Well, what's your excuse for coming home at this hour?

Husband—Let me in, Mi'ria. Just (hic) come from meeting of th' labor union. Been considerin' what (hic) we'd do about the recent strike.

Wife—Well, you just sit down on the doorstep and consider what you'll do about the recent lockout.

And she slammed down the window.—Boston Herald.

He Had To Get Off the Earth.

"Give me a room," said the tired-looking citizen as he walked into the hotel corridor a few centuries after the present date.

"Front!" shouted the clerk, "take this gentleman out, put him in the balloon and give him nice apartments on Saturn."

"I'd like to stay on earth, if it's just the same to you."

"I'm very sorry, but every thing on the earth is occupied."—Washington ——.

Royal Baking Powder Has no Equal.

The United States Official Report

Of the Government Baking Powder tests recently made, under authority of Congress, by the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., furnishes the highest authoritative information as to which powder is the best. The Official Report shows the ROYAL superior to all others in leavening power; a cream of tartar powder of highest quality.

BOOM IN BASEBALL

The League Players Greeted by Enormous Crowds.

BOSTON DEFEATS THE GIANTS.

It Was a Close Contest and a Well Deserved Victory.

Ward's Brooklyn Team Captures a Game from the Phillies—Anson's Colts Win in a Ten-Inning Battle at Pittsburg—Cleveland Defeats the Cincinnatis—Result of the Association Games.

NEW YORK, April 23.—The National League championship season opened here in a blaze of glory.

There was music and a parade, and over 15,000 persons attended the game. The spectators witnessed a magnificent battle and were well repaid for the trouble of their long journey to the grounds.

Every inch of the ground was stubbornly disputed, but the victory finally fell into the laps of the visitors.

This result was gained by a clever rally at the bat in the last half of the ninth when defeat stared Boston in the face.

Pittsburg Lost by an Error.

PITTSBURG, April 23.—Over 5,000 admirers of the national game witnessed the opening of the League season in this city in a very closely contested match between the Chicago and home nines. The visitors won by an error of Carroll in the 10th inning, who muffed an easy fly to right field.

9,000 at the Philadelphia Game.

PHILADELPHIA, April 23.—The championship season of the League was begun in this city before nearly 9,000 spectators. The game was uninteresting and proved an easy victory for the Brooklyns by a score of 15 to 8. The visitors scored seven runs in the first inning.

Umbrellas Required in Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, April 23.—About 4,000 enthusiasts sat beneath raised umbrellas to witness the defeat of their favorites by a score of 6 to 3. The game was relieved only by the creditable playing of Davis and Virtue, of the visitors.

Foley Found Guilty of Murder.

AUGUSTA, Me., April 23.—John Foley was found guilty of the murder of John Cronin, which occurred during a drunken row in March last. Sentence was deferred.

A Postoffice Robbed Three Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 23.—For the third time within six months the postoffice at Greenville was robbed and the thief was caught in the act. Two men are now serving terms for robbing the same office.

The Cape Cod Ship Canal.

BOSTON, April 23.—A bill was reported in the House which extends the time allowed for building the Cape Cod Ship Canal four years.

RIOTING AT ADELAIDE.

A Hungarian Girl Shot by Her Lover in Mistake.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 23.—A second riot occurred at Adelaide last evening. A Hungarian girl was shot during the riot by her lover through mistake and is reported dead.

During the second eviction of a Hungarian family, who had gone back into the house, the Sheriff and his deputies were attacked by a mob. One of the Huns drew a revolver and threatened to shoot the Sheriff. Deputy Crawford started to take the revolver from the man. Immediately two shots were fired, one of which hit the Hun's sweetheart, who had got between her lover and the deputy, in the breast. Another shot fired cut the Sheriff's thumb. The girl was carried into an adjoining house and shortly after was reported dead.

Company C arrived about this time, and the mob dispersed.

The strikers afterward swore out a warrant for Deputy Crawford's arrest, but he waived the arrest to take three prisoners to jail. The deputy says the Hun tried to shoot Sheriff McCormack.

ON TRIAL FOR ARSON.

Rev. George Andrews Charged with Setting Fire to His Store.

IPSWICH, Mass., April 23.—Rev. George A. Andrews is on trial here. He is charged with arson. The crime consists of his having set fire to his store in Essex. The authorities expect to prove his guilt.

He is known to have been the last person seen in the vicinity of the store, and when the firemen broke in they found that the premises had been set on fire in three places. There is also evidence in the hands of the prosecution going to show that Andrews removed a large part of the stock of the store before setting it on fire.

The object was to obtain an insurance of some $4,000, which Andrews carried on the stock.

HE WANTS $50,000.

Ex-Secretary Whitney Sued by an Officer in the Navy.

NEW YORK, April 23.—George F. Ormsby, an officer in the navy, has begun a suit in the Supreme Court against ex-Secretary of the Navy William C. Whitney to recover $50,000 damages for false arrest and imprisonment.

He claims to have been detained on Mare Island from January 26 to March 7, 1889, on an order from the Secretary, without cause known to him. He claims the Secretary did not present a true copy of the charges against him, as he is required to do in law.

Judge O'Brien, on the application of United States District Attorney Mitchell, appearing for Mr. Whitney, transferred the case from the Supreme Court to the United States Courts.

READY FOR A RECEIVER.

The Affairs of the Car Equipment Company in Bad Shape.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Rumors of financial troubles in the affairs of the American Car Equipment Company have been current for some time. It is admitted by its officers that the company has practically suspended and will be put in the hands of a receiver in a few days.

The liabilities are said to amount to several hundred thousand dollars, but no definite statement in regard to the amount can be obtained.

Stabbed Her Husband Several Times.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 23.—As the result of a family quarrel Mrs. Mary Sullivan aged 55, residing in the west end of the city, arose from the bed on which she had been sleeping beside her husband about 2:30 a. m., secured a carving knife and made a desperate assault upon her husband who was asleep. Before the old gentleman could escape his wife's furious slashings he had received a bad gash on the left side, had one hand almost severed from the wrist, and a deep cut in the throat. The woman afterwards cut her own throat with a razor and will probably die. The husband will probably recover.

Will Arrest Charlie Mitchell.

NEW YORK, April 23.—It is reported on good authority that Charlie Mitchell will be arrested as soon as he sets foot in America and held to answer for his share in the Sullivan-Kilrain prize fight, which took place at Richburg, Miss., July 8, 1889.

The Ice Went Out One Day Earlier.

AMPERSAND, N. Y., April 23.—The ice went out of the upper and lower Saranac lakes during the morning. This is one day earlier than last year. This insures the opening of trout fishing throughout the Adirondacks May 1.

Flowers for the President.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 23.—When the President left here for San Diego he was presented with an enormous quantity of flowers and fruit.

CHAPPAQUA IS GAY

Miss Gabrielle Greeley Married This Morning.

NEW YORK HONORS THE BRIDE.

Five Hundred Guests to be Present at a Reception This Afternoon.

The Marriage Solemnized in the Little Church at Pleasantville—A Surpliced Choir Assisted at the Exercises—A Short Wedding Trip and Then Return to Chappaqua—The Mad Cooper Keeps Away.

CHAPPAQUA, N. Y., April 23.—There was more bustle and excitement here to-day than was ever known before in the village made historical as the home of the late Horace Greeley.

The great journalist's daughter, Gabrielle, who has spent her life on the old farm at Chappaqua, and who is respected by every man, woman and child for miles around, was married this morning to the Rev. Frank M. Clendenin, rector of St. Peter's Church, Westchester.

The ceremony took place in the little church at Pleasantville, which has been so long the scene of Miss Greeley's labors. At 9 o'clock the holy communion was administered to the bridal couple. Following it the marriage office was read. The rector of St. John's parish, the Rev. B. T

GABRIELLE GREELEY.

Hall officiated, and the surpliced choir and the organ of the church assisted in the exercises. Miss Chamberlaine of Pleasantville and Mr. McMillen, assistant rector of St. Peter's Church, served as maid of honor and best man respectively.

After the ceremony the happy couple received the congratulations of their many friends and left for New York city.

Upon the return of the party from a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Clendenin will go to Westchester until the repairs upon the old stone house at Chappaqua are completed. At Westchester the ancient rectory of St. Peter's Church will be their home.

Reception This Afternoon in New York.

NEW YORK, April 23.—More than 500 guests will be present at the reception to be given this afternoon for Gabrielle Greeley, who was wedded this morning at 9 o'clock at Pleasantville to Rev. Mr. Clendenin. The reception will be held at the home of Miss Maria Girard Messemer, No. 114 West Nineteenth street. Among the guest will be the members of Horace Greeley Post, G. A. R.

HE LOVED MISS GREELEY.

The Crazy Cooper Talks About His Stay at Chappaqua.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 23.—A reporter this morning interviewed Alfred Banks, the Black Rock cooper, whose infatuation for Miss Gabrielle Greeley, daughter of the late Horace Greeley, has caused that lady much concern.

Banks says he loved Miss Greeley, but to-day she weds and his love dies. He met Miss Greeley when she was running the free stage to and from the Episcopal Church at Chappaqua, and he used to walk beside it, watching the woman that he loved in his spiritual way, for he says he does not love as men love; he does not believe in earthly love. He said: "There was a union between us, a holy, unalterable union, and I am in her heart. Not her fleshly heart, but her spiritual. She has my love now, but after to-day I do not know her; I throw her out. She will never be happy. I love a better woman than her; we are spiritual."

Banks is evidently a religious crank. He claims to have spoken with the Deity, and that he has been ordered to preach a new religion, and claims that he is endowed with divine power, can heal the sick and raise the dead. He is well educated, an accomplished Bible student, and works occasionally at his trade.

Disastrous Fire in Rome, N. Y.

ROME, N. Y., April 23.—A disastrous fire started in the Wiggins block about noon. After destroying that building the flames spread to the Dickerson block, and then to the Farmers' Hotel. All these buildings were destroyed together with two barns in the rear of the hotel. Two other buildings west of the Pritchard block were also destroyed. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

211 Out of 344 for Blaine.

CINCINNATI, April 23.—A local paper prints the Presidential choice of 344 delegates to the National League, showing 211 for Blaine, 97 for Harrison. Others divided among Alger, Sherman, Reed, McKinley, Clarkson and others.

Nunnery Hill Sinking.

PITTSBURG, April 23.—The residents of Nunnery Hill, Allegheny, are becoming alarmed over the gradual sinking of the hill. It has been observed for six months and several houses have gone down from four to five inches.

SOCIALISTS TAKE A HAND.

The Red Flag Praised at a Meeting of Striking Cokers.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., April 23.—Over 3,500 strikers marched here shortly after noon and listened to addresses of their leaders.

The meeting was held at the lower end of the town and the civil authorities offered no resistance. Red ribbons were worn by many, but contrary to expectation the red flag was not to be seen.

Alexander Jonas, the noted Socialist, was the first speaker. He said if the newspapers were to be believed their mission was to invoke riot and bloodshed. Pointing to the Stars and Stripes, he said: "Under that flag John Brown was hung; Parsons and others in Chicago assassinated, and your brothers at Morewood murdered. I choose the red flag because it represents the pure blood that flows in the veins of honest workingmen. It represents purity and honor. Under the Stars and Stripes black slavery was abolished, and the red flag simply means that it must be abolished."

Delaber, he Socialist leader, next spoke and admonished the men to stay out till May 1, when the great eight-hour movement would be inaugurated. He said instead of the 500 Italians arriving in the coke region to-day much money had arrived.

Many other labor leaders spoke. A "black-leg," who was found in the crowd, narrowly escaped with his life.

LOVE CAUSES A TRAGEDY.

A Young German Shoots His Sweetheart and then Kills Himself.

ROSEVILLE, N. J., April 23.—Max Hunger, a German, aged about 30 years, fatally shot his sweetheart, Martha Magowsky, aged 23, at the home of W. M. Littell, in this place, where she has been employed as a servant, and then shot and killed himself.

The couple had recently become estranged because of the man's dissipated habits. During the day Hunger called on the girl and endeavored to obtain her forgiveness. The girl remained obdurate, and the tragedy followed.

Hunger was the son of a prosperous hotel keeper, of Hamburg, was well educated and accomplished, being conversant with five languages, and had the appearance of a gentleman.

NEARLY A DOUBLE MURDER.

A Jealous Old Man Selects a Married Couple for His Victims.

WEST STOCKBRIDGE, Mass., April 23.—Just over the New York State line, about seven miles from here, a terrible tragedy occurred last evening.

Henry Parkerson, aged 71 years, of Chatham, N. Y., shot Mr. and Mrs. Peter Seible, killing Mr. Seible instantly.

Trouble has been brewing since the death of Parkerson's wife, who was a sister of Mrs. Seible, over the division of some property left by Parkerson's wife who died some time ago. Mrs. Seible, however, claims that the real cause of the shooting was because Parkerson was jealous, he having tried to induce Mrs. Seible to elope with him.

THEY SIGN FOR A FIGHT.

Fitzsimmons and Hall Will Meet for the Middleweight Championship.

CHICAGO, April 23.—Bob Fitzsimmons and Jim Hall signed articles last night to fight to a finish, Marquis of Queensberry rules, with four-ounce gloves, for a purse of $12,000, in either Minneapolis or St. Paul, on July 22.

The conditions of the fight are that $1,000 of the $12,000 is to go to the loser, and that each side shall deposit $1,500 to guarantee the appearance of its man in the ring. Frank N. Shaw shall have the privilege of naming the club under whose auspices the contest shall take place and shall deposit $3,000 as a guarantee that the contest shall take place.

Another Presbytery Protests.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., April 23.—The Presbytery of Lackawanna passed a resolution memorializing the General Assembly not to endorse the election of Dr. Charles A. Briggs as a professor of biblical theology in Union Seminary, New York, until it is satisfied he is not arrayed against the standard of the church.

Powderly Promises Help.

TRENTON, N. J., April 23.—T. V. Powderly, Grand Master Workman of the Knights of Labor, was here and investigated the strike of the sanitaryware makers and learned that it was a fight of the manufacturers against organizations, and he has promised financial assistance in the near future.

Returned With Her Deserted Husband.

FRANKLINVILLE, N. Y., April 23.—Mrs. C. McIntyre, who eloped with her brother-in-law from Lyndon, has returned home with her deserted husband, who found her at Olean. The two brothers were business partners and lived on adjoining farms.

A Blind Beggar Arrested for Murder.

PHILADELPHIA, April 23.—Charles Rementer, aged 45, who is blind and a professional beggar, was arrested charged with murdering his wife. The woman was found dead at her home to-day with her body covered with bruises.

Carpenters Strike to Help Masons.

PITTSBURG, April 23.—Several hundred carpenters quit work on buildings where the stone masons are locked out. The other trades have as yet taken no action, but it is likely they will adopt the carpenters' policy before May 1.

Derailed by a Blooded Horse.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., April 23.—A freight train on the Lehigh Valley Railroad was derailed in a very peculiar way at Rockdale. A blooded horse which was being taken from Buffalo to Philadelphia broke through the car in which he was placed and while the train was going at a high rate of speed jumped off. He was struck by a passing coal train and knocked under the wheels of the train from which he had escaped. The freight was derailed and several cars wrecked. The horse and a number of live stock were killed.

TROUBLE IN LISBON

War with England Considered Highly Probable.

IT MAY HASTEN A REVOLUTION.

French Emissaries at Work Inciting the People Against the King.

France Anxious to See the Last Reigning Bourbon Driven from the Throne—Healy Makes a New Charge Against Parnell—He Claims that He Has Made an Alliance with Balfour.

LONDON, April 23.—Dispatches from Lisbon represent that the situation there is very grave. A popular clamor is again arising for a war with England, and the government may hasten a revolution by opposing the aggressive sentiment.

French emissaries are at work inciting the people against both royalty and England, and it is even asserted that the French government looks with approval on the agitation and is anxious to see the last reigning Bourbon driven from his throne.

Since the Beira incident the excitement has been redoubled, and the general voice is against any concessions to England. It is reported that the loyalty of the fleet is suspected, and that the King and his Ministry are only deterred from making important changes in naval commands by fear of causing an immediate insurrection.

All signs indicate that the revolution, which was warded off last October, was only postponed, and that King Charles may be driven from his throne to be restored by the guns of an English fleet.

BALFOUR AND PARNELL.

Healy Claims They Have Entered Into an Unholy Alliance.

DUBLIN, April 23.—Mr. Healy, in speaking to a meeting of his constituents, put all the blame of the breakdown of the plan of campaign in Ireland upon Mr. Parnell and said: "There has been a treaty made at Brighton between Parnell and Balfour, by which the former undertakes to assist the latter by causing a collapse in the plan of campaign, while Balfour on his part agrees not to run a Tory candidate for Parliament in Cork against Parnell."

It is said by many that the condition of Ireland will be much improved with the collapse of the plan, as it leaves the funds available for more useful purposes. Both sides will probably cry down the other and try to shift the blame, but it is generally understood that there is nothing in the plan anyway, and that in secret both sides are satisfied with its failure.

The Parnellites are bringing a singular accusation against Timothy Healy. They assert that he attempted by a bribe of $5,000 to induce Father McFadden to plead guilty in the famous trial of two years ago. McFadden was accused of connivance in the killing of Police Inspector Martin, while the latter was attempting to arrest the priest for violation of the Crimes act. Healy ridicules the story and demands an investigation of his action in the case.

Anti-Parnellites Canvass Ireland.

DUBLIN, April 23.—A careful canvass of Ireland made by the anti-Parnellites show that a general election in Ireland would result in the ousting of twenty-six Parnellite members of the House of Commons, including Mr. Parnell himself. Three seats would, however, probably be captured by Parnellite nominees; namely, those for Dublin, Mayo and Clare. This, it is claimed, would leave the strength of the different Irish parties as follows: McCarthyites, 73; Parnellites, 9; Unionists, 22.

Cut the British Envoy to Pieces.

LONDON, April 23.—Dispatches from Bathurst, West Africa, state that the King of Gambia seized a British envoy, and after cutting away portions of the cheeks and thighs of the unfortunate envoy, sent the remainder of that gentleman together with the pieces of flesh cut from his body back to Governor Carter. Three British gunboats have already ascended the Gambia river to avenge the outrage.

Not Ready to Accommodate France.

BERLIN, April 23.—In order that inhabitants of French towns near the frontier may be able to attend the fairs and markets to be held in German territory, a petition was sent to the Emperor asking him to order the relaxation of the passport regulations now in force in Alsace-Lorraine. The request has been refused by the Emperor, who claims that the time has not yet arrived for such a change.

Mr. Hurlburt Will Leave London.

LONDON, April 23.—William Henry Hurlburt intends to leave for America on Saturday in quest, as he says, of the mysterious Wilfrid Murray. The belief in what was at first hinted, namely, that Jim McDermott is Wilfrid Murray, is growing stronger, in so far as Murray has any existence at all, for that was one of the aliases used by McDermott.

Pugilist Jackson Rapidly Recovering.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 23.—Peter Jackson the pugilist is rapidly recovering from the effects of the injuries he received by being thrown from a wagon some weeks ago. He has already discarded his crutches, and declares that he will be in as good condition as ever when the day for his fight with Corbett arrives. The fight is set down for May 21.

The Wound Proved Fatal.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 23.—James M. Adams, of Foster, who attempted to murder his uncle, James M. Paine, when the latter was calling on him in response to the summons of his insane nephew, died early in the morning from a self-inflicted wound, he having shot himself in the

THE REPUBLICAN LEAGUE.

General John S. Clarkson Unanimously Elected President.

CINCINNATI, April 23.—The Republican National League has closed its convention for 1891, and put itself in form for the coming year.

Letters were read from President Harrison, Senator John Sherman, Secretary Foster, Secretary Proctor, Gen. Alger, William M. Evarts, and others, and a telegram from the Hon. J. S. Clarkson.

John S. Clarkson was unanimously elected president. W. W. Tracy, president of the Illinois League, was nominated, but his name was withdrawn.

The election of secretary elicited some feeling. New York wanted the present incumbent, Mr. Humphrey, to remain. Pennsylvania named Theodore Stanb. Ohio followed by naming J. J. Chester. The vote was close, but ended in the choice of Mr. Humphrey.

Phineas Lounsbery, of Connecticut, was re-elected treasurer.

The committee reported in favor of Indianapolis as the next place of meeting, but the convention decided to let the Executive Committee name the place and time, but shall make the time not less than three weeks after the National Republican convention.

MILLIONS INVOLVED.

Millionaire Robert Garrett Sued for a Breach of Contract.

TRENTON, N. J., April 23.—William Cornell Jewett began action by the filing of a complaint with the clerk of the United States Court, against Robert Garrett, William Frick and Francis C. Lathrop, of Baltimore, Md.

The suit involves millions, or to be exact Mr. Jewett places the damages at $3,000,000, for a breach of contract entered into with the defendants on Jan. 31, 1877.

The action grows out of the project of the late John W. Garrett to establish several direct transatlantic cable lines, to be operated in connection with the recently absorbed Baltimore & Ohio Telegraph Company, which was established for the sole purpose of affording distributing land facilities for the cables which were never laid.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Judge W. C. Hoyt of Sodus, N. Y., died during the morning of pneumonia.

William R. Sessions, of Jamestown, N. Y., has been appointed a special inspector of customs.

Benjamin A. Burr, one of the publishers of the Bangor (Me.) Whig and Courier, died last night, aged 70.

Wm. J. Fryer, father-in-law of the late Hon. Daniel Manning, died in Albany, N. Y., last evening, aged 83 years.

The New York State Farmers' Alliance is in session at Hornellsville. Its membership is 25,000, and it is growing rapidly.

The Belgian, Thiessan, has been sentenced to five years' penal servitude for selling secret documents to Germany. His trial was held secretly.

The trial of Mrs. Julia Culvan Lippincott, charged with forgery, comes up today before Judge Reed in the Atlantic County Court, at May's Landing, N. J.

The brickyard strike at Trenton, N. J., seems to be coming to a close in favor of the strikers, many of whom have returned to work on the terms they demanded.

Vice President Morton and his family, together with his whole establishment, will leave Washington to-day for his country place at Rhinebeck on the Hudson.

The Grand Jury of Mount Holly, N. J., indicted John Boyce for manslaughter in having killed Mrs. Charles at Burlington last month by beating and kicking her to death.

Judgment has been rendered at Paris in the famous libel suit of John W. Mackey, the California millionaire, against "Galignani's Messenger." Blinden, the director, will undergo sixteen months' imprisonment.

The body of an unknown man, about 35 years of age, was found in the woods near New Brunswick, N. J. He had evidently been murdered. He was compactly built, light complexioned and had short, reddish whiskers. The Coroner is investigating.

Their Salaries Will Be Raised.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 23.—Some time ago the employes of the various express companies were subjected to a reduction of 10 per cent. in their pay. An order has been issued by the American Express Company notifying its many employes that on May 1 their salaries will be raised 10 per cent.

C. T. U., and in the evenings at eight, in the Presbyterian church. All are invited.

—The Elkwood Cafe is now open to the public, with a competent chef in command, Mr. Dupre, late of the Brunswick Hotel, New York. The guests of the Elkwood are served at the hands of Harry D. VanLiew, the popular attentive waiter who for thirteen years past has so ably filled the position of head waiter at Laing's Hotel. The Elkwood Cafe fills a long needed want in Plainfield.

All But Two of Plainfield's Pastors Ride One.

"What a variety of opinions"—remarks the Elizabeth Journal—"exist concerning the dignity of riding on a bicycle. In one place, for example, a church is split in two because the minister rides a wheel. In another place in which bicycling is forbidden in the town by ordinance, a special permit is given the minister to ride a bicycle because he has so much traveling to do that he cannot make all his calls on foot. But, to bring the whole matter nearer home, the members of the Seventh-Day Baptist church of Plainfield showed more sense than all the others referred to, for they quietly raised the money and bought their pastor, the Rev. Dr. Lewis, the best safety the market could afford. Here are certainly the extremes of opinion. Some want their pastors to ride, others will not sit under the instructions of a reverend wheelman. Meanwhile the ministers can do no better than to do just as they please. It is a good exercise for them, if they need it and enjoy it."

WHEN I began using Ely's Cream Balm my catarrh was so bad I had headache the whole time and discharged a large amount of filthy matter. That has almost entirely disappeared, and I have not had headache since.—J. H. Sommers, Stephney, Conn.

$10,000 for Her Husband.

Patrick Hurley, a Bayonne policeman, was killed by a New Jersey Central Railroad train while arresting a drunken man who was walking on the track, Nov. 25, 1890. Hurley's widow brought suit against the railroad company for $10,000 damages for the death of her husband, alleging carelessness on the part of the company's employes. The case was tried yesterday in the Hudson County Circuit Court at Jersey City, and judgment for the full amount was awarded. Counsel for the company gave notice of appeal.

Hires' Root Beer is essentially a temperance drink, and, as such, ought to find a place in every larder in the land. It is so cheap, too. A 25 cent package makes five gallons.

SANE OR INSANE?

Plainfield Physicians Disagree, So the Courts Will Investigate.

The recent proceedings in the case of Anna Dickinson have encouraged the relatives of Dr. Henry A. Armstrong, who is an inmate of the lunatic asylum at Morris Plains, to make an effort to secure the patient's release. An unsuccessful effort was made some time ago. All the relatives except the patient's wife believe Dr. Armstrong to be sane. A writ of habeas corpus will be applied for to-day in Jersey City.

Dr. Armstrong is seventy years of age, and a veteran of four wars. He was graduated from West Point. During the Seminole war he was shot in the right leg by Chief Jumper. The doctor served through the Mexican war. At the storming of Chapultepec he received a sabre thrust in the back of the neck which left a large and deep scar. He also served in the Black Hawk war. When the war of the rebellion broke out Dr. Armstrong volunteered in defence of the Union. He served as surgeon of the Second Regiment, New York Artillery Volunteers, until peace was declared.

His work in the hospitals injured his sight, and he became a patient in a hospital at Washington. While there he was attended by an Englishwoman who had come to America to nurse wounded soldiers. They were married and went to England, where Mrs. Armstrong died. He returned to America, and several years later went to England, where he married his present wife. Their American home was at Evona.

Aug. 31, 1885, while Dr. and Mrs. Armstrong were living at Evona, two Plainfield physicians, Drs. Endicott and Tomlinson, made an examination and signed a certificate stating that he was insane; and he was taken to the Morris Plains Lunatic Asylum. It is said that he had to be carried away by force. The examination was made, and the certificate was signed, at the request of young Mrs. Armstrong, who, it is said, soon after her aged husband was taken to the asylum sold the property and appropriated his pension.

Drs. Endicott and Tomlinson both agreed that Dr. Armstrong was insane, but Dr. H. H. Lowrie, also of Plainfield, who had been Dr. Armstrongs' family physician for years, was of the opinion that he was sane. Dr. Armstrong had sat for hours relating his experiences in the war with a minuteness of detail that was remarkable. Such a memory, Dr. Lowrie is said to have maintained, did not belong to a diseased brain.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Walter C. Dobbins has returned from Chicago on a vacation visit to his parents.

Alfred J. Menge and family will remove from 24 East Fifth street to East Orange May 1.

F. F. Lockwood, a prominent New York broker, has rented the house at 20 Sandford avenue, for the summer.

The Misses Demarest entertained the "Ladies' 9" of the Y. M. C. A., at their home on East Fifth street, last evening.

Dr. Chauncey B. Ripley, of Westfield, has been chosen Commencement Orator by the Alumni of his Alma Mater for their next meeting in June.

Thomas W. King and family, of Sandford avenue, will leave next week for their summer cottage at Seasconset, on the island of Nantucket, where they will remain until fall.

Miss Annie Buckley, of this city, was one of the four bridesmaids at the wedding of her cousin, Miss Nellie Buckley, at St. Peter's church, Rosendale, N. Y., last evening. The other bridesmaids were the Misses Maggie and Nellie Barry and Miss Sarah Murphy, of New York city. They too were cousins of the bride.

A charming wedding will take place in the First Presbyterian church this evening, when Miss Beulah Pharoh Ketcham, daughter of the Rev. Kneeland P. Ketcham, will become wife of Eugene H. Hatch. The bride will be conducted to the altar and "given away" by Edward St. John. Her costume will be of white, and the favored few who have seen it say that with the bride's own self to adorn it it will be a lovely picture. The chief usher will be Dr. E. W. Hedges. Miss Mary Many, a very near friend of the bride, will be bridesmaid. She will look particularly handsome in a costume whose elegance is heightened by her own natural beauty. The Rev. Dr. Ketcham, father of the bride, will perform the marriage ceremony, which will be a modification of the Episcopalian service. Clarence L. Eick, of Elizabeth, organist of the church, will render a half-hour musical service on the big church organ. The bride and groom have been overwhelmed with a choice abundance of wedding gifts that their friends have bestowed on them. The number of guests at the ceremony will be very large. Many people will be present from out of town, some from even so far as Chicago. After the ceremony an informal reception will be given to the bride and groom, the clergyman, and the bridesmaid, "best man" and ushers, at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Murray, on Broadway.

The Dam Case Settled.

The mill-dam suit between Charles Hyde and P. M. French was settled, last night, to the mutal satisfaction of the contestants.

Mr. French agreed to draw down the water in his pond 8½ inches below the top of the dam, during the day time, on week days, from May 1, to November 1, and Mr. Hyde agreed to make no objection to the pond being kept full at all other times, nor to Mr. French's raising his dam 3 inches in the centre so as to make it level.

VAIL BOWLS 212.

And the Crescent League's Team Rolls Far Away From the New Brunswicks.

The New Brunswick Young Men's Christian Association team came to Plainfield, last evening, to bowl the Crescent Leagues, and started the game at a pace that would have frightened any other bowlers with less sand than Captain VanEmburgh's team. The visitors came down their first frame with but one break and a total of 158, while four of the Crescents broke badly and got but 137 as a beginning.

But the rest of the game was different. The Crescents pulled themselves together and picked off the pins of difficult spares in wonderful style. Had they been hard pushed they could have rolled a 1600 score. Meanwhile the visitors fell all away when they saw such bowling, and finished 216 pins behind.

Vail distinguished himself by making the highest score in a match game this season, beating Dilts's score of 211 in the game against Elizabeth, by one pin. Doane, however, deserves the most credit. It was his first match game, yet he bowled 155 in fine shape. Pelletreau showed signs of his old form again, and VanEmburgh, Teel and Davis also did nobly.

Saturday evening though, will try the Crescents skill and grit. The "Echos", last year's champions of Brooklyn, will set a score that will be hard to chase. Every Leaguer should therefore be on hand to encourage the home team. Last evening's score was:

CRESCENT LEAGUE.		NEW BRUNSWICKS.
VanEmburgh	146	Rastell	124
Thiers	133	Macom	130

A Congregation on Strike.

There is a singular strike in progress in Elizabethport. It is that of the Fulton Street Methodist Episcopal church congregation against the Bishop and the Presiding Elder of the Newark Conference. It is not probable that the New Jersey militia will be called upon to quell the trouble, but affairs did look blue Sunday for that portion of the church militant immediately concerned, since the sexton refused to ring the bell and the choir refused to sing, while of a big congregation only about thirty people attended the services.

The trouble is due to the fact that the church asked for the Rev. W. E. Simpson as pastor, and, in the wisdom of the Conference, got the Rev. G. H. Johnston instead. The latter thus becomes the innocent victim of a wrath which he would have been more than willing to escape, since his choice and expressed desire was to go to another pulpit to which another congregation was as anxious to welcome him as were the Elizabethport people to greet the Rev. Mr. Simpson. Mr. Johnston hopes to adjust matters amicably, and it is indeed to be sincerely desired that the disappointed flock to which he has been sent may, before another Sunday, come to see and repent of the really unjust treatment to which it is subjecting him. To be righteously indignant at the slighting of an apparently reasonable wish is perhaps excusable, but it is a question if the Elizabethport congregation has taken a becoming method of demonstrating its disapproval.—N. Y. World.

No Such Dead Advertisements in THE PRESS.

(From The Advertisers' Guide.)

A merchant in Plainfield is using his space to advertise "a full line of new and artistic designs for the holidays, in jewelry, silverware, clocks, etc., etc".

It is just such neglect to utilize space to the best advantage that causes some people to say advertising does n't pay! You might as well advertise ice delivered at Christmas or a special sale of blankets on the 4th of July.

A publisher would be justified in killing such matter even if paid for, avoiding the annoyance caused to his readers by having announcements entirely out of season, placed before them, exhibiting a lamentable want of business enterprise.

Welcome Friends.

By a rare accident I was made acquainted with Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills, and have used them for two years. They act gently and like a charm, correcting the secretion and preventing other diseases. I subscribe myself your friend, as your pills are welcome friends to me.

But Plainfield Deacons Are All Honest.

(From The New Haven Palladium.)

The preacher who looked down over a fashionable congregation and asked, "Where are the poor"? and then looked at the collection and asked, "Where are the rich"? should have been in Plainfield, N. J., Sunday last. In a Presbyterian church $12,803.15 in cash and checks was placed on the plate. If this thing keeps up, it may be necessary to put our deacons under bonds.

Joe Pike and His Bicycle.

The following important telegraph dispatch from Newark was received by THE PRESS at 4:25 this afternoon:

J. Pike rides from Plainfield to Newark in fifty-seven minutes and a half. J. S. PIKE.

—At Pecks, to-morrow, all who wish to see what can be done on the Demorest sewing machine, are invited.

Shiloh's Cough Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10c., 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

PERTINENT PARAGRAPHS.

NUGGETS OF LOCAL NEWS, WITH GRAINS OF FREE-LANCE COMMENT.

Those young ladies—and there are many of them in Plainfield—who find fault with the long distances that they are frequently called on to walk, between the east and the west sides of town, and between city and borough, and who long so eagerly for the coming of the electric railway so that they can get about with less fatigue, need to take a lesson from sturdy, rugged Hannah Stites, who lives away over the mountain. Mrs. Stites is 78 years of age, but almost every pleasant day in the year, and some rainy ones, she trudges into town, transacts clear-headedly such business as she may have to attend to, and trudges home again. The journeys she takes afoot would paralyze some of the maidens who find a walk from end to end of Seventh street, or from Washington Park to the post-office, so tiresome, yet Mrs. Stites considers her feats of pedestrianism nothing at all. She says that in her girlhood days a young woman was n't considered good for much if she could n't take a four or five mile tramp twice a day with ease, and can't understand what's the matter with the girls of to-day.

***

The Paragrapher would suggest, in this connection, that it would be an excellent idea for the Plainfield young people to organize a ramblers' club. This section of country is just the kind of a garden-spot that deserves exploring. The Paragrapher has in times recently past indulged in some rambling on his own account, through this locality, and will cheerfully map out very desirable routes for those desiring assistance of that sort. The exercise of rambling is highly beneficial, and the merest novice soon gets to love the pastime and ere long finds himself in a state of constant delight over the new beauties he is continually discovering in nature on every hand. Who will be the first to dub himself a Fresh-Air Tramper, and taste of the pleasures that await the outdoor rambler?

***

One thing that brings Hannah Stites to Plainfield a great deal is her persistent effort to secure a pension from the government. She had a son in the army, but there seems to be some technical difficulty in the way of getting financial return for the life-blood that he shed to save his country. The Paragrapher knows nothing of the details of the war record of the soldier boy, but his faith in human nature is so great that he is willing to stake a great deal that the record was a most faithful and deserving one. Mrs. Stites begins to feel that old age will soon be coming on, and is properly desirious of having the government care for her in her closing days in return for the sacrifice she made, in the surrender of her son to his country's need. The Paragrapher is sure that the son of so sturdy, self-reliant, patriotic and brave a woman was a soldier good and true, and he hopes that the plucky little woman may soon sweep aside technicalities and other obstacles, and win the pension for which she has been so earnestly striving.

***

The idea of floating the American flag over the public schools of the city is very pretty and commendable. As one comes into town by the cars, these fine spring days, he cannot but thrill with a sense of loyalty and a feeling of inspiration at sight of the beautiful starry banner of the free waving proudly in the breeze from the top of every school-house in the city and its suburbs.

***

The observance of Arbor Day among the Plainfield public schools was highly enjoyable, and was fraught with much benefit, as well as pleasure, to the pupils, in the lessons conveyed by the elder ones who directed the exercises of the holiday.

A happy thought that occurred to a school in another section of the State, in connection with the day, and an idea that might be advantageously adopted in Plainfield at future celebrations, is the planting of a class tree. This can be made a charming feature of the day. The idea is that each class shall plant a thrifty shade tree—or even two or three—in some hitherto shadeless section of the city, preferably on the grounds surrounding the school-house. In future years each member of the class feels that the growth of the tree is identified with his own life, and he takes pride in watching over its welfare. The exercises in connection with the planting may be made very delightful.

Now that the silk mills at Stirling, right near home, are closed because of reduction of wages and a consequent strike, it has been brought to the attention of The Paragrapher that silk mill strikes are reported from all quarters, and that great depression exists in the silk trade throughout the country. To the question Why? the Paterson Press gives this answer:

If anybody wants to know what is the matter with the silk trade let him cast his eye about the first time he happens to be in an assemblage of women, at church, the theatre or elsewhere. He will see that the gowns are nearly all of light woolen fabrics, and that the hats look like small flower gardens when they do not look like feather beds. Little silk of any kind in dress goods or trimmings is visible. What the silk men want to do is to address themselves to bringing about a change in the fashions. It is impossible that the silk industry can be prosperous until there is a change.

***

Concerning the strike at Stirling, The Paragrapher is told a somewhat amusing story. It seems that ever since the strike began the strikers have been thirsting for beer, which has not been in any way procurable: A day or two ago wheelwright Larry, of South Stirling, bought two goats in Plainfield and took them home in a big dry goods box on board his wagon. He also had in the wagon an extensive assortment of jugs, variously filled with sharp vinegar, linseed oil, turpentine, kerosene, and soft soap. By way of joke some wag at the hotel where Larry paused on his way home hung a big bock beer sign, bearing the picture of a goat, on the box containing the live animals. When the Stirling strikers caught sight of this sign they swooped down on Larry as a public benefactor, and clamored to quaff the bock beer he had brought them. Larry assured them that he had no beer, but they thought that he was chaffing them, and insisted on sampling the good liquor which they were sure was ready to froth and sparkle forth from the jugs. After some words, which put the genial Larry into an angry mood, and caused him to say saucy things that stirred them into recklessness, they stormed his wagon and confiscated the entire stock of jugs. Each man, so far as the jugs would go 'round, appropriated a jug for the benefit of his own thirsty throat. The corks were hastily drawn, and the jugs were turned bottom-side-up, with the earthen mouth pressed close to eager lips. In an instant each drinker had gulped down a great mouthful of the stuff in his individual jug, and then there was a scene. The men who got a dose of vinegar did n't care much; but the fellows who had treated themselves to the linseed oil, turpentine, kerosene, or soft soap, very expeditiously sought out a soft place on the greensward and filled the atmosphere with their wails of remorse. To add to their wretchedness, the two frisky goats got out of the box and scampered around from man to man, butting them unmercifully at just such portions of their anatomy as were at that moment most susceptible to feeling. Most of the men wanted to die on the spot, but gradually their misery departed, and, very pale, they vowed to take the temperance pledge at the first opportunity.

***

The Salvation Army lasses are doing a good work in Plainfield. The Paragrapher has been a most interested observer of them since their coming to this city, and is greatly impressed with the look of beatific happiness that constantly shines from their countenances. The kindliest of smiles always illumine their features; from their faces gleams a radiance, a light, that indicates better than words what happy, contented lives they lead. They seem at once serene and earnest; for themselves they have determined on a life of purity and goodness and Christ-like deeds, and they find it such a joy to be always working for their Master and helping others into the light that the gladness of it beams out and surrounds their presence like a halo of holy sunshine.

***

One of the most zealous Christian workers it has ever been the fortune of The Paragrapher to meet was Cadet Groscloude, who bade her Plainfield friends good-bye and God speed at a farewell meeting in Reform Hall Sunday evening. Miss Groscloude was known locally as "the French girl". There was no place she did not dare to go with her Gospel message. She was a constant visitor to the bar rooms, seeking to persuade men to forsake their evil ways, and freely mingled with the roughest and most degraded element in town, striving to do good. She always shed a radiance of purity about her, and many a saddened heart she lightened, and many a hard and brutal one she softened. She called wayward boys and sinful men her "rough diamonds", and from admiring her for her pluck and daring in the Master's cause they developed an interest in her work, a personal championship of her against sneers and taunts and foul words and abuse, and finally something akin to personal devotion and love of the cause. Her methods were excellent, her personal manner was very winning, and she brought scores and scores of people out of darkness into clearer light. The work which she was doing so well she now leaves in the hands of her capable sisters, while she enters another field, at Montclair.

***

Apropos of the passage of the ordinance which is to give Plainfield an electric street railway, and because hairpin stories are always in order, The Paragrapher quotes the following from his clever, versatile and entertaining friend, The Woman About Town, in The Evening Sun:

The Electrical Review tells a new hairpin story. On an electric car in Augusta, Ga., some time ago, a pin was lost from the trolley, and the car stopped. Then a woman passenger stepped forward and offered a hairpin to take the place of the lost pin. It was slipped into place and found to fit, and the car ran all day with the hairpin holding the trolley.

Women have never needed any justification of their faith in their hairpins. Armed with a woman's intuition and a hairpin, a woman will undertake almost anything, from drawing the cork out of a bottle to running a Mississippi steamboat. And the results usually justify her.

"I believe my wife could make a cosy home out of a newspaper and the Desert of Sahara"—said a fond husband.—"Couldn't you, my dear?"

"I think I could, John,"—answered the wife, modestly—"if I could have just one hairpin besides."

***

The Paragrapher takes a great interest in the newspapers of the State, and as a Jerseyman and a newspaper man is proud of most of them. One of the best country weeklies he ever saw is The Chronicle of Bound Brook. Editor Mason turns out an excellent newspaper, besides being postmaster of a well-conducted post-office. All of the neighborhood news may be found in his paper, which is as neat typographically as it is bright and newsy. The Chronicle handled the murder of last Friday night as quickly and well as a metropolitan journal would have done. The story was concise and cleverly written, and is still traveling about the weekly papers of Somerset, Hunterdon and Warren counties.

***

But even so excellent a paper as The Chronicle sometimes errs when handling Plainfield matters. In last week's issue Mr. Mason said editorially:

In Plainfield's recent disastrous fire, by which two large stores were destroyed, the efforts of its fire department were handicapped by a dearth of water. No such misfortune can befall Bound Brook, where the splendid water service—probably unsurpassed anywhere—affords every advantage to its well-equipped firemen in combatting the devouring fiend.

***

The fact of the matter is that there was no shortage of water whatever at the Pierson fire; nor has there been at any recent fire in Plainfield. The "as usual" of Mr. Mason is unkind, unjust. There was trouble about getting steam up—but that is another matter, and one that is going to be remedied as soon as possible. Chief Doane has long been trying to get the Common Council to give him new heaters for the engine houses, so that steam may be kept up in the boilers of the fire engines all the time. The old heaters are worn out and useless, and whenever there is a fire delay is caused by having to wait for the newly-built fires in the fire-box of the engines themselves to heat the boilers and generate steam. The Council will, it is hoped, secure new heaters for the engine-houses at a very early date; and then the water in the boilers can be kept hot all the time, and a sufficient head of steam will be ready at a fire as soon as a line of hose is stretched. The matter has been delayed long enough; further procrastination may prove highly disastrous.

***

There has been no difficulty with the water supply, however, and the present good supply will ere long be very much better. Exhaustless hydrants will soon displace the wells of to-day.

***

Councilman Ackerman made a very earnest speech at Monday night's Council meeting, hampered though he was by a bad cold; but what he said was entirely different from what appeared in the Somerset street organ that has been grinding out trolley tunes for him. It is not for The Paragrapher to say who is at fault in this mis-reporting, but it looks very much as though the manuscript published by the organ had been furnished by the hand of some one besides a conscientious reporter. Did the councilman send a copy of the wrong speech, or did he deliver the wrong one? What he did say was quoted faithfully in THE PRESS and The Times. What he did n't say was published elsewhere.

***

What Plainfielder ever saw a horse with a green tail? The Paragrapher has searched through enterprising dime museums, and has looked elsewhere, for the freak, but has n't yet run across it. Yet that some horses have hirstuteness of an emerald hue the following story, from The Daily Continent, would indicate:

John C. Ketterlinus, a New York lithographer, got up a fashion plate, depicting a portion of the Centennial parade, for Peck & Hauchaus, two years ago, for which they agreed to pay him $434.43. They refused to pay, claiming that the plate was worthless, and that one of the horses in the plate had a green tail. The green tail was the principal objection.

Ketterlinus sued the firm for his bill, and on the trial before Judge McCarthy, in the City Court, yesterday, experts Taylor and Ernest Sauer said they had seen horses with green tails. The jury gave the plaintiff $574.47, being the original bill with interest.

It does look as if the expert horsemen must have known what they were talking about, but it may be that the court did n't know the expert horsemen.

THE CARDS RAN BAD.

Crescent League's Whist Players Lose Last Night's Set, But They Still Stand First in the Tournament.

The fifth of the series of whist games scheduled to decide the Central railroad championship was played last evening. The N. J. Athletics of Bergen Point met the Crescents in this city, and the Elizabeth Athletics met the Westfield Athletics at the rooms of the latter.

Plainfield lost, as shown by the score below, and the N. J. A. C's deserve credit for winning as they did, although the cards ran best for the visitors. Kleb & Bates were 15 behind on their three games, and Keller & Miller also. Consequently, although Dunham & Daniel won by 17 points, the Crescent League's team were 13 behind on the whole.

The third set between Keller & Miller and Scofield & Fuller was one of the prettiest exhibitions of whist that was ever seen. The unblocking play of both teams was remarkably clever, but the cards were in favor of the latter.

At Westfield, worst disaster met the home team. The Elizabeths won by 53 points on a total of 277 to 224. The detailed score of the Plainfield games, and the record of the tournament to date, are as follows:

CRESCENTS.		N. J. A. C.
Kleb & Bates	31	Newman & Newman	32
Keller & Miller	24	Leonard & Smith	15

Grand Jurors in Somerset.

The grand jury now in session at Somerville is composed of the following:

James M. Thompson (foreman), Erastus Randall, Morris M. Cutter, Matthew P. Lane, Charles L. Conklin, H. G. Whitnall, Calvin D. Smith, Peter E. Cramer, Alex. B. Brokaw, Jacob Klotz, Gilbert S. Cook, Frederick Frech, Charles N. Hoagland, Thomas Cooper, Peter J. Staats, A. V. D. Williamson, John Groendyke, George Higgins, Garret Durling, David C. Voorhees, John Vetterlein, George W. Bullman, Peter Bower, John W. Codington.

Judge Magie's charge to the grand jury, Tuesday, was brief, and directed solely to the investigation of the circumstances surrounding the recent homicide at Bound Brook. He defined the different degrees of murder and told the grand jurors that if, after taking all the circumstances into account, they could not determine the grade of the crime it would be their duty to indict for murder and leave the petit jury to determine the degree.

It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are not straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public esteem accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for selling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of Shoes.

HOME FROM SCHOOL.

The frost of age was on his locks
That rivaled once the raven's wing,
The voice, in youth so clear and strong,
Through age and pain had lost its ring;
The brilliance of his life's long day
Was fading fast to twilight gray.

Beside his couch in patience sat
His bride of many summers past,
And down her bloomless, withered cheeks,
The silent tears were falling fast,
When turning meekly on his bed,
He grasped her hand and feebly said:
"Are the boys home from school?"

She gently pressed the withered hand
That through the years had been her guide,
As at his words she saw again
Her children gathered at her side;
She saw each childish happy face;
Once more she felt their warm embrace.

She saw the havoc of the years—
Each one had left a vacant chair—
And then again the falling tears
Bedewed the old man's silvery hair.
As bending o'er him with a sigh
In tender voice she made reply:
"The boys are home from school."
—Edwin Ralph Collins, in Texas Siftings.

THE OLD MILL.

A Weary Tramp That Won the Young Miller a Wife.

DO I KNOW anything about the ruins of this old mill? Well, yes, stranger, I should say I did, if any one does. It belongs to me, or rather to my wife, what there is of it. I tell you I owe much to this old mill."

The speaker was dressed in homespun, and appeared to be a thrifty farmer of forty-five. I had taken a walk before breakfast one morning as an appetizer, out from Jonesboro, where I was attending court, and was standing by the ruins of the old mill when he came up. The roof had fallen in, windows and doors disappeared. The old water-wheel had crumbled to decay and green ivy covered the ruins. The dam was now leveled to a road, and a cabbage patch had taken the place of the mill-pond.

We took a seat on a moss-grown log by the side of the ruin, and he continued:

"I was with Stonewall during the war, and had some pretty tough times, some narrow escapes and some hard tramps, but the close call and hard tramp that this old mill once caused me made all of my war experience seem, at least for a time, like a pleasure trip. This was the first mill built on Cedar creek, and was built many years ago by old man Ben White, who lies up yonder on the hill.

"After the surrender our army was disbanded, and the most on us was pretty close run. We had nothing and no way to get any thing. I was only about twenty-one then. I was strolling round looking for something to do, and I happened along this road one morning. Well, that morning the wheel was in action. The gate was histed and the water was skurrying through. Old Ben White was standing in the door. I says:

" 'Morning, sir. Can I get a job here?' He took off his spectacles, wiped 'em, put 'em back on and looked at me.

" 'Soldier?' says he.

" 'I was,' says I, 'till the surrender.'

" 'Luckier than my boys,' says he. 'One of them staid behind down at Stone river. The other's lying up there on the hill—shot in front of Richmond and come home to die,' and the old man took out his handkerchief and wiped his eyes. 'Did you ever work in a mill?'

" 'No.'

" 'Well, that don't make much difference,' said he; 'business is picking up, and you can stay. I'm getting old. I'll pay you what I can afford to. We can tell better in a week or two. Have you been to breakfast?'

" 'I have not,' I said.

" 'Well, go to the house,' said he. 'Tell Kitty (that's my daughter, the only one the Yanks didn't kill) to give you breakfast; and come back, you can work on the dam to-day. There's some leaks that need stopping.'

"So I went over the hill to the house. I still had my Confederate uniform on, and Mrs. White met me on the piazza. I saw tears on her cheeks, and I suppose the uniform reminded her of her own boys. I told her I was going to work for Mr. White, and that he sent me over for breakfast. So we went in and she called Kitty, who soon had my breakfast on the table. Kitty was about four years younger than I, the picture of health, cheeks as red as roses. Her sparkling eyes kindled a spark in my heart that has never gone out. After breakfast I went back, and Kitty went with me to tend the mill while her father went to breakfast. He showed me the leaks in the dam before he went. In fact, I worked a week patching up the old dam, and after that I worked in the mill and on the farm and in the garden. Drove the produce to town, and became more and more attached to the place and to Ben and Martha White and to Kitty. How I did love that girl! I was never so happy as when listening to the music of her voice. I shall never forget the evenings spent in the big front room before the open fire-place when I was Ben White's hired man—Ben and Martha, and Kitty and I. I used to crack hickory nuts and butternuts on an old flat iron, and Kitty popped corn, while the winter wind was whistling outside.

"In summer Kitty and I used to go fishing. Sometimes we would go up the pond in the boat, and sometimes when the mill was not running we'd go down there and get inside the big wheel and fish in the deep hole. There's where we generally got the finest fish. One day we had just got our fishing tackle out of the mill, and was hesitating whether to go up the pond or down in the wheel, when a neighbor came over and asked us to lend him the boat. He took it, and we went down in the wheel. We'd been fishing probably an hour, and caught some fine ones, when, all of a sudden, down poured the water from the flood gate above, and the wheel commenced turning. The sudden start threw us both down. I got on my feet in an instant and helped Kitty up, and we commenced to tramp in the direction opposite to the way the wheel was moving. We had to in order to keep our feet. I was calling as loud as I could, but it was of no use. The noise made by the falling water, the revolving wheel and the grinding mill drowned my voice. We couldn't get out. The plank from the mill had fallen in the water when the wheel started, and gone floating down the stream. The water poured through the cracks in the old wheel all over us. The deep hole was full now. There was two feet of water in the bottom of the wheel. Tramp, tramp, tramp through two, now three feet of water. I held Kitty by the hand, and we kept on our tramp. I was praying it might be a small grist. Neighbors often brought a two-bushel bag of corn to be ground in a hurry. I thought if that was the extent of the grist we might stand it. We kept up our march till Kitty gave out. The water and the tramp, tramp, had numbed her limbs. Her lips moved, but I could hear nothing she said. I only knew that she was sinking down in the water. I picked her up in my arms, with one hand put her arms around my neck and resumed my tramp in the middle of the wheel. I believe I felt happier than I had ever felt in my life. I held Kitty in my arms. Her arms were around my neck, though I did put them there. I could feel her breath on my cheek. I could walk now easier than before, but even with Kitty in my arms I began to tire. My footsteps were more uncertain. My limbs began to feel numb. At least I could die with Kitty. I looked at her face. Her eyes were closed. Had she fainted? I put my lips close to her ear. They touched her face. 'Kitty! Kitty!' Her eyes opened. Our lips met. Her arms drew tighter around my neck. My brain whirled. Was I becoming unconscious? I could feel that I was reeling as I walked. The water from above ceased to fall. The wheel stopped. Some one leaped in. I knew no more.

"When I came to I was lying in bed. Kitty was sitting by my side, my hand in hers. I had been delirious for a week. As my eyes met hers she said: 'Alex, dear Alex,' and she stooped and kissed me. That kiss brought back to my bewildered brain the events that led to it. I did not regret them.

"Uncle Ben had come down to the mill, and not seeing the boat thought, of course, we had gone up the pond. He lifted the flood-gate, and started the mill to grind a small grist. Finally he chanced to see the boat with the neighbor in it out in the pond. He knew that we sometimes fished from the wheel, and with trembling hands closed the gate, rushed down and into the wheel, to find me reeling and staggering like a drunken man in the water with Kitty in my arms. He got us out, but I fell unconscious.

"The next spring a freshet carried the old dam away, and new mills having been built in Jonesboro we reclaimed the land where the pond had been, and the old mill has gone to decay. Kitty and I were married that fall. Father and mother lived to see our children playing round the ruins of the old mill, and died within a month of each other.

"Now, I've told you the story of the old mill, and if you'll come up to the house and have a cup of coffee before you go back to town I'll show you the wife I won in the old mill wheel; and when you take a look at my daughter Kitty you'll see my wife as she was when we entered it that day. Two years after we were married an uncle of mine died and left me a farm up in Knox County, where we spend part of our time; but there's no place so dear to Kitty and me as the farm on Cedar creek, for its soil covers the remains of dear old Ben and Martha, and here, besides, are the ruins of the old mill."—H. E. Scott, in Chicago News.

ROUGH ON CATS.

A Novel Invention by Which They Are Captured.

The Inventor a Man of Genius Who Has an Intense Dislike for the Feline Race—No More Back-Yard Concerts.

The only Keely's motor is still in the ether, but the inventive genius of Philadelphia has not ceased to burn brightly. A Philadelphia machinist, John J. Chattaway, has invented a device for capturing feline minstrels. Quiet as of the cemetery is absolutely essential to the comfort of a Philadelphian, but the Quaker cats have not as yet learned to mitigate their nocturnal concerts or to temper their lovelorn lays. They patrol the fences and the back yards with the noisy vehemence of their kind, and protesting Philadelphia waves its night-cap and shouts and screams in vain. But the researches of the ingenious Mr. Chattaway have shown how to bell the cat. The part of the town in which he lives, so writes an enthusiast in the Philadelphia Times, "is the arcadia for all the lovemaking toms and tabbies in the neighborhood. On his back fence and on the back fences of all his neighbors it has been the nightly custom, rain or shine, for hundreds of nocturnal prowlers to congregate and there hold discordant revel." Poisoned meat and spring traps were tried without effect. The cats laughed at them. Broken glass, barbed wire, and other amulets against the fencehaunter were equally useless. The cats continued their vociferous proceedings, and the inhabitants swore and suffered.

In the sleepless nights the brain of Chattaway kept working at a plan for conquering the invader of his peace. It came to him finally in a dream. "From his ash-pit he dug a pile of empty tomato cans, and out of these supplemented by a roll of condemned roofing tin, which a sympathizing neighbor kindly donated, he manufactured a contrivance that, if universally adopted, will rob the funny paragraphers of one of their most fecund sources of supply." His completed device for a cat-compeller is a "continuous strip of pyramidal-shaped tin, the apex of the pyramid being placed on top of the fence. The base of the tin triangle is left open, and its sloping sides hang over the fence and stand out from its face. As the apex of this tin roof comes to a sharp point, and its sides are too smooth even for the claw holds of a cat, the result, when a tom or tabby attempts to cross it, is obvious. As soon as their feet strike the tin they are bound to slip, and a fall on one or the other side of the fence is inevitable. As the tin sides project beyond the face of the fence it is impossible for the fallen feline to climb back to its perch again."

The first night's catch is thus reported:

"It was late Monday afternoon when Machinist Chattaway finished nailing his cat-compeller in place, and the curious neighbors wondered what it all meant. Darkness had nearly fallen before the cats began to congregate. As Machinist Chattaway's house is near the middle of the block, his back fence was a sort of meeting place, and the spot where all combats were arranged and fought out. The night was not so dark as to prevent the confident inventor from witnessing the result from his library windows. The first cat to strike the compeller, a gigantic tom, sprang upon the tin coping with a meow of disdain. Like a flash Tom's maltese body described a semi-circle, and, much to his amazement, he landed in the yard. Recovering himself, and with his feline mood up, Tom gripped the fence and scrambled upward. His head struck the projecting tin, and after one or two futile attempts to get a claw hold he slid back into the yard, sans spirit, sans mode, sans confidence. Tom realized that he was a prisoner, and lay low, uttering from time to time a subdued and mournful meow.

"He was not long without company. A tabby was the next victim, and although he recognized her as an old-time sweetheart, and she identified him as a once-favored beau, neither had any heart for love-making, but crouched in opposite corners of the yard, disgustedly blinking at each other. From that time on until dawn cats came, and but few escaped. Those that were fortunate enough to fall on the alley side of the fence scampered away, with their distended tails aloft.

"Early the next morning the smiling inventor softly opened his back door and peeped out. By actual count there were seventeen cats in the yard. Old fighters and young fighters were huddled together. Misery had made them forget their animosities, and they greeted the machinist with frightened stares and mournful whines. When he opened the back gate they rushed out into the alley and scampered away."

Cotton in Bombay.

In Bombay, as in Lancashire, "Cotton is king," says the Pall Mall Gazette. The boats plying in the harbor, the wharves of the splendid docks, the picturesque bullock-carts that throng the streets, are all "cotton." After New Orleans Bombay is the greatest cotton port in the world. Four million cwt. are shipped abroad every year, and 2,000,000 more are spun and woven in the eighty-two mills of the Bombay presidency. The value of all this cotton is about £12,000,000. The old Cotton green, a vast space devoted to dealers in the raw material, is one of the show places of the city, and forms a striking picture of busy native life.

The Needle's Eye.

The above name is given to a subterraneous passage on the coast of Banffshire, one hundred and fifty yards long from sea to sea, but through which a man can, with difficulty, creep. At the north end of the Needle's Eye there is a cave twenty feet high, thirty broad and one hundred and fifty long. The whole of this passage and cave is supported by immense columns of rocks, making a grand scene which has a surprising effect on one who has crept through the narrow passage.

HOW FOGS ARE CAUSED.

They Are Formed From the Moisture of the Earth.

The characteristic feature of fog, from a meteorological point of view, is a sluggish movement of the atmosphere, or practically a calm. Usually with a high barometer in winter the weather is clear and the sky at times clear, so that considerable radiation takes place. In this way the surface of the earth is greatly cooled, and possessing, as it did before, a higher temperature, its moisture is rendered visible in the shape of fog or clouds.

Fogs are also formed over bodies of water which are relatively either cooler or warmer than the air which is resting above them, and it is this which is the primary cause of the dense fogs which have rendered the Banks of Newfoundland notorious. The actual formation of fog over the Banks is attributed to the moist, warm air coming into contact with the cold water of the Labrador current; and it is noticeable that there is a decided increased tendency to fog when a storm area is in passage over the locality, since the air accompanying such disturbance is essentially warm and moist, and when passing over the colder water fog is generated. It must not be forgotten, however, that fog may also arise by the air being cooler than the water.—Toledo Blade.

A FIRE AND A LIFE.

A Sad Story Which Will Come Home to Many Hearts.

Fire! Fire! Fire!

How the alarming cries, and wild clanging of bells thrill you with the horrors of imperiled life!

A house, a home on fire, strikes terror to the soul, and how eagerly you leap to assist in extinguishing the flames, even although the effort is futile, and only a charred and blackened ruin remains.

How well you know, and how many times you have thought it, that the sure time to put out a fire is in the beginning—when the flames are small and the pressure of the foot even, will stamp them out.

And yet, although you know this, although you fully realize the necessity of quick work and the danger of delay in case of fire, in those insidious fires of disease which break out in our bodies, and which threaten our health and life you are stupidly or ignorantly careless.

Do you not know that as the small flames in a house, if allowed to progress, will soon wrap the whole structure in ruin; so the little and apparently trivial ailments and symptoms which undermine our health, if allowed to develop, will soon involve the body in fatal disease?

A little hacking cough, slight fever attended with more or less prostration, will, unless arrested, result in the fever of Consumption.

A weakness from Spring debility, loss of appetite, indigestion, biliousness, etc., will in time kindle the fires of Physical Exhaustion.

Nervousness, lack of energy or ambition, a tired feeling—rising as tired mornings as when you go to bed, will end in NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

Giddiness, swimming of the head, strange faint feelings, short breath, sinking sensation, palpitation of the heart, a feeling of apprehension or anxiety as of impending danger, mean that unless checked immediately you will die suddenly of HEART FAILURE.

Cold feet and legs, weakness and weariness of limbs, trembling, numbness or prickling sensation, are the sure precursors of PARALYSIS.

Headache, loss of memory, confused mind, dull and heavy feeling in head, drowsiness during the day and wakefulness at night, gloom and depression of mind, sense of exhaustion after mental exertion, a feeling of irritability, crossness, or discouragement are sure signs of the approach of that terrible fire of the brain—Insanity.

Will you allow the fires of disease to overwhelm you when you can easily Stamp out the advancing flames, and by arresting the symptoms NOW avoid all danger?

How, do you ask?

By the use of that great remedy for nerves, brain and blood—Dr. Greene's Nervura, which physicians, druggists and people everywhere acknowledge as the greatest medical discovery of the century, the sure restorer of strength, vigor, power and health to the weakened and exhausted system.

Look out for the first of disease before it is too late. Use Dr. Greene's Nervura, which is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless, and can be procured at any druggist's for $1.00 per bottle, and you will prevent the serious conflagration of nervous and physical prostration which threatens your life.

Saved from the Fire of Disease.

My little girl has been taking medicines for a severe nervous trouble nearly two years, receiving no benefit. I bought a bottle of Dr. Greene's Nervura, and her recovery from its use has been remarkable. Others of the family have received benefit from its use. Please publish these facts if it will be the means of helping some one else afflicted as she was.

C. H. BEMIS, Granby, Mass.

Dr. Greene, of 35 West Fourteenth St., New York, its discoverer, is the famous specialist in the cure of nervous and chronic diseases. The doctor has devoted special attention to the treatment of all forms of chronic diseases through letter correspondence, and will give by mail his opinion and advice in any case free of charge. The perfection of his system renders a complete cure almost assured, as his success in treatment by correspondence is wonderful and unequalled.

N. B. Send the symptom blank to fill out, or write Dr. Greene about your case, and a carefully considered letter, fully explaining your disease and giving you a perfect understanding of all its symptoms will be returned, free of charge.

Physical Perfection.

The love of the beautiful is an instinct of the race. Man everywhere seeks to express this sentiment, a savage in the adornament of his person with garish paints and beads, the great artist in his model of the human form divine. The early lessons in the nursery should instill into the mind the duty of making the very best of the faces and forms God has given us, and the necessity of health to beauty is a truth which needs only to be stated. We all want to be physically perfect, and unless proper food is chosen for each individual, carefully adapted to age and constitution, the process of development is interfered with and illness results. Without nutrition there can not be beauty; without proper assimilation of food there is no nutrition; without proper digestion there is no assimilation.—Albany Journal.

Betrothals in Spain.

A curious custom obtains in some portions of Spain in regard to betrothals. A young man who looks with favor upon a handsome young senorita and wishes to gain her hand, calls on the parents for three successive days at the same hour of the day. At the last call he leaves his walking-stick, and if he is to win the desired bride the cane is handed to him when he calls again. But if he is not regarded with favor, the cane is thrown into the street, and in this way the young man is made to understand that further calls will be useless.—N. Y. Ledger.

STRANGE TRAGEDIES

New Jersey's Mysteries Are Worrying the Police.

DOUBTS ABOUT THE KRAUS CASE.

The Story Has Been Carefully Sifted and is Discredited.

The Stream Near Where the Shooting Occurred to be Dragged To-day—No Motive for the Robbery—A Little Light on the Mysterious Murder at Old Bridge—The Murdered Man Not Identified.

PATERSON, N. J., April 24.—No clue has been found to the man who appears in the employes' book at Castle Garden, New York, as "George Fredericks, photographer, Passaic bridge," and who is supposed to have shot Heinrich Kraus in the woods near Delawanna station.

Kraus's story of the shooting, as told to Coroner Nelson W. Young in an antemortem statement and repeated at St. Joseph's Hospital, in this city, has been carefully sifted, and is discredited by the police.

To-day the stream near the spot where the shooting occurred will be dragged on the chance of finding the body of the mysterious Fredericks.

It is possible that Kraus did not tell the entire story of the fight that took place in the woods, and the police of Paterson think that Kraus may have been the aggressor instead of the victim. There are many inconsistencies in Kraus' story, and from his own statement there was no motive for Frederick's attempt on his life other than robbery.

The New Brunswick Mystery.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., April 24.—Some light has been thrown on the mysterious murder at Old Bridge. The body of the unknown man was viewed by a coroner's jury, which adjourned to meet on the 29th.

A clew that points to the probable murderers involves two prisoners in the Middlesex County jail. Joseph Moore and John Murphy were anxious to plead guilty to the charge of robbing a store at Cranberry, and they were at once sentenced to five years' imprisonment. They were captured six miles from Old Bridge about the time of the murder.

An investigation will be made, and Moore and Murphy will probably be heard at the next session of the inquest. Nothing was found on the body of the murdered man that can lead to his identity.

SENT THREE WARSHIPS.

Lord Salisbury Says Portugal Must Respect English Rights in Africa.

LONDON, April 24.—In the House of Lords, Lord Salisbury said that the English had been treated by the Portuguese in a manner not consistent with the engagements entered into by Portugal.

The demeanor, he said, of the Portuguese officials in Africa corresponded so little with the assurances sent from Lisbon that it had been decided to send three British warships to the entrance of the Pungwe River. (Hears.)

Lord Salisbury said that the warships were not large, but would suffice for the purpose.

The Case Against the Orange Belle.

NEWARK, N. J., April 24.—The trial of Miss Lucy Gardiner, the Orange belle, accused of swindling Stern Brothers of New York, was resumed in this city to-day. There was a great throng of society people present. The defendant was accompanied by her mother, and showed no sign that she felt her position beyond keeping her head turned from the spectators. The evidence was in line with that of the previous day, to the effect that the goods had been received by Miss Gardiner, who kept them and than declared the box was empty.

Wanted to Make Stanley Governor.

LONDON, April 24.—According to a Brussels correspondent King Leopold did intend to appoint Henry M. Stanley Governor of the Congo State, it having been represented to him that the appointment would obtain the approval of the American Senate to the Brussels Conference. The King was afterward induced by English influences to give up the idea, and it is also alleged that he has received assurances from America that satisfy him that America's approval will not be withheld.

Max Hunger's Victim.

NEWARK, N. J., April 24.—Martha Magowsky, the young woman who was shot by Max Hunger at Roseville is still in a precarious condition at the City Hospital. She has a bare chance of recovery. She regained consciousness yesterday for a few minutes, when she told the story of the shooting. She said he wanted her to promise to marry him in a month. Her answer was that if he stopped drinking she would marry him in the fall, whether her parents objected or not. Then he shot her.

Stone Brodie Not Indicted.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 24.—The grand jury of Albany County have dismissed the charge against Steve Brodie, the bridge jumper, who is charged with stabbing Wallie Wilson on March 30 last.

DESPERATE STRUGGLE.

A Coke Region Sheriff Shot Three Persons While on an Eviction Tour.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 24.—Sheriff McCormick of Fayette County had a desperate battle at Leisenring No. 3, also known as the Monarch Works of the Frick Company. The sheriff and his deputies had made 12 evictions when the sheriff was attacked by a Hungarian woman named Glashgo. She fired at him with a revolver several times, wounding him in the leg. He closed with her, and, after a desperate struggle, which caused the crowd to collect, took the weapon away from her.

The women became infuriated and acted like a mad person. She caught up an axe and attacked the sheriff, cutting him seriously on the foot. Fearing a fatal termination of the encounter, the sheriff shot the woman, wounding her in several places, inflicting perhaps fatal injuries.

As soon as the woman fell a Hungarian man caught up another axe and tried to finish the sheriff with it. The sheriff shot this man in the mouth, wounding him severely. He was then attacked by other Hungarians, but was rescued by his deputies after he had shot another Slav in the thigh. It is thought none of the men will die.

The Glashgo woman, after being wounded, forced her way into a house where an eviction was in progress and renewed her attack, this time on the sheriff's deputies. She was knocked down with a club. One other man was shot five times by the deputies, but was not fatally hurt.

Company C of the Tenth Regiment came to the aid of the sheriff, and the disturbance ceased.

THE RICHARDS MURDER.

Suspect Bram is Devoting a Good Deal of Time to Prayer.

ELKTON, Md., April 24.—The hearing of George Bram and Frank Ferguson, suspected of murdering Mrs. J. Granville Richards and shooting her husband, in their farm house, near Porter's Bridge, has been set for to-morrow.

To his prison companions Bram talks incessantly about the murder in a dramatic style, and says if he is sentenced to be hanged he shall ask the court that he may die in an open field in the presence of all the people of the place, and also be allowed to put the rope around his own neck and pull the bolt. He devotes a good deal of time to prayer.

Frank Ferguson seldom speaks to anyone, but is an attentive listener. He declares that he is innocent, and that he was in bed when the murder was committed.

Mr. Richards continues to improve, and his recovery now seems assured.

ATTACKED BY ITALIANS.

The Rioters Arrested and Found Armed With Revolvers and Stilettoes.

NEW YORK, April 24.—About 100 Italian stonemasons engaged in building the station of the New Haven Railroad at Porchester struck during the morning because the company refused to concede their demand that eight hours should constitute a day's work.

The strikers went to 149th street and tried to get a number of Italians at work on another building to go on strike. These workmen declined to strike and the mob made an attack on them.

During the melee the police arrived on the scene and captured 16 of the rioters. The police found six revolvers and a large number of stilettoes and knives upon the persons of the prisoners.

Drowned In a Sewer.

NEW YORK, April 24.—A remarkable accident occurred during the afternoon, resulting in the death of John Callahan. The flood of rain backed up the water in front of 143 East 23d street, and the sewer hole there was opened to let the accumulated water escape. Callahan came along and in some manner slipped and fell into the gaping hole. The rushing water carried the body away before an effort could be made to save the unfortunate man. The body has not yet been recovered.

Pastor Lewis Has Resigned.

BOSTON, April 24.—Rev. J. Nelson Lewis, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Malden, has resigned. He claims the reason for this course was not on account of the scandalous story connecting him with a young lady of that church, but because he wished to prevent a division in the church. Mr. Lewis says he will at once take action against his slanderers.

Struck by a Cyclone.

MIDDLETON, Conn., April 24.—A cyclone struck East Berlin last evening. An iron building in process of erection by the Berlin Bridge Company was blown down, causing a loss of $3,000. Dennis Dandette's arm was broken, his leg crushed and he was otherwise injured. Two other men were slightly hurt.

Three Cases of Yellow Fever.

NEW YORK, April 24.—The steamship Advance, from Brazil, which arrived during the morning from Rio Janeiro, has three men on board sick with yellow fever. The crisis in the cases has passed and no danger is feared.

HE TALKS POLITICS

Gen. Clarkson Discusses the Coming Campaign.

THINKS CLEVELAND WILL RUN.

He Says Time Will Indicate the Man Who Will Oppose Him.

Reciprocity Defined as Optional Free Trade—The Next House, He Thinks, Will Furnish the Issues for the Campaign—All Political Parties Will Work for the Farmers' Welfare—The Silver Question.

BOSTON, April 24.—James S. Clarkson, president-elect of the Republican League, was interviewed at his rooms in Young's Hotel. He was sitting at his desk surrounded by books and newspapers and confronted with a big pile of telegrams. He was disposed to talk quite freely about political matters.

"Is reciprocity to be the Republican slogan in the next election?" he was asked.

"Reciprocity is another form of the tariff system. It is optional free trade. What is the result of the issue? The Republican party goes into the field for limited reciprocity, the Democratic party for universal reciprocity."

"Do you interpret the Cincinnati convention as favoring Blaine instead of Harrison?"

"I was not at the convention, so I cannot assume to judge of its sentiments."

"It is said that you are personally out for Blaine as against a renomination of President Harrison?"

"I have no personal choice for President," replied Mr. Clarkson, with deliberation. "Time will indicate the man. When the Democracy shall assume control of the House and have to do something instead of skirmishing against the Republicans it will show the issues on which the next campaign will be fought. President Harrison has made a faithful Executive in every public sense, and is lacking only in the personal popularity which gives a man the the power of electricity in politics. He has demonstrated his qualities fully, and in pure intellectual abilities is not second to any American living to-day, not even excepting his phenomenal Secretary of State."

"What will be the influence of the Alliance movement in Presidential politics?"

"Whoever is the Republican candidate must be a man who can maintain the solidarity of the party in the great agricultural regions west of the Mississippi."

"Do you think ex-President Cleveland's recent interviews, reputed to modify his silver views, will help his availability as a candidate?"

"I believe that Cleveland will be the next Democratic candidate. If his personal views on the silver question don't quite suit the South and West he will make them suit. He feels that the gold people will trust him anyway, and as the Western and Southern Democracy believe in him as a man of destiny he can successfully hypnotize them on the silver question, and I think he is doing it."

Italy Receives News from Washington.

ROME, April 24.—It is stated here that the latest dispatches received from Imperiali, the Italian representative at Washington, are said to foreshadow that not even a money indemnity will be paid to the families of the massacred Italians, the temper of the American people being such that Congress would not dare to make an appropriation. Imperiali has forwarded statements that have greatly surprised the Cabinet, showing as he does that no fear is felt whatever of Italy's fleet.

Vote to Increase Their Pay.

BOSTON, April 24.—The House voted to raise the pay of its members from $750 to $1,000 per annum.

PHILIP L. MOEN DEAD.

The Celebrated "Doc" Wilson Suit and Mystery Recalled.

WORCESTER, Mass., April 24.—Phillip L. Moen died in this city last evening. Mr. Moen's death was due to a paralytic shock sustained a week ago. He was born in Wilna, N. Y., Nov. 13, 1824. He was at the head of the great wire works of Moen & Washburn, located in this city. He was prominent in social, political and religious circles and Worcester's foremost citizen.

Over Mr. Moen's private life there was the shadow of a great mystery, his relations with the notorious "Doc" Levi Wilson, which nine years ago was the topic of discussion in the newspapers of the country. The two men differed widely in their personal habits and tastes.

Wilson never divulged the secret of his mysterious power, and Moen never referred to it but with a sort of horror. Moen paid large sums of money to Wilson, amounting, it is claimed, to hundreds of thousands of dollars.

But finally Wilson became so constant in his demands that Moen saw only ruin before him if he continued satisfying him, and refused to gratify him. This was in 1882. At that time Moen's courage seemed to have been bolstered up in some unaccountable manner, and he instituted those suits in the United States courts for several hundred thousand dollars, money which he claimed he had paid to Wilson under blackmail.

Wilson prepared to fight the case to the end, but Moen weakened. He offered Wilson $150,000 not to defend the case, which Wilson accepted, but Moen did not pay over the money, and thus it was that Wilson immediately instituted the suit for $150,000. The case came up in Boston in December 2, 1885, and after a long trial, in which many incidents of Wilson's checkered career were brought out, went to the jury, which, after a long deliberation, disagreed on Dec. 8. Wilson disappeared after the trial. He was heard of at intervals, but has been reported as dead several times. Moen's secret of Wilson's influence died with him.

THE FARMERS ADJOURN.

New York's Alliance Arrange for the Distribution of the State's Refund.

HORNELLSVILLE, N. Y., April 24.—The concluding session of the State Farmers' Alliance was the most interesting of the convention.

The Alliance declared in favor of having the two-million-dollar refund distributed among the various counties of the State and applied on the taxes for the year. The legislative committee will officially bring the resolution before the Legislature.

The following officers were elected: President, Harvey Arnold, of Wyoming; vice-president, Charles Moore, Steuben; secretary, George A. Scott, Allegheny; treasurer, F. E. Rose, Wayne; lecturer, W. C. Warner, Cataraugus, and an executive committee of five members. Other subordinate officers will be appointed by the executive committee.

The executive committee will decide on the place of holding the next convention.

BOSTON'S LABOR TROUBLES.

Striking Painters Willing to Arbitrate—Letters Carriers Dissatisfied.

BOSTON, April 24.—At a meeting of the striking painters they decided to place their case in the hands of the State Board of Arbitration and return to work pending the settlement of the dispute between them and the master painters.

The letter carriers of this city are very dissatisfied over the fact that they are compelled to work 56 hours per week. The law calls for eight hours' work each day.

The Next Pastor of Tremont Temple.

BOSTON, April 24.—It is probable that the next pastor of Tremont Temple in this city will be Rev. George C. Lorimer of Chicago. It is stated, on good authority, that the Society will hold a meeting to-night, at which the question will be decided. Dr. Lorimer has already resigned his pastorate of the church in Chicago, and it is understood that he is not adverse to returning to this city.

Cigarettes the Cause.

KINGSTON, N. Y., April 24.—William F. Zelle, aged 17, assaulted his father in this town a few days ago and was sent to the Albany penitentiary. He became violent and was returned to jail here. At a medical examination held yesterday he was pronounced insane and will be taken to an asylum. Excessive cigarette smoking, combined with over indulgence in strong liquor, is the cause.

Identified the Murderer.

YORK Pa., April 24.—Michael Stromінger, the husband of the woman who was murdered at Lewisbury, this county, visited the jail during the day and identified W. H. Painton as the man who committed the murder and robbery. D. W. Smith and Franklin D. Smith are also under arrest charged with the crime, and it is said that the latter has confessed.

Guilty of a Serious Charge.

BOSTON, April 24.—John S. Currier, husband of Mrs. Maude Currier, who died in consequence of criminal malpractice, alleged to have been performed by Eugene Graves, pleaded guilty in the Superior Court to an indictment charging him with being an accessory before and after the fact. Graves will be tried in a few days.

Parnell Laughed at Healy's Remark.

DUBLIN, April 24.—In his address to the Irish National Federation Mr. Timothy Healy said that he had written Mr. Parnell's speeches for him and had given interviews in his name, and now Parnell had called him a gutter sparrow. When Parnell was informed of Healy's statement he was very much amused but had nothing to say.

A Movement to Aid Gen. Banks.

BOSTON, April 24.—All the Republican members of Massachusetts in Congress and the Senators have joined in an appeal for funds for General Banks. The purpose is to raise as large a fund as possible and devote the income therefrom to the support of General Banks and his

IN PASADENA TO-DAY

The President Receives Another California Welcome.

BEAUTIFUL FLORAL DISPLAY.

Streets Carpeted With Roses and the Crowds Wild With Excitement.

He Speaks from a Platform Covered With Orange Blossoms—His Horses Become Frightened and Dash Into a Mass of School Children—Gov. Pennoyer Stands on His Dignity—In 'Frisco To-morrow.

PASADENA, Cal., April 24.—The President remained here all night and this morning the town of oranges and flowers started in to outdo all ever done in the Golden State in the way of a welcome.

The President came down the street in an open carriage. He stood up and bowed right and left to the people, and school children literally showered flowers on him until the carriage was full and he stood up to his waist in blossoms. The street was carpeted with roses, lilies and other exotics, and it was the sight of a lifetime. The crowds were wild with enthusiasm and shouted themselves hoarse.

Several thousand people assembled about a temporary platform covered with calla lilies and orange blossoms and to this the President was escorted along a pathway of flowers a foot deep. He made a short speech, and Messrs. Wanamaker and Rusk also spoke. Another shower of flowers fell on the President, who thanked the people for their reception.

Narrow Escape from Death.

At the high school the children had assembled and they repeated the novel ceremony of throwing flowers in front of the President's carriage and of raining bouquets on him. Here the fiery spirited horses attached to the President's carriage became frightened and dashed into a mass of school children. A cry of horror arose from the assembly as children fell under the horses' feet. Quick hands, however, grasped the bridle reins and quieted the frightened horses. No one was injured and the procession moved on.

While awaiting the arrival of the Presidential party at Arlington station, Louis Munson, editor of the Banning Herald, was attacked by a hemorrhage and died in a few minutes.

In San Francisco To-morrow Night.

In San Francisco already the sound of preparation for the President's visit is heard and re-echoes as far south as this lovely spot, and the display of affectionate respect promises to excel anything yet witnessed or expected. He reaches there Saturday evening at 7 o'clock. The President will be a week in San Francisco, and it will be a six days' round of pleasure, with Sunday only for a day of complete rest.

Gov. Pennoyer Stands on His Dignity.

PORTLAND, Ore., April 24.—It is reported that Gov. Pennoyer, when asked whether he would go to the State line to receive the President, said: "Mr. Harrison represents, in his official capacity, the official power and dignity of the Federal government. I, as Governor of Oregon, represent the State of Oregon in the same way. We are equal. I have no business to go and pay homage to him. On the contrary, when he visits Oregon, he should rather pay his respects to me as its official executive."

UNDESIRABLE IMMIGRANTS.

Secretary Foster Thinks that the Present Laws Are Not Strict Enough.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Secretary Foster is very much interested in the immigration question. Not only will he do all in his power to enforce the existing laws against the landing of undesirable classes, but he says he will give the matter considerable attention in his report. Mr. Foster thinks the laws we now have are not strict enough, and he will recommend to Congress that the lines be drawn closer.

There is evidently a strong feeling everywhere, the Secretary says, on the subject, and legislation that will keep the ignorant hordes from southern Europe out of the United States will be received with approval. The educational test, which would exclude most of the Italians, Poles and Hungarians, seems to him to offer a very direct remedy. But there are several other plans suggested, which he will look into as soon as he takes up the subject.

National Naturalization Registry.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Officials of the Department of Justice are considering a suggestion to keep their national register of naturalization so as to prevent any mistake such as Italy may have committed in the matter of citizenship of the mobbed Mafia members in New Orleans. It is proposed to make it, by a special law, a part of all officials who certify to the naturalization of citizens to send a memorandum card to the Department of Justice to be filed away for convenient reference and for the information of the public.

The Haveneyers to be Sued.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The Haveneyer Sugar Refining Company is to be sued for refusing to furnish information required by the Census Bureau. The superintendent has directed the chief special agent at New York to take the preliminary steps. The action will be brought under section 15 of the Census act, which provides a penalty of a fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment for one year for refusing to give the information required. Other prosecutions, it is said, are to follow.

Pugilist Mitchell to Arrive To-day.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Frank Slavin and Charley Mitchell are expected to arrive in this city some time to-day on the White Star steamer Germanic. Billy Madden has chartered the steamer Laura M. Starin, and with a large party of friends will welcome the pugilists.

ROME SHAKEN UP.

The Eternal City Swayed by a Terrible Powder Explosion.

ROME, April 24.—The explosion at a. m. of the great powder magazine at Pozzo Pantallo, four kilometres from here, spread terror and dismay on all sides.

The general opinion that prevailed was that Rome had been visited by an earthquake shock and that a second shock might reduce the city to ruins. Many fell upon their knees and prayed aloud.

All the houses within a radius of a kilometre of the scene of the explosion are seriously damaged. Seven persons were killed and fully 120 civilians were taken to the different hospitals suffering from wounds or bruises caused by the explosion.

King Humbert, accompanied by Premier Rudini and every member of the cabinet went at once to the scene of the disaster. The appearance of the King in the streets on his way to Pozzo Pantallo excited the utmost enthusiasm among the people who still thronged the thoroughfares, and exerted a decided influence in reassuring the timid.

When King Humbert was seen returning from the wreck, conveying some of the wounded to the hospital in his own carriage, he was given an ovation all along the line of his progress.

The Vatican was shaken, and several of the famous historical stained-glass windows of the old building were shattered. The windows in the ancient Raphael chambers, and the stained-glass in the Royal staircase, presented to Pope Pius IX by the King of Bavaria, were seriously injured.

The interiors of many of the old churches and palaces have suffered.

The Pope is said to be deeply stirred over the damage to the Vatican and will enter a protest against the alleged negligence of the Italian government in storing such a vast quantity of powder contiguous to Rome.

The rumors that the explosion was of anarchist origin are without foundation. The official report says that the inquiries made on the spot tend to show that the explosion was purely accidental.

THE KENDRICKS SUIT.

The Ex-Mayor of Waterbury Does Not Answer.

NEW YORK, April 24.—The suit of Laura Kendrick, nee Miss Cresswell of Philadelphia, for an absolute divorce from Grier K. Kendrick, ex-Mayor of Waterbury, Conn., has been commenced before Judge Andrews in the Supreme Court.

Kendrick neither put in an answer to the suit nor an appearance in court.

Mrs. Kendrick, who is a petite, stylish woman of 26 years, said she married the absent defendant December 2, 1889, and they subsequently took apartments at the St. Cloud Hotel in this city. She soon discovered that her husband had an apartment in Forty-third street with another woman who passed as his wife.

A servant corroborated the latter statement.

As the family who then rented the house in Forty-third street had gone to Baltimore, the judge adjourned the case until their evidence can be had.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The entire street car system in Detroit is paralyzed by the strike.

George Graber, a Cincinnati porter, shot and killed his wife and then himself.

Gen. Greeley, Chief of the U. S. Signal Service, has arrived at San Francisco on a tour of inspection.

Philadelphia claims that the census returns already show that that city leads all others in the country in the value of annual manufacturing products.

The 5,000 workingmen and the business community of Ashland, Pa., are elated over orders just given out that the Reading colleries in this region, which have been working four days a week, would until further notice work every day.

Parnell's envoy, Mr. Thomas Power O'Connor, visited Lynn, Mass., with a view to ascertaining the spirit in which a call from the Parnellite envoys would be received in that place. He met with little encouragement from the local branch of the Land League.

The tobacco factories of Marburg Bros. and C. W. Gail & Ax, of Baltimore, Md., have been bought by the American Tobacco Company of New York, and will hereafter be operated by that company. The price paid for the property cannot be learned but a conservative estimate places it at $5,000,000.

The Pennsylvania House of Representatives, by a vote of 117 to 58, passed the Brooks wholesale license bill as amended. According to the provisions of the bill the wholesale brewers and wholesale distillers will have to pay a license fee of $1,000 in first-class cities; in third-class cities $500 and in other cities, boroughs, and townships in proportion.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—For New England: Showers; winds shifting to westerly; cooler.

For Eastern New York and New Jersey: Showers; westerly winds; cooler.

For Western New York: Fair; northwesterly winds; stationary temperature.

THE DAILY PRESS.

W. L. & A. L. FORCE, Publishers and Proprietors.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - Managing Editor.

BY THE WAY.

—Do you need a new corset? Then come to Peck's

—Voehl, at 17 West Front street, is selling fine spring chickens at the rate of 75 cents apiece.

—Proprietor Wendell of Wendell's Hall at Dunellen fractured his right arm last night while climbing a fence.

—The United Tea and Coffee Growers' Association have another important advertisement in to-day's PRESS.

—Reports from farmers throughout the State are to the effect that this season will be the greatest fruit season in several years.

—A gospel meeting of intense interest to which all are invited, is held every week night at Association Hall, opposite the post-office.

—The Plainfield Cuban Giants will play a game of base-ball against the Netherwoods, Saturday morning, on the grounds at Netherwood.

—William Sullivan and lady, of this city, won a diamond ring for being the best waltzers at the ball at Wendell's Hall, Dunellen, last night.

—Arbutus hunting parties are out daily in quest of the fragrant Spring flower. This much-sought-after blossom is reported as being more beautiful this year than usual, on account of the fine weather for the past few days.

—E. P. Thorn, of No. 17 Park avenue, will open to his customers, free, next Monday, a number of bottles of Ballentine's lager beer, which have been exposed to the sun's rays in his windows for a year. This test will show the excellence of Ballentine's brewing.

—The Bible normal training class of the Young People's League of the First Baptist church, conducted by Charles B. Brown, meets this evening in the church parlors from 7 to 8 o'clock. Subject—"Outline Study of the Book of Leviticus." Any of the young people of the city are cordially invited to join this class.

—The editor of the Phillipsburg Democrat finds his editorial duties preying heavily on him. He writes: "A correspondent sends us a poem headed. 'Are You Weary?' After reading the poem attentively, we can truly say that we are. Another such a poetical effusion, if we are compelled to wade through it, will lay us up for the Summer."

—The Crescent League team that will roll the "Echoes", champions of Brooklyn, to-morrow, will be selected from the following fine bowlers: VanEmburgh, Rogers, Teel, VanWinkle, Thiers, Pelletreau, Haven, Vail, Davis, Doane and Reed. The ladies are especially invited to be present at the club house, to-morrow evening, and see the most exciting match of the season.

—P. S. Tingley, village blacksmith at South Branch, Somerset county, has a hen that has produced one of the strangest eggs ever heard of, not only for size but for its phenomenal make-up. It was an egg within an egg, both being perfect. The outer egg measured eight inches in length, six and seven-eighths inches in circumference, and weighed four and a-half ounces. The inside egg measured five and nine-sixteenths inches in length and five inches in circumference.

—Work is progressing rapidly on the Rockaway Valley railroad, which is to run from Peapack to Mendham, and eventually to Morristown, where it will in a few years connect with the Caldwell branch of the Erie. When the work is completed, early in June, or possibly in May, there will be a big celebration. Everything is on the ground to enable rapid work to be done. The grade between Mendham and Peapack is at no point more than ten feet to the mile, and when the project is finally completed New York business men can reach Mendham in an hour and twenty minutes.

Plainfield Knights Made the Banquet Merry.

Lodge of the Castle, Knights of Pythias, No. 82, of this place, tendered a reception to Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, of Plainfield, on Monday night. There were about fifty members of the Plainfield Lodge present, and there were also guests from Scotch Plains, Bound Brook, Elizabeth, Phillipsburg, Frenchtown and Flemington. In all, about sat down to a banquet spread in Somerset Hall. Prior to the supper the Amplified Third degree was worked on two candidates in the Lodge room.

When cigars had been lighted the Knights were favored with several speeches. Grand Chancellor John Ulrich, of Plainfield, and the Rev. William M. Trumbower, of the Methodist church here, were the principal speakers, though others followed with a few words. John H. Carney, of North Plainfield, gave some amusing declamations in the German brogue. It was past midnight when the festivities were ended. The Plainfield Lodge left on a special train at one o'clock.—Somerville Unionist-Gazette.

Liquor Licenses in North Plainfield.

The application of Henry Wiedenmeyer to keep a hotel in North Plainfield was to-day refused by the court at Somerville. Frank Linke withdrew his application for wholesale license and granted one for retail only. The township therefore has the same number of bar rooms as last year. The Rev. W. E. Honeyman represented the remonstrants against the applications before the court.

HYMENEAL.

Hatch—Ketcham.

The wedding of Miss Beulah Pharo Ketcham, only daughter of the Rev. Dr. Kneeland Platt Ketcham, to Eugene Hamlin Hatch, the New York lawyer, at the First Presbyterian church last evening, was the very charming affair which THE PRESS of yesterday predicted. The church, which was beautifully decorated with choice flowers, was thronged with invited witnesses. At a few minutes past eight the bride alighted from her carriage and was escorted to the altar, and "given away" by Edward St. John, as had been announced, together with the other detailed arrangements of the event, exclusively in THE PRESS. The ceremony was performed by the father of the bride. Miss Mary E. Many, the maid of honor, was strikingly handsome in a costume of yellow crepe. The bride looked delightfully charming in a costume of bengaline, trimmed with point-lace. The "best man" was Ernest L. Conant of New York city. The ushers were Dr. Ellis W. Hedges, James P. Murray, Edward F. Many and Dexter O. Tiffany, all of this city; Frederick H. Darling of New York, and Lewis B. Chamberlain of Rutgers College, New Brunswick.

A pleasant feature of the wedding was the half-hour musical service given on the grand church organ by Clarence L. Eick of Elizabeth, organist of the church, previous to the ceremony. An informal reception to the bride and groom and their very near friends followed the wedding, at the home of Dr. and Mrs. William H. Murray, on Broadway.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Jimmy Cannon, one of Plainfield's old citizens, is past 85 years of age, and bears the burden and cares of life with remarkable sprightliness and jollity.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Mills, of Broadway, have the sympathy of a host of friends in the loss of their infant son, Linsey Shadel Mills, whose death occurred Tuesday.

Jacob Benner died yesterday in his eightieth year. Funeral services will be held from the residence of his son, John Benner, North avenue, near Netherwood, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Robert F. Philpott died at his home on Westervelt avenue, North Plainfield, yesterday, in the twenty-ninth year of his age. Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at three o'clock.

Mrs. Clarissa Gray died very suddenly of the grip at Samptown yesterday. She was very aged. Funeral services will be held from the residence of Mrs. Mary N. Pyatt, Samptown, Sunday afternoon.

Miss Livingston, daughter of ex-Senator Robert L. Livingston, gave a most tasteful and elegant pink luncheon in honor of her guest, Miss Sanders of New York, at her home, corner of Broadway and Kensington avenue, yesterday at two o'clock. The cards were decorated with rose leaves, and a pink rose lay beside the plate of each of the ten fair rose buds who were the charming hostess's guests. Pursell of New York was the caterer, and Brower of Fifth avenue furnished the flowers.

The remains of E. A. Seeley, of Scotch Plains, were interred in Hillside Cemetery, this city, yesterday. Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M., conducted the ceremonies. The beautiful and impressive masonic service was repeated by Past Master Geo. R. Nicholl, of Scotch Plains, and prayer was offered by the Rev. Mr. Parks, of the Scotch Plains Baptist church. Members of Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company, No. 1, of Scotch Plains, of which deceased was an honored member, placed upon the coffin a handsome floral piece. The large attendance at the services evidenced the fact that the deceased was held in high esteem and worth by the public. Only a widow survives him.

Just Half-a-Minute Slower Than Steam.

J. S. Pike of this city, who yesterday wired his arrival in Newark by bicycle in 57½ minutes from Plainfield, is prepared to uphold that record. The time by Central railroad train schedule is 57 minutes, so Mr. Pike's feat is more than marvelous. He says he timed himself from the corner of Front street and Farragut avenue, to Mack's hotel in Newark.

He has only ridden a bicycle for two weeks, and therefore thinks he can do still better as soon as he has had some experience. His route was through Scotch Plains, Fanwood, Westfield, Cranford, Roselle and Elizabeth. He never dismounted from start to finish. Some of the oldest riders of the Plainfield Bicycle club say it is a physical impossibility for Mr. Pike to make the trip in less than one hour and a-half.

A New York Lawyer's Sudden Death in Plainfield.

John S. Bingham, a well-known New York lawyer who had been counsel for Jay Gould, John Morrisey and other metropolitan celebrities, died at the home of Dr. Chauncey M. Field on Broadway, at ten minutes past two o'clock this morning. He came to Plainfield Tuesday to be treated for Bright's disease by Dr. Field, who was his old family physician. Dr. Field was at Bermuda, but Dr. E. C. Hancock, his assistant, attended the sufferer. Nothing, however, could save his life. His wife came to Plainfield this morning, and made arrangements to have the body removed to her home in New York. Some years ago Judge Bingham had a fine country seat in Bound Brook.

DR. LOWRIE'S STORY.

No Doubt of Dr. Armstrong's Sanity, He Says.—The Courts May Free Him.

Dr. H. H. Lowrie, who was family physician to Dr. Henry A. Armstrong during the latter's residence at Evora, was interviewed yesterday regarding the story published in last evening's PRESS concerning the sanity or insanity of Dr. Armstrong.

"Few people in Plainfield believe Dr. Armstrong to be insane"—said Dr. Lowrie to the reporter.—"I am one who does not. No one has ever had a better opportunity to judge of that man's sanity than I have. I was called in by his wife to pass judgment upon his case, and I always found him to be perfectly rational. The doctor had a queer temper. He was very irascible and at times would seem completely to lose control of himself; but this was always when he was unwarrantably opposed.

"Since his confinement in the asylum I have been sent by the Pension Department three different times to examine him for an increase of his pension. I met by appointment Dr. Demarsville, who is connected with the New York pension office, in Canal street, and both of us have examined him thoroughly. We both concluded that he was perfectly sane and should not be under restriction. Dr. Armstrong is a gentleman of the old school, and has several lofty notions of what should be done under certain circumstances. These in a man who is free would be subject for admiration. In a man confined in an insane asylum they might readily be taken for exaggerated idiosyncrasies and treated as such. I have no doubt, however, that a commission would find him perfectly sane, and as being unwarrantably restrained of his liberty."

As Seen by a Plainfield Botanist.

Thursday morning an observing Plainfield man sat by an open window, close to which was a horse chestnut tree. At 5 o'clock the previous afternoon, when he had seen it last, there was n't a sign of leafage on it. The brown cone that tipped every twig was suspiciously shiny—that's the last sign of their readiness to open—, but there was n't a crack anywhere in the tightly closed leaf buds. At 10 the next morning from every branch of the tree there reached out towards the sunshine dozens of tiny gray-green hands. In seventeen hours of rain and sunshine the change had been brought about. Just a few unopened leaf buds were left, and as he sat looking at them he saw one of them give a queer little jump for all the world just like an animate being. He watched it. With the jump a little crack showed itself down one side of the cone from point to base, through which a fuzzy pale-green substance could be seen. Then there came another little jump of the cone—the man was sure he did n't imagine it—, and with the jump came a ghost of a crackle almost too fine for human ears to be sure of. But after the start and the crackle it was seen that the other side of the cone had split a little, and through the split one wee little leaf pushed its banner out upon the world. This had taken a very small space of time—not so long as it takes to write it down. And then slowly and almost imperceptibly the two sides of the brown shell fell back and for an instant the watcher caught sight of the marvellous way in which Nature does her packing. The soft gray leaf tissues were packed in in the closest little conical bundle one could imagine. By and by the shell-like brown covering had fallen entirely aside and the sun and the wind had a fair chance at the leaves. The warm sun uncurled them, and the wind blew upon them, and in just three minutes after the little bundle of gray-green got out of its brown trunk a little bunch of five distinct palmate leaves reached out to the world. For they are exactly like hands—these leaves with their five fingers stretching out from the common stem. Lowell makes a poetical point out of that somewhere in "The Biglow Papers":

Then the hoss chesnuts leetle hands unfold
Softer'n a baby's be, a three days old.
That's Robin Redbreast's signal. After that he knows,
Come wut will, they's only blossoms snows.

So if Robin Redbreast knows his weather signs as well as he should before standing for such authority, we have been safely landed in spring since Wednesday night.

Tea Service a Century Old.

The tea given by the Ladies' Christian Work Society of the Trinity Reformed church at the handsome residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Church, Craig place, last evening, was a social success. The attendance was not as large as was deserved, but a gratifying financial aid was given, and the sum realized will help to lessen the existing church debt. All who attended were hospitably entertained, and were made to feel entirely at home by host and hostess. The evening passed very enjoyably.

An interesting feature of the event was the serving of tea in English china more than 100 years old belonging to Mrs. P. M. Demarest.

Shiloh's Cough Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10c., 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

A COLD of unusual severity developed into a difficulty decidedly catarrhal in all its characteristics, threatening a return of my old chronic malady, catarrh. One bottle of Ely's Cream Balm completely eradicated every symptom of that painful and prevailing disorder.—E. W. Warner, Rochester, N. Y.

A New Departure at Harvard.

BOSTON, Mass., April 24.—The faculty of Harvard College have made a new departure in the matter of bestowing scholarships. Hereafter scholarships will only be given to the three upper classes on the work of the previous year. This will give each class about thirty scholarships or an increase of about ten on the number allotted under the old system.

Declined the Appointment.

AUGUSTA, Me., April 24.—Mrs. Joseph E. Moore has declined the appointment as a member of the Board of World's Fair Managers. Ill health is the cause of her declination. Mrs. Kate May-Andrews, the wife of H. E. Andrews of the Lewiston "Journal" has been appointed in her place.

Mrs. James G. Blaine, Jr., in Dakota.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., April 24.—Mrs. J. G. Blaine, jr., has arrived here. In three months she will gain residence here and will then apply for a divorce. She is very weak and denies herself to reporters. She brings letters of introduction to Senator Pettigrew and others.

It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are not straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public esteem accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for telling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of Shoes.

Westfield Base-Ball Cranks Bragging.

(From The Westfield Leader.)

Do you ask if the Westfield Athletic Club is going to give us good ball this summer? Well, Yes, with a capital Y! The W. A. C. Base-Ball team (notice the capitals) is going to be the best team in Northern New Jersey, if not in the State. And when you see the list of Players that have been selected to carry the colors of the club for 1891, and better yet when it is your privilege and pleasure to see them play, you will indorse every word contained in the assertion. Manager C. N. Codding, than whom no better or more capable man could have been chosen for the position, has made his selections with the utmost care; and, with his intimate knowledge of base-ball matters and the reputation which the Westfield Club established last year for fair and honorable dealing, has made opportunities for securing good men not usually found by managers outside the large cities.

In addition to several of the old players whose names remain on the list, and whose work needs no rehearsal or commendation from any one, such as McManus and O'Neill, DeWitt, Mullen, Murray and McLaughlin, there have been secured, Diven who has pitched successively for the Baltimores and the New Havens, and who last year played first base for the Hackett-Carharts; Plath, the crack pitcher of the Unions of New Brunswick; Conklin, the great right fielder of the West Ends of Somerville; and possibly Martin, who last year played short stop for the Crescents of Plainfield. In addition to these, Manager Codding also has strings out for two first-class all-round players, nameless for the present, who are especially noted for their heavy batting and fine base running. With such an aggregation of talent, the Manager will doubtless be seen as soon as the men get well together, walking round with a chip on his shoulder for some rash rival organization to try to knock it off, or like the Irishman, inviting some one to "tread on the tail o' me coat." As indicative of the confidence he feels in his team, it may be mentioned that in response to the LEADER man's inquiry as to a possible game with the Crescents of Plainfield, whose names do not appear in the schedule so far as arranged, he said, "We will play the Crescents for fun, money, or marbles."

But here is the team:

Pitchers—Diven, O'Neil (alternating). Catchers—McManus, Plath. First Base—Diven, O'Neil (alternating). Second Base—DeWitt. Third Base—Mullen. Short Stop—Murray or Martin. Left Field—McLaughlin. Right Field—Conklin. Centre Field—Plath, McManus (alternating). Batteries Diven and Plath; O'Neil and McManus.

And here are the crack organizations with which they expect to measure bats, so far as now arranged:

Home Games.—May 2. Practice Game. May 9. Tabernade A. C. Jersey City. May 16. Titan A. C., New York. May 23. Calumets of New York. May 30. Decoration Day, forenoon and afternoon, St. Louis College. June 6. Dauntless of East New York. June 20. Acmes of Brooklyn. June 27. Open. July 4. forenoon and afternoon, Keystones of Philadelphia, Champion Amateur Team of Pa. July 11. Bachelors versus Benedicts. July 18. Alphas of Brooklyn. July 25. Bensonhurst-by-the Sea A. C. Aug. 1. West Ends of Somerville. Aug. 8. Open. Aug. 15. Alerts of Elizabeth.

Games away from home.—June 13. Alerts at Elizabeth. Aug. 5. Bensonhurst-by-the Sea A. C. Sept. 5. West Ends at Somerville.

The Constable Thinks 'Twas Self-Defense.

It is now nearly a week since Samuel Edwards stabbed and killed Edward Carroll at Bound Brook. The deed was done shortly after midnight Friday morning, at the Lehigh Valley crossing just above the station. Edwards fled down the road to New Brunswick. He was pursued, but the chase was given up near New Brunswick. At 5:30 o'clock he was seen on a road two miles east of New Brunswick. Since then nothing whatever has been seen or heard of him.

Constable Sebring says that he knows all the circumstances, and is satisfied that the killing was done in self-defense. When Edwards started for home on the night of the murder he told the constable that he had heard that Carroll was watching for him. Edwards was on his direct way home, and Carroll had no business down near the track. On Carroll's body was found a loaded revolver, while Edwards had only a knife. If the constable had not known these facts he says he would have unhesitatingly shot Edwards while in pursuit of him.

Edwards went to Bound Brook from the South. Before the encounter with Carroll he had never been in trouble. No steps have been taken to apprehend him and none will be. It is believed that he is very near the village and will drift back when he has got over his fright.

A Jersey Giant in Somerset.

In the village of Gladstone, Somerset county, lives a young man whose growth has been phenomenal. His name is Garret Kirk, Jr. He first saw the light of day in 1877, and to-day stands 6 feet 2 inches in his stockings, is finely proportioned and weighs 196 pounds. He bids fair to become a veritable giant. His parents are of ordinary build. He is known as "Garry, the Walking Lightning-Rod."

"Time is money." If you have a bad cold, don't mope around and half do your work. Get a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup; take a dose at night and get up the next morning—cured.

You need not dispair! Salvation Oil will heal your burnt arm without a scar. 25 cents.

THE PRESBYTERY.

A Pleasant Session Held at Clinton, in Which Plainfield Takes Part.

The Presbytery of Elizabeth, to which Plainfield belongs, met in the Presbyterian church in Clinton, Hunterdon county, Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock, and was opened with a sermon by the Rev. George F. Greene, of Cranford. After sermon the Presbytery proceeded to business. When the roll was made out there was found to be a large representation present, including delegates from this city.

The Rev. J. G. Hamner, D. D., was elected moderator; the Rev. J. M. Nourse was chosen permanent clerk (pro tem); and the Rev. W. R. Richards, of the Crescent Avenue church, Plainfield, was made temporary clerk.

The narrative of the state of religion within the bounds of the Presbytery, in connection with a free conversation on the condition of the churches revealed the fact that the past year had been a very prosperous year and the Presbytery had great cause for rejoicing.

The addresses delivered were peculiarly interesting and appropriate, and the audience listened to them with deep interest.

The commissioners chosen to attend the the General Assembly were: Ministers, the Rev. J. G. Mason, D. D., and the Rev. C. S. Converse; principals, the Rev. J. G. Hamner, D. D., and the Rev. James M. Nourse; alternates, Elders James H. Exton, Clinton church, and Edward S. Atwater of Elizabeth, principals; I. C. Pierson of this city, and George A. Tenney, alternates.

The church of Dunellen has called the Rev. A. J. Martine, of the classis of Long Island, and permission was granted the church to prosecute the call before the said classis.

The overture sent down by the General Assembly in regard to additions to a part of the standards was answered in the affirmative, and the other, in regard to the election and ordination of deaconesses, was answered in the negative. But in regard to the latter, the Presbytery would overture the General Assembly, as did the Presbytery of New York city, as follows:

"The session may select and appoint godly and competent women in full communion with the church for the care of the sick, especially poor widows and orphans, and for all such ministration to bodily and spiritual need as may properly come within their sphere."

Bayonne City was chosen as the place for the regular fall meeting of Presbytery.

The brethern of the Presbytery separated feeling that their meeting at this time had been one of a very happy tone and felt it would prove very stimulating in all the lines of church work. The people of the Clinton church entertained the Presbytery very handsomely, and hereafter they need but intimate a wish to have the Presbytery meet there and will receive the unanimous vote.

Can't Turn Out Jersey School Ma'ams.

According to a new law passed by the State Legislature, all New Jersey school teachers "appointed or employed in the public schools of this State who shall, after having passed an examination, obtain and hold first-class grade certificates, and shall have been regularly appointed or elected to their position as teachers by any board of education or board of school trustees, and shall have served acceptably in such capacity for a period of two years or more, shall hold their positions and continue to serve as teachers during good behavior, and shall not be removed or displaced without their consent, except for good and sufficient cause after trial or hearing by and before the superintendent of public instruction of the county, with the right of appeal thereafter to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, whose decision shall be final; and it shall not be necessary that such teachers shall be elected annually, but shall continue to serve subject to the provisions of this act, and during the faithful performance of their duties they shall receive just and proper compensation for their services."

Counselor Reed and His Fish Preserves.

Judge C. S. Hoffman of Somerville, and Counselor Charles A. Reed of North Plainfield, returned from an extended fishing trip last Saturday. They had a nice time, but the fish did not bite very well. "Judge" Hoffman speaks in an indefinite way of a hundred or so that he hooked, but his greatest story is about one immense fellow that he secured a glimpse of but failed to coax to his hook a second time. He declares that it was one of the largest ever seen in those regions. Of course Mr. Reed has his story, too. Judge Bartine and Colonel VanCleef were in a different place. They caught fish—of course they did, but just how many deponent sayeth not. All four of the fishermen look well browned by their exposure. The weather was fine for fishing. Dr. Wagoner was unable to go.

Messrs. Hoffman and Reed and Dr. Wagoner have purchased additional land for their preserves in the vicinity of Cresco, and now have nearly 2,000 acres. They propose fitting up a fine club-house in the near future.—Somerville Unionist-Gazette.

A SUPERB SUMMER SCHEDULE.

The Pennsylvania Railroad's Double Lines to Atlantic City.

The coming summer promises to be a most notable one for sea-shore travel. Engagements already made in advance for hotel accommodations at Atlantic City and inquiries received indicate the widespread popularity of this great resort.

Never before in the history of the City-by-the-Sea have the railroad facilities been so perfect as they will be over the Pennsylvania's sea-shore lines. Arrangements have been perfected by which this popular route will consolidate its two railroads (the West Jersey and Camden and Atlantic) between Philadelphia and Atlantic City, so as to be operated on the plan of a double track. This mode of management will greatly facilitate the handling of the enormous passenger traffic, and will present the safest and most novel system of double lines in the country.

The schedule of trains will be greatly improved over that of previous years, both in the number of trains, their equipment, and speed. A large number of trains will run on a time-table best adjusted to the needs of the public. They will be equipped with comfortable and handsome new passenger coaches and attractive parlor cars drawn by the Pennsylvania standard hard-coal burning locomotives. The majority of the trains will make the run in each direction in eighty minutes, thus reducing the time of transit to the minimum consistent with safety and good management.

WHEN I began using Ely's Cream Balm my catarrh was so bad I had headache the whole time and discharged a large amount of filthy matter. That has almost entirely disappeared, and I have not had headache since.—J. E. Sommers, Stephney, Conn.

The Albany Deadlock.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 24.—A long debate, with many personalities, marked the continuation of the legislative day in the State Senate, and the resolution for the investigation of the canal management is still pending. The Assembly adopted the minority report in the Forest Commission.

Bulkeley to Show Cause To-day.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 24.—Governor Bulkeley and Lieutenant-Governor Merwin are ordered "to appear in the Superior Court to-day and show cause why they continue to retain possession of the offices of Governor and Lieutenant-Governor."

The Eight-Hour Trouble Growing.

PITTSBURG, April 24.—The eight-hour trouble in Pittsburg is growing. It is expected that by to-morrow 2,000 men will be on a strike for the short hour day. All the trades are agitating the question and the indications are growing stronger that May 1 will bring a general cessation of work.

May Day Demonstrations in Brussels.

BRUSSELS, April 24.—The outdoor May Day demonstrations of the workingmen have been authorized by the burgomaster, who will himself decide upon the route of the processions.

Acquitted of Arson.

TOMS RIVER, N. J., April 24.—The trial of Frederick Muller, the shoe dealer of this place, who was indicted in September last on the charge of arson, was completed before Supreme Court Justice Van Syckle after a four days' trial. Muller was acquitted.

A Valuable Gift from Mr. Childs.

PHILADELPHIA, April 24.—Mr. George W. Childs has presented to the Mount Vernon Association a proof of Washington's farewell address, which is particularly valuable because of the corrections written on it by the first President himself.

Refuse to Strike on May 1.

PITTSBURG, April 24.—The Monongahela River miners refuse to participate in the general strike of the miners which is set down for May 1. They have only recently returned to work after a disastrous strike and, it is said, are in no humor for a general uprising.

An Eight-Hour Council.

PITTSBURG, April 24.—J. B. Rae, president of the United Mine Workers of America, has called a meeting of the National Board to-morrow for council on the eight-hour movement.

Mr. Huston Leaves for Home.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—United States Treasurer Huston left for Indiana last night. He will not return. Mr. Nebeker, the new Treasurer, is expected to assume charge of the Treasurer's office to-morrow.

An Ovation to Stanley.

LONDON, April 24.—Upon the arrival of Henry M. Stanley at Neath, near Swansea, in Wales, he was welcomed to the town amid scenes of public rejoicing. He will shortly receive the freedom of the city of Swansea.

Secretary Proctor Returns.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Secretary Proctor has returned to Washington from his home in Vermont, where he has been for the past week.

—Rather Unpleasant.—"Are you out with Mr. Dreamy, the poet, Ethel?" "Yes, I am, the nasty thing. He wrote some lines about a girl at the seashore and dedicated them to me. He had the audacity to call me a sand witch. Made me feel ridiculous."—N. Y. Sun.

—Why He Kicked.—"You want an equal division of wealth, hey? Do you know that if all the property of William Waldorf Astor were divided among the people of this country your share would be only about $1.15? It's a fact. Then what are you kicking about?" Brooks—"I'm kicking for my $1.15."—Chicago Tribune.

—A Keen Sense of Propriety.—Mrs. Toophine—"What have you in gold ear-rings?" Jeweler—"We have bright gold, dull gold, filigree work, incrusted work, etched gold, enameled gold and colored——" Mrs. Toophine—"That last is what I want. You see they're to be a birthday present to our Virginia cook."—Jeweler's Weekly.

MAGIC LANTERN WONDERS.

Microscopic Organisms Enlarged and Made Visible.

"The magic lantern was invented long before the development of photography gave it a practical value," said an expert in sun pictures. "Photography has discovered much more serious and important use for the magic lantern. By its aid the lecturer is able to show the most beautiful photographs, magnified to big dimensions, for the benefit of large audiences. In the same way maps are projected gigantically upon the screen which would require great labor to enlarge with accuracy. Magic lantern slides for such purposes are made by photography in this way: A glass negative is obtained from an actual scene, a photograph or other object, and from this negative a photograph is taken on glass. This latter photograph is the magic lantern slide—a 'positive,' like an ordinary photograph. An interesting and familiar application of the magic lantern is made by revolving two glass dishes with concentric painted patterns in the lantern, working the two in opposite ways by a simple wheel contrivance, so that the patterns are mingled in a beautiful kaleidoscope fashion. But more curious and useful is the idea of placing living organisms within double slides of glass inclosing water, so that the organisms in question are exhibited upon the screen alive actually, for the study of the knowing and the ignorant. Even the growth of crystals, in process, is shown in a similar way, though not less extraordinary is the method practiced with the aid of the magic lantern of causing figures upon the white sheet, by a simple device, to grow to be giants that threaten to devour the spectators."—Washington Star.

THE NEW BOY IN SCHOOL.

If a cat should chance into a strange garret,
They say it feels awkward and quite out of place;
So the new boy in school oft makes his debut,
With sensations the same as in Grimalkin's case.
Around him he sees an expanse of strange faces,
Sizing him up with an eye-searching quiz;
And knows that he's being slowly dissected,
All the way from his feet clear up to his phiz!

Just three seats away there sits the school bully,
With a round bullet-head and a jaunty snub nose;
His mocking grin says: "I'll see you at recess!"
Which means a forced fight and a volley of blows.

The new boy darts back a look of defiance,
To the round-headed bully's insolent leer;
For the debutant knows it won't do for a moment
To let the chap think he's acquainted with fear.

In the school he came from perhaps he was leader,
In studies, in sports, or in "tricks that are vain;"
But here he feels humbled and quite "small potatoes,"
And sighs to be back to his old school again.

He knows that for him the practical jokers
Will cudgel their brains with schemes to annoy,
And for days to come the chances are certain
That troubles and trials will beset the new boy.

Don't pity him, reader! A year hence, I'll warrant,
"Hail, fellow, well met!" the new boy will be
And that both he and the round-headed bully
In all worldly matters will sweetly agree;
While, in less than that time, the teacher might say—
Though this is by no means always the rule—
With a sigh and just the faintest of smiles:
That the new boy is now the "Old Boy" in school!

—P. C. Fossett, in Golden Days.

TAUGHT BY A YANKEE

A New York Man's Experience as a Horse Trader.

A NEW YORKER who spent a portion of the summer in Vermont says that he learned something up there which he considers worth a great deal of money. He certainly tells an entertaining story about the matter.

"It was up at Hyde Park," he says, "that we put in our vacation, and we were delightfully situated in a great house upon the top of a big hill. From our windows we could see no end of beautiful country, and of course we wanted to ride over it all. We hired our horses of the village liveryman, and sometimes we had good ones and sometimes we 'got stuck.'

"One day we were given the worst horse that I ever drove. He was all right as far as looks were concerned, but he wouldn't go worth a cent. I chirruped at him, I gadded him, but he kept on with a steady four-mile gait, absolutely unaffected by any thing that I did. I tried to scare the old fellow, but he was braver than Ethan Allen, and wouldn't quiver nor twist an ear, nor make any other movement indicative of alarm even when I shot off both barrels of my gun right over his back. 'I understand now,' I said to my wife, 'why this horse is called Molasses.'

"Well, we jogged along until we came to a fork in the road. Which way to go was more than I knew. 'Let the horse take his own course,' said my wife. 'I've often heard that horses know where to take people when the people themselves are entirely lost.' I acted upon my wife's suggestion at once. Any thing was better than waiting. I threw the lines down over the dashboard and said: 'Get up, Molasses.' The first thing I knew the horse was dragging us home at his regulation four-mile-an-hour gait. It took all my strength to stop him and turn him about.

"Of course we went back to the fork of the road and began to wait again. 'You're all right in your place,' I said to my wife, 'but you needn't attempt to run this picnic again.'

"I reckon that we waited a quarter of an hour before anybody came along, and then the one who came came with a rush, a great rattling of wheels heralding his coming. I stopped the man when he came alongside, and asked him which road to take to get to the places I was headed for. He told me and I thanked him, and was just starting off when he spoke up and said: 'That's a good-lookin' hoss you've got there, Mister.'

"DON'T YOU WANT TO TRADE?" ASKED THE MAN.

"'Well, yes,' I said, 'and that's about all you can say for him. He can't travel, or won't, I don't know which it is.'

"'Don't you want to trade for a good hoss?' asked the man.

"I would in a minute, but this old fellow doesn't belong to me. He belongs to a man over at Hyde Park,' I replied.

"'Do you know,' said the man, assuming a confidential air, 'I'd like to get that hoss of yours fust rate. I've got the perfect image of him up to my house, and I want to mate him the wust kind. I'll tell you what I'll do with yer. Now, here's a hoss that is worth an even hundred dollars more'n your'n. But if you want to give me twenty-five dollars to boot you can drive my hoss off with you and I'll drive your'n off with me.'

"'But this horse doesn't belong to me, I tell you,' I said, somewhat angrily, 'it belongs to Mr. Carroll over at Hyde Park.'

"'Is that Hi Carroll's hoss?' demanded the man, appearing to be very much pleased by the discovery. 'Why, Hi Carroll's been trying to git this hoss of mine for a year back. He offered me two hundred dollars cash for him last week, but I wouldn't look at it, an' by gosh, now that I come to get a little nigher, I'll be switched if that hain't old Molasses that you're hitched up to.

"'On my word Carroll offered me fifty dollars to boot between my hoss and old Molasses only day before yesterday, but I hadn't never seen him hitched up and I didn't know what a good match he was for mine. Of course, I'm twenty-five dollars out tradin' on these terms, but if you say she's a go, she's a go. My name is Deacon Smith, of Smithville, and whenever I say a thing I stick to it. Only I reckon Hi Carroll will be the tickledest man you ever see when he gets this hoss of mine for twenty-five dollars and old Molasses.'

"Well, I made the trade. Carroll was a business man I reckoned, and would be very glad to get Deacon Smith's horse twenty-five dollars cheaper than he had ever hoped to get it. The deacon agreed with me and so did my wife.

"'This is something like,' I said to my wife as we drove off, the new horse traveling magnificently. I continued to think well of the horse throughout our drive, and it was with perfect confidence that I should receive some very warm words of thanks from Mr. Carroll that I drove into the stable on my return to Hyde Park. My wife was with me; she said that she wanted to hear what Mr. Carroll had to say.

"But Mr. Carroll was not at home. 'That's too bad,' said my wife, and I agreed with her. But I told the hostler to unharness the new horse and to put him into a stall, and he set at work to do it.

"'Good-looking hoss,' he said, as he unhooked the traces.

"'Yes,' said I, 'and he is just as good as he looks.'

"'Did you get some spectacles to go with him?' the hostler asked a moment later, looking at me with a leer.

"I knew at once that Deacon Smith's horse was blind, and I was tremendously startled by the knowledge. But I didn't propose to let the hostler bother me. So I answered back bravely enough: 'Oh, well, that's nothing. He travels just as well as he ever did.'

THE HORSE'S TAIL CAME OFF WITH IT.

"'Of course,' said the hostler, seeing that I was on my dignity, 'I don't know but what I'd just as lief have a blind horse as any other kind. I've sometimes thought there wasn't any sense in putting eyes into horses, anyway.'

"'Why, Alfred,' said my wife, 'you don't mean to say that that horse is blind?'

"'Certainly he is, my dear. Didn't you know it?' I answered. 'Why, you couldn't buy that horse for one thousand dollars if he had two good eyes.'

"That silenced my wife.

"Meanwhile the hostler had gone on unbuckling the straps. He had taken off the headstall and the breastplate and hung them up on a hook. Then he came to the horse and gave a strong pull at the saddle. The saddle came off, but the crupper stuck fast. So the hostler gave another pull, but still the crupper kept its place. Then the hostler got angry and exerted all of his strength. You could have hung an ulster on each one of my eyes when I saw that crupper come off and the horse's tail with it.

"'You brute!' I exclaimed, rushing up to the hostler, 'you deserve to be shot for such cruelty.'

"The hostler leaned back against a post and laughed as though he would burst.

"'You think it a joke, do you, you miserable villain,' I shouted in a rage, 'to pull a horse's tail off.'

"Still he laughed.

"I took off my coat, having made up my mind to give that man the worst thrashing he ever had in his life, when suddenly my wife dropped to the floor, as the novelists say, with a dull, sickening thud, and I was compelled to leave the hostler to go to her.

"'Take me away!' my wife exclaimed as soon as she had recovered consciousness, and I started away with her.

"'I'll attend to your case later,' I hissed at the hostler as I left the stable.

"'Say, boss,' said the hostler, following me for a step or two, 'do you think I would pull the tail off a horse? Not much I wouldn't. That horse hain't had no tail for ten years. That thing I pulled off hain't nothing but a bunch of hair strapped on for looks' sake and tradin' purposes.'

"I paid Mr. Carroll just an even one hundred dollars before I could get a receipt in full out of him."—N. Y. Times.

"WHY, ARE YOU SICK?"

"I know precisely how you feel; it is that nervous, irritable feeling, your back troubles you, and when you try to read a little, your head aches. Isn't that so? I knew it. Oh, bother the doctor! Get a bottle of Vegetable Compound, and take it faithfully, as I have done. I've been through this thing myself, but am never troubled now. Do as I tell you, dear."

Prudent women who best understand their ailments, find in the Compound a remedy for all those distressing ills that require prompt and effective treatment as a guaranty to good health.

SADDER AND WISER.

A Humane Agent Who Was Taught Some Needed Lessons.

Is there anyone that reads this who has not at one time had a heroic desire tcd o some good in this great world of suffering?

In a little town away down in Maryland I was once made humane agent, with instructions to see that no needless pain be inflicted on any animal, says a writer in the Pittsburgh Press.

I was still young enough to be afflicted with the conviction that I had been born to do good in the world, though I was not old enough to know those Quixotic ideas should always be tempered with sense. I ordered that blind boards should be removed from cows, and was sued by people whose fields had been destroyed or whose children had been hooked.

I fought with my neighbors because they insisted on "sticking" their swine and allowing them to bleed to death slowly; I quarreled with my own people because they ordered their geese plucked alive, and was licked by a man from whose unruly colt I had removed the hobble; I wept to see an iron ring in a bull's nose, and shinned up a tree for safety when I had removed it.

In fact, I was a general nuisance, attending to everybody's business but my own, and was finally removed from the coveted position on the strength of a general remonstrance that I had been kind to animals only to inflict suffering on my fellow creatures. All these supposed harsh measures that tore my tender heart were simply the result of experience that they were the best things to do in order to prevent injustice to man, even down to the fact that swine killed in any other way were almost unfit to eat.

The best rule is to take care of your fellow creatures first, then lessen, if possible, any isolated cases of suffering inflicted on those of the brute creation.

SCORED THE EDITOR.

How a Poetess Was Moved to Anger Against a Magazine Autocrat.

A well-known literary woman not long ago sent a poem to one of the prominent New York magazines, says the Boston Journal. She had repeatedly done so before, but in such cases she received back her effusion with the customary editorial declination blank. After two or three weeks this particular poem followed its predecessors.

The poetess did not happen to be at home when the letter came, but her husband was, and, as is his custom, he opened the letter upon seeing the magazine imprint upon the envelope. His wife had told him how often this same editor had returned her poems, and finding the same editorial blank in this letter which he had frequently seen, he became impatient, drew out a pencil and wrote across the face of the blank the single but striking word, "Rats."

He placed the blank and poem in the envelope, which, absent-mindedly, he sealed, the mucilage not having adhered when sent from the magazine office. The letter was not opened by the poetess until after supper, when her husband had gone out for the evening. Mechanically she opened the envelope and was about to tear up the editor's blank when the word written across the face of it struck her eye. She become furious.

Not recognizing the handwriting, and thinking that some one in the magazine office had written it with application to her poem, she sat down and wrote the editor a letter which must have opened his eyes. A spirited correspondence took place, the editor disclaiming, while the poetess accused.

The interchange of letters ceased, but firm as ever is the conviction of the passionate poetess of the editor's intent to insult her poem. Only two persons recognized the handwriting, but neither was in a position to explain matters.

WHY ROYAL
Baking Powder is Best
"The Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure, for I have so found it in many tests made both for that company and the United States Government.
"I will go still further and state that, because of the facilities that company have for obtaining perfectly pure cream of tartar, and for other reasons dependent upon the proper proportions of the same, and the method of its preparation,
"the Royal Baking Powder is undoubtedly the Purest and most reliable baking powder offered to the public.
"HENRY A. MOTT, PH. D."
Late United States Government Chemist.

THE RIPPER'S WORK

Horrible Butchery of an Outcast Woman in New York.

JUST LIKE LONDON'S FIEND.

The Victim Strangled to Death and Then Hacked With a Knife.

The Discovery Made by the Attendant of the Low Resort Where the Murder Occurred—Inspector Byrnes and a Force of Detectives at Work—They Think They Have the Murderer.

NEW YORK, April 25.—A horrible crime, committed in a thickly populated section of lower New York some time between 11 o'clock at night and 4 o'clock in the morning, justifies a suspicion that the fiend known as "Jack the Ripper," of Whitechapel notoriety in London, has located in this city, or that an equally bloodthirsty wretch is plying his trade of murder in the same fashion.

At 10:45 p. m. a woman over 50 years of age, a dissolute character, accompanied by a man entered the Fourth Ward Hotel, a low resort at No. 14 Catherine slip, and registered as "Kniclol and wife." They took a room on an upper floor and the woman was not seen again alive.

Discovering the Horrible Crime.

In the morning Edward Fitzgerald, a clerk in the house, hearing no noise, rapped on the door of the room occupied by the couple. There was no answer and he finally broke in the door. A horrible sight met his gaze.

On the floor lay the woman in a big pool of blood. She had been dead for hours.

Her abdomen had been fairly ripped open with a dull, broken table knife, that lay in the pool of blood. The viscera had been cut, and from appearance a part was missing.

With cunning still analogous to that of the Whitechapel murderer this bloodthirsty wretch also made his escape and left no trace behind.

The woman's head was bandaged. A cloth had been tied about her neck and face, but whether for any foul purpose or to hide any other traces of murder the attendant did not wait to see. He gave the alarm at the office and a messenger was hastily despatched to the police station.

She Was Strangled First.

Coroner Schultz quickly arrived at the hotel and made a hasty examination. When the face of the woman was exposed to the light it was a hideous sight. The tongue was out of the mouth and swollen, the eyes bulged from their sockets, the nose was flattened to the face, and about the neck was a circle of congealed blood. The appearance of the face convinced the coroner that the woman had first been strangled and then cut. Turning over the body it was found that the murderer had left his mark. The broken end of the knife had been used to make a large cross on the back of the spine.

A Force of Detectives at Work.

The police are straining every nerve to apprehend the murderer. Four Central Office detectives have been detailed to aid the ward detectives in the matter and a search is being made of all the downtown lodging houses to ascertain whether any stranger had taken a room subsequent to the perpetration of the awful butchery.

Similar to London's Whitechapel.

The murdered woman has been positively identified as an all night "rounder" of many years standing in the district where the crime was committed, which is similar in many respects to the Whitechapel district of London. Though the woman's real name could not be ascertained, it was learned that she was known as "Shakespeare" among her associates. This nubriquet was applied to her because of the fluent way in which she repeated the lines of the great bard. She was a handsome woman, with striking features of a Roman cast, and a form of remarkable symmetry for a woman of her age. There are even traces of refinement visible beneath the marks left by a life of dissipation.

"House of All Drunks."

The place in which the woman's life was ended is known to the residents in that locality as the "House of all drunks." It has a bad reputation and is perhaps one of the worst of its class in the city. The police say that numerous crimes have been committed within its portals, and only recently the bartender has been arrested for cutting a man down with a sabre.

Several Arrests Made.

Two detectives arrested a young Frenchman who is called "Frenchy." It is claimed that "Frenchy" was seen with the murdered woman on Thursday night. This he strenuously denies, but Inspector Byrnes feels confident he has got the right man. Altogether the police have arrested four men and seven women who are supposed to be able to throw light upon the affair.

Later investigations of the police have disclosed much of the woman's identity and history. Her name was Carrie Brown.

London Police Interested.

LONDON, April 25.—Great interest is taken here in the news of the "Jack the Ripper" murder in New York. The police authorities are inclined to think that the absence of a gash in the throat of the New York victim indicates that the work is not that of the London Ripper. The Scotland Yard officials are exulting over the fact that Inspector Byrnes, whose criticism on the London police still rankles in the bosoms of those functionaries, has now an opportunity to exercise his powers on a case similar to those which have baffled the Londoners.

Killed by a Torpedo Explosion.

BRADFORD, Pa., April 25.—John Horan, foreman of the Associated Producers' oil lease, was instantly killed at noon by the explosion of a torpedo. The torpedo, containing 20 quarts of nitro-glycerine, exploded prematurely, killing Horan instantly. Two other men were close to the derrick when the accident happened, but they escaped uninjured. The derrick was totally demolished.

Icebergs Mountains High.

PHILADELPHIA, April 25.—The steamer Maryland, which arrived here to-day, announces that on April 18, in latitude 48.28 north, longitude 47.33 west, she passed a square iceberg 200 feet high, and on the same day, latitude 45.09 north, longitude 48.40 west, she passed a conicle iceberg 140 feet high.

Counting the Treasury's Cash.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The count of the cash and securities in the Treasury, which is always made upon the incoming of a new Treasurer, will commence next Monday. The committee appointed to superintend the count is composed of Mr. E. R. Daskam, of the Public Moneys Division, who will represent the Secretary of the Treasury; Mr. A. T. Huntington, the chief of the Loan Division, who will represent Mr. Huston, the retiring Treasurer, and Mr. George Robertson, a chief of a division in the office of the Comptroller of the Currency, who will represent Mr. Nebeker.

Shot Himself Before the Girl He Loved.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 25.—Last evening at 9:30 o'clock, as Mr. Skillman, son of Rev. Dr. Skillman, was returning to his home in Greece, two miles from here, Edward Happ, aged 18 years, stopped the buggy and said to Miss Jessie Fisher, the young lady riding with Mr. Skillman, that she was the only girl he ever loved. He immediately drew a revolver and placed it to his own head and fired. The young man will probably die.

Believe He Has Been Murdered.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 25.—Capt. D. S. Briggs, of the schooner Hattie B. Kelsy, disappeared from this city about a month ago and nothing has been heard of him since. His family believe he has been murdered and will offer a large reward for the recovery of his body. The harbor here has been dragged without finding him. When last seen he had a large sum of money on his person.

King Kelly's Twirlers in Trouble.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 25.—King Kelly's crack twirlers, Crane and McGill, painted the town during the night and were arrested in an intoxicated condition early in the morning. Kelly secured their release on payment of $10 each. Afterward he "put some lead in their shoes," as he expressed it, by fining them $20 each.

YON MOLTKE IS DEAD

The Great Military Strategist Passes Away Suddenly.

STRICKEN WITH HEART FAILURE

The News of His Death Caused Great Sorrow in Berlin.

He Was Present at the Reichstag Yesterday Afternoon—The Ninetieth Anniversary of His Birth Was Celebrated Last October—Sketch of the Great Field Marshal's Career—The Kaiser's Sorrow.

BERLIN, April 25.—Count von Moltke died suddenly here last night. He attended the session of the Reichstag held in the afternoon. His death was very sudden, and the physicians who were summoned announced that it was caused by failure of the heart. He died at 9:45 p. m., passing away quietly and painlessly. The news of the Count's unexpected death has caused great sorrow in this city.

Sketch of a Glorious Career.

The passing away of Count Helmuth von Moltke, Chief Marshal of the German Empire, will leave a vacancy as great as that left by the death of Frederick the Great. He was certainly the greatest General of the present century. He was more to Germany than Grant was to the United States, for he won from the beginning on military tactics and plans peculiarly his own.

GEN. VON MOLTKE.

Son of a Danish general, he was born at Parchim, in Mecklenburg, October 26, 1800. He was, so to write, brought up with the sword ever within sight.

The family settled in Holstein when the subject of this sketch was an infant, and at the age of 12 young Moltke was sent to Copenhagen to study modern science.

Count Moltke entered first into the Danish service, being of Danish descent, but shortly afterward, in 1822, passed into the Prussian army. In about ten years he succeeded in achieving promotion to the staff.

In 1835 he made a voyage to the East, where he was introduced to Sultan Mahmoud of Turkey. At the request of the Sultan Von Moltke undertook important military reforms in the Turkish service and also won considerable credit in the Syrian campaign of 1839.

Returning to Prussia, he was appointed Chief of Staff in 1856, and aide-de-camp to Prince Frederick William. He devised the campaign of 1866 against Austria, and, having been promoted to the rank of general, he directed operations, under King William, in the decisive battle of Sadowa. He is credited with having laid out the plan of operations for the Franco-Prussian war, and he was the chief military director on the German side in that great struggle. The investment of Paris was his plan for ending the war.

He has since been the chief military figure in Europe, keeping up his activities even until his death.

DAVITT COMING HERE.

He Will Try and Regain His Health in California.

LONDON, April 24.—Michael Davitt's resignation from the editorship of the Labor World was made necessary by the state of his health. The doctors told him that he must take a long holiday or break down. He still retains his stock in the company which controls the paper, and will contribute to its columns occasionally.

Mr. and Mrs. Davitt will soon start for San Francisco, and will remain on the Pacific coast for an indefinite period. Mr. Davitt will take no part in politics during his absence.

Mr. Michael Davitt when asked if he intended to make a long stay in the United States, replied that he was only going to California for rest and in order to recruit his health. It is Mr. Davitt's intention to return soon to England.

Cause of the Explosion in Rome.

ROME, April 25.—The investigation made by military and engineering experts shows that the explosion of the magazine at Pozzo Pantaleo originated in the accidental discharge of some sharpnell capsules. Seven of those who were taken to the hospitals in a wounded condition have died. King Humbert has been unremitting in the manifestation of his solicitude for the families of those who were killed and for the wounded.

Drowned Himself in a Bath Tub.

BALTIMORE, April 25.—Albert W. Bisel, 45 years old, committed suicide by drowning himself in the bath tub at his home, 630 Gold street, last night. He was despondent over continued ill-health and lack of employment. Bisell formerly lived in Woodsborough, Vt., and was a war veteran.

An Unnatural Son.

ELIZABETH, N. J., April 25.—Patrick Conners was arrested here charged with causing the death of his mother. He, while drunk, dragged her about the room, and she fell dead. He had just completed sixteen in prison for assaulting her. Death was due to heart failure, brought on by shock.

Lambert Wins a Battle.

LONDON, April 25.—Lambert, the American fighter, defeated O'Neill at the Antient Concert Rooms, in Dublin, Ireland, after fighting 12 rounds.

Opposition to Sir John Macdonald.

OTTAWA, April 25.—Sir John Macdonald has been served with a copy of a petition against his return as M. P. for Kingston.

LUCY GARDINER'S TRIAL.

The Jury Will Decide To-day on the Orange Belle's Case.

NEWARK, N. J., April 25.—The case of Miss Lucy A. Gardiner, the Orange belle charged with stealing goods from the firm of Stern Brothers, New York, which has been on trial in the Newark Court of Sessions for three or four days, will be finished to-day. The evidence was closed last evening, and this forenoon the jury was charged.

Miss Gardiner was the principal witness yesterday. In her own way she told the whole story, denying each and every particular of the alleged crime. She was cool, collected and emphatic, a sharp cross-examination failing to shake her.

WHISKEY KILLS A BOY.

Two Brooklyn Youths Steal Five Gallons of Liquor and Drink It.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Andrew McKenna, eight years old, and Neil Moffatt, eleven years old, stole a five-gallon keg of whiskey from a wagon in Brooklyn last evening. They rolled the keg into a vacant lot, where they tapped it and drank heavily of its contents.

How much they drank is not known as the keg was empty when found. The boys were found unconscious by a policeman and taken to the hospital. McKenna died shortly after his arrival there, and his companion is very low and will also die.

AVENGED THEIR COMRADE.

A Body of Soldiers Break Into a Jail and Shoot to Death a Prisoner.

PORTLAND, Ore., April 25.—The news has been received here that a body of 150 soldiers broke into the jail at Walla Walla, Wash., and shot to death A. J. Hunt, who shot Private Miller, Wednesday night.

It is reported that the guards fired on the soldiers and that several persons were killed.

Laying in Heavy Stocks of Coal.

PHILADELPHIA, April 25.—Bituminous operators in this city are apprehensive of a strike in the Clearfield and Beech Creek districts on May 1. They have advised their customers to lay in heavy stocks, and some of them have made conditional arrangements with Southern producers to supply enough coal to enable them to protect their most important contracts. Among others the ocean steamship lines operating out of New York have been provided for.

A Brakeman Killed in a Wreck.

EARL, Pa., April 25.—While two Lake Shore freight trains were passing Avonia, 12 miles from here, a weak beam dropped in front of the wheels of the forward car, and the car jumped the track, crashing into a train going in the opposite direction on the other track. Twenty cars were piled up in one mass, and Brakeman Williams was instantly killed. All trains East and West were badly delayed.

Miss Cousins Will Make a Fight.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The trouble among the Lady Managers of the World's Fair, which was begun in Chicago, has been transferred to Washington. Miss Phoebe W. Cousins, who has been deposed as secretary of the Lady Managers, had an audience with Secretary Foster during the day in regard to being reinstated. Secretary Foster said that he would give the matter consideration.

Detroit's Strike to Be Arbitrated.

DETROIT, Mich., April 25.—The Mayor has sent a letter to the street car officials, suggesting that the trouble between the company and its employes be settled by arbitration. The secretary of the street railway company replied, accepting the Mayor's suggestion. It is not thought that any attempt to run cars will be made until the Committee on Arbitration reports. The strikers are jubilant.

Justice Bradley Very Sick.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The condition of Justice Bradley, who has been confined to his house for about two weeks with a cold and an attack of the grip, is not so favorable as it has been, and his associates are apprehensive that he will not be able to be present in court next Monday, when the Behring Sea and lottery cases should be heard.

Doctors Overworked.

NORWALK, Conn., April 25.—The grip has been very prevalent here for some time, and hundreds of persons are confined to their houses with the disease. Seven deaths occurred here in a single night. The doctors of this town are all overworked attending to patients suffering from this disease.

Pastor Lewis' Resignation Accepted.

MALDEN, Mass., April 25.—The resignation of Rev. J. Nelson Lewis, pastor of the Baptist Society, was accepted by the Society last night. A resolution was unanimously adopted, however, expressing belief in the untruthfulness of the charges of immorality that have been brought against him.

Found the Body of the Sewer Victim.

NEW YORK, April 25.—The body of John Callaghan, who fell into the sewer on East Twenty-third street, was recovered last evening at the foot of East Twenty-third street, near where the sewer empties into the East River.

Mambrino King Retired.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 25.—C. J. Hamlin, the veteran breeder of this city, has announced the retirement of his famous stallion, Mambrino King, from public service. This action has created a sensation among Erie County breeders.

Decided to Call Dr. Lorimer.

BOSTON, April 25.—The Union Temple Baptist Church, which holds its meetings in Tremont Temple, met last night and decided to call the Rev. Dr. Lorimer, of Chicago, to its pastorate.

Florida's Senatorial Contest.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., April 25.—In the joint Senatorial caucus last night three ballots were taken, the result in each being: Call 37, Sloan 29, Bloxham 1.

"Yes, madam, ladies who try Cleveland's Baking Powder will have nothing else. They say it goes farther and gives better results. Almost everyone uses it now."

TERRIBLE REVENGE

Hungarians Discovered Loading Dynamite Bombs.

TO BLOW UP COKE KING FRICK.

Determined to Kill the Man They Blame for Shooting the Strikers.

The Police Apprised of the Plot—Adjutant General McClelland Leaves the Coke Region for Pittsburg—He Does Not Expect Trouble—Socialist Leaders Working Hard to Keep the Strikers Out.

PITTSBURG, April 25.—A man named Timmons, of Braddock, has given to the police information of a plan to blow up H. C. Frick, the coke king, with dynamite.

Timmons is a carpenter and has been working in Homewood. He is obliged to pass a deep gully on his way to work, and yesterday he discovered a gang of 12 Hungarians busily at work there loading dynamite sticks.

Each Hungarian took 20 sticks and left for Braddock.

They were seen at that place and openly declared their intention of dynamiting Frick, and started for this city, where he lives.

The Hungarians are ignorant and will certainly fall into the clutches of the police here on their errand to kill the man they blame for the shooting in the coke region.

COKE STRIKERS QUIET.

Socialist Leaders Working Hard to Keep the Men Out Until May 1.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 25.—Adjutant General McClelland left for Pittsburg last night, satisfied that Sheriff McCormack, with the aid of Company C, had the situation well in hand.

Twenty of the Trotter rioters were held in $100 bail each, which they furnished.

The strikers of this end of the coke region held a large mass meeting on the fair grounds and were addressed by their leaders. The Socialists, Jonas and Delaber, also spoke, and in behalf of the Socialistic labor movement they urged the strikers to hold out until May 1, when they would be joined by the workmen of the whole country in the great eight-hour fight.

JUDGE ROYCE DEAD.

He Held Many Public Offices in Vermont and Served Two Terms in Congress.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., April 25.—Ex-Chief Justice Homer F. Royce died here last night from apoplexy. He had been sick about two weeks with an attack of the grip.

Judge Royce was born June 14, 1820, in Berkshire, this State. He was educated in the district schools and began to study law in 1843, and he was admitted to the bar in 1844. He was State Attorney in 1846 and 1847 and represented Berkshire in both branches of the Legislature. He was a member of the Thirty-fifth and Thirty-sixth Congresses. He was chosen Associate Justice of the Supreme Court in 1870 and was appointed Chief Justice by Governor Farnham in 1882 on the death of Judge Pierpont.

Judge Royce resigned from the bench in 1890 on account of poor health. He leaves a wife, two sons and a daughter.

CONNECTICUT'S MUDDLE.

Further Time Gained by Gov. Bulkeley for His Answer.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 25.—The Superior Court room, in this city, was crowded in anticipation of the answer which Gov. Bulkeley and Gen. Samuel E. Merwin were to make to the quo warranto proceedings which were instituted last week by Luzon B. Morris and Dr. Alsop.

No answer was made, however, and again many lawyers and citizens were disappointed.

Judge Stoddard adjourned the case until May 8 at the request of counsel for Gov. Bulkeley, in order to give him time to consult with Gen. Merwin's counsel.

SWALLOWED A CORK.

Rev. Geo. Bothwell of Brooklyn Thought to Be Dying.

BROOKLYN, April 25.—Rev. George W. Bothwell, of the Classon Avenue Church of the Covenant, is thought to be dying at the City Hospital from the effects of swallowing a cork, which lodged in his lung.

He was holding the cork in his mouth while pouring out some medicine from a bottle, when something caused him to laugh, and the cork was drawn down his throat. The operation of tracheotomy has been unsuccessfully performed.

Dr. Bothwell was formerly president of Straight University, Louisiana.

Forty Head of Cattle Burned.

WASHINGTONVILLE, N. Y., April 25.—The large barn belonging to Michael McNamara, situated about three miles west of here on the Hulsetown road, was totally destroyed by fire at midnight. The barn was filled with hay and contained 43 head of cattle, all of which were burned to death.

Death of an Old Army Chaplain.

CHATHAM, Mass., April 25.—G. Collins, a retired chaplain of the United States army, died here last evening, aged 75 years. He was appointed chaplain of the Seventy-second Pennsylvania Volunteers when the war broke out and was retired from the regular army in 1879.

Death of Morgan L. Mott.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., April 25.—Morgan L. Mott, the well known horseman and breeder, died at his stock farm at New Hackensack, last night, aged 73 years. His mother, aged 103 years, and two sons survive him.

Awarded $11,000 for Injuries.

BOSTON, April 25.—Mrs. Martha Hall, aged 65, of Lowell, Mass., who had one leg and her nose broken, and her spine injured, in the Old Colony railroad accident at Quincy, has been awarded $11,000 by the arbitrators.

Eight Ice Houses Burned.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., April 25.—Fire destroyed eight large ice houses in this city belonging to H. R. Leavens and T. S. Coolidge, containing 8,000 tons of ice. Loss at present unknown.

Fanning Held for Murder.

NEW YORK, April 25.—A coroner's jury found Henry C. Fanning guilty of the murder of Mrs. Emily Taylor. Fanning was sent back to the Tombs.

"Doc" Wilson in Galena.

GALENA, Ill., April 25.—"Doc" Wilson is said to be in Galena, and is known here as Dr. Levi L. Moen. He is engaged in the patent medicine business.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Brook trout may now be legally caught in New Jersey.

—Crane, the hatter, says he has two stores full of bargains.

—A meeting of the Young Men's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. will be held Monday at 8 p. m.

—Wetumpka Commandery, No. 434, Knights of Honor, will meet next Monday evening in Wetumpka Lodge rooms.

—You don't need to refer to the calendar to know what the season is. Look at Peck's stock.

—Dr. J. H. Cooley will tell of "Some things that men need to know," at the Y. M. C. A., Thursday next, April 30, at 8 p. m.

—All are invited to the gospel meeting to be held at the Association Hall, opposite the post-office, this evening at eight o'clock.

—Next Thursday a mothers' meeting will be held by the Woman's Temperance Aid Society in the Reform Hall parlors at 3:30 p. m.

—A supper will be served at The Albion, to-night at 10:30, whereat the Echo bowling team of Brooklyn will be the guests of the Crescent League bowlers.

—The Woman's union prayer meeting held hitherto on Monday's in Vincent chapel, will be discontinued until the fall, when it is hoped they will be resumed.

—John Schorb Jr., has been indicted for highway assault on Charles Barry, and yesterday was put by the court at Somerville under $200 bonds, to await trial.

—The usual evening praise service in the W. C. T. U. room will be held at 7:45 o'clock this evening, and the usual Sunday meetings will be held at 9 a. m. and 4 p. m.

—The Elkwood cafe, on Second street near Park avenue, will be open Sundays from 9:30 a. m. to 7 p. m. Table d'hote dinner will be served from 5:30 till 7 o'clock in the evening.

—A House Warming, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Monroe Avenue chapel, will be given on Tuesday evening, April 28, at eight o'clock, in the chapel. A welcome will be extended to all.

—At a recent meeting of the vestry of St. John's church, Elizabeth, it was decided that the city must find another bell upon which to strike a fire-alarm. The city must therefore build a tower or find some other means of giving an alarm of fire.

—The regular monthly meeting of shareholders in the Plainfield Building and Loan Association, for payment of dues, etc., will be held in the rear room of Liefke's store, 27 West Front street, entrance on Exchange alley, next Monday evening, at 7:30 o'clock.

—Yellow perch are now biting in the Long Island and New Jersey ponds. They are found in almost all large ponds or lakes, and at this season take the bait very freely. The common earth worm is all that they ask. Large perch make quite a struggle when secured on a light trout rod.

—The base-ball season here opens this afternoon on the Crescent League's grounds when that team meets the Pond Company's nine. It is rumored that the suggestion of THE PRESS a few days ago that Martin be re-engaged for his old position of shortstop, will be followed and he will play to-day.

—The young people of the First Baptist church will hold a meeting Monday evening in the lecture room of the church, at 8 o'clock. The object of the meeting will be to form a young men's auxiliary to the Young Ladies' Missionary Society. Mrs. W. H. Hascall, of Burmah, a most interesting speaker, will make an address, after which there will be a social gathering. A cordial invitation is extended to all, especially to the young.

—Ex-Governor George C. Ludlow, Warren Hardenbergh and Taylor Jelliffe, the Commissioners appointed for that purpose, have awarded to John Mannion $10,250, and to Elmer Smith, for the American Engine Company, $9,240, damages for the right of way of the Port Reading Railroad through their lands. Mannion is an ex-policeman of New Brunswick. He acquired the Bound Brook property for a mere song. The railroad company will pay him his $10,000 in cool cash.

—The laws of the State of New Jersey strictly prohibit any set lines or nets in streams stocked by the State with game fish, under a penalty of $25 fine, or any devices whatever that will interfere or deter such fish from ascending the streams. The penalty for killing any song or insectivorous bird, or taking or destroying eggs of such birds, is $50 for each offence. The penalty for trapping or snaring any game bird at any time or place, either on one's property or that of another, is $15 for each and every offence. Non-residents not complying with the by-laws of the game protective societies of the State are prohibited from shooting within its limits under a penalty of $50, or imprisonment until the fine is paid.

MY CATARRH was very bad. For thirty years I have been troubled with it—have tried a number of remedies without relief. A druggist advised Ely's Cream Balm. I have used only one bottle and I can say I feel like a new man. I make this voluntary statement that others may know of the Balm.—J. W. Matheweson, lawyer, Pawtucket, R. I.

THEY'LL NEVER BE FORGOTTEN.

The Dishonest Papers and the Selfish Servant Who Have Striven to Retard the Prosperity of Plainfield.

THE PRESS is entirely justified in claiming a large share of credit for the almost unanimous passage of the street railway franchise, its approval by the Mayor and its hearty endorsement by the people.

THE PRESS alone of the papers of Plainfield approved the project in its beginning, plainly and honestly presented its advantages day after day, and fought and buried the misrepresentations and falsehoods of its opponents. Over 50 columns of original, contributed and selected matter relating to the system, its utility and its benefits to town and tax-payers, have appeared in THE PRESS since the project was first thought of.

It is reasonable to believe that such matter—which included letters from the Mayors of cities where the trolley was in use, and statistics and other information from the superintendents of the companies—had the weight and influence that honest purpose always commands, to the end that but one councilman was eventually found opposed to the granting of the franchise.

And day after day THE PRESS presented the matter of a street railway in this city also in a way that was something of a warning. It became thoroughly and lastingly impressed upon the minds of the people by THE PRESS, that the opponent of such public benefits was a selfish servant if not an absolute enemy of the community.

How pitiful a place in the confidence and respect of the people is that now occupied by the Plainfield papers who have so lied in vain in their unjust and despicable opposition to an electric street railway for Plainfield.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Wm. C. Ayres of West Second street is quite ill with the grip.

Louis Harris is visiting Plainfield after an absence of nine years. He is engaged in mining in Montana, thirty miles from Helena.

City Judge Codington has the sympathy of the community in the serious illness of his daughter, who is suffering with pneumonia, the result of the grip.

The Continent says: "The sixtieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Abram S. See will be celebrated this afternoon at their home in North Plainfield."

Mayor Gilbert yesterday signed the ordinance granting the Plainfield Street Railway company the franchise to construct and operate a trolley system of street cars in this city.

William G. Ostrom, oldest son of Capt. William B. Ostrom of this city, died yesterday at his home in Spring Valley, Rockland county, N. Y. Death was caused by pneumonia following an attack of grip. He leaves a wife and three children. His remains will be interred in Greenwood cemetery, to-morrow.

Miss Force of Duer street, tendered a reception last evening to her classmate and guest Miss Lizzie DeCamp, late of Burkeville, Va., and now of Chester, N. J. There was a large attendance of young people and the affair was an enjoyable one in every way, reflecting credit upon George W. Moreton, the master of ceremonies who arranged and carried out to successful completion the many little details without which entire gratification would be wanting. The music was by Rogers & Conde.

By the unanimous vote of the court at Elizabeth, this morning, the Hon. Fred. C. Marsh, was appointed prosecutor of the pleas of Union county, for the coming term of court. Prosecutor Wilson's term had expired and it was the duty of the bench—Judges VanSyckle and McCormick, and lay-judges Hyer and Wiley—in accordance with an act passed April 16, 1816, to appoint some one to serve as prosecutor. The same action will be necessary at the beginning of each term. Mr. Marsh's appointment will give universal satisfaction to the bar of Union county. Had a vote been taken among the lawyers of Plainfield, THE PRESS knows of but a solitary ballot that would have been cast for any other candidate.

Ex-Judge John F. Bingham, who died at the home of his physician, Dr. Chauncey M. Field, on Broadway, this city, yesterday morning, as told exclusively in yesterday's PRESS, had been a well-known counselor of Jay Gould since the Fisk-Gould partnership of the early seventies. Judge Bingham lived at 176 West One Hundred and Fifth street, New York city. He was born in Newburg, N. Y., forty-six years ago, and moved to Bound Brook at an early age. Twenty years ago, he became Mr. Gould's confidential clerk and secretary, with an office in the Grand Opera House. Subsequently Mr. Gould made him President of the Baltimore and Delaware Bay Railroad, a short line running from Chestertown, Md., to the Delaware State Line. When the Manhattan Elevated Railroad Company was organized Judge Bingham was made its attorney, a position he held until his death. Besides Mrs. Bingham, he leaves one son and two daughters.

GRAVE CHARGES AGAINST THE DEACON.

Young Women Complain of a Stirling Churchman's Behavior.

Alexander Cooper, deacon of the Presbyterian chapel at Stirling, a mountain village just back of North Plainfield, has been arrested on the charge of attempting an atrocious assault on Miss Ada Leonard, an estimable young lady of seventeen, within the sacred walls of the pretty edifice in which they both worshiped. Deacon Cooper is out on bail for $1,000, and his case will come before the Grand Jury of Morristown, May 5.

The deacon owns one of the finest farms near Stirling, and is reputed to be rich. His family consists of a wife, four daughters and two sons. The family is highly respected. Ever since the little Presbyterian church was built Alexander Cooper has been one of its most able supporters. He is the senior deacon, a Sabbath-school teacher, and is closely identified with the church's interests.

It appears that the deacon attempted the assault in the vestibule at the side of the church, and was only prevented from accomplishing his purpose, it is alleged, by the timely appearance of constable Haney, who was attracted to the place by the girl's screams. It is said that the deacon's friends will make a strong effort to show that he has been insane for some time.

Besides the attempted assault, there are other serious charges against the churchman. Among them is that of writing letters of evil design to Stirling girls. One of these letters was to Miss Lillie Cozine, a highly respected young woman. It read as follows:

SATURDAY.

Miss Lillie Cozine:

Will you kindly meet at chapel to-night, 7 o'clock sharp.

Strictly confidential. Burn up.

Yours truly, A. COOPER.

The girls invariably showed the letters, which were all of the same purport, to their mothers, and none of the appointments was kept.

The little Presbyterian chapel of which Cooper is senior deacon has for its pastor the Rev. A. Cushing Dill, who was on trial two days at Summit last March charged with being too familiar with some of his flock. The result of the trial was that the jury of ministers found him guilty of conduct unbecoming a minister, and he will leave the Stirling chapel next July. During Mr. Dill's trial Deacon Cooper, it is said, was one of his most persistent persecutors.

Miss Ada Leonard, the fair complainant against the deacon, is a comely brunette, with short hair, rosy cheeks, and a willowy figure. She is one of a large family of children. Her mother is a widow. Miss Leonard and one or two of her sisters work in the Stirling silk mill. The Leonards are hard-working people and have the respect of the little community in which they live. Their home is a plain cottage.

Mrs. Leonard, mother of Ada, burst into tears when asked for her story of the affair. "Last Tuesday evening,"—she said—"at about 6 o'clock, Deacon Cooper called at the house and asked Ada to meet him at the chapel at 7 o'clock. He wanted her to be there, he said, because there was to be service. I mistrusted that all was not right, as it is not usual to have service Tuesday evenings, and I didn't want my daughter to meet him at the chapel, because I had heard rumors about some of his strange actions. I concluded, however, to let Ada go, first sending for constable Haney and acquainting him with my suspicions and asking that he lie in hiding near the church. When the two reached the church they entered the vestibule at the side. Then Cooper asked Ada to bolt the door, but she refused. When inside the vestibule Cooper seized Ada and she shrieked and pulled away. He seized her a second time and she cried 'Murder!' Then constable Haney rushed in and found the man had hold of her. The constable caught her as she was about to faint."

Yesterday the family of the deacon had Dr. Zeglio of Mt. Bethel make an examination, the result of which was that the doctor formally declared the deacon insane.

The Patient Editor.

When a man takes a cigar out of his mouth to tell an editor to stop his paper because he "can't afford it", the editor may say nothing, but he thinks a great deal. And when he orders his paper stopped because he "hasn't time to read it", and then goes down and whittles a dry goods box for two hours, the editor may not say anything, but he thinks a great deal. And when he stops his paper because a two line item did not suit him and then pesters his neighbor by borrowing the paper, the editor may say nothing, but he thinks a great deal.

Their Gain Would be Our Very Great Loss.

The central office of the telephone company in this city, yesterday did the largest business in its existence. Besides the hundreds of local connections made, there were 70 out-of-town messages. It is to be hoped that the continued and increasing prosperity of the business in this city under Manager Runyon's efficient direction, will not impel the powers at headquarters to remove him to other fields to put life into the switch-boards of less competent managers.

It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are a straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public esteem accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for telling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of Shoes.

BARNUM AND MEASLES.

"Critique" Tells a New Story About the Great Showman, and Talks of Woman's Ways in Measles' Days.

A North Plainfield man tells a good story, and, what is more, a new one, about the late and only Barnum. It was in the old days, before the "greatest" was thought of, when the Broadway Museum was one of the seven wonders of the world. There came along some sort of a holiday and when the museum opened its doors, Barnum was delighted to see a great mass of pleasure-seekers rush in. They came and they came until the place was jammed and the morning only half gone. The museum stood on the corner of Broadway and Ann street, where the Herald office is now, and on this particular occasion both thoroughfares were blocked at noon by a crowd of eager people who couldn't get into the show because the halls were packed. It almost broke Barnum's heart when he looked out of his window and saw all those ten cent pieces ready and willing to drop into his pocket and yet so far away. He went into the museum halls and found the people there had been kind enough to bring their luncheons with them and proposed to make a day of it; they had seen all the freaks, to be sure, but they wanted to stay just the same and the good showman couldn't find it in his heart or his power to put them out. So he returned to his private office, shut the door behind him and sat down to think a way out of it. When Barnum put himself to thinking something generally came of it and so it happened that he bethought him of an unused exit to the museum hall which led out to Ann street. He summoned his sign painter and gave him a few directions. In another half-hour the selfish people in the museum were surprised to see a sign hung over the entrance to a dark and mysterious passageway at the north end of the hall. The sign said:

"To the Egress!"

Not one among that crowd could recall having seen an "egress," and filled with a mighty desire to view this rare freak of nature they arose, leaving their luncheons half disposed of, and flocked with one accord down the passage to see the new curiosity. It was not until they found themselves outdoors that some of them remembered what an egress really was, and by that time the museum was filled with other visitors and the box office with other dimes. Barnum was a very hard man to lose.

***

The way most women act when some other women's children have the measles and theirs are exempt is infinitely funnier than a play. An announcement that some ill-starred young one, upon whose future a mother has built her greatest hopes and dreamed her sweetest dreams, has been smitten with the prevailing epidemic is the signal for the isolation of the poor mother and a boycott is instituted that deprives her as completely of the comfort and assistance of her friends, so-called, as if her home were cursed by smallpox, spotted fever, Asiatic cholera or something equally murderous. The more daring of the women she knows will venture to speak with her a few words of ill-omen from the sidewalk fifty feet away and then, realizing the ghastly peril to which they have exposed themselves, hurry off and fumigate their clothes fearing to carry the awful infection into their own devoted families. But far the greater number of the women will not come near the house of terror and will prudently cross the street to pass it, holding their breath as they do so lest they inhale the poisoned atmosphere. I knew of one instance in which a family of three children belonging in this city were taken with scarlet fever while visiting in New York and a certain Plainfield woman refused to call at their home here fearing she might catch the fever. How she expected the contagion in New York to contaminate the house in Plainfield no one knew, but her convictions were strong enough to keep her away from the place for a long, long time. Of course, there are some sensible women, just as there are occasional reasonable men, but the majority of them go daft when an incipient malady strikes town and distantly threatens their relatives. And it is all rank absurdity. It isn't as if measles were fatal, because in themselves they are not. The germs or bacilli or microbes, or whatever they may be, of measles, are in the air and the disease can be and generally is contracted without personal contact or anything of the kind. I heard two men arguing on this question last week; one saying that measles were in the air and the other holding that the disease could only be taken by contact, direct or indirect, with a sufferer. Finally the first man asked his friend from whom he supposed Adam and Eve caught the measles, and the friend collapsed. It is funny that a woman cannot comprehend that nine people out of every ten have got to go through the measles sooner or later, and understand that the sooner they have them the better. But they can't comprehend, I know; it isn't in them, and so the poor measles will go on through the limitless future branded with the awful stigma of woman's abhorrence, and held up before the fearful eyes of generations to come as a malady of the most dire, deadly and dangerous description, and the luckless measles germ will be misrepresented, misunderstood and slandered so long as woman lives.

***

And speaking of woman and germs reminds me of a conversation between two of our dear, bright, Chautauqua-learned girls which I overheard the other day. They were getting pretty much lost in a wilderness of medical terms when one of them, resolving to reach at once the radical principle of all things, observed:

"Well, I don't care; but where do you suppose these horrid germs come from, anyhow?"

"From Germany, of course, you stupid thing!" snapped the other. And they don't speak now, I hear. CRITIQUE.

New Jersey Real Estate.

The development of real estate continues to occupy more attention among investors in this State than any other form of speculative enterprise. There are no special indications that it is being overdone, and if a collapse should come it will be due to other causes, and a revival would be simply a matter of time. The conditions are strikingly different from those which prevailed in 1873. The speculation in real estate then was reckless, and it was largely due to the New York corporations which furnished the money. It was amazing how recklessly they loaned their dollars on mortgages, or rather it would have been amazing if it had not been known that their representatives in New Jersey were reaping great profits from their easy financial policy. That was the era of the second, third and fourth mortgage, of unpaid taxes, and of 1 per cent. payments on purchase. During the last two years New Jersey real estate in and near the cities has been developed to an enormous extent, but the loans made are on first mortgage and the purchasers are largely members of building and loan associations. The general prosperity of business in the last few years has enabled men to acquire homes of their own, and to live more comfortably, occupying entire houses. But the increase in population has been large also. There are various kinds of growth, and that of New Jersey in the last decade has been such as to add greatly to the wealth and to increase the number of homes. New Jersey has been able to show New Yorkers that they could get houses, pay commutation, have seats in the cars and be within an hour of their offices for a fraction of the cost for the same things in New York, and for less than Brooklyn required. Although most of the New Jersey railroads have been far from successful in grappling with the quick transit problem, they have given fair accommodations on the whole, and are arranging for better, and the business men appreciate it. The shrewd observers of New Jersey real estate transactions say that the inactivity from 1873 to 1885 has not yet been made up by the progress of the last five or six years.—Somerville Gazette.

WASHINGTONVILLE.

Wm. F. Spencer had 30 fowls stolen Thursday night.

A public library is soon to be opened at the Washingtonville public school. Mr. Gifford, the teacher, has already secured subscriptions amounting to $30.

The many friends of Christopher Bloom are congratulating him on his marriage to Miss Bella Spencer, youngest daughter of W. F. Spencer. The wedding was a quiet one, only a few of the intimate friends of the contracting parties being present. The groom has a position of trust with the Long Island Railroad Company.

Without doubt the most wonderful remedy for pain is Salvation Oil. It sells for 25 cents.

Beveries of bachelors used to contain an alloy of painful anticipation on account of sleepless nights with the prospective baby, but Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup has made all that part a joy forever.

SLAVIN IS HERE.

Accompanied by Pugilist Mitchell, Who is Denounced by Jake Kilrain.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Frank Patrick Slavin, the Australian prize-fighter, or "Pat" Slavin, as he is better known in antipodes, has at last touched American soil and is now fairly aching to get on a match with any fighter in the country. He arrived here on the Germanic, and if looks go for anything he should certainly be a good man. He stands 6 feet 1 1-2 inches in height, measures 42 1-2 inches around the chest, weighs about 200 pounds and looks every inch a fighter. Beside his splendid physique, Slavin has youth and Irish blood on his side.

Slavin is accompanied by Charlie Mitchell and Pony Moore.

Slavin's statement that he will remain in this country only 10 weeks is rather disappointing. Kilrain, who would probably be the first man to meet him, would have considerable work to do before he could fit himself for a hard mill. By the time he would be ready Slavin would be about leaving the country or have already gone, perhaps. Then the winner of the Corbett-Jackson match, which does not take place until the latter part of May, would doubtless desire to meet Slavin also, but would not have time to prepare for another hard battle. But if Kilrain is in any kind of shape at present, he could be fit before very long.

Pony Moore and his son-in-law, Charley Mitchell, visited Miner's Eighth Avenue Vaudeville Theatre and occupied a box. During the performance Jake Kilrain, who takes part, was ushered into the box to be introduced to the party. Kilrain pleasantly greeted Moore, but refused to shake hands with Mitchell and made things quite interesting to the audience by loudly denouncing Mitchell as "no gentleman," and refusing to shake the hand of the English prize-fighter. Mitchell, who appeared to be exceedingly sentimental, cried like a baby when Kilrain scored him.

Santo Domingo Wants Reciprocity.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Senor Manuel de Galvan, formerly Minister to Washington from Santo Domingo, has returned to this city in the capacity of a special commissioner to endeavor to negotiate a reciprocity agreement between San Domingo and the United States under the terms of the new tariff act. Senor Galvan has not as yet presented his credentials to the Department of State, nor has he seen Secretary Blaine.

An Old Clergyman Dead.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 25.—Rev. James Remington, the oldest clergyman in Western New York, died last night at his home in Akron, aged 90 years. He graduated at Williams College in 1826 and later from the Auburn Theological Seminary. In 1826 he was ordained by the Presbytery of Buffalo. He leaves three children.

Lord Churchill Off for Africa.

LONDON, April 25.—Lord Randolph Churchill left this city during the morning for South Africa. Lady Churchill and a crowd of the aristocracy gathered at the railroad station to bid him good-bye. He was loudly cheered.

Paris Workingmen Issue a Manifesto.

PARIS, April 25.—The May-Day committee of workingmen of this city have issued a manifesto calling for the passage of an act making eight hours a legal working day throughout France.

"THE GREATEST OF THESE."

Look not thou dimly through hot tears,
Down the dark vista of the years,
Nor break thy heart with weary sighs,
For all that dies!

But turn thy back upon the night,
Thou hast three friends, with faces bright,
Who yet shall lead thee into light.

Some needs must go. Speak thy farewell
To him who, in his hermit cell
Searches the depths for mysteries
And prophecies.
Nor cling to him who gives thee pain,
With showers of words that beat like rain.
Dismiss him; better friends remain.

Walk by his side whose brow, thought-lined,
Bends to thee ever, sternly kind;
Things wonderful has he to show
And make thee know.
But Knowledge, though he lead thee far,
From height to height, and star to star,
Is not thy friend, as others are!

They shall all vanish—these abide.
Faith, lofty-browed and eagle-eyed,
Looks into the invisible
Where deep things dwell.
Open thy heart, and give her place!
She sees through mists, God's shining face.
And crowns thee with an angel's grace.

And Hope, fair Hope, has ever been
A comforter, with voice serene,
Who holds thee close, and in the storm
Keeps thy heart warm.
Wouldst thou be strong, and brave and free?
In weal or woe, keep her with thee,
The very light of day is she!

But greatest, loveliest of the three,
Is tender, grand-eyed Charity.
The heart that finds her ends its quest,
In perfect rest.
Oh! hold her, keep her, in thy care,
For earth like Heaven is rich and fair,
If love be with thee everywhere!

—Marianne Farningham.

SHOULD BE ENLIGHTENED.

To Be Guided by Conscience Without Enlightenment Is Usually Dangerous.

John Foster says of conscience: "It is a relation of the King of Heaven; we should not be in its society without a solemn regard to it. It has been called 'God in man.' It is the second 'great light,' the moon of the soul. It is that which tells us what is right and wrong in reference to ourselves. It has no reference to others; it simply refers to the operation of feeling and judgment on ourselves; and it asserts its right to look at and examine everything in man. It is placed there not to let everything pass for right.

It need scarcely be said that the conscience is not infallible. It needs enlightenment. Some of the vilest things in the world have had the approval of men's consciences. Paul's conscience approved his acts of persecution. He says: "I verily thought within myself that I ought to do many things contrary to the name of Jesus of Nazareth." So persecutors in all ages have doubtless been conscientious. Bigots are generally conscientious. The most troublesome people in churches to-day are remarkable for a constant avowal of their homage to their consciences. In many cases a great deal of ignorance is allied with a great deal of conscience.

A good conscience in quality will only be found as men have a large knowledge of God's word and form their judgments under its guidance. A conscience which is guided by the example of others will be defective in its judgment of what is good or evil. So also the conscience by its familiarity with abounding sin may deteriorate. Men can easily put their prejudice or predelections in the light of conscience. In these ways Satan is often "transformed to an angel of light." We shall only be surely right as with unbiased mind we accept the teaching of the Bible. "Through Thy precepts," says the Psalmist, "I get understanding, therefore I hate every false way."

And this good conscience as a possession will only be had as there is a full serrender to its authority. There can be no true peace in a man's save as he follows that which he knows to be right. "Conscience," it is well said, "makes cowards of us all." Fearless men can not be, when they bear a witness within themselves of wrong-doing. And conscience is a prophet, and however determinedly men may try to disbelieve its threatenings they can not possibly silence its voice as it testifies of retribution. To fight against it is to beat the air.

Let conscience, however, have its rightful sway and it will cause us to regard our relations to God and our neighbor that there will be right living and right action. Then, the peace of God will rule in the heart and we shall find it possible to live peaceably with all men. To have "hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience" is an inestimable blessing. Truly happy are they who can say: "We are persuaded that we have a good conscience, desiring to live honorably with all men."—Christian Inquirer.

A SAFEGUARD TO CHARACTER.

Harm Can Not Come Unless the Enemy Enter the Innermost Sanctuary of Our Lives.

One of the strongest influences in the formation of our characters is our relation to other people; no outside influence can so make or mar our happiness as our mental attitude to the world about us. Our worst enemy can not harm us until he is allowed to enter the holy of holies, the innermost sanctuary of our lives, changing our feeling toward the world, lessening faith, changing trust to doubt, interest to indifference, love of mankind to selfish distrust which narrows our opportunities to give or to receive that measure of inspiration that comes from free intercourse, free companionship. The eye of the master saw the angel in the block of marble; the maker of plaster images would see only the hardness of the material, the labor necessary to reveal the angel, even if he could comprehend the ideal of the master when revealed. We get from life what we put into it, in all our relations to man. The man who thrusts us out from our well-earned position does not defraud us beyond our purse until we permit him to throw his evil shadow over our spiritual vision, and cease to see men clearly because of this shadow. The man who for selfish ends defeats our best-laid plans is not victorious until we let his acts place all men on his level, until we permit his act to color our thought of other men.

We are sometimes to blame for the defeats that limit our ambitions, because we have not made true estimates of character. We have called gilt gold, and by our mistaken estimate have put in circulation counterfeit coin. When we learn its nature, should we be surprised, having accepted our first estimate, to find our world acting upon it, and slow to understand our changed relationship? And people are so many-sided that it is quite possible for truth and falsehood to be revealed in the same character.

How often, when traveling where a high mountain is in sight, we are struck with the changes, not of atmospheric effects, but in the mountain itself—grand when seen from one point of view, graceful as a hill with rolling outlines when seen from another, tame as a hillock when seen from another! The mountain has not changed, but we have seen it from different levels, from different angles, and our estimate as to its height and beauty have changed with each view, unless we have seen mountains before from the decks of steamers or the windows of railway trains; if so, we are prepared for the phenomenon. So with people. If we let a new view of character limit our faith and trust, even though through this revelation our dearest hopes may be checked, our ambitions defeated, disaster comes from it only when it changes our relations of peace and trust with all mankind; when it becomes an influence on our own characters.—Christian Union.

OUR SELFISHNESS.

We Have Only a Passing Interest in the Sad Misfortunes of Others.

Our interest in the misfortunes of others is likely to be measured by our personal esteem for those who are newly in trouble, rather than by their needs, or by their personal relation to others. We read of a railroad accident. Quickly our eyes run over the list of killed or injured, and it is with a feeling of relief that we find no one of our dear ones named there. If, indeed, there be no name which we have heard before, no neighbor or prominent fellow-citizen mentioned in that list, the accident seems a less important one than we feared. And if it be shown that no passengers were among the injured, but only employes of the railroad company, the whole thing is likely to pass out from our mind as a matter hardly worth another thought. Yet why should we feel that our circle of affection or of acquaintance is alone of importance to us? Why should we fail of being impressed by the thought that every one of those killed or injured was a center interest and of influence in a circle as important as that of which we are a center? Why should we not see that the very fact that it is an employe of the company who was stricken down increased the probability that a needy home was bereft of its support, and that stricken hearts had now the double burden of sorrow and of want? It is a selfish measure of misfortune that is gauged by its effect on ourselves and our dear ones. If we would but go outside of ourselves in our thinking, and would consider how other hearts are affected by the misfortune that attracts our attention, it would seem a very different matter to us. And if we would but think of those who are newly sorrowing as those who are dear to our Friend of friends, and who are commended to us as His representatives, we should find that our relation to them is closer than we had imagined. It is true that we can not take the whole world into our hearts; but it is also true that we ought not to think and feel as if there were no world of importance outside of our personal circle of acquaintance.—S. S. Times.

CHOICE SELECTIONS.

—As we live on God's bounty we should live to His glory. — Chicago Standard.

—Love always takes off its coat when it goes to work.—Rain's Horn.

—He who has no inclination to learn more will be very apt to think that he knows enough.—Powell.

—There is strength deep-bedded in our hearts, of which we reck but little till the shafts of Heaven have pierced its fragile dwelling. Must not earth be rent before her gems are found?—Mrs. Hemans.

—It seems easy to glorify God in worship and acts of great self-sacrifice, but it requires a high degree of consecration to obey the command: "Whether, therefore, ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."—United Presbyterian.

—He who has acquired the art of making the best of everything will make everything best, and will hence, relatively to his thoughts and feelings, have the best all the time. He will of course be a contented and happy man, no matter what may be environments of his earthly condition.—N. Y. Independent.

—The Bible speaks more than once of the wings of the Almighty. Those wings are broad wings. They cover up all our wants, all our sorrows, all our sufferings. He puts one wing over our cradle, and He puts the other over our grave. Yes, it is not a desert in which we are placed; it is a nest.—Talmage, in N. Y. Observer.

—There is a Divine purpose in every Christian life. We may not easily discover it, but we come into God's kingdom for some service. It is necessary that we seize our opportunities, for they soon vanish. If we do not recognize our place and fulfill our services we shall be unfaithful to the noblest trust and miss the grandest rewards.—Christian Inquirer.

—It is no use saying that we love our fellow-men, unless we try to help them; and it is no use pretending to sympathize with the heavy burdens which darken their lives, unless we try to ease them and to lighten their existence. Insomuch as we have more practical experience of life than other men, by so much are we bound to help their inexperience, and share our talents with them.—Gen. Booth.

VEGETARIANS AS FOOD.

Vegetarians are frequently told that their diet is insufficient to maintain a proper amount of strength for hard labor, but let us ask where the ox gets his strength? He is a strict vegetarian. By examining a table of food values it will be found that meat is not really the most nourishing food. All the grain preparations are three times as nourishing as meat, and the same is true of peas and beans. A pound of beans contains more of the albuminous elements than a pound of beefsteak. Besides that it has additionally fifty per cent. of the carbonaceous elements for the production of heat and strength, whereas meat is almost entirely deficient in carbonaceous elements. From careful computation of the flesh foods and the vegetable foods, respectively, as given in a standard table of values, it is found that flesh foods are only two-thirds as nourishing as vegetable foods, while they require one-third longer for digestion. So, really then, vegetable foods are not only the most nourishing but the most easily digested and therefore of the greatest value.—Dr. J. H. Kellogg.

—Comparing Notes.—"Did you hear the new play at the Thespian last night?" "No. I saw it. Theater party. Did you see the new play at the Histronic?" "No. I heard it. Hat."

A FIRE AND A LIFE.

A Sad Story Which Will Come Home to Many Hearts.

Fire! Fire! Fire!

How the alarming cries, and wild clanging of bells thrill you with the horrors of imperiled life!

A house, a home on fire, strikes terror to the soul, and how eagerly you leap to assist in extinguishing the flames, even although the effort is futile, and only a charred and blackened ruin remains.

How well you know, and how many times you have thought it, that the sure time to put out a fire is in the beginning—when the flames are small and the pressure of the foot even, will stamp them out.

And yet, although you know this, although you fully realize the necessity of quick work and the danger of delay in case of fire, in those insidious fires of disease which break out in our bodies, and which threaten our health and life you are stupidly or ignorantly careless.

Do you not know that as the small flames in a house, if allowed to progress, will soon wrap the whole structure in ruin; so the little and apparently trivial ailments and symptoms which undermine our health, if allowed to develop, will soon involve the body in fatal disease?

A little hacking cough, slight fever attended with more or less prostration, will, unless arrested, result in the fires of Consumption.

A weakness from Spring debility, loss of appetite, indigestion, biliousness, etc., will in time kindle the fires of Physical Exhaustion.

Nervousness, lack of energy or ambition, a tired feeling—rising as tired mornings as when you go to bed, will end in NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

Giddiness, swimming of the head, strange faint feelings, short breath, sinking sensation, palpitation of the heart, a feeling of apprehension or anxiety as of impending danger, mean that unless checked immediately you will die suddenly of HEART FAILURE.

Cold feet and legs, weakness and weariness of limbs, trembling, numbness or prickling sensation, are the sure precursors of PARALYSIS.

Headache, loss of memory, confused mind, dull and heavy feeling in head, drowsiness during the day and wakefulness at night, gloom and depression of mind, sense of exhaustion after mental exertion, a feeling of irritability crossness, or discouragement are sure signs of the approach of that terrible fire of the brain—Insanity.

Will you allow the fires of disease to overwhelm you when you can easily Stamp out the advancing flames, and by arresting the symptoms NOW avoid all danger?

How, do you ask?

By the use of that great remedy for nerve, brain and blood—Dr. Greene's Nervura, which physicians, druggists and people everywhere acknowledge as the greatest Medical discovery of the century, the sure restorer of strength, vigor, power and health to the weakened and exhausted system.

Look out for the fires of disease before it is too late. Use Dr. Greene's Nervura, which is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless, and can be procured at any druggist's for $1.00 per bottle, and you will prevent the serious conflagration of nervous and physical prostration which threatens your life.

Saved from the Fire of Disease.

My little girl has been taking medicines for a severe nervous trouble nearly two years, receiving no benefit. I bought a bottle of Dr. Greene's Nervura, and her recovery from its use has been remarkable. Others of the family have received benefit from its use. Please publish these facts if it will be the means of helping some one else afflicted as she was.

C. H. BEMIS, Granby, Mass.

Dr. Greene, of 35 West Fourteenth St., New York, its discoverer, is the famous specialist in the cure of nervous and chronic diseases. The doctor has devoted special attention to the treatment of all forms of chronic diseases through letter correspondence, and will give by mail his opinion and advice in any case free of charge. The perfection of this system renders a complete cure almost assured, as his success in treatment by correspondence is wonderful and unequalled.

N. B. Send for symptom blank to fill out, or write Dr. Greene about your case, and a carefully considered letter, fully explaining your disease and giving you a perfect understanding of all its symptoms will be returned, free of charge.

SOMETHING TO LIVE FOR.

The Pleasure Afforded by the Prospect of Pudding for Dinner.

When I was a youngster, said a man a few days ago, my mother never used to let us know what kind of pudding we were going to get for dinner. And there was a lot of youngsters in that family, too; youngsters in roundabouts and youngsters in petticoats, and life never lost its charm for them, because each day unfolded a mystery that touched life in its dearest aspect—the pudding for dinner. There was maternal wisdom for you! All day long there was something to speculate about, and to be vaguely glad over, as children can be, without quite remembering what it is that makes them glad. And it wasn't the pudding alone—though, to be sure, any healthy stomached youngster can evolve an amount of optimism over a pudding in prospectu that would put to the blush many grown persons with a fortune in praesentibus. It was the not knowing. Mystery was the finest and most potent flavor that went into the sauce, and the best of the pudding was in the anticipation. Why, they ate pudding all day long, these wisely-mothered children, and when the pudding moment actually came they were in a state of uncertain and rapturous expectation that would glorify the most commonplace batter that was ever beaten up out of eggs and flour into such a pudding as the lips of children never touched before. And so there was something to live for and be glad over all day long, until the moment of realization came, and after that it was bed time and then morning and another pudding.—Chicago Journal.

AN ITALIAN'S CRIME

Two Men Struck Down in the Streets of Newark.

ONE OF THE VICTIMS IS DEAD.

The Murderer Seeks Safety in Flight, but is Captured.

The Tragedy Caused by the Idle Remark of a Young Woman—The Offending Girl Pursued by the Murderer—His Knife Plunged Into the Man Who Intercepted Him.

NEWARK, N. J., April 27.—While John Bulger, with three male and two female companions, was sitting on the stoop of No. 24 Drift street about 2 a. m., four Italians passed.

One of the girls made a remark on the nationality of the passers-by, whereupon one of Italians returned and drew a large knife across Bulger's abdomen, nearly disemboweling him.

The offending girl fled down the street pursued by the infuriated Italian, who was fast overtaking her, when John Powers intercepted him. The Italian turned upon Powers and plunged the knife into his side, inflicting a wound eight inches in length.

Both of the wounded men were taken to the hospital, where Bulger died. Powers has but a slight chance of recovery. Michael Rose was arrested and identified as the murderer.

Powers is only 21 years old and is rather good looking. He told a peculiar story.

"My home," he said, "is in Millville, Conn. My folks are well to do and I need not have been here except through my own foolishness. I am pretty well educated and had a good home and was well brought up. I don't know how badly I am hurt, but I realize that I may die.

"I left school and ran away from home several years ago because my father did not supply me with what I considered sufficient spending money. I have been in many cities and have worked most of the time at butchering, but am at present employed by Expressman Patek, of Newark."

Bowers was greatly affected while talking of his home and parents, and his eyes filled with tears.

VON MOLTKE'S FUNERAL.

To be Buried Next Thursday—Emperor William's Order to the Army.

BERLIN, April 27.—The remains of Count Von Moltke will lie in state until Thursday in the apartments in which the Count died. A guard of honor has charge of the remains.

The late Field Marshal in his will desires that his body shall be buried at Creisan by the side of his wife, who died on Christmas evening, 18/8. The will also directs that the funeral shall be strictly private and of the most unostentatious character.

It is thought possible, however, that the Emperor will over-rule the latter provision and gratify the universal desire of the German people that a State funeral shall testify to their feeling of pride, love and gratitude for the dead Field Marshal. The principal generals have already been granted permission to absent themselves from their commands during the funeral services, and all the members of ruling houses in Germany, holding rank in the army, are expected to be present.

Emperor William, in his order instructing the army to go into mourning, says: "A friend and councillor has been removed from my side. I most deeply mourn this irreparable loss to myself, to the army, and to the fatherland. To his last hour the deceased enjoyed unprecedented renown by means of his military achievements and his services for the welfare of the fatherland, whose gratitude will never die."

Count von Moltke had intended to leave this city in a few days for the baths at Kudowa where he hoped to recuperate and improve his health. He is known to have been engaged on plans for the strengthening of the newly acquired island of Heligoland when death came so unexpectedly.

Moltke was not a man of large wealth and is said to have expended considerable money in charities.

DESERTED AND DESTITUTE.

Troubles of an American Lady in London —She Attempts Suicide.

LONDON, April 27.—Mrs. F. B. Converse, nee Miss Martha Hyams, the beautiful daughter of a tobacco merchant doing business at No. 163 Pearl street, New York, attempted to commit suicide here. It is reported that she was prompted to the commission of the act by the heartless treatment of F. B. Converse, whom she married last September. Converse, it is said, obtained a large sum of money by pawning all his wife's clothing and other personal effects, including some valuable jewelry, which were presented to her at the time of her marriage. He then absconded, leaving her destitute and friendless in this city. The embarrassment of the young wife's condition is heightened by the fact that she will become a mother.

Converse claimed to be a mining engineer, and said that at one time he had lived in Milwaukee. He made the acquaintance of Miss Hyams five years ago while crossing the ocean from New York to London on the steamer Alaska. Seven months ago they were married by the Registrar at Brighton. After pawning the last pair of boots belonging to his wife, he disappeared for parts unknown.

It is reported that Converse has a wife in Toronto and two children in Montreal, whom he deserted, and who are said to be in a destitute condition.

Gompers Confident.

NEW YORK, April 27.—President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, says that so far as he knows there has been no change in the situation with the miners, and he believes they will strike for eight hours on May 1.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—U. S. Gov't Report, Aug. 17, 1889.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

MEETING OF MINERS.

The Leaders Are Deliberating Over the Eight-Hour-Day Demand.

PITTSBURG, April 27.—A dispatch from Columbus, O., says the Executive Board of the United Mine Workers is in session considering the demand made by the miners for the eight-hour day on May 1.

By arrangement the presidents of the local assemblies in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania appeared before the board and made reports as to the attitude and feeling of the miners they represent as to the matter. With the exception of the Straitsville district of Ohio, where the miners have signed contracts to work for the year on the nine-hour system, the reports indicate firmness on the part of the miners for the eight-hour day, even to a general strike to enforce it.

If further reports continue as unanimously in favor of the eight-hour day and a strike to secure it, President Ray will issue an order to this effect.

The strike, if it occurs, will be stupendous, stopping all coal mining in the eastern part of the United States. If it should continue a week it is estimated that our whole industrial system would be paralyzed.

Amos Townsend, of Cleveland, made a proposition to the board looking to an agreement, and it was taken under advisement.

MEMORIAL SERVICES.

Great Demonstration in Richmond in Honor of the Late Gen. Johnston.

RICHMOND, Va., April 27.—The people of Richmond assembled almost en masse yesterday afternoon at the Mozart Academy of Music to attend memorial services in honor of the late Gen. Joseph E. Johnston, which were held under the auspices of R. E. Lee Camp, Confederate Veterans.

Long before the hour for the services every seat was taken and the aisles were filled, and still the crowds thronged the doorways and vestibules and assembled on the sidewalks. The services were beautiful and were participated in by all the Protestant denominations in the city.

After a prayer and the reading of the Episcopal burial services, followed by a solo, "Some Sweet Day Bye and Bye," by Capt. Frank Cunningham, Rev. S. A. Goodwin, of Grove Avenue Baptist Church, delivered an eloquent oration upon the great Southern leader. The address was a masterpiece of oratory, and the applause at times was deafening. The speaker characterized General Johnston as "a man on whose escutcheon no stain or blemish rested."

The services closed with the hymn "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name" by a choir of 150 voices."

WILL FIGHT IN TWO CITIES.

St. Paul and Minneapolis Wrangle Over the Hall-Fitzsimmons Battle.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 27.—The bitter rivalry between St. Paul and Minneapolis over which should be the theatre of the Hall-Fitzsimmons mill culminated in an agreement arranged by Frank Shaw.

The fight for the middleweight championship of the world will occur on the dividing line between the two cities in a building especially put up for the purpose and capable of seating 20,000 people. A circular building of wood, with the ring in the centre, two rows of boxes surrounding it, and the rest of the seats slanting to the roof, will be put up in short order, and in it the fight will take place.

Fitzsimmons will go into training at Minnetonka this week, and Hall will take up his training quarters at White Bear Lake.

Cowhided by an Actress.

ST. LOUIS, April 27.—A sensational cowhiding took place on Fourth and Market streets, in this city. Miss Georgie Lingard, an actress, wielded the whip, and T. S. Stout, a theatrical man, was the victim. Stout, it is said, sent an insulting note to Miss Lingard asking for an appointment. She kept the appointment with a rawhide and invited some of her friends to be present. Among others a newspaper reporter was on hand with a camera. Stout was first on the scene and then came Miss Lingard and Miss Alyn, her friend. They whipped Stout until the blood flowed and he fled into the Court House.

Farmers Fix the Price of Wheat.

CHICAGO, April 27.—A plan is being devised by the Board of Trade to counteract the move setting a fixed price for wheat. Assemblies of the Farmers' Alliance throughout the wheat sections of the State have been holding meetings during the past week, and are bent upon receiving a good price for the wheat crop of 1891. They are calling on associations throughout the country to pass resolutions demanding $1.25 per bushel for wheat.

Excessive Heat in the Dakotas.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 26.—Reports from all over Minnesota and the Dakotas indicate that yesterday was the warmest April day in the history of the country. The highest point reached was 92 degrees at Aberdeen, S. D. General fear is expressed that the excessive heat will be followed by a cyclone, as happened at Rochester in 1883 and St. Cloud in 1886.

A SEAMAN ARRESTED

Inspector Byrnes Captures Another Suspect.

HE LOOKS LIKE THE RIPPER.

Hurried to Prison by the Police and Locked Up.

Park Policemen Arrest a Mysterious Suspect—The Territory Where the Crime Occurred Swarming With Detectives—The Hardened Characters in the Neighborhood Not Frightened.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Another arrest has been made that tallies with the description of the supposed Jack the Ripper. Two park policemen found him in City Hall Park.

He wore a sand colored coat and blue trousers, and, if anything, was scarcely shabby enough for the companion of the degraded victim at the slum lodging house that fatal night. The Ripper is said to have worn a shabby blue coat. The man, whose name is said to be Henry Young, was examined at the Oak street station, confronted with "Frenchy's" cousin, and later taken to Police Headquarters. The newspaper men were meanwhile driven out of the station house, so great was the desire to keep quiet the actual best of the police work and the facts learned thereby.

The name of the cousin of Frenchy is not Young. The territory of the precinct where the butchery occurred is simply swarming with detectives. The odor of their good cigars can be experienced at most of the street corners. Their actual work, whatever it is, is enveloped in clouds. They were to be seen at intervals entering the Oak street station looking wise and mysterious.

The district where the crime was committed shows no change since the murder. The hardened characters show no disposition to give up their haunts or mode of life.

Inspector Byrnes Makes an Arrest.

Last evening Police Inspector Byrnes arrested the second engineer of the Red "D" line steamer Philadelphia, lying at her pier on the East river, and turning him over to his men had him taken to Police Headquarters.

The name of the man could not be learned, but he answers almost perfectly to the description of the murderer as given by Mary Miniter, the housekeeper of the East River Hotel. The Inspector himself made the arrest.

WITH THE PRESIDENT.

He Spends the Day Resting at the Palace Hotel in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27.—The President spent a quiet Sunday in San Francisco. In company with Mayor Sanderson and ex-Congressman Morrow he attended divine service at the First Presbyterian Church. It was not generally known that he would attend this church, and consequently only the usual congregation was present. Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. McKee and Mrs. Dimmick went to another church.

Yesterday afternoon Postmaster-General Wanamaker addressed a great concourse of Sunday School children at the Calvary Presbyterian Church, and later he talked to nearly 4,000 men at a meeting held under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association at the Republican Wigwam.

The President remained most of the day resting at the Palace Hotel. In the evening Mrs. Harrison and the other ladies of the party were entertained by Mrs. Stanford.

The President had a conference with Brigadier-General Ruger during the day in regard to the lynching of murderer Hunt at Walla Walla, Wash., last Friday night by a party of soldiers. Subsequently the President sent the following telegram to the Secretary of War at Washington:

"The affair at Walla Walla is very discreditable to army discipline. If there is reason to believe, as there appears to be, that the mob was composed of soldiers, you will order a court of inquiry and see that the responsibility for the disgrace is fixed and that the guilty are brought to a prompt trial."

Dr. Talmage's New Tabernacle Opened.

BROOKLYN, April 27.—The new Tabernacle of the Rev. T. Dewitt Talmage at the corner of Clinton and Green avenues was opened to his congregation and the public yesterday. About 7,000 people crowded into it. There were three imposing services in the new edifice during the day, and on each occasion the church was packed with people. The crowd that sought admission to the Tabernacle at the morning service was so great that the efforts of the police were necessary to keep the eager ones from crushing each other.

Drowned in the Delaware.

CAMDEN, N. J., April 27.—Walter Tice, 20 years old, and Charles Christie, aged 18 years, of South Camden, were drowned yesterday in the Delaware river below this city. They were in a sailboat with 12 other young men.

FRICK IS NOT AFRAID.

He Does Not Think the Huns Will Attack Him—Evicted Families in Camp.

PITTSBURG, April 27.—H. C. Frick ridicules the story that some of the striking Hungarians from the coke region are seeking to do him personal injury or blow up his residence in this city with dynamite. He has no fear that anything of this nature will be attempted. Mr. Frick says the outlook is brighter than at any time since the strike. One hundred and fifty men are working at Leisenring No. 2, while the forces at the Morewood and Adelaide works are also increased. There were no evictions of strikers' families in the coke region today. The increased shipments of coke justify the claims of operators of large gains in the number of workmen. Several of the evicted families have gone into camp near the Broadford tents. Twenty armed deputies were sent to the Calumet works to-day.

One hundred and twenty eviction notices were served at Trotter. Every family living at Morgan and Summit have received similar writs. There will be large importations of workmen this week. Sheriff Clawson came here from Mount Pleasant to-day to secure more guards and to purchase guns and ammunition. It is believed that an effort will be made to start the big Standard works and guards and guns are wanted for the protection of the workmen.

THE POISON MYSTERY.

Something About Dr. Graves, Mrs. Barnaby's Physician.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 27.—It is impossible to obtain any information here of the slightest authenticity concerning the death of Mrs. J. B. Barnaby, of this city, which occurred in Denver a week ago to-day.

Col. Henry B. Winship, being the president of the J. B. Barnaby Company, was naturally looked to for a satisfactory clue to the mystery, but he says he knows nothing about the unfortunate affair.

He is anxious to get a look at the handwriting on the paper in which the bottle of poisoned whiskey was wrapped.

Dr. Thatcher Graves, the person whose name is mentioned in connection with the affair, formerly had an office on Broadway not far from the Barnaby residence. About two years ago he moved to No. 250 Benefit street, on the opposite side of the river, and came under police notice by his alleged distribution of indecent professional cards in the streets and near the public schools.

Dr. Graves was Mrs. Barnaby's physician. Beyond that no one can say. He appears to have been on very good terms with her. Hence the report that he is to come in for a $50,000 share of the money she obtained by contesting her husband's will and forcing a compromise.

Dr. Graves is now en route to Providence with Mrs. Barnaby's body.

Mrs. Barnaby has no relatives in this city. Maude, her youngest daughter, has been in Paris for a year, and Mrs. Conrad, the eldest daughter, lives in Montana.

ANNA DICKINSON TALKS.

She Delivers an Incoherent Tirade in a New York Theatre.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Miss Anna Dickinson appeared on the stage of the Broadway Theatre, last night, and delivered a long, varied and disconnected discourse with all her old-time vigor. She was dressed in a low-cut dress of white material covered with black tinsel. Red roses adorned her bosom, and a Japanese fan swung from her waist. The orchestra was a little more than half filled and the balcony was quite empty. Several people smiled on the orator from the boxes.

The lecturess declared that she was not to engage her hearers in anything but informal talk. This, however, she did not do, but branched off on an incoherent tirade about the Republican party and the editor of a well-known Republican newspaper of this city. Her personal characterizations were at times repugnant to decency, and some of the ladies who occupied seats in the orchestra slipped out with their escorts.

She frequently punctuated her remarks with the question: "Folks, do you think I am insane?" This question was mentally answered in the affirmative by her hearers.

Mother and Child Burned to Death.

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 27.—Last night Mrs. John Conard and her two children, aged 14 years and 21 months, were sitting at a centre table, when a lamp fell from its hangings upon the ceiling and exploded. The three were instantly enveloped in flames and so badly burned that the younger child died from its injuries at midnight, and Mrs. Conard expired early in the morning. The elder child is seriously burned, but will recover.

Died of Chloroform Inhalation.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Lawyer John B. Elwood, aged 60 years, died at his home on West 46th street last evening of chloroform inhalation. He had been suffering from the grip, and used the drug to obtain relief. Mr. Elwood was a successful and reputable lawyer, and with his nephew, A. H. Elwood, owned a large orange grove in Florida. His nephew, who is at Richfield Springs, N. Y., was notified.

A Prominent Citizen Commits Suicide.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., April 27.—Raphael Stearns, an importer and a prominent Grand Army man, committed suicide at his residence, 1164 Keap street, by stabbing himself to the heart with a table knife, which he had sharpened for the purpose. Mr. Stearns, who was 50 years of age, had been in ill health for several months, and was probably mentally deranged.

Free Trade Meeting in Paris.

PARIS, April 27.—A crowded free trade meeting was held here during the day. It was resolved to urge upon the French government to revert to the old system of commercial treaties and reject the new tariff proposals of the customs commission.

THE SAYWARD CASE

Practically Abandoned by the English Government.

THE HEARING AGAIN POSTPONED

Lord Salisbury Will Seek to Settle the Contest by Arbitration.

Secretary Foster's Plan to Stop Bond Redemptions—It is Favored by Prominent Financiers and Capitalists—Major McKinley Recovering from His Illness—The Big Race Meeting.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—The postponement until October 15 of the hearing in the Behring Sea fisheries test case is very generally believed to mean a practical abandonment by the British government of the contest it has been making in the United States Supreme Court. Nearly six months will elapse before the time fixed upon for the resumption of the argument arrives. Meantime it is presumed that Lord Salisbury will seek to secure by arbitration what he has thus far failed to realize by diplomatic and court bluffs. By competent judges here Attorney-General Miller's brief is regarded unanswerable.

The points he makes will stand as a summary of the position assumed by the United States government almost from the beginning of the controversy, and from this neither the President or Secretary Blaine are disposed to retreat. The Attorney-General briefly claims that the United States Supreme Court cannot examine evidence heard by the Alaskan court. Evidence in the trial court showed that seals were seized by the Sayward within the three-mile limit, and therefore she deserved the punishment dealt by the United States government. The claim that the United States has territorial jurisdiction over Behring Sea waters for at least 100 miles from the Alaskan shore is emphasized, while the Attorney-General drives home the issue that the place of seizure and seal taking was in the territorial jurisdiction of the United States, and therefore of the Alaskan court.

APPROVED BY FINANCIERS.

Secretary Foster's Plan for Deferring the Redemption of Bonds.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Secretary Foster's plan of deferring the redemption of 4 1-2 per cent. bonds at the date of maturity, September 1, meets with favor in financial circles, many of the most prominent financiers and capitalists of the country having indicated by letter and in personal interviews with the secretary their approval of his scheme.

This plan carries with it the redemption of these bonds, at the pleasure of the Government after proper notice, and until they are thus called in they are to draw 2 per cent. interest after September 1.

The amount of 4 1-2 bonds unredeemed is about $43,000,000. Of these about $30,000,000 are held by National banks to secure the deposits of Government money, $1,726,000 are held by foreign holders and about $11,500,000 are held by private parties, mostly banks and security companies in trust for estates, etc.

Advices received at the Treasury Department indicate that perhaps three fourths of the present holders of the 4 1-2 per cent. bonds are desirous of retaining their bonds. By law it requires three months' notice to the holders of these bonds of the secretary's intention in regard to them.

A circular setting forth the secretary's proposition will be framed shortly, following in its general outline the circular issued by Secretary Windom April 21, 1881. He extended the payment at the option of the government of $195,690,400 six per cent. bonds.

The Washington Race Meeting.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—The regular spring meeting of the Washington Jockey Club, which begins at Benning's race track, bids fair to be one of the most successful meetings ever held in Washington. Already there are about 350 flyers in the stables—more and better horses than have ever been before at a Washington race meeting—and more are to arrive to-day. The track is one of the finest in the country and is in splendid order. All that is needed is fair weather to insure the finest sport ever seen at a race meeting here.

New Manager for the Washington Club.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Charley Snyder, the old-time and well known ball player and now umpire of the American Association, has been appointed manager of the Washington Club, vice Trott removed. Snyder will accompany the team on its trip East. Trott will test the right of the club in removing him. He says he has performed his duty and the club has no right to remove him.

The National Regatta.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Oarsmen here are already making preparations for the national regatta, which is to take place here next August. Secretary Gibson, of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, says that the prospects for a successful regatta could not be better. Every mail nowadays brings applications and entries from prominent clubs.

Major McKinley's Illness.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Ex-Congressman McKinley, who was quite ill last night from an attack of acute indigestion, is much better to-day, and his physicians and friends look for his speedy recovery.

Wolseley Praises General Sherman.

LONDON, April 27.—Lord Wolseley, in an article in the "United States Service Magazine," highly appreciates General Sherman as a man and a soldier, and says that his name will be ever honored wherever English is spoken.

SOUTHERN EXPOSITION.

Several States Preparing for a Grand Exhibit at Raleigh.

RALEIGH, N. C., April 27.—The permanent exhibit which the 14 Southern States and New Mexico and Arizona have joined in establishing in this city opens on May 15, while from the 1st of October to the 1st of December next, a great Southern Exposition will be held.

Hon. John T. Patrick, secretary of the exposition, and one of the leaders in industrial progress in the Southern States, has established headquarters here, and is working energetically to promote and perfect the arrangements for the exposition. He expects a great gathering and a remarkable exhibit of the products and resources of the South.

One of the most interesting features of the exposition will be an exhibit showing the advancement of the colored race. This branch of the exposition will be managed strictly by colored men. Each Southern State will have its special colored commissioner, who will have exclusive control over the exhibit for his State. It is expected that this exhibit will, in itself, draw thousands of people to the capital of the old North State to learn of the progress made by this people who less than a generation ago were in slavery.

EMPLOYES TO GIVE BONDS.

The American Express Company Guarding Against Carelessness.

BOSTON, April 27.—Every employe in the service of the American Express will on May 1st have to file a bond in proportion with the salaries received to insure the company against losses, the outcome of dishonesty or carelessness.

The bond will be furnished by the company in every case and a certain amount will be deducted from the salaries to remunerate the bondsmen for the risks they take.

The rate on $1,000 bonds per year will be $4.75.

Each employe will have to furnish a photograph of himself, give a partial history of his life and a complete personal description of himself.

The employes are very much incensed at these new regulations but will doubtless submit.

A Gold Find Question.

RAPID CITY, S. D., April 27.—The existence of the reported placer gold fields on Sage Creek in the Bad Lands is seriously questioned by experienced miners here. They say that no formation in that region indicates gold, and if any is found it must be of glacial origin, or the result of a wash from the gold formation of the hills. A miner just in from the Wandel district states that twenty miners are there now and plenty of colors are found. He says quicksilver is found with the dust, which is something unknown in mining history.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Efforts are being made to suppress inquiries into the death of Tailor Tobin at Franklin, Pa.

Several prominent citizens of Wahoo, Neb., are under arrest for the attempted lynching of an eloper.

The wages of coal miners in the Northumberland districts, England, have been reduced 2 3-4 per cent.

Two elections for mayor at Vincennes, Ind., have resulted in a tie vote and a third election has been ordered.

A fight is being made for the control of the big meeting at Cincinnati on May 19, which is called for the purpose of forming a third party.

The Governor and Council of Maine have decided to present to the United States cruiser Maine a service of silver plate. It will cost $1,000.

F. W. Christern, the oldest foreign bookseller in the United States, died at his home in New York city Saturday. He was born in Lauenberg, Germany, in 1817.

Ex-United States Senator Cameron of Lacrosse, Wis., has purchased the two-year-old trotting stallion Oh Soy, by Nutwood, out of So So, record 2:17 1-2, for $12,000.

As a result of a street car fight in New York between William McCullough and James G. Bender, Mrs. McCullough was stabbed in the neck with a razor by Bender.

Archbishop Corrigan yesterday laid the corner stone of St. John's Church, Fishkill Landing, N. Y., in the presence of an immense crowd. The church when finished will cost $25,000.

The total number of deaths in New York city for the past week was 1,203. There were 136 resulting from grip symptoms, 106 from consumption, 50 from bronchitis and 272 from pneumonia.

Serious Row at a Dog Fight.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., April 27.—A dog fight took place in a barn on the outskirts of the city last evening, and was followed by a general row among the spectators. Bob Peyton, the owner of the victorious dog, was the worst sufferer and was perhaps fatally injured. He was beaten and stabbed, his skull was fractured and his arm broken.

THE DAILY PRESS.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—The right road to take, is the road to Peck's.

—The Young Men's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A., will meet this evening.

—An entertainment will be given to the members of the Boys' Club next Saturday evening at 7:30. All are invited to attend.

—The ball teams of Somerville and Rahway were each beaten at their opening games of Saturday last, but the Crescents won.

—The attendance at the Boys' Club last week was very large, the largest attendance in any one evening being 83, and the smallest 49.

—A calf with three eyes and two mouths well developed, was born and died at ex-Councilman Finch's stables on Park avenue, yesterday.

—The Edwards Guards of the Boys' Club will meet for drill Wednesday evening at 8:45. A full attendance is desired. The company will appear in uniform May 30.

—The annual meeting of the New Jersey Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Board of Missions of the Protestant Episcopal church, will be held in Trinity church, Elizabeth, Wednesday morning at ten o'clock.

—Theodore Littell, who, several years ago, when he retired, was the oldest conductor in the employ of the New Jersey Central road, is lying dangerously ill at his home in Elizabeth. He is not expected to recover.

—Two men were prisoners in the police station over Sunday—one for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, the other for breaking into a man's barn to go to sleep. They will probably be given a hearing late this afternoon.

—There was an unusually large attendance at the Gospel meeting at Association Hall, opposite the post-office, Saturday evening. Similar meetings, to which all are invited, will be held at the same place every evening this week except Thursday.

—To-day the attention of the people is called to the announcement in another column, that Victor bicycles are for sale in this city by W. H. Rogers, 42 Central avenue. It is a machine excelled by no other and preferred by many to any other. Mr. Rogers also rents bicycles by the hour, day or week, and makes repairing a specialty.

—A woman whose name is said to be Newman, and who has repeatedly been arrested for similar offences, caused great disturbance on West Third street last evening, by her gross behavior while intoxicated. A man named Barry, with whom she hit in the face, is to-day looking for justice. What the West Third street people want to know is, where were the police when the row occurred?

—A large audience of men ought to hear the address of Dr. Cooley at the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association this week Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Those who have heard him talk on those subjects which so engross his thoughts and to which he has devoted his life will be glad to know that his words can be heard by a large circle. The address will be free, and all men are invited to be present.

FATHER FREEMAN CALLED AWAY.

His Bishop Wants Him to Build up the Church at Millstone.

The Rev. Nicholas M. Freeman preached his last sermon as rector of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, yesterday. He has been transferred by the Bishop of the Diocese to the parish at Millstone, Somerset county. His successor in North Plainfield will be the Rev. Father McKernan, of Beverly, Burlington county. Father McKernan will begin his labors in his new parish this week.

The North Plainfield parishioners greatly regret the departure of the priest whom they had grown to love so well, and while they bow in humble obedience to the decree of the bishop they cannot but take the dispensation deeply to heart. They will hold a farewell meeting to express their sorrow at parting, and to bid Father Freeman God speed.

During the two years Father Freeman has been in the borough he has succeeded in reducing the church debt $3,000 and besides has secured extensive improvements to the church property, so that now the parish is in a highly prosperous and flourishing condition, whereas when he came it was in a deplorable state.

Father Freeman took great interest in public matters, and was active in all local public-spirited enterprises. In the matter of the proposed opening of North Broadway he was one of the foremost advocates.

At Millstone Father Freeman will have charge of a church and a mission. That both will thrive exceedingly under his care is a foregone conclusion. He is an excellent financier as well as a devoted priest.

After suffering for years with the worst form of Dyspepsia, such as bloating, dizziness, ver igo, acid stomach, etc., I came across Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills. Using them as directed two months, and still continuing, find great relief. Would not be without, and cheerfully recommend to any suffering with the above symptoms.

OPENING THE SEASON.

The Crescent League Base-Ball Nine Play Their First Game and Defeat the Pond Tool Works Team After Ten Innings.

DURING THIS entire season the Crescent League's base-ball nine will not have a harder game to win than that of last Saturday against the team of the Pond Machine Tool Company. In fact they had practically given it up in their ninth inning when there were two of the Crescents out and the Ponds were two runs ahead. Gregg said good night and left the field. But one of McIndoe's long drives was due, and it came unexpectedly as usual, and, as usual, at the right time. It brought home Simmons and Lufbery, thus tieing the score. "Mac's" record for the day up to that time, was two strike-outs, and two little hits to pitcher and short stop.

So ten innings were played, and Jones made the winning run by taking the most daring chances. He had two strikes on him when a wild pitched ball about two feet out of his reach came his way. He waved his bat at it and reached first before Alberts could chase it up against the back board. Then he stole his way around home when Alberts threw wild in trying to cut him off at third base.

It was just this same man, Jones', playing all through the game that saved it. The Ponds had thirteen left on bases, many of whom would have scored had not Freddie backed Gregg up without an error or an omission. Never has a player shown better form at an opening game than did Jones, Saturday, in spite of wind and snow. His two foul tip catches were beauties. One he could only reach and stop with the tip of his mitten, and gobble when it dropped. The other he had to fall down to get. Captain Joe Lufbery also played a perfect game, fielding some marvelous stops with ease and effect. Martin, too, accepted every chance, and he should be signed at once. With Bonner at second—for he proved himself, Saturday, the very best—Lufbery on first, Lee third and Martin short, the Crescents will have the strongest infield in its history.

The playing of the Pond team on Saturday deserved a better reward. They had less bases on errors charged to them, and no more bases on balls; but the four wild pitches and two passed balls of their battery, netted three runs for the Crescents, and two bases on balls resulted in two more. The other two runs that beat the Ponds were made, one by Martin's steal home when Alberts was having his chest protector buckled, and the other on McIndoe's long hit. The Ponds did more hitting than the Crescents, but it was scattered and no hit came when wanted.

But the team played well considering how mixed it was. It had players all the way from Florida to Phillipsburg, and they were dressed in everything from a gauze shirt to a derby. Bonner's playing was a feature, and at times there was a snap in the battery that took the chill off even the frozen spectators. In the fourth inning Lee, Simmons and Davis followed one another to the bat, and were all out with only four balls pitched. The last man hit a fly that would be safe under any other circumstances, but it could n't get away from Walker.

The career of Davis, the Crescents' new first baseman, was short but far from sweet. He played just six innings, then vanished into right field. He gave as little satisfaction to the spectator as the new rate of admission. That twenty-five-cent charge is, however, a greater mistake than Davis. They should both be dropped, but it is going to be hard enough to coax a crowd to the new grounds even at fifteen cents, and the price and location are liable to kill public interest quicker than a poor first baseman, for the Plainfield people are used to that.

As to the grounds, they are wide spread—although four new balls were lost Saturday—and bare. The distance from Front street is not long, and the accommodations are the same as on the old grounds. The score of the opening game on the new field, was:

BURGLARS IN THE BOROUGH.

They Coolly Ransack Bed Rooms Where Householders Are Sleeping.

The enterprising burglar paid North Plainfield home a professional visit Saturday night, and though he secured no rich haul his profits were sufficiently large to make him a trifle happier than the householders who lost by his operations.

The residence of William C. Bodine, at 49 Pearl street, was entered through a parlor window, the catch of which was pushed back by the insertion of some thin blade through the crack where the two sashes meet. The burglar was a daring fellow, for he even went into the room where Mr. and Mrs. Bodine were sleeping, and in the full glare of the lamp that was burning ransacked the apartment. He seemed to have no use for anything but ready money, for he satisfied himself with taking all the change from Mr Bodine's trousers pockets and $11 from Mrs Bodine's pock-t-book. The Bodines knew nothing of the robbery till they arose Sunday morning. The thief left by the front door, leaving it unlocked after him.

The residence of William N. Pangborn, at 23 Linden avenue, also was entered through a window. The Pangborns think that they were chloroformed, for in no other way can they account for the fact that they slept soundly all the time the burglar was at work in the house. Besides, there was a faint ethereal odor in their sleeping rooms when they awoke, and they felt somewhat stupid, as from the effects of a drug. At Mr. Pangborn's the robber secured a trifle over $12 in cash, and a revolver.

Edward Morse, of Race street, heard somebody prowling around his house during the night, but when he got up to investigate the stranger disappeared in the darkness.

At the dwelling of John J. Ackerman, 59 Warren street, a trifle over $5 was secured from the trousers of Mr. Ackerman, who, like his wife, slept peacefully through it all, though the trousers whose pockets were emptied hung at the foot of the bed.

The residence of George Shepard, at 55 Warren street, also received a burglarious visit, but the invader secured nothing. Miss Mary Shepard heard a noise in her room and awoke just in time to hear the dog bark and to see a man's body disappear through the door-way. The man beat a hasty retreat to the street, the dog barking after him all the way.

Stories of robbers with their heads and shoulders enveloped in shawls, in which holes had been cut for eyes, are freely circulated to-day, but no one seems to have seen any burglars in just that guise.

WESTFIELD ROBBED TOO.

The Thief Scorned Gold and Silver Plate, and Took Only Cold Cash.

Evidently the same skillful burglar who so successfully plied his trade in North Plainfield Saturday night visited Westfield last night, for at least two successful attempts at robbery were made in that town between 11 p. m. Sunday and 4 a. m. Monday.

An unsuccessful attempt was made to rob the Sherman residence on Clark street. From the Tompkins house on Dudley avenue $10 was taken. Silverware that was in open sight was untouched.

Mrs. Wilcox, of Prospect street, awoke to find a man bending over her bureau. She at first thought it was her husband, and asked him what he was looking for. The burglar shielded his face with his hands from her gaze and slunk out of the house. He had already secured $25 in bills, from a pocket-book. The notes and papers in the pocket-book were scattered about the floor. The burglar made no attempt to take Mrs. Wilcox's valuable gold watch lying on the bureau, nor anything else which if found on his person might be incriminating.

It was at first thought that the burglar—for there seems to have been but one—was some adventurous young man of the borough, but State Detective Marsh, who has looked into both the North Plainfield and the Westfield burglaries, says that the work is that of a professional.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

C. E. Buell, of the firm of Buell & Sons, extensive leather manufacturers of Watervile, N. Y., is visiting Dr. J. A. Allis, of this city.

A family reunion was held Saturday evening, April 25, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alm. S. See, 14 Crescent avenue, to celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding. Relatives were present from New York and Philadelphia.

Maysie, the three-year-old daughter of Thomas Clarkson, of Orchard place, died yesterday morning at about 10:30, after an illness of 24 hours. She suffered with malignant scarlet fever. The funeral, which was private, occurred to-day.

Edward McCarthy, a well-known New York counselor, has leased the home of Otto Arens, on Park avenue. Mr. Arens and family will leave this country for Europe in a few days, and make their residence there for an indefinite period.

Chancellor McGill has appointed Counselor William K McClure a Special Master in Chancery, and the latter now enjoys the deserved distinction of being the only lawyer in Plainfield honored by being both a Supreme Court Commissioner and a Special Master in Chancery.

Here's our card.
It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are not straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public estimation accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for telling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of Shoes.

CRESCENTS, 1,634; ECHOES, 1,427.

Plainfield's Bowlers Run Away From Brooklyn's Champions of Last Season.

Seven men rolled over 160 each. That's the latest enviable record to be announced concerning Captain VanEmburgh's team of Crescent League bowlers. The celebrated "Echoes," last season's champions of Brooklyn, came to Plainfield Saturday evening expecting to distance the Crescents, but they finished 207 pins behind. Then the victors gave the visitors a course dinner at The Albion, and sent them home full of good cheer and good will.

The Crescents did not expect to win, but they decided to give the Echoes a scare anyway. So they followed one another down the first frame without a break, and with only one on the second. That settled the Echoes. Only two frames rolled and only one trial of each alley, yet they were 108 pins behind. After that no team could have caught the Crescents and they devoted their attention to showing the experts from the metropolis how colts from the country bowl.

Everybody gave a little exhibition of his own, and even Reed, the low man, wound up with two strikes in his last frame, all for the benefit of Wm. F. Sielken of the Ivanhoes of Brooklyn, this season's champions. He came out to see whether his club should send their second or third team to Plainfield to meet the Crescents. He was appointed umpire of the game so as he could have a chance to make up his mind. He has decided that seven picked bowlers of the Echoes champion team with the best man of each of Brooklyn's three highest scoring clubs, is the only kind of a team that would have any show against the Crescents. The score was:

High School Boys the Victors.

The High School base-ball team defeated the Leal School team Saturday morning on the Park avenue grounds by the score of 10 to 8. The wind that whistled through the trees had more control of the ball than had the players, but the boys managed to hold the score down very creditably. In the ninth inning, when the Leals saw the game so surely against them, their crowd of backers began to hoot at Lowrie, hoping to "rattle" him, but nevertheless the High School players succeeded in putting the men out in one-two-three order. The game lasted two hours. The score:

The Boys' Club Nine Defeated.

The Young Stars played an interesting game of base-ball against the Boys' Club team, Saturday afternoon, and beat them by a score of 30 to 14.

Following is the score by innings:

Young Stars—7 6 2 2 1 3 3 2 4—30
Boys' Club — 2 0 2 0 1 0 5 0 4—14

Next Saturday afternoon the club will play the Young Cuban Giants. The battery for the Boys' Club is Winn and Sutphen.

Card Players Raided by the Police.

Policemen Kiely and Cooney raided a house on Second street, in the early hours Sunday morning, which had long been under suspicion of being a gambling den. They forced their way into the place, and claim to have caught four people in the act of gambling. They kept as evidence the cards and money they secured, paroled the prisoners for a hearing, which will probably take place in a day or two. Some of the parties implicated are white, and some are colored.

Somewhat Different.

The Y. M. C. A. bowling team intend to play a return game with their unsuccessful opponents, the Plainfield Crescents, on Friday evening next.—New Brunswick Home News.

The Plainfield Crescents are not the New Brunswick Y. M. C. A.'s "unsuccessful" opponents, for they beat them 216 pins last Wednesday evening. And the Crescents are not going to play them a return game "Friday evening next."

One Game Apiece.

The Plainfield Cuban Giants played the Dauntless base-ball nine two games, Saturday. In the first game the Dauntless won by the score of 9 to 0. In the second the Cuban Giants won by the score of 20 to 16. The Dauntless battery were Sutphen and Gerry; the Cuban Giant, Carter and Carter. Burt Littell was umpire. The game took place on the Scott Press Works grounds.

JERSEY CENTRAL BASE-BALL CRANKS.

A Foreign View of the Teams in and Around Plainfield.

[From The New York World.]

Lovers of the national game in Central New Jersey have been humping themselves to get together teams that will play ball. Every town used to make it a point to have only amateurs on its nine. To have a paid man on the team was thought to be a reproach, and every victory won by such a team had a cloud of doubt about it.

These amateur games furnished lots of fun, but displayed very little science. They also developed good players. But as the players grew older their business interests were increased so that they could not continue to play and delight the crowd without great sacrifice. So gradually semi-professionals came to be employed. The West Ends, of Somerville, probably led off in this direction. Instead of injuring the game, the change increased popular interest, so that the best teams in Central Jersey have their expenses covered by the gate fees, and are able in addition to induce the best semi-professional clubs of New York to play on their grounds for a share in the gate receipts. Through the stagnation of popular interest in the national clubs last year, the local clubs held their own. They were backed by the local athletic associations, and the support of the public was hearty and generous.

The New Jersey Athletic Club's team is of course supposed to represent the State in the semi-professional field, and every Jerseyman will be glad if it wins the A. A. U. championship. Newark's enthusiasm is divided among several clubs, the Star Athletics perhaps holding the lead.

WHERE CRANKS ABOUND.

Outside of Bayonne, Jersey City, Newark and Trenton, however, there is a particular section of the State which goes insane regularly every summer over its nines. That section is bounded by Rahway on the east, Somerville on the south, Plainfield on the west and Westfield on the north. This is perhaps a hazy geographical description, but it accurately fixes the metes and bounds of the annual outbreak of the spherical grip in Jersey. And all winter the managers of the nines in these towns have been preparing, as they hope, for a successful season.

Manager H. C. Wilson and his assistant, W. J. Brown, of Rahway, think they have bagged the prizes of the day. Old Reliable Joe Reilley will as usual be in the place where he is said to have been born, behind the bat. He will captain the team. Pitcher Joe Burns, who delighted the town last year, will be retained. Harry Francis, of the New Brunswick Unions of last year, and Wm. H. Brunnemer, a Brooklyn lad, will alternate with Burns in the box. Will Paasch at first and Gus Paasch at third will have the chance to make some pretty brotherly plays. Tommy Murray, of last season's Allertons, will cover short and prove his right to the the title of Glasscock, jr., at the bat. The only John Dilion will cover left field and try to beat his last season's fielding average of 1,000. J. J. O'Brien will be in centre field, and the town hangs breathless on the production of Captain Reilley's unknown for right field.

Manager Codding, of the Westfield Athletics, says deliberately that he has the best semi-professional team in the State. McManus and O'Neill, formerly of the St. Louis College team, will be the battery. Diven, who covered first for the Hackett-Carbarts, will alternate with O'Neill in the box, and Plath, of the New Brunswick Unions, with McManus behind the bat. For centre field there is Conklin, who has spotted many a ball on the Somerville ball field. First base will be guarded by Diven and O'Neill, second base by DeWitt and third by Mullen. McLaughlin will pluck the flowers in left garden. Perhaps Murray, an old man on the team, will cavort at shortstop. Manager Codding is engaged in an earnest attempt to hook Martin, the phenomenal shortstop of last year's Crescents.

SOMERVILLE TEAM.

Manager Mack, of the West End Athletics of Somerville, announces that the American eagle is going to scream around his head all summer. The West End Club is expected to destroy everything that comes its way, not excepting the N. J. A. C., with which it will play May 9 at Somerville and May 20 at Bergen Point. The eagle is going to take especial delight in War Horse Harkins, an old player in the Brooklyn and Cleveland National League Clubs. Frank Bowes, also an old Brooklyn man, is to catch for him. Bergen, captain of the crack Pennington Club of two years ago, will cover first bag, Jack Farrell second and Al Williams, of the extinct and lamented Senators, third bag. Moorehead, of the Hackett-Carharts, is to play at short. In right field will be Jack Hatfield, formerly of the Plainfield Crescents. Carbonell, of the Manhattan Athletic Club, belongs in the centre garden, and Reliable Bill Davenport in left garden. Davenport is the inspiring genius of the team. The spare player will be W. W. Major, a good all-round man.

PLAINFIELD'S PETS.

The Plainfield Crescents have set their hearts on walloping the Somerville nine. The crushing defeat of last year rankles in their souls. After the Crescents had whipped soundly every New York club which ventured to stand against them, the West Ends came to the fray. The Crescents were beaten in two straight games, and the third, which almost caused a riot, is claimed by both teams. This year six games have been arranged for with the West Ends, and though he does not say it, Capt. Lufberry hopes way down in his cardiac organ to make it six straight for Plainfield.

Lufberry's antics at second base are not like those of a gazelle, but he is a quick and skillful man. There is a great deal of mystery about the men who will play with him. The policy of the Crescent League has always been to have two or three trial games before making final contracts for the season. Gregg will certainly play in the box. Billy Lee, the idol of the base-ball population of the town, will be at third base, as usual. A new man, Davis, will be at first. Fred. Jones, plucky and quick, will catch Gregg, as usual. Hammill, another new man, will alternate with Gregg in the box. McIndoe, an old favorite, is in right field. Who the other members of the team will be is not even suggested, as yet.

Of Interest to Sportsmen.

The report going the rounds of the State press that Governor Abbett has signed House bill No. 29, which forbade the shooting of quail for five years, is incorrect. The bill did not pass either house, and therefore could not come before the Governor.

Sixty-three thousand young trout have been deposited in streams about and in Lake Hopatcong.

A rumor has gained credence that fishing with hook and line is not allowed by law below the dam across the Raritan river at the five-mile-lock. This rumor is not true. The law of the State says that there shall be no fishing with seines or nets within 1,000 feet of the dam in the waters below it. Fishing with hook and line is not prohibited. Black bass cannot legally be taken in any waters in the State before May 30.

Gov. Abbett having failed to sign Assembly bill No. 23, which repealed the charter of the West Jersey Game Society, the repealer becomes inoperative, and the West Jersey Society is still in existence.

Raritan river shad are now being taken by fishermen. The shad from this stream are said to be the most delectable of the tribe.

White perch are biting freely in the Raritan river below the dam.

Secured a Complete Vindication.

A test case of the Borough of North Plainfield against the Home Oil Co., and particularly against its agent, William A. Westphal, of the grocery firm of F. Westphal & Son, of this city, was tried last Thursday evening before Mayor Place. Wm. A. Coddington was counsel for the defendant, and Borough Counsel Charles A. Reed for the prosecution.

The charge was peddling without license. The prosecution brought forward several witnesses, but failed to prove that peddling had been done, or that the laws had been violated. Whereupon Mayor Place discharged the defendant.

Mr. Westphal was arrested before, some two months ago, on a similar charge, at which time he had to pay a fine to Justice Hardy. This determined the company to make a test case of it. He secured a complete vindication.

Hope to See Him Again.

The Binghampton Times says of the play that is to be given at Music Hall, tonight: "Frank Mayo's 'Davy Crockett' is one of the best of the realistic class of plays that we have witnessed upon any stage, and the representation last evening was artistic and grand to the fullest extent. Though a story of the backwoods there is none of the blood and thunder loud talk to be found in the depicture of border life; but the pure love of a strong, untutored nobleman of the forest is at all times portrayed in a masterly manner by Mr. Mayo, who, in this character, a creation of his own, has no equal in the country. His support was excellent, and all formed a pleasing and not tiresome entertainment. We hope to see Mr. Mayo here again soon."

The Unions' Big Score.

The Unions of Grant avenue defeated the Stars of Dunellen, Saturday morning, by the score of 38 to 5. The feature of the game was the heavy batting done by the Unions. The teams were constituted as follows: Unions—A. Smith, 2b.; Firstbrook, 1b.; C. Smith, ss.; Taylor, c.; Martin, lf.; Young, p.; Scott, 3b.; Hoffman, rf.; Reed, cf.; Kiely, cf. Stars—Thorn, c.; Perrin, p.; H. Craig, 1b.; Bolce, rf.; Fish, 3b.; Green, lf.; Gray, 2b.; S. Craig, cf.; Lebeau, ss.

Saved the Firemen from a Sunday Call.

Thickstun's coal sheds, Madison avenue, were set afire, at about half-past nine Sunday morning, by sparks from a locomotive. The fire was discovered by Fred. Stillman, who lives near, and was put out by him, assisted by Ed. Mosher, an exempt member of No. 2 Engine Company.

Gov. Pennoyer Regrets His Action.

PORTLAND, Ore., April 25.—The remarks made by Gov. Pennoyer regarding the President's reception caused a sensation here. The Governor regrets that the matter got into print. He now states: "I will receive President Harrison with all the courtesy due his exalted position. I see that on this Presidential trip all the Governors are receiving the President at the State line. This was never done before and I doubt its propriety."

Big Publishing House Burned.

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—The five-story building, Nos. 728 and 730 Cherry street, occupied by J. B. Jones & Co. (The National Publishing Co.), who conducted an extensive book publishing business, was completely destroyed by fire during the morning. Loss, about $200,000; insurance, one-third to one-half. The origin of the fire is unknown. One hundred tons of paper, which were stored on the top floor, were burned.

HIS PROFESSION.

My boy and I rode in the train
One morning bright and clear.
"When I'm a grown-up man," said he,
"I'll be an engineer."

But soon the dust flew in his eyes
And heavy grew his head.
"I wouldn't be an engineer
For all the world," he said.

My boy was at a seaport town
And saw the rolling sea.
"Mamma," he said, one evening,
"A sailor I shall be!"

We took him to a yacht race—
He had to go to bed!
"I wouldn't be a sailor, now,
For all the world!" he said.

We read him stirring stories
Of soldiers and their fame.
"I'll go and fight," cried Freddie,
"And put them all to shame!"

We told him of a soldier's life;
He shook his little head.
"I wouldn't be a soldier, now,
For all the world!" he said.

And thus to each profession
He first said "yes," then "no."
"To make a choice is hard," he said,
"At least, I find it so."

"But what, then, will you be?" I asked,
"When you are grown-up, Fred?"
"I really think I'll only be A gentleman," he said.

—Dr. Malcolm McLeod, in St. Nicholas.

A BAG OF DIAMONDS.

The Tragedy That Was Enacted in the Old Miser's Bedroom.

Many times he had thought of it, and finally had screwed his courage to the sticking point.

After all, what good to the old man was that bag of gems? What good except to count over, mark their twinkling facets, gloat over their value, and laugh at those who might covet them. Palsied fingers would shake as the strings of the chamois-skin treasury were rapturously untied, and a moment's life and energy flash into pinched cheek and faded eye, as every evening the revelation of untold wealth woke in a withered heart its only surviving passion. But what good to the world or to the man was that brief minute of ecstasy? Was it not paid for a hundredfold by nights of fear and forbodings of robbery that made life a perpetual horror? How often had Paul heard his uncle wake from his noontide nap with a dreaming cry: "My diamonds, my diamonds! Is that you, Paul? I thought it was a robber."

His thoughts were to come true tonight. Paul tried to persuade himself that the treasure he had set his heart on belonged to him as much as if they had been lying in a mine, the prize of the first finder.

Then came another thought. His own poverty and his great love. His uncle's ward was as poor as himself—poor, proud and beautiful. Such flowers only grow in hard and solitary places, in the nipping air, and uncrowded even by the unobtrusiveness of love. Straight, slender and full-hued as a rose, with a big soul beaming in her face and eyes, with meek, silent ways, and bearing unflinchingly the blows of an old man's brutal tongue, this girl had presented to the poet's mind the image of power, of profound passion, of untiring constancy, such as had enchanted him and transformed his life. She had been first to shy him, then wistfully tender as she pitied him. It was in the arbor at the foot of the garden where he was seated now, behind the hedge of clipped yew, that she nestled close in his arms, and they had known the first moment of happiness in their deserted lives.

"We must be patient, Paul."

Patient did she say? They had been so long enough. His plans were ripe now, and he was watching the light in his uncle's window. The old man would sleep well—he had taken care of that—to-night. If he awoke? Well, that was provided for. Old men are not hard to smother. The night, dark and damp, suited dark thoughts. And the sting of long oppression, the blind feeling after revenge for years of cruel slights and insults, had long engendered such thoughts. And now came a vision of an earthly heaven, the hope of a new life beyond the seas.

"Yes, I will fly with you at any time you ask," the girl had said, resolutely. "We shall be happy, rich or poor."

No, not poor. He would provide against that.

The lights in the windows of the mansion had gone out. Even the windows on the ground floor, which open on the piazza, are dark. This is his uncle's room. Paul rises from his seat. The dripping jasmine spray that strikes his cheek as he leaves the little summer-house makes his heart stop for a moment. He fears even the faint crunch of his footsteps on the gravel. There is a dog baying in the distance, as if conscious that thieves are about.

He steals past the big pear tree at the corner of the piazza, and trampling in the soft mold of the flower garden, where her jonquils and tulips grew, he creeps breathlessly to the back porch. The outer door is quickly opened. He thrusts out his hand to find the knob of the house door, and, taking a latch key from his vest pocket, he opens it too. At the end of the hall is his uncle's room. The house is silent. But hark! did he hear a footfall? It must be a heavy footfall that is heard on the thick carpet and steady floor of oak. He had never before explored this old rambling dwelling in darkness. It was always to him a sad and dreary place; a place of faded hangings, old-fashioned and tasteless bric-a-brac, paintings insipid in their tarnished frames, and books that echoed the fancy and opinion of a dead generation—flavorless as yesterday's news.

He has reached his uncle's door. There he produces a dark lantern from under his cloak. Drawing up the slide for a moment he flashes the cone of light over the hall and up the staircase. It lights up for a moment oaken wainscoting, crowded hat-rack, the antlers overhead, and the statue of Cupid, pallid as a ghost, and then falls on the staircase. As it does so he snaps down the slide, and all is darkness again.

Yes, all is dark and quiet. There is no witness to his crime.

What would she say or think if she saw him cowering and crouching at his uncle's door? The thought of her rises like a phantom in his mind; she is all in white, yet calm, resolute, and beautiful—an angel in contrast with the inferno of his own troubled thoughts—and yet it deepens his resolution. He is the martyr seeing the martyr's crown, the soldier with the reward of his valor before his eyes. In her purity, her strength, her peace, it seems to him he would find an escape even from the torture and shame of his guilty mind. He would bathe himself in her presence as in a flood of cleansing water, a second baptism. Her smile, her trustfulness, the music of her voice would be a heaven in which he might bask and rest, and forget his fraud—yes, even his bloodguiltiness.

He turns the handle of the door quietly, gradually, and enters. A delicate scent, as from the folds of silken garments, strikes his senses. But he does not hear a single rustle from his uncle's bed. The old man sleeps soundly indeed.

Then he draws up the slide of his lantern.

So violently, with such trembling agitation does he close it again, the instant after, that the whole thing falls clattering to the ground and Paul turns and rushes through the room.

What has he seen to overcome him so?

A woman, tall and supple as a Greek, stern eyed as a Clytemnestria and twenty times as fair, with black hair and marble arms, eyes of fringed violet, bosom of ivory—how often had he doted on them! How often had he felt his heart swell with pity, with admiration, with unspeakable love, as the soft voice tremulously remonstrated with him:

"We must be patient, Paul."

And now this saint of his life, this virgin flower of woman, this one who was to be the salt and salve to his sad, wounded, outraged and rebellious heart—there she stands, her right hand under the pillow of the unconscious sleeper, her left arm to strike him down if he awake!

Paul passed stealthily into the garden again. He went with bounds across the parterre, fiercely trampling the flowers and borders, cursing meanwhile, in his heart, with bitter rage and execration, the angel, forsooth, who was thief and murderess.

Then he laughed a wild, trembling laugh, such as only grief that borders on frenzy finds utterance.

That night, as he sat till dawn under the moaning poplars and over and over again repeated to his mind the hideous incident that he half believed to be a dream, love turned to hate, as fuel to ashes, as a flower to the blood-red poison.

"It was for love of me!" he murmured, "for love of me—ah! that is the blow that cuts deepest; for why? That love of hers is loathsome to me."

"That was forty years ago," said Miss Perry, "and it seems only yesterday."

She looked from the gray area of the casino at Narragansett out over the blue, dimpling sea, where a yacht was just coming to anchor.

The wrinkled old general, who directed the taste of the wealthy New York spinster in the fitting of her large art gallery, wiped a tear from her glass eye. It was a telling gesture, though the tear was not a tear of sensibility.

"But how did you find out that it was he?" he inquired, softly.

"Hand me that fan and I will tell you. I had come downstairs, hearing a noise and thinking of burglars. I was brave in those days, and seized a heavy pair of scissors, which I carried dagger-wise. I went to my uncle's room, felt under his pillow, and was relieved to find his bag of diamonds safe. Then there was a momentary flash of light, the clatter of a lantern dropped in darkness, and the sound of receding footsteps.

"I never saw Paul again to this day. The lantern was identified as his. I felt relieved at his flight at the moment. But, general, you and I are old people, and for my part I can love only once, and you must not speak to me again as you have done to-day."—Epoch.

KISSED THE POET.

How Dom Pedro Made Whittier Blush Like a Bashful Maiden.

The poet Whittier, who even in his old age is as bashful as a girl, was once embraced and kissed by a man in a crowded Boston parlor. The incident is told by Rev. Carles Martyn in his life of Wendell Phillips. Dom Pedro, of Brazil, on his visit to Boston in 1876, expressed a wish to meet Mr. Whittier, with whom he had corresponded for many years concerning poetry and slavery. A notable Bostonian gave a reception to the emperor at which the poet promised to be present.

The emperor was conversing with Wendell Phillips when the venerable poet entered, but he immediately rose, threw his arms about the blushing Quaker, and kissed him on both cheeks. Then seating him on a sofa he placed himself at the poet's side and chatted with him for half an hour.

When the conversation became general the emperor told of his driving over to Charlestown to see Bunker Hill monument. It was six o'clock in the morning, and the keeper was in bed. When aroused he refused to let the emperor in until he paid the entrance fee, half a dollar.

Dom Pedro, having left his purse at home, was obliged to borrow the coin from the hackman. The company laughed and Mr. Phillips said:

"The story does not end with the payment of the entrance fee. I will tell your majesty the rest of it. Two hours later a well-known leader of Boston society entered the visitors' room at the base of the monument. Glancing over the book in which every visitor registers he saw your majesty's signature.

"'Why,' said he to the keeper, 'you have had the emperor of Brazil here this morning. How did he look?'

"The keeper, putting on his glasses, examined the handwriting and scornfully muttered:

"'Emperor? That's a dodge; that fellow was a scapegrace without a cent in his pocket!'"—N. Y. Journal.

—"Before we were married," said she, "his displays of affection were positively overdone." "And now?" "They are very rare."—Indianapolis Journal.

"WHY, ARE YOU SICK?"

"I know precisely how you feel; it is that nervous, irritable feeling, your back troubles you, and when you try to read a little your head aches. Isn't that so? I knew it. Oh, bother the doctor! Get a bottle of Vegetable Compound, and take it faithfully, as I have done. I've been through this thing myself, but am never troubled now. Do as I tell you, dear."

Prudent women who best understand their ailments, find in the Compound a remedy for all those distressing ills that require prompt and effective treatment as a guaranty to good health.

Fell Seven Hundred Feet.

A miner at the Neilson shaft colliery, at Shamakin, recently fell down the shaft a distance of about 700 feet and then landed on the cage, which was also descending, without sustaining any injuries, and upon the cage reaching the bottom of the shaft the miner walked in the gangway and went to work as though nothing unusual had happened. As the miner took hold of the timber at the top of the shaft and was about stepping into the cage the latter started down the shaft with lightning rapidity. The timber was covered with ice, and the unfortunate man clung fast with his body dangling above a yawning pit 1,400 feet deep. The bystanders shuddered. In a moment his hold slipped and he dropped down the shaft. About midway down the shaft he landed on the cage, which was descending so rapidly that the man was not even jarred. When asked whether he was hurt the man, who was a Polander, replied: "Me skin my arm a little," and, rubbing his elbow, started into the gangway to his work. —Philadelphia Times.

TRIBUTES TO GRANT

Annual Dinners to Celebrate the General's Birthday.

SEVERAL PLEASANT FEATURES

The Great Commander's Deeds Recalled by Prominent Citizens.

Touching Scene at the Delmonico Banquet in New York—A Start Made to Build the Grant Monument—Exercises at the Tomb—The Hero's Cabin to be Removed from Missouri.

NEW YORK, April 28.—The birthday of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant was celebrated last night by the members of the Grant Birthday Dinner Association at Delmonico's.

The decorations in the dining hall were very fine, and included life-size portraits of Generals Grant, Sherman and Sheridan and President Lincoln.

Among those present were Hon. Joseph H. Choate, who presided; Hon. William M. Evarts, who responded to the toast, "The Day We Celebrate," Rear Admiral Braine, General Howard, Hon. W. J. Wallace, Hon. John W. Noble, Hon. Calvin S. Brice, Hon. Stephen B. Elkins and Hon. T. C. Platt.

From the balcony, after the speech-making had been reached, Mrs. Grant, the widow of the man who was in every-body's thoughts, looked down upon the brilliant scene. And surely it must have assuaged her sorrow to hear the glowing, heartfelt and eloquent tributes of respect and esteem that were paid by successive speakers to the memory of her dead husband, and the responsive applause that every sentiment elicited.

With her were her daughter, Mrs. Sartoris, Mrs. J. A. Fassett, Mrs. C. H. T. Collis, wife of Gen. Collis, and Miss E. L. Gleason of Philadelphia. There was a great scene when they came in. Mr. Choate was speaking, but he stopped immediately and all in the banquet chamber stood up and waved their handkerchiefs and cheered while Mrs. Grant stepped forward and smiled and bowed her acknowledgements.

Mrs. Sartoris brought her little daughter with her, a very pretty child, with a profusion of brown hair and eyes. She didn't go on the balcony; she was brought on to the floor of the banquet hall and conducted to the president's table, where she took a seat next to that of Senator Evarts. The old veteran smiled and his face lit up until he looked fully 10 years younger, and when he stooped over and kissed the pretty child everybody applauded as though he had made a big hit. It was louder applause than he got for any of the points that glittered like stars in the dark labyrinthian mazes of the speech which he made.

A beautiful souvenir menu, leather bound, with a portrait of General Grant on the cover, was presented to each guest. Accompanying the menu was a small leather case containing a bronze medal, on the face of which is a bas-relief of General Grant's head, and on the reverse a bas-relief of the tomb as it will be when completed.

AT THE GENERAL'S TOMB.

Breaking Ground for the Riverside Memorial Witnessed by Thousands.

NEW YORK, April 28.—Full 10,000 persons were massed about the tomb of General Grant when the monument ceremonies opened. Gen. C. H. T. Collis, chairman of the Grant Monument Executive Committee, explained the nature of the gathering and then turned the exercises over to Charles H. Freeman, Department Commander, G. A. R. After Mr. Freeman's introduction the "Star Spangle Banner" was rendered by the Marine Band, and at its conclusion Rev. Dr. Clark Wright invoked the blessing.

After the prayer General Horace Porter, the orator of the day, claimed the attention of the assemblage. His address was frequently punctuated with applause.

At the conclusion of the address, which occupied over an hour, Mr. Freeman, Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris, and her two daughters entered the hollow square in front of the tomb, and the ceremony of cutting the first sod was gone through with. Mr. Freeman gracefully officiated, while the band played "America." Just as he removed the turf a soldier who stood on an elevated mound waved his hand, and the big guns of the U. S. S. Yantic, which lay in the Hudson, belched forth a salute. This ended the exercises.

Among those present were Secretary Noble, ex-Mayor Grace, Comptroller Myers, Col. Elliott F. Shepard, A. S. De Frece, George M. Pullman, Minister Romero, General Howard, Admiral Braine and Gen. Daniel D. Sickles.

General Grant's Famous Cabin.

ST. LOUIS, April 28.—General Grant's famous log cabin, which stands on an eight-acre farm 10 miles southwest of this city, is about to be removed and taken to Chicago as one of the attractions of the World's Fair. General Grant erected the cabin with his own hands out of logs cut and hewn by himself.

The Americus Club Celebrates.

PITTSBURG, April 28.—The Americus Club last night celebrated for the fifth time the anniversary of the birthday of General Grant. The preparations for the event were elaborate, surpassing all previous efforts. A large number of distinguished statesmen were present.

Banquet in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, April 28.—The Union League Club celebrated General Grant's birthday last night with a banquet. Many prominent citizens were among the guests.

Preparing to Receive Parnell.

CHICAGO, April 28.—Preparations are being made here for a reception to Mr. Parnell. It is intended to make it one of the greatest demonstrations Chicago ever saw.

Citizen Train Starts on His Tour Around the World.

NEW YORK, April 28.—Citizen George Francis Train left this city last night on his tour around the world. His first stopping place will be at Chicago where he will dine with the Press Club. Next he will be seen in Omaha and from there he will go direct to Portland, Oregon.

To Whatcom he will be conveyed in a special train, at which place he will deliver a lecture that he declares will astonish the natives. Yokohama will be his next point and he expects to reach the land of the Rising Sun by May 9.

After making a tour of the Orient he will hurry on to Brindisi and thence to Calais. He will be back in New York July 4. While in Italy he will interview Premier Rudini.

Just before his departure Citizen Train said: "I leave to escape the revolution. It will come within thirty days. I predicted failure Baring Bros. Correct! I now prophesy failure of Jay Gould. Look out, everybody! National bankruptcy, war with Italy, pestilence, grip, Jack the Ripper, famine, flood and fire! I escape it all."

SLAVIN MEETS SULLIVAN.

The Champion Congratulated the Australian, but Refused to Fight.

ST. LOUIS, April 28.—Frank Slavin traveled as far as St. Louis to meet John L. Sullivan, and went to the Southern Hotel with the offer of a match.

Sullivan said he had retired, and, taking him by the hand, wished him all the luck in the world and declared himself glad to meet him. "You are the only man who ever came to me to ask for a fight," said Sullivan. "The others like to talk 3,000 miles away. I congratulate you."

Slavin said: "I stand on my own reputation and want no man's, and am open to fight any man in the world." The meeting was a friendly one.

After the interview with Sullivan, Slavin said: "We parted the best of friends. I am glad I met him, and I want you to say this for me, that the man who makes the bluff of challenging Sullivan will have to fight me before he gets at Sullivan."

NEW YORK, April 28.—Slavin has been matched by his backers to fight Jake Kilrain 10 rounds for a purse of $10,000 before the Granite Athletic Club, of Hoboken, within the next six weeks.

POLICE ARE MYSTIFIED.

Inspector Byrnes Has Not Yet Captured "Jack the Ripper."

NEW YORK, April 28.—"Jack the Ripper" is still at large. Suspicious characters are being arrested hourly, but judging from all that could be learned at Police Headquarters the detectives are as far from discovering "Jack the Ripper" as they were on the day of the discovery of the murder. Inspector Byrnes says: "Just as soon as the newspapers get through discovering the murderer I can work better. I did not say that 'Frenchy's' cousin committed the murder."

Death from a Broken Heart.

TRENTON, N. J., April 28.—Mrs. James Murphy, the mother of Mrs. Myra Knifflin, who was so mysteriously chloroformed to death 15 months ago, died yesterday of a broken heart. The blow of the murder was a terrible one to her, and she had never been the same cheerful woman afterward. She went into decline, and had been gradually growing worse from that time up to the hour of her death. To a neighbor she recently referred to her deep sorrow as the great trouble she was passing through.

On Trial for the Old Colony Accident.

DEDHAM, Mass., April 28.—The trial of Joseph F. Welch of Quincy, charged with manslaughter in causing the death of several persons on the Old Colony Railroad at Quincy last August by being criminally negligent, has begun in the Norfolk Superior Criminal Court. Welch pleaded not guilty. The jury went to view the scene of the accident, and while they were absent a hearing was given on a motion to quash the indictment.

Charter for a New Railroad.

PITTSBURG, April 28.—The Glen Hazel & Shawmut Railroad Company has been granted a charter by the State Department at Harrisburg. Capital, $150,000. It will be 15 miles long, from Kettner's Station on the New York, Lake Erie & Western Railroad to a point near Daguscahonda on the Philadelphia & Erie Railroad. S. S. Bullis, of Olean, N. Y., is the president.

Mrs. Julia Casey Gibbon Dead.

PUTNAM, Conn., April 28.—Mrs. Julia Casey Gibbon, 71 years old, a wealthy resident of Thompson, is dead. She was the widow of the late James Kenny Gibbon and belonged to the well known Casey family of Philadelphia. She will be buried in Greenwood Cemetery, New York.

Florida's Senatorial Contest.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., April 28.—Three ballots were taken in the joint Democratic Senatorial caucus last night with but slight changes. The last ballot stood: Call, 56; Speer, 40; Bloxham, 1; Gaskins, 1; Crawford, 1.

Official Details About the New Orleans Massacre.

ITALY'S BLUSTER IS FARCICAL.

All the Murdered Italians Registered at the Last Election.

The Italian Consul Claims that the Lynched Men Had No Idea of Abandoning Their Allegiance to the King—The Attorney-General Will Decide that Question—Rudini's Answer to Blaine.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Report has it that Secretary Blaine and Attorney-General Miller within the past 24 hours have received from the United States District-Attorney at New Orleans the official details of the Mafia massacre.

It is understood that the District-Attorney finds that all the murdered Italians registered and voted at the last election in the Crescent City. This is urged against the claim that the victims of the tragedy were subjects of King Humbert.

It is left to the Attorney-General or the courts to determine, therefore, whether, by exercising the right of American franchise, the men who were lynched did not relinquish whatever privileges they might possess as citizens of Italy. The claim made by the Italian Consul at New Orleans that the Mafia, in voting, had no idea of abandoning their allegiance to Italy, is ridiculed here. By jurists it is held that the act of casting the ballot in Louisiana was a declaration to become citizens of the United States. It is not known whether or not the report states that the Italians had taken out their naturalization papers before voting.

If the fact is established that by voting the Mafia bade farewell to their Italian citizenship, lawyers here say Rudini's case will have every prop knocked from under it and the whole diplomatic warfare will prove a farce so far as the Italian Premier figures in it.

RUDINI'S REPLY TO BLAINE.

He Will Demand Indemnity and the Arrest of the Lynchers.

ROME, April 28.—It is asserted that the Marchese di Rudini, after several interviews with Baron Fava, has decided upon the terms of his answer to Mr. Blaine, which will be to this effect:

Italy will not rest satisfied with the reasons given by the United States. The question of public rights demad reciprocal protection for the subjects of friendly powers.

Signor di Rudini declares that a civilized notion would fail in its duties if it did not demand indemnity for the families of the murdered Italians and the arrest of the assassins.

Decision to the Indictments.

NEW YORK, April 28.—Counsel on behalf of the indicted New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad officials in the Court of Oyer and Terminer interposed demurrers to the indictments on the ground that directors who do not actively manage a road cannot be held liable, and that no crime has been shown under the statute which refers to railroad companies incorporated in this State. The arguments in the demurrer will be heard on Friday next.

She Gambled, Lost and Tried to Suicide.

LONDON, April 28.—A despatch from Monte Carlo says that last night an English lady, fashionably dressed, and who is believed to have lost sums at the gambling tables, suddenly sprang headforemost into the sea from the top of the terrace or sea wall. A sailor who observed the woman's act plunged into the water after her and succeeded in rescuing the would-be suicide. The name of neither rescued or rescuer has been made known.

Berlin Socialists Preparing for May-Day.

BERLIN, April 28.—The extremists of the Socialistic Democratic party have already arranged for a 1st of May gathering in Moabit, the Northwestern district of Berlin. The Social Democratic movement is somewhat weakened just at present by dissatisfaction with certain of the leaders, whom the extremists regard as too exclusive in their habits and associations.

Westphalia Miners Armed.

BERLIN, April 28.—The latest news from Bochum represents the miners as very excited, and much euraged against the mine-owners. The police are inadequate in numbers to preserve the peace, and the military may meet with a warm reception, as the miners are mostly armed, and act under the direction of chosen leaders.

Four Imported Stallions Poisoned.

GREENSBURG, Pa., April 28.—Some unknown person broke into the stable of Jacob Kermerer near Murraysville during the night, and poisoned four imported stallions valued at $10,000, and then cut up his carriage and harness. There is no clue to the perpetrator.

SAYS SHE WAS MURDERED.

No Expense Will be Spared to Discover Who Poisoned Mrs. Barnaby.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 28.—The poisoning of Mrs. Barnaby is the reigning sensation here. Henry B. Winship, the head of the J. B. Barnaby Company, is positive that Mrs. Barnaby was murdered, and that the crime was inspired by the motive of gain. Mr. Winship said he had a theory, but refused to make its nature known.

All that money can do to discover and punish the perpetrator, Mr. Winship says, will be done. The best detective talent of this city, New York and Denver will be invoked to discover the murderer. He says: "I am a trustee for the Barnaby estate, and have got a little money of my own to punish the dastardly perpetrator of that crime. We will spend every dollar in our hands."

DENVER, Col., April 28.—Professor Sewall made an analysis of the liquor in the bottle from which Mrs. Jerothmiel B. Barnaby drank what she thought was whiskey and was poisoned last week. The professor says that the liquor does not contain a particle of alcohol, and is probably nothing more than Fowler's solution of arsenic.

THE PRESIDENT IN 'FRISCO.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 28.—The morning opened bright and warm, and at 9 o'clock the Presidential party drove from the Palace Hotel to Vanness avenue, where the public school children were assembled.

The children were drawn up in line, and the inspection was confined to a drive up one side and down the other. When Golden Gate avenue was reached, after both lines had been inspected, the party was driven direct to Golden Gate Park. A stop was made at the Conservatory, which was closed to all but the Presidential party.

From the park the drive was to the Cliff House, where Adolph Sutro took charge of the party and escorted them to the Heights, where luncheon was served. Thence the party proceeded to Presidio, and reviewed the troops stationed there.

Later there was a reception at the Palace Hotel to the foreign consuls, army, navy and national guard officers, Federal, State and city officials, Senators and Congressmen and invited citizens.

During the reception Mrs. Harrison received a souvenir from the ladies of San Francisco, it was an elegant silver card tray, tastefully designed.

The President's Sister Improving.

CINCINNATI, April 28.—At 10 o'clock, in response to a telephone query, Dr. Hughes, at North Bend, says Mrs. Eaton is resting well, with temperature, pulse and respiration but little above normal. There are no indications of internal injury, and, aside from a painful soreness, she suffers little. It is believed she will be about by to-morrow. The President has been notified to continue his journey, and other as near relatives have been informed there is no need for their presence. Miss Moore is also resting well and will be up in the morning.

Arrested for Perjury.

PHILADELPHIA, April 28.—Joseph C. Midgely, a wool broker, has been arrested for perjury, said to have been committed in May of last year, when he testified in a suit brought against him to recover duties on a cargo of wool. Mr. Midgely was given a hearing by the United States Commissioner and held in $5,000 to answer at court.

A Prosperous Farmer Missing.

RUTLAND, Vt., April 28.—Edward Smith, a prosperous farmer has been missing since Thursday last. On that day he drove to Pittsford for the purpose of attending to some business and pay a visit to his brother-in-law. It is thought he has wandered away or committed suicide. He was an ex-member of the Legislature. No trace of him can be found.

Presidential Speculation.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Gov. Boies, of Iowa, is being boomed by Western and Northwestern Democrats for the Presidential nomination as against Mr. Cleveland. It is conceded on every hand that if Gov. Campbell is re-elected Governor of Ohio this fall he will be a prominent candidate for the Presidential nomination.

A Mortgage for $1,500,000.

SALEM, Mass., April 28.—A mortgage was recorded here from the New York Biscuit Company, through its treasurer, to the Central Trust Company of New York, for $1,500,000, to secure an issue of bonds for that amount, the bonds to date from March 1, 1891, to March 1, 1911.

The Election in Danbury.

DANBURY, Conn., April 28.—The Republican ticket, with the exception of one councilman, was elected by an average majority of 300. Charles S. Preck is elected Mayor over William H. Foley. The Democrats won the last election.

Italians Ready to Fight.

WALTHAM, Mass., April 28.—Fighting is expected when new men arrive to replace the strikers on the sewers, and an extra force of police has been ordered to be in readiness. Each gang is composed of about 150 Italians.

Death of an Old Mason.

MT. MORRIS, N. Y., April 28.—Walter M. Hinman, aged 95, the oldest person in Mt. Morris, and said to be the second oldest Mason in the United States, died here at noon. He was made a Mason in 1821 at Belleville, Ont.

Every Dollar Destroyed by Mice.

BANGOR, Me., April 28.—Nathaniel Leavitt, a farmer of St. George, put away in a canvas purse money to pay a mortgage due this month. Upon going after the purse he found that mice had totally destroyed every bill.

Seven Lives Lost.

VIENNA, April 28.—The manager and six men in the iron works belonging to the Rothschilds at Witkowitz, Bohemia, have been killed by an explosion.

THE BIG STRIKE OFF

The Order Sent Out to the United Mine Workers.

NOT READY FOR EIGHT HOURS

Respect for the Operators Who Were Friendly to the Miners.

Attention Will Now be Directed to the Great Coke Strike—Two Thousand Men Parade at Scottdale and Listen to Socialistic Speeches—Pinkerton Guards Fire at Labor Leaders.

COLUMBUS, O., April 28.—There will be no strike of the coal miners on May 1 to enforce the demand for the eight-hour day. That decision was made by the National Executive Board of the United Mine Workers here, and the order to that effect is being sent to the local assemblies. To-night the official announcement will be made.

Secretary McBride said to-day in explanation of the matter that it was not done because it was found that the miners did not want it done, as the contrary was found to be the fact. But it was done because it was found that the operators who would be most easily and quickly forced to comply with the demand were those who had always been most considerate and friendly towards the miners. They were loth to do this.

"You may say," said he, "that the eight-hour-day strike has been postponed pending the great coke strike in Pennsylvania."

STRIKING COKERS PARADE.

Two Large American Flags Were Carried at the Head of the Column.

MT. PLEASANT, Pa., April 28.—The Socialists' parade here had 2,000 men in line. The red flag was not displayed. Two large American banners were carried at the head of the column. The parade passed off quietly, and at its conclusion the immense mass meeting of strikers was addressed by Jonas and Delabar, the apostles of Socialism, and others.

Jonas took exception to Father Lambing's advice to the strikers and claimed that the priest was ignorant of the principles of Socialism.

There will be no evictions in this vicinity before Wednesday. Eight cars of coke were loaded at Morewood during the day.

It is stated that 120 workmen will be imported to-morrow. Evictions will be made at Davidson and Broadford to-morrow. Master Workman Wise will return from Columbus to-day, bringing with him a large amount of relief money.

There is marked destitution among the strikers in certain places requiring immediate attention.

The Pinkerton guards at Leisenring, No. 2 fired several shots at two trespassing labor leaders last night, but without serious results.

THE GIANTS WIN A GAME.

Nearly 18,000 People See the New Yorks Defeat the Brooklyns.

BROOKLYN, April 28.—The League season was opened at Eastern Park in this city with a game between the Brooklyns, the League champions, and the New Yorks, which the latter won after a close and exciting contest.

The championship flag was raised by the Brooklyns just before the game began amidst the enthusiasm of the 17,892 spectators.

WIPED OUT BY FIRE.

Over Twenty-five Buildings Destroyed in Forestport, N. Y.

UTICA, N. Y., April 28.—At 11 o'clock last night a disastrous fire broke out in the village of Forestport in the northern part of Oneida County. The flames first appeared in the Sherman House, which was quickly destroyed. Several dwelling houses and stores adjoining were soon enveloped in the blaze, and the people of the village became panic-stricken.

At 1 a. m. the fire showed no signs of abatement. Fully 25 dwelling houses had already been destroyed. Help was sent for from the surrounding towns, and it was 3 o'clock this morning before the fire was under control. The loss will be heavy.

Another Village Wiped Out.

UTICA, N. Y., April 28.—The business portion of the village of Harrisville, Lewis County, was swept away by flames during the day. The fire broke out at 10:45 a. m. in the dwelling house of George Mead. The Carthage fire department was called on for aid and arrived at noon. The opera house, postoffice, several stores and about a dozen houses, with many small buildings, were burned. The loss will amount to $150,000, with an insurance of about $75,000.

DID SHE BUY ARSENIC?

Suspicious Facts in Regard to Theodore Hunter's Death.

BROWN'S POINT, N. Y., April 28.—The body of Theodore Hunter, ex-supervisor of this town and one of its oldest and best known residents, who died after midnight on the morning of Wednesday, March 18, after a sudden illness of only 18 hours, was disinterred Saturday, and after an autopsy had been performed an inquest was begun.

The disinterment, autopsy and inquest were in response to a public sentiment awakened by the peculiar circumstances of the death and the facts afterward learned in regard to an alleged will under which, after both bequests of $1,000 each to distant relatives, all the real and personal estate, $30,000, was left to Anna Murray, the testator's housekeeper.

Among the facts that seemed to make an inquest necessary was the statement of a druggist at Crown Point that just before Hunter's death Miss Murray had purchased arsenic at his store, as she said to kill rats, and repeated statements of the doctors that the symptons of the illness were those of arsenical poisoning.

After the autopsy the doctors sealed up the stomach and sent it to Professor Perkins, of Union College, Schenectady, for analysis. Pending the result the inquest was adjourned.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—The Harlem Wheelmen enjoyed a club race to Plainfield and Dunellen, Sunday.

—The mechanical drawing class and the special students in stenography will meet at the Y. M. C. A. rooms to-night.

—Owing to the serious illness of his daughter, Judge Codington has postponed the trial of all city court cases till Thursday morning.

—A Gospel meeting, to which all are invited, will be held at Association hall, opposite the post-office, every evening this week except Thursday.

—A grand sociable will be held at St. Mary's T. A. B. Hall this week Thursday evening. There will be dancing from 8 to 12, with music by O'Reilley.

—Another loser by the operations of the daring burglar in the borough Saturday night was Charles Dresselt, Jr., of 36 Emily street, who found yesterday that $60 had been stolen from his bed room.

—The Crescent League bowling team that is to meet the Somervilles in this city, to-morrow evening, will be VanEmburgh, VanWinkle, Reed, Rogers, Teel, Thiers, Haven, Vail, Williams and Davis.

—The detailed stories of the North Plainfield and Westfield burglaries published exclusively in THE PRESS last evening have as usual been appropriated by the New York papers, and appear in the metropolitan journals in full this morning.

—The roof of the building occupied by the Plainfield Relief Association, at Second street and Madison avenue, had a hole burned in it by sparks from a locomotive, yesterday. A number of men extinguished the blaze with buckets of water.

—The grand officers of the Grand Lodge of the State will be present at the meeting of Easter Lodge, No. 3542, Knights of Honor, next Monday evening. A large delegation will also be present from sister lodge Wetumpka, No. 3401, of Plainfield.

—Tier's iced cream garden opens to-day. There all the seasonable fruit flavors in frozen cream and delicate ices, may be ordered delivered at your home, or eaten at the tables overlooking the pretty lake with its beautiful background of mountains.

—The latest apparatus invented for the testing of water by the most accurate methods, is being used at the pharmacies of H. P. Reynolds, corner of Park and North avenues, and corner of Front street and Park avenue. Patronage of this sort is especially solicited in an advertisement in another column to-day.

—Soon after G. E. Cornwell finished reading about the borough burglaries in THE PRESS last evening, he had occasion to open his tool chest in the North Plainfield electric light station on Race street, and found that some one had visited it during the day and had stolen several valuable implements. He hopes to catch the thief.

—A great variety of smoked and cooked foods is turned out daily at C. M. Ulrich's packing house, 25 West Front street. Hams, bacon, shoulders, beef tongues, and similar meats, are prepared in the best manner, all ready for table use. Bolognas and sausages are made fresh twice a day. All the smoking and curing is done on the premises.

—The police swooped down on a gang of tramps who were sunning themselves in a vacant lot near the Berckman street railroad bridge this morning, and captured every one of them. When threatened with being put to work at cracking stone on the streets they pleaded to be permitted to leave town, and when released struck off at a rapid gait in the direction of Elizabeth. They swore never to come back.

—The Hotel Mail of New York city says, "The new Elkwood Cafe, which was formally opened to the public last Wednesday, fills a 'long-felt for' want in Plainfield, which has hitherto been without a first-class restaurant. Mr. J. B. Miller, proprietor of the Elkwood, has placed the culinary charge of the restaurant in the hands of Mr. L. H. Dupre, an artist of experience at the Brunswick and other famous hotels."

—Most Plainfield householders are already familiar with the excellence of Rogers's sea food market at 42 West Second street, and anyone who once visits the place soon becomes a steady patron. Just now the variety is a most extensive one, and includes fresh mackerel, weak fish, porgies, striped bass, lobster, halibut, and shell fish of various kinds. The assortment received fresh every day and displayed on the ice-cold slabs in the store is a most tempting one.

They'll Dance Over Their Prosperity.

America Lodge, No. 161, Order of the Fraternal Circle, will celebrate their first anniversary by giving their friends a complimentary entertainment and dance at Gesang and Turn Verein Hall, Somerset street, Friday evening at 8 o'clock, admission by ticket only.

Twenty-two months ago the Fraternal Circle started with 34 members. Like the ripple caused by a stone thrown into the water, the Circle has enlarged continually until now it numbers over 12,000. It has paid to sick members over $60,000.

NO PLACE LIKE PLAINFIELD.

Mrs. Dr. Edwards, the Clairvoyant, Who Has Traveled the World Over, Says This City Is the Most Beautiful and Healthiest—She Has a Fortune Awaiting Her in France, and May go to Claim it, but She Loves Plainfield Too Well to Stay Away for Long.

Mrs. Dr. Edwards, the celebrated clairvoyant, has returned to Plainfield at the request of a large number of her former patrons here. She has been meeting with most remarkable success in Princeton, Trenton, Newark, Elizabeth, New Brunswick, Somerville and Freehold. But her stay here can be for a short time only, as she will probably be compelled to go to Europe to claim her share in a large fortune left by her father.

In spite of her great success in other places, she returns to Plainfield because she thinks it the most beautiful and healthiest place in New Jersey. Her children are at school near this city, and she can't bear to be away from them. This will possibly be the last chance to consult this lady, as on account of a lawsuit connected with her fortune through the dispute of the will by a stepmother, she may have to leave this country for a month or so to attend personally to the matter. She will however return to this country of her adoption, as she can love no other.

Mrs. Edwards comes of one of the finest families of France, but left a beautiful home there because of her aged father's marriage to a woman too young to be a mother of grown up children. She married and lost a husband in this country, who left her with a family of children to support, which she has been able to do through the medium of her wonderful gift of clairvoyance which she inherited from birth.

In an interview a PRESS reporter learned these facts and believes they will be of interest to the lady's many friends here. She is an educated, able lady, of the most refined manners, and the press of the whole State unite in speaking very highly of her as a modest woman and earnest worker for the support and education of her children. When she receives her fortune she will give up her profession and settle down to a quiet life in or near this city. The money will not make her proud, as she was born and brought up in luxury.

Beginning to-morrow she may be consulted at the City Hotel, room 2, one flight up, from 9 a. m., to 9 p. m., as announced in her advertisement in another column.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Frank F. Baynon, of West Second street, is out again after a painful illness.

Dudley S. Miller, head clerk at Randolph's pharmacy, is confined to the house with a severe cold.

Acting on the advice of THE PRESS, the base-ball managers of the Plainfield Crescent League have decided to sign Martin for the season, and the contract has been closed.

Invitations have been issued to the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis R. Blackford, at their residence, 170 Grove street, North Plainfield, Saturday evening, May 9.

Attorney Charles Benton VanWinkle was yesterday appointed by Chancellor Alexander T. McGill a Special Master in Chancery, and to-day the oath of office was administered to him at Trenton.

Thomas Conway, of West Third street, has returned to Plainfield after a year's absence. He has been acting as inspector, over a large gang of workmen, during the construction of a $250,000 Government dock at Port au Prince, Hayti.

Mrs. Mylove H. Waters, who died at her home in Elizabeth, Sunday, was the last of a family of ten children, the one dying previous to her being a brother, the Rev. Dr. Daniel T. Hill, a well-known clergyman, who was pastor of the First Baptist church of this city from 1828 to 1839, but whose death occurred in Nebraska three years ago. At the time of her death she was the oldest member of the Central Baptist church at Elizabeth. Her age was 84 years. She was the widow of the late Asa G. Waters, the mother of six children, and leaves three daughters. One of her sons was taken prisoner at Drury's Bluff, while serving in the Ninth New Jersey, and died of starvation in the prison at Andersonville.

To Support the Yerkes Chapel in Burmah.

A large number of young people assembled in the parlors of the First Baptist church last evening, the occasion being an informal social of the Young Ladies' Missionary Band.

Mrs. Haskell, of Burmah, gave a very interesting missionary talk. A feature of the evening was the organization of the "Temple Builders", an auxiliary to the Mission Band, composed entirely of young gentlemen. Already 90 names have been enrolled. These gentlemen will support a preacher for the Yerkes chapel in Burmah recently erected and paid for entirely by the young ladies.

An advisory board composed of Messrs. D. H. Lenox, L. W. Randolph and Joseph Goodhue, with August O. Trust as Treasurer, and Wm. E. MacClymont as Secretary, was elected for the ensuing year.

The young ladies of the church are congratulating themselves on obtaining such a powerful help in their missionary work from the young men.

The greatest pain-annihilator of the age is Salvation Oil. Price only twenty-five cents.

BASE-BALL COMES HIGH.

But the Crescents Promise Superior Games, and the Price Must Stay Up.

At a meeting of the management of the Crescent League base-ball team, and the Field Committee of the League, held last night, the subject of admission to the grounds was thoroughly discussed, and it was found that it would be impossible for the League to place a first-class team in the field and pay the salaries and guarantees that they are paying their men and visiting clubs, for less than twenty-five cents admission.

Last year the League came out only a little ahead, with the best patronage of any club in New Jersey, and there was not much extra expense outside of salaries and guarantees. This year they have new grounds in another part of the city, and have gone to the expense of $700 to put the same in proper condition. They feel confident in saying that in the course of a month the grounds will be the finest in the State. The League would like to give the people base-ball for ten cents if they could evade loss by doing so, but they have decided that it will be impossible for them to pay all expenses unless they charge 25 cents admission. They say that if they can't make base-ball "go" at 25 cents admission they will have to give up ball playing as one of the sports of the club. Westfield, Somerville and Bergen Point all charge an admission fee of 25 cents.

But She Never Would Drive or Dine With Them.

The Philadelphia papers have had frequent notices lately of the presence among the legislators at Harrisburg of an interesting young woman who is besieging them to invest in some scheme in which she is interested. Other female lobbyists are content, as a rule, to bombard "their" Senators from the galleries with violet-scented epistles. They watch the messengers eagerly, and when the note has been delivered to the right person they raise their delicate little hands and wave a neat lace handkerchief as a signal that all is well. But such a method is too slow and too antiquated for the latest invader of the Senatorial peace. She goes on the floor and takes possession of their chairs, or fellows them, when occasion demands it, into the barber's shops, even.

This young lady is doubtless one who made herself quite a figure in legislative life at the New Jersey State capital two or three Winters ago. She is now promoting a bond-investment scheme. She was then canvassing for the sale of a high-priced book, which was published only by subscription. She sold a good many books, too. She was well read, a bright and chatty talker, vivaciously persuasive, pretty, and shapely, but withal the very personification of refinement, and the Senators could not help buying her book.

The only fault the Trenton legislators had to find with her was that she always declined their invitations to drive and dine, and from dusk to daylight kept scrupulously to her room in her boarding house.

Remarks that Are Pertinent Here.

If ladies would refuse to rise up in their seats at the opera house to allow those habitual between-the-acts fiends to pass out, they would materially assist in stamping out a custom that has long disgraced the opera house in this city. They, the ladies, do not go out, and why then should they aid and abet the men to do it? Last night between every act the regular herd went out to the trough to wash down what they had seen and renew their cud.

No such unseemly exhibitions are tolerated in any first-class opera house or hall. It is not allowed in New York city. Why should it be permitted here or in any other city or town wherever any cure for the rights and comforts of the people in public places exists.

If any lady will be brave enough to refuse to rise in her seat to allow this class of men to pass them, or better still, if she will say in a commanding voice, so that the entire audience may hear her, "Sit down, sir," a permanent victory will be achieved—there will be no more going out between the acts, except in case of sickness.

This, or better still, a large placard condemning the custom, placed within sight of all, will accomplish the needed reformation. The abuse must be stopped. —New Brunswick Times.

Hatching Out Shad in Jersey Waters.

The United States Fish Commission will, within a few days, commence its annual task of hatching millions of shad at Gloucester. There are three Government shad hatcheries. One is at Washington, and distributes the young shad in the waters of the Potomac and its tributaries. Another station is at Havre-de-Grace, and from this the waters of the Susquehanna are stocked. The third is the Gloucester hatchery, from which the young shad that owe their being to Uncle Sam are sent to the head-waters of the Delaware and to the Hudson.

The Gloucester Station is the largest of the three, and has been the most successful in observable results.

MY CATARRH was very bad. For thirty years I have been troubled with it—have tried a number of remedies without relief. A druggist advised Ely's Cream Balm. I have used only one bottle and I can say I feel like a new man. I make this voluntary statement that others may know of the Balm.—J. W. Mathewson, lawyer, Pawtucket, R. I.

WITH Ely's Cream Balm a child can be treated without pain and with perfect safety. It cures catarrh, hay fever and colds in the head. It is easily applied into the nostrils and gives immediate relief. Price 50 cents.

It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are not straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public esteem accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for telling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of Shoes.

OLD LAWS OF NEW JERSEY.

Odd and Interesting Relics of the Days When People Were Forced by Statute to Stay Home at Night and Keep Quiet, When Swearing as Well as Drunkenness Was Under Ban, and When Fire-Bugs Were Liable to Be Hanged.

Our Sunday law pretty much as it stands on our statute books to-day was passed by the "Governor, Council and Burgesses of the General Assembly of the Province of Nova Cæsarea or New Jersey" on Dec. 2, 1675, when the great Philip Carteret was Governor. Other laws which were enacted by the "council" in those days were in strict keeping with the Sunday law. On the same day it was enacted that any one who should disturb any public minister in time of divine service should receive such punishment as the court should see cause to inflict.

The first Assembly of Provincial New Jersey—says The Jersey City News—met in Elizabethtown on May 26, 1668, and was composed of "The Hon. Philip Carteret, Esquire, Governor," a council consisting of one member from each of the six townships then in the Province, and an Assembly of two members from each township. Bergen, which then contained much of the territory which is now in Jersey City, was represented by Gasper Steenmetts and Baltazar Bayard. The first law which this General Assembly enacted, or "Impremis," as it appears upon the statute book, provided that any person who should resist the authority established by the Lord Proprietors should be punished as the court saw fit. The next enactment looked to the defence of the Province, and provided that any male between eighteen and sixty years who failed to be furnished, at his own cost and charge, with "a good, serviceable gun, well fixed, one pound of good powder, four pounds of pistol bullets, suited to the gun, a pair of bandaleers or a good horn and a sword and belt, shall pay a shilling for the first week's neglect and two shillings for every week thereafter."

Then the burgesses turned their attention to crimes, and enacted that any one who maliciously fired a dwelling-house, barn, or stable, or any combustible matter, were to make entire satisfaction therefor, and if they were unable to do that, they were to be placed at the mercy of the court, which was to decide whether they should be tried for life or should suffer some other corporal punishment. Murder, of course, was punishable with death. So was maliciously bearing false witness or plotting to take a man's life away.

If a person committed burglary or highway robbery, he was to be punished for the first offence by being burnt in the hand with the letter T, and being compelled to make full satisfaction for the goods stolen. For the second offence he or she was compelled to make the same restitution, and to be branded on the forehead by the letter R. while for the third offence the burglar was to be put to death as incorrigible.

If any person was found stealing or was proved "to have stolen any goods, money or cattle, or any kind of beast whatsoever, he or she shall make treble restitution for the first offence, and the like for the second and third offence, with such further increase of punishment as the court shall see cause, and if incorrigible to be punished with death."

In case the thief was not able to make restitution he was to be sold to work out the satisfaction. There was a sort of nullity about this law in the shape of a proviso to the effect that if the thief was unable through poverty or other cause to make restitution, either in the case of theft or burglary, he should suffer such corporal punishment as the court deemed proper. The stolen goods were to be restored to the owner, no matter where found. It would seem from this law that being robbed was a profitable business, provided the thief was caught and the goods found.

Witchcraft was punishable with death, and so was any one who conspired to surprise and invade any town or fort of the province. Our ancestors appear to have had a great respect for the fifth commandment, for one of the first laws they enacted provided that any child or children above sixteen years of age and of sufficient understanding who should smite or curse their natural father or mother, except in self-defence, should be put to death.

It would never have done for the pert young misses and their admirers who promenade to have lived in those days, for one law provided that "if any person or persons shall be abroad from their usual place of abode and found in night, walking, drinking, in any taphouse or in any other place or house at unreasonable times, after nine of the clock at night, they shall be secured by the constable or some other officer, and shall receive such punishment as the court may deem proper."

Drunkenness appears to have been held in great contempt by the good Dutchmen who formed the great part of the inhabitants of the Province at that time. Among the laws enacted at this first session of the Assembly was one which reads: "Concerning that beastly vice drunkenness, it is hereby enacted that if any person shall be found to be drunk he shall pay one shilling for the first time, two shillings for the second time, and for every time after two shillings and sixpence. Such as have nothing to pay shall suffer corporal punishment, and for those who are unruly and disturbers of the peace, they shall be put in the stocks until they are sober, or during the pleasure of the officer in chief in the place where he is drunk."

Swearing was also held in detestation by these early Jerseymen, and all persons who profanely took the name of God in vain were fined one shilling, one-half of which went to the informer and one-half into the Provincial Treasury. It was nothing like the picnic it is now to be a member of the General Assembly in those days. There were no railroads to give passes and make attention to legislative duties profitable, no institutions to be visited or junkets under the guise of election frauds investigations. On the contrary, each deputy furnished his own transportation, and he who absented himself from the Assembly was fined forty shillings, which in those days was a large sum.

The first tax levy made by the new Provincial Government was, in the light of these days, rather amusing. The whole amount levied was £30 or £5 to each township, "to be paid in manner as followeth: Winter wheat at five shillings a bushel, summer wheat at four shillings and sixpence, pease at three shillings and sixpence, Indian corn at three shillings, rye at four shillings, beef at twopence and pork at threepence halfpenny a pound."

This rate was paid to Jacob Mollins, of Elizabethtown, who sold the produce for the use of the Assembly. Those who so strenuously approved Mr. Cole's marriage license law, in the Assembly last winter, little know, perhaps, that among the first laws on our statute books is one which directs all persons about to marry to have "their purpose of marriage" read in church "or set up in writing on some publick house where they live, and there to abide for the space of fourteen days before marriage."

Governor Abbett, Speaker Bergen and those other gentlemen who industriously guided the last Legislature so successfully to an early adjournment, would have been greatly tickled with this first General Assembly of New Jersey. It adjourned the same day it met, after passing all the laws referred to above.

Relics of a Tragedy.

A correspondent in the New York World of Sunday last, gives a lengthy account regarding the historic mementoes connected with the assassination of President Lincoln by J. Wilkes Booth, and truthfully states that but a few of the great masses of people of this country actually know where these relics of a dastardly deed are kept. Many suppose they are in the National Museum at Washington, while numerous Dime Museums profess to exhibit them to a curious public. The writer truthfully states the whereabouts and custody of the mournful mementos, which is in the Arsenal Building and in custody of the Attorney-General at Washington, D. C. It is also stated that but few persons have ever gazed upon them since the memorable trial following the assassination—at least not over five or six a year. This is undoubtedly a fact, but I know of Plainfield people who have viewed and handled the relics in the room in which they are now kept.

It was during that joyful occasion when the choice of the Democracy and the people, Grover Cleveland, was inaugurated as President of the United States, that myself and wife were visitors at the National Capitol, and guests of friends residing there. One day the matter was broached at the breakfast table, as to visiting the Attorney-General's office, among other places of interest, and it was resolved to do so. Upon arrival at the Arsenal building, the presentation of my card gained us admittance, and in talking over the results of the past election with the gentlemanly and courteous clerk or official in attendance, he incidentally remarked that he "supposed he would now pack up and go back to Jersey and let the rest of us fellows have a show." I immediately began a conversation with him and learned that he was Jersey born from the southern part of the State. This opened the hearts of all as to the grand part Jersey did in the election of Cleveland and no one could be more courteous or entertaining than that official who expected to vacate his position for some one else on the other side of the political fence. Finally I expressed a desire to see the relics described above. He soon secured the necessary consent and the famous mementoes were exhibited to our gaze. I even had the privilege of handling the pistol memoranda book, carbine, boots, hat and other paraphernelia belonging to Booth and connected with the tragedy, and was told that Congress must first pass an act to put these relics on exhibition in the National Museum, before they can be removed from their present abiding place, and this I think is sensible. Why stir up old memories by a display of such ghastly reminders. Better let them rest where they are. I have often wondered whether in the course of human events, I shall ever again meet my courteous friend of that day, and whether he drifted back to his old position after a four years' absence.

To Meet Next Month in Plainfield.

The regular meeting of the Union county branch of the State Charities Aid Association of New Jersey will be held Saturday evening, May 9, at 8:15 o'clock, at the Hall of the Young Men's Christian Association, East Front street. All those interested in the work of the Association are cordially invited to attend the meeting. The officers of the Union County Branch are:

President—The Rev. Everard Kempshall.
Vice President—The Rev. F. Marion McAllister.
Secretary—Howard Richards.
Treasurer—Mrs. J. K. Myers.

Improved Country Roads.

Within the last eighteen months Union county has laid and macadamized with rock ballast thirty-eight miles of roadways at a cost of $300,000. The results of this work have been so satisfactory that farmers and rural residents who were opposed to issuing bonds for the work are so well converted that they are putting in their demands for the improvement of lateral roads.

Union was the first county to put the law in operation, and it can be shown that for every dollar spent on the roadways property has appreciated at least $5 worth.

The greatest value of these improvements is, however, yet to be reaped. The main objection to rural residence in this State has been the wretched condition of the roads.

As it becomes known that the roads in Union county are well built and can be driven over in comfort and safety, there is an increased demand for villa sites and country houses. Union has a good start, and it is the first to attract most desirable class of population.

The effect on the markets will not be less marked. With a system of good roads in Union county, wagon transportation is much easier, and the markets of Plainfield and Elizabeth will be more steadily patronized by the farmers.

An Elaborate Scenic Production.

During the week beginning Monday, May 4, the immense stage of the Grand Opera House, New York, will be given up to an elaborate scenic production of a new play dealing with the labor question. The play is significantly entitled "Work and Wages," and tells the story of a young collegian who essays to go into a steel mill and toil at the bench and blast rather than follow the profession for which he was educated. He is a fearless, stout-hearted young Briton, who believes wealth won by work is an honest man's peerage, and the play has to do with his trials and temptations, his failures and successes and his awakening to a new life—the life of love—during a notable and long continued strike. The lesson of labor is that which the play aims to teach, and it advocates progressive ideas generally and the principles which are the basis of co-operation particularly. It will be presented by a specially engaged cast of metropolitan favorites, and have the advantage of five new and appropriate settings built and painted for the production.

Oh, What a Cough

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

London's Eight-Hour Demonstration.

LONDON, April 28.—Active preparations are going on in labor circles to insure the success of the eight-hour demonstration in Hyde Park next Sunday. The Farriers' Society, on horseback, will head the procession and several hundred laundry women from all parts of London will take part.

Their Opinion of American Cattle.

LONDON, April 28.—In the House of Commons Mr. Leng, Liberal, asked whether the United States Inspector disputed the statement that contagious disease existed among American cattle landed at Deptford. Mr. Chaplin, in reply, said the British authorities have not the slightest doubt that the disease is contagious.

Gladstone Denies the Statement.

LONDON, April 28.—Mr. Gladstone has written a letter denying the statement made by Mr. Parnell at Clonmel Sunday that Mr. Gladstone and his colleagues first deprecated and afterward approved the Plan of Campaign for party purposes. He says the statement is entirely unfounded.

Balmaceda Afraid of Poison.

LONDON, April 28.—Chilian advices just received in this city say that so fearful has President Balmaceda become of attempts being made to poison him that his mother has assumed the exclusive charge of the preparation of his meals.

King Kelly and His Players Fined.

CINCINNATI, April 28.—"King" Kelly and eight of his men were in the police court to answer a charge of playing baseball on Sunday in violation of the law. They pleaded guilty and Judge Gregg assessed a fine and costs against each of the accused.

Say There Will be No Strike.

ALTOONA, Pa., April 28.—Representative miners from 10 mining towns in this region, representing 7,000 miners, were interviewed in relation to the proposed strike on May 1. All united in the statement that there would be no strike.

Emmet's Plinlimmon Sold for $5,000.

BOSTON, April 28.—J. K. Emmet's St. Bernard dog, Plinlimmon, has been purchased for $5,000 by E. H. Moore of Melrose.

Presented With Life Saving Medals.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Secretary Foster presented to C. A. Carlsen, chief boatswain's mate, and Robert Kennedy, ordinary seaman, both of the U. S. S. Dispatch, silver life saving medals for rescuing from drowning in the Potomac River Jan. 9, 1891, an escaped inmate of the St. Elizabeth Home for the Insane.

50,000 More Population for Paris.

PARIS, April 28.—The new census shows an increase in the population of the French capital of 50,000.

If you value your children's health and comfort, you must guard them against croup. Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is the best preventive known. It is an infallible cure and costs but 25 cents.

PERSONAL AND IMPERSONAL.

—All the Same.—A Cincinnati shoemaker bought an old pair of boots of a tramp, who had doubtless stolen them, and when he came to repair the soles he found six one hundred dollar greenbacks nicely tucked away and in good condition.

—Going It Alone.—A German of wealth, who has got tired of the world, has chartered a ship to take him to some island in the Indian ocean where he will be entirely alone with himself. In about a month he will hate himself all over, and the fact that he'll have to endure his own society makes his relatives chuckle and grow fat.

—Senator Jones, of Nevada, is one of the most popular as well as one of the most picturesque men in congress. He is a man who has made a number of fortunes, and his knowledge of the ins and outs of silver legislation makes him one of the best-posted authorities in the senate on financial questions. One cause of the senator's wide popularity is his loyalty to his friends.

—Vinnie Ream Hoxie, the sculptress, is a very little woman, who has been compared to "a plump brown sparrow fluttering in the sunlight." She is quite short in stature, and her hands are infinitely small and delicate. Her face is brown, her eyes dark and vigorous, and her wide forehead is almost covered with a few bangs. She is an emotional little creature, with an alternate tear and smile in her eyes.

—A very graceful compliment was that paid to Mrs. Blanche Roosevelt, the American authoress, by the Russian ambassador to Great Britain. Before leaving St. Petersburg he asked the czarina what gift he should bring her on his return, and she said: "The photographs of six of the most beautiful ladies in London." When the Russian empress received her gift she found five small pictures of Mrs. Roosevelt in different poses grouped around a larger one of the princess of Wales.

—As a writer and speaker, Premier de Freycinet, who has just been elected a member of the French academy, has a thin, elegant, and lucid style. He excels in clear statement, an orderly marshaling of facts, and delicate though striking inuendo. In arguing most he never seems to argue, but gently compels his hearers to deduce the conclusions at which he wishes them to arrive. He is a delightful fireside talker, and one of the best chess players in France. The English of the new academician is almost as fluent and felicitous as his French.

Perfumed for a Thousand Years.

The mosque of St. Sophia, in Constantinople, is always fragrant with the odor of musk, and has been so for hundreds of years, ever since it was rebuilt in the ninth century, the curious part of it being that nothing is done to keep it perfumed. The solution to the seeming mystery lies in the fact that when built, over one thousand years ago, the stones and bricks were laid in mortar mixed with a solution of musk.

MATRIMONIAL WHISKERS.

Hard Trials of the Youthful Benedict Who Is Forced to Raise a Beard.

When a beardless man takes unto himself a wife, in nine cases out of ten, forty-eight hours do not elapse before she says, in the sweetest tones that she can command:

"Charlie, darling," or "Freddie, dear," as the case may be, "please let your whiskers grow. You've no idea what an improvement it would make in your looks."

It is in vain that Charlie, darling, or Freddie, dear, expostulates, and says that his entire life has been spent in an endeavor to grow a beard, and then goes unshaven for three days, giving a demonstration that would be considered ample proof by any jury of sensible men that he can not raise a beard.

But his persistent wife can not understand why it is, and insists that he can raise hair where there never were even traces of hair, and where his face is as bare and smooth as it was on the day he was born.

He pleads that the last time he attempted to raise hair on his face it grew in little patches resembling so many horse-shoe nails bunched together, separated by stretches of smooth skin, where the hair would not and never did grow. Or else that it gave his face the appearance of being adorned with a ragged, brown fringe. It is of no use—madam will not be convinced. She insists that he can raise a beard, despite his strongest protests to the contrary. Other men can raise them, and so can he. She wants a beard on his face; she has set her heart on it, and that beard has got to be grown. That is all there is to it.

The man knows what it is going to result in as well—when he makes up his mind (or his wife makes up his mind for him) to let it grow—as if it were already on his face. But what must be, must be; and so the beard is started.

It comes out in terrific abundance directly under and just over the curve of the chin. Then there is a wide, vacant stretch of hairless face to the mouth, except for a sickly little patch of horrible-looking hairs just under the lower lip. It starts out nobly directly under the jawbones, and makes a ridiculous ridge, about the size of a leadpencil, along the edge of the jaw. His cheeks are perfectly bare, except for an occasional single hair, very blonde, which shoots up from his cheek, like a solitary weed in a desert of sand.

As his wife's beard (it isn't his—he wouldn't own it) grows longer, his jaws begin to take on a very fringy appearance, as if they had been dampened and sprinkled with dust and short hairs. The prolific growth under the chin begins to loom affectionately toward the right side of the neck, and every effort to brush it to a standing position proves fruitless. Finally, the poor man finds a large growing bunch of dark-brown hair on the right side, just under his chin, while the hair on the left side seems to glory in reaching round to join the big bunch on the right side. In the meantime, the hair on one side of his face, directly in front of his ear, by a hard struggle, has just been able to make connections with the hair of his head, while the other side has apparently given up the struggle and is disconnected by a blank patch an inch wide.

It is in vain that he calls the attention of his devoted wife to the fact that he looks more and more like a monkey every day. She puts her arms about his neck and insists that they are growing "lovely," and that he does not know how much better he looks. He knows just how much worse he looks; but he dare not dispute her for fear of hurting her feelings. If he were by himself, on a desolate island, he would not care. He could stand the strain patiently, but when he goes about the city, he hears his friends' smiling remark:

"Why, you are growing a beard since I saw you last, Charlie. Does the wind blow through them much?" Or, when he is greeted with "Ah, there, Whiskers!" he realizes that different people see with different eyes. He asks his darling wife just to allow him to shave the side of his face, to give a little tone to his chin-whiskers. But she protests stoutly, and accuses him of not loving her, and insists that he has not given them a chance, and that they will come out in time. So he just gives in, and for the sake of a happy home and a contented spouse, he passes his post-honey-moon days in a continual state of hearing himself called "Whiskers" by all his friends—except one.—N. Y. Sun.

How the Ancients Shaved.

In ancient times the operation of shaving consumed a much longer time than it does now, as the ancients shaved the head, the beard and the feet, and spent much time annointing their heads; but the lather used in olden times was what caused so much time to be consumed. Instead of a soap lather, such as we use now, they took the roots of a tender plant, ground it to a fine powder, mixed it with the juice of wild fruits and stirred it into a soft paste. This they spread on the face with a wooden blade, and left it to dry. When sufficiently hardened, they shaved it off, leaving the face soft and clean.—Boston Budget.

How to Clean Walls.

To whiten smoked walls, begin first by rubbing off all the loose black dirt upon them by means of a broom and then washing them down with strong soda lye, which is to be afterward removed by means of water, to which a little hydrochloric acid has been added. When the walls are dry a thin coating of lime with a solution of allum is to be applied. After this has become perfectly dry, the walls are to be coated with a solution of glue and chalk.—Detroit Free Press.

How Very Interesting.

Annie (reading)—Miss Goldbags has married Prince Emptypursky. Do you know they say those titled roues abuse their American wives shamefully?

Fanny (with an ecstatic thrill)—Yes, but think how lovely and interesting it must be to have a real prince abuse you! —West Shore.

A Startling Thing!

Smiling under the sunlight lies Naples,
The fairest picture of calm serenity.

Yet there stands the volcano, Vesuvius, with its gently curling smoke floating on the quiet breeze, giving no intimation of the terribly destructive power which has already buried two cities in awful ruin. It is calm and quiet now, but in an instant, at any moment, it may overwhelm Naples and bury it from the world, as it once did Pompeii and Herculaneum. But the Neapolitans eat and sleep, go and come, dance and sing, as though they did not live in imminent danger of sudden and terrible death.

You wonder how they can thus live so thoughtlessly in the face of almost certain destruction.

You are doing the same thing.

You are living over a volcano.

And you take little or no heed of your danger.

If you are nervous, weak, get tired easily, lack energy and ambition, wake as tired mornings as when you go to bed, you are living over the volcano—NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

If you have nervous weakness, giddiness, strange faint feelings, short breath, sinking sensation, fluttering or palpitation of the heart, a feeling of apprehension or anxiety as of impending danger, you are standing over the volcano—HEART FAILURE.

If you have spring debility, cannot eat well, have no appetite, food hurts you, or there is gas, bloating, biliousness, etc., the volcano is—PHYSICAL EXHAUSTION.

If you have cold feet and legs, weakness, and weariness of the limbs, trembling, numbness or prickling sensation, you are on the verge of the volcano—PARALYSIS.

If you have headache, loss of memory, confused mind, dull and heavy feeling in head, are drowsy during the day and wakeful at night, feel gloomy and depressed, think with difficulty and thoughts leave you suddenly, mind and brain get tired at mental exertion and you are irritable, cross and discouraged, you are over the yawning volcano—INSANITY.

These volcanos of disease are now quiescent, but their symptoms warn you as the gently rising smoke from Vesuvius should warn the Neapolitans of the frightful end—and when the awful disruption comes it means annihilation and death.

Is it not the maddest folly to linger in daily, hourly, yea, momentary danger of such a terrible doom? Especially when you know that Dr. Greene's Nervura, if taken in time, will cure every symptom, and ward off all danger of the fatal attack? This great nerve cure and wonderful restorative is a perfect specific for just these diseases, and if you will use it NOW—before it is too late—it will surely restore you to health and strength, as it did in the following case, and has thousands of others. Dr. Greene's Nervura is purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, and does not contain a single particle of any poisonous or dangerous drug. All druggists keep it for $1.00 per bottle.

NO VOLCANO FOR HIM.

I am 67 years old and had a nervous trembling in the limbs for over 8 years, and for the last two or three years have been very bad. The doctors I called in could not relieve me nor tell me what was the matter. After taking four bottles of Dr. Greene's Nervura, I felt like a new man. I was terribly constipated, but now my bowels are all right. I could not sleep at night, I suffered so much with pain, but the first bottle made me so much better that I felt encouraged to continue, and to-day I feel 10 years younger, and can eat, sleep and walk like a young man. I recommend everybody I know to take Dr. Greene's Nervura.

JOHN MULLANE,
183 E. 70th St., New York City.

Dr. Greene, of 35 West Fourteenth St., New York, its discoverer, is the famous specialist in the cure of nervous and chronic diseases. The doctor has devoted special attention to the treatment of all forms of chronic diseases through letter correspondence, and will give by mail his opinion and advice in any case free of charge. The perfection of this system renders a complete cure almost assured, as his success in treatment by correspondence is wonderful and unequalled.

N. B. Send for symptom blank to fill out, or write Dr. Greene about your case, and a carefully considered letter, fully explaining your disease and giving you a perfect understanding of all its symptoms will be returned, free of charge. 18 v eod

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

Plainfield, N. J., March 31, 1891.
J. B. COWARD, City Clerk.

AN ORDINANCE

Locating the tracks of The Plainfield Street Railway Company and regulating the construction and operation of the same and granting permission to said company to use electric motors as the propelling power of its cars.

The inhabitants of the city of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. That tracks of the Plainfield Street Railway Company's railway be and they are hereby located pursuant to the route designated in their articles of incorporation in the following streets and avenues of the city of Plainfield, to wit:

Beginning at a point in Somerset street at the line of North Plainfield Township and running thence in southerly to Front street, thence through Front street easterly to Park avenue, thence through Park avenue to Sixth street, thence through Sixth street westerly to Plainfield avenue, thence through Plainfield avenue southerly to Seventh street, thence through Seventh street westerly to Monroe avenue, thence through Monroe avenue northerly to Fourth street, thence through Fourth street easterly to Grant avenue, and thence through Grant avenue northerly to Front street, thence through Front street easterly to Park avenue, thence through Park avenue southerly to North avenue, thence through North avenue northerly to Peace street.

And said street railway company is hereby given the right to construct, maintain and operate its said railway in said streets within the city of Plainfield. A detailed plan of construction shall be filed by said company with the City Clerk and be approved by said Common Council before any work is done under the permission herein granted.

Section 2. That the said company shall construct, maintain and operate a double track street railway in Front street from Grant avenue to Park avenue; and in the other streets and avenues and portions thereof above designated, the said company shall construct, maintain and operate a single track street railway to be laid upon the middle line of the street (except when by ordinance the Common Council shall otherwise expressly determine) with suitable turnouts and switches; provided that no turnout shall be more than one hundred and fifty feet in length, nor within five hundred feet of any other turnout on the same street and provided also, that every turnout shall be laid equally on each side of the middle line of the street.

Section 3. Said company shall keep in repair to the satisfaction of the committee on streets, the paving or other surface material of the portion of streets, roads and bridges occupied by its tracks, and in addition shall so keep in repair eighteen inches on each side of the portion of said streets, roads and bridges occupied by its tracks; or, if not so kept and maintained, the repairs thereto may be made by or under the direction of said Committee on Streets and to their satisfaction, and the expense thereof shall be paid, on demand by said company to said city; provided that the said committee on streets, or a majority of them, shall give at least ten days' notice, in writing, of their intention to make such repairs; that said notice to be served upon any officer or employe of said company who may be found at their office or depot.

Section 4. That said company and its officers, servants, agents or employes shall not, nor shall any or either of them, be allowed to shovel, throw or place any snow, ice or slush alongside the said track or tracks, in any street or streets, in such manner as to obstruct other public travel therein; but, when removing such snow, ice or slush from said track or tracks, the said company or its said officers, servants, agents or employes shall cause the same to be immediately leveled between said track or tracks and the gutter lines on each side thereof; under a penalty of twenty dollars to be paid by said company, or by any of its said officers, servants, agents or employes so offending to said city, for each and every offense.

Section 5. The rails to be used for said railway shall be of steel, and shall be of the best and most approved quality and pattern of side bearing rails, of not less than 66 pounds to the yard, and the sleepers, ties, chairs and spikes shall severally be of the best quality of their respective kinds; and both material and workmanship shall be subject to the inspection and approval of the committee on streets; and said railway shall not be operated for the transportation of passengers, or fares be collected thereon, until such approval and acceptance by said Common Council, or a majority of them.

Section 6. The company shall, in laying its tracks, switches and turn-outs, conform in all cases, to the grade lines of the streets, as now established, or as they may be hereafter changed or established by the Common Council; and said company shall in case of any such change of grade, conform thereto, and alter such tracks, switches and turn-outs at their own expense, and without unnecessary delay, and under the direction of said committee on streets; or, in case of default, the said committee on streets shall make such a change, or cause the same to be made, and the expenses thereof shall be paid, on demand, by said company to said city; provided ten days' notice of the committee's intention to make such change shall be given, and served in the same manner as in case of repairs as aforesaid.

Section 7. In passing over the gutters of any cross street where the bottom of such gutters is or may be below the grade line of such railroad, the rails shall be securely laid and fastened upon iron bridges of the most approved pattern; and such bridges shall be extended on each side of the track or tracks to the gutter line of the street in which said track or tracks is or are laid; the bridges and work to be subject to the inspection and approval of said Committee on Streets, in every particular.

Section 8. During the construction of said railroad, no unnecessary hindrance or obstruction to ordinary travel upon any such street or streets, shall be permitted; and if any accident or other casualty shall happen by or at any time, to any person or property, because or by reason of any work connected with such construction of said railroad or afterward because or by reason of any operation thereof, or through the carelessness or negligence of any of the company's officers or servants, agents or employes, the said company shall be liable therefor, and shall indemnify, and save said city harmless from all cost, loss or damage by reason thereof.

Section 9. No car belonging to said company shall be allowed to stand in or obstruct any cross street, or to stand upon any cross-walk, for any purpose or purposes whatsoever; nor to stand or remain in any one position, upon any street, for more than five minutes at one time; except when said cars shall be unavoidably obstructed or detained without the fault or negligence of said company, or any of its officers, servants, agents or employes; under the penalty of five dollars to be paid by said company to said city for such and every offense, and that cars stopping to take up or let off passengers at any street crossing shall in all cases do so upon the far side of such street crossing.

Section 10. The said city reserves the right to dig or excavate in or upon any such street in which said railroad shall be so constructed for the purpose of laying, examining, repairing or replacing any water or sewer pipe or other pipes or making or shutting off any connection therewith, or for the purpose of making any other public improvement, or of doing any other public work of any kind whatsoever; and the said company shall not have any recourse against said city therefor, for damages or otherwise, because of any detention or obstruction to the travel upon said railroad arising therefrom.

Section 11. If the said company shall fail to build or construct the whole of said railroad, with its said turnouts and switches in the manner aforesaid, and put the same in full and complete operation for the transportation of passengers, within nine months next after the passage of this ordinance, or shall afterwards fail or neglect to operate the same as aforesaid, daily and every day for the space of three months, all the rights, powers and privileges, and every one of them, of said company, their successors or assigns, under and by virtue of this ordinance, shall thereupon cease and be determined, and this ordinance shall become null and void, so far as the grant of any such right, power or privilege to said company is concerned, and in either of such cases, the Common Council expressly reserves the right to cause the said railroad, or any part or parts thereof, so constructed, to be removed from said street or streets, or any of them and to sell and dispose of the materials thereof by public auction, and, after paying all the expenses of such removal and sale and of repairing the said street or streets, and of restoring the same as nearly as possible to its or their original condition to pay the balance of the proceeds of such sale to the said company, or its successors or assigns; provided, that no notice of such sale shall be required to be given, other than an advertisement, signed by the City Clerk, and published in one or more newspapers printed and published in said city.

Section 12. That the cars shall be of the pattern known as the vestibule cars, they shall be lighted by electricity and properly heated in winter, and shall be similar in construction and design to the cars of the Rapid Transit Street Railway Company of the city of Newark, N. J. The company shall use upon its cars the Climax or other noiseless gearing, and shall have proper bells or gongs, and shall be run at a speed of not more than twelve miles an hour.

Section 13. That the cars to be used on said railroad shall be propelled by electricity supplied by overhead wires; that the poles necessary for the overhead electric construction shall be of steel or iron, and shall be placed between curb lines and sidewalk, opposite each other and shall be located as nearly as may be one hundred and twenty-five feet apart. The trolley wire shall be properly guarded so as to prevent other wires coming into contact therewith. The current used by said company to propel its cars shall not exceed five hundred volts.

Section 14. That the fares charged for the transportation of passengers over the said railway within the city of Plainfield, shall be as follows: Children under four years of age, free; children over four and under ten years of age not occupying seats required by other passengers, three cents; all others, five cents. School tickets shall be sold for three cents to all children actually attending school, and to all teachers engaged in teaching school within the city of Plainfield.

That said company shall maintain a system of transfers for connecting lines ride within the city limits for a single fare on all lines now or hereafter owned or operated by said company, and also to give and receive like transfers to and from all the lines of other street railways upon any equitable basis that may be agreed upon by said companies. And in case of failure of any two of said companies to agree upon any such equitable basis of transfer, the question shall be submitted to arbitrators, one to be chosen by each of the disagreeing companies, a like number by the Common Council of the city of Plainfield, and a fifth by those so chosen. The decision of a majority of such arbitrators to be final and conclusive and binding upon each of the companies.

Section 15. That no license fee shall be charged for the running of the cars of the said company for the period of five years from the date of the adoption of this ordinance; that for each and every year said following said first term of five years there shall be paid to the city a license fee of twenty dollars per annum for every car operated by said company.

Section 16. That the cars of the said company shall be run under the following minimum headway, between SIX A. M. and ten A. M. fifteen minutes; between ten A. M. and three P. M. thirty minutes; between three P. M. and eight P. M. fifteen minutes; between eight P. M. and midnight thirty minutes. The said headway to be reduced as the service requires. Said company shall run its cars in both directions along all portions of its route so that there shall be an equal number of trips each way daily.

Section 17. That when any improvements or other method of furnishing the power for the propulsion of cars by electricity shall have been determined to be a practical success, by a commission consisting of three electrical engineers, one to be elected by the Common Council, one by the said company, and the third by the two so chosen, such company shall within six months after the passage of a resolution by the Common Council requiring the same to be done, and notice thereof given to said company adopt such improvements or take down their overhead construction, and substitute therefor such improvements or new methods of propulsion; provided such commission may be appointed at any time the Common Council may by resolution require, and the said company shall appoint its representative within thirty days after the adoption of such resolution, or forfeit the permission hereby given; and if such commission shall report in favor of the adoption of such improvements or method for propulsion of cars by electricity hereby permitted, another commission or commissions may be appointed as often as the Common Council may require in the same manner and subject to the same conditions.

Section 18. In case such substitution is made, or the said company shall forfeit the permission hereby given by refusal to appoint a member of the commission as in the last section provided for, the Common Council may order the poles and overhead construction of the said company taken down, and the said company shall within ninety days from the service of such order upon them or any of any director of said company take down and remove such poles and overhead construction, and restore the pavement of the street or streets to its original condition within that time. In case the poles and overhead construction are not removed or the street restored to its original condition by any company within ninety days from the service of such order, the same shall be done by the Street Commissioner, at the expense of said company, and the company shall in that case pay all expenses connected therewith on demand, and in case the city shall remove such poles and overhead construction, the same shall thereupon become and be the property of the city.

Section 19. That said company upon the final adoption of this Ordinance and before exercising any of the rights and privileges granted thereby shall as a condition precedent file with the City Clerk of the city of Plainfield a contract to be executed by said company and duly approved by the Corporation Counsel whereby said company covenants and agree with the inhabitants of the city of Plainfield to abide by and perform all the matters and things herein on the part of said company to be observed, kept and performed; that it will, at any and all times hereafter fully indemnify and protect the city of Plainfield of and from any and all suits, actions and proceedings that may be brought and maintained or sought to be brought and maintained, by any person or corporation for, on account of or by reason of, the adoption or maintenance by said company, its successors or assigns of said electric system, or the construction or maintenance of said electric system, or anything connected therewith, or any act of omission or commission by said company, its successors or assigns or any of the agents or servants, at any time or times, and shall whenever requested by said city, fully defend any and every such action, suit or proceeding.

Section 20. That no person or persons shall at the same time herein above specified for filing said contract file a bond to the city in the sum of twenty thousand dollars to be approved as to form by the Common Council and corporation counsel of said city, conditioned for the full and faithful keeping, observance and performance of the terms and conditions in this ordinance contained on part of said company to be kept, done and performed. And in case the conditions or terms upon which said company is granted permission to locate its tracks and maintain and operate its road or any of the terms or conditions of the said contract are violated, the city reserves the right to revoke the permission herein granted, to remove the tracks of the said company and all the connections made by the streets of the city by the said company, its successors or assigns.

Fees $30.00.

Adopted by the Common Council April 21, 1891.

Approved by the Mayor April 27, 1891.

STOLE OVER $400,000

A New York Bank Robbed by Its President.

BROUGHT TO THE VERGE OF RUIN

The Death of the Defaulter Saved the Institution from Being Wrecked.

Systematic Course of Wholesale Theft Which Continued for Years—The Real Estate Owned by the Bank Will Make Good the Shortage—A Board of Directors Who Neglected Their Duty.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Another great financial institution has been brought to the verge of ruin by an unfaithful president.

The Ninth National bank has been robbed of more than $400,000 by the late John T. Hill, who, for 14 years prior to his death in March last, was the president of a board of directors who appear to have neglected the weighty duty intrusted to them by the stockholders and to have trusted everything to a man who now turns out to have been dishonest.

From discoveries recently made and which culminated last night at an official investigation by the United States National Bank Examiner and the Clearing House Committee, it appears that for years Mr. Hill pursued a systematic course of wholesale theft which had resulted at the time of his death in a defalcation reaching nearly to the enormous extent of half a million dollars.

That the bank has not been absolutely ruined is due to the fact that is the fortunate owner of large tracts of valuable land in the annexed district the sale of which, together with the surplus of the bank, will suffice to make good the shortage.

That the bank has not been completely wrecked appears to be due to the fact that Mr. Hill did not live long enough to complete his work.

The defaulting president's home was at New Brunswick, N. J., where he held many positions of trust as executor, administrator or trustee of estates, positions intrusted to him in consequence of the confidence in his integrity. He came of an old New Brunswick family, his father having been president of bank in that place.

KILLED IN A WRECK.

Four Persons Meet Death on the Baltimore & Ohio Road.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The Cincinnati express which left Washington at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon ran into a freight train about 4 p. m., in a cut at Warings, about 23 miles west of Washington on the Metropolitan branch of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

Engineers Elliott and Groff, Fireman Murphy, of the freight, and Postal Clerk Burdett, were killed. Postal Clerk Heacock and Fireman Miller of the express were seriously hurt. None of the passengers were seriously injured.

The scene of the accident was at a port curve where the express, which was running at the rate of about 40 miles an hour, found the freight train on the main track taking water. Engineer Elliott of the express train reversed his engine and applied the brakes, but he could not break the speed of his train before the crash came.

The forward cars of both trains left the track, but none of the coaches were derailed. The postal and baggage cars and one coach of the express train and two freight cars took fire from the furnaces of the engines and were burned up. All of the killed and injured lived in Baltimore.

All through trains for the West were sent from Baltimore and Washington over the main stem via Relay House and Washington Junction, so that there was little or no interruption to through travel.

FYFFE CUT HIS THROAT.

The Well-Known Historian Had to Answer a Serious Charge.

LONDON, April 29.—The prosecution of a charge which had been made against Mr. C. A. Fyffe, the well-known historian of modern Europe, and a candidate of the Liberal party for election to the House of Commons, accusing him of having indecently assaulted a lad on a railway train, was adjourned in a somewhat tragic manner.

The court had been opened in due form, and a large number of prominent literary people and church dignitaries were present to testify to the blameless life and character of the defendant. Hardly had the proceedings been begun, however, before the court was notified that Mr. Fyffe, the defendant, had attempted suicide by cutting his throat, and was at the moment in a most critical condition. The court thereupon adjourned.

The elections committee of the Liberal party upon learning of the affair at once revoked their original expression of confidence in Mr. Fyffe.

A BRITISH VICTORY.

Entering Manipuri the Troops Found the Heads of the Quinton Party.

LONDON, April 29.—Dispatches received from Calcutta state that General Graham surprised about 1,000 Manipuris in an entrenched position, and after a severe hand-to-hand engagement drove them from their earthworks and put them to flight. The British had one officer killed and four wounded. The enemy lost 200 men.

The British columns, upon entering Manipur, found the place totally deserted, the magazine exploded and the palace wrecked and stripped of valuables. A ghastly sight in the enclosure were the heads of the Quinton party. The Rajah Senaputty, princes and inhabitants had fled to the northeast.

Another Explosion in Italy.

ROME, April 29.—An explosion of dynamite in the factory at Lesgro, near Genoa, killed five girls, 50 others being more or less injured.

TWO MORE SUSPECTS.

A Man and Woman Arrested in Connection With the Ripper Case.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Two more arrests were made late last night in connection with the Jack the Ripper case. One of the prisoners was a man and the other a woman. The man was closeted with the detectives for a long time and then locked up.

No description of the man or anything about him could be learned from the police.

The remains of Carrie Brown, the victim of the East River Hotel murder, was sent to Potter's Field during the morning, where they were interred. Morgue Keeper White had not heard from any of her relatives in Salem, Mass.

Reception to Major McKinley.

BROOKLYN, April 29.—The Union League Club last night tendered an informal reception to ex-Congressman McKinley, of Ohio. Previous to the reception a dinner was served at which about 50 persons sat down. Among those present were Murat Halstead, Hon. S. V. White, William Berri, Andrew D. Baird and others. Mr. McKinley made a brief address on the services of the Republican party to the country.

Lucy Parsons's Son Missing.

CHICAGO, April 29.—Mrs. Lucy E. Parsons, the female Anarchist, whose husband was hanged for participating in the Haymarket massacre, is looking for her 11-year-old son Albert, who has been missing from his home in Avondale since April 15. The boy was sent to school on that date as usual, but instead of going home he took the train and came to this city.

The Work of an Incendiary.

NORTH CONOCTON, N. Y., April 29.—Fowler's store, with contents; Luther Johnson's carriage painting shop, the George Last Shoe Company, and contents, and Dr. E. S. Carpenter's dwelling were burned early in the morning, together with a number of carriages in a shed. The fire was certainly incendiary. The loss is unknown.

Framing the Land Bill.

LONDON, April 29.—In view of the slow progress of the Land bill in the House of Commons that he will move to-morrow that the bill take precedence of all other orders of the day.

DR. GRAVES SPEAKS

He Says a Blackmailer Murdered Mrs. Barnaby.

A SHOCKING STORY OF SCANDAL.

The Doctor Makes Incredible Charges Against the Dead Woman.

He Claims that Self-Protection Makes It Necessary to Reveal Mrs. Barnaby's Character—The Family Indignant Over the Statement—An Executor of the Barnaby Will Paid Graves $50,000.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 29.—The Barnaby murder mystery will not be solved without unveiling a story which will probably cause Providence and Boston society people to shudder. It is impossible to cover up longer the scandal which ruined the millionaire's family, and which undoubtedly paved the way for the tragic death of his widow in Denver.

A little of the story cropped out to-day, and more will come as the investigation progresses. Mrs. Barnaby had a fortune, and on that account her dissolute ways were hidden from the world. Only few knew of them until they were revealed by the man who is under suspicion of having caused her death.

Dr. Graves acknowledged that the circumstances pointed strongly toward him, but said he wasn't at all alarmed. He said he courted the most searching investigation into his own acts, and that he would do all in his power to clear up the mystery. He has not yet been arrested, and the police say that as yet they have no evidence upon which to base an arrest.

DR. GRAVES TALKS.

He Says He Had More to Gain by Mrs. Barnaby's Living Than in Her Death.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 29.—Dr. T. Thatcher Graves has at last broken the silence that he has kept in regard to his connection with the Barnaby case. He says: "I am satisfied that there has been a murder, and that the poison was sent from Boston. Fully appreciating the force of some evidence that has the appearance of condemning me, I nevertheless can say, with entire truthfulness, that I know nothing whatever about the crime. Certainly I did not commit it. I had every reason for wishing Mrs. Barnaby to live, since she paid me a very liberal salary. To satisfy the public, however, I will make this brief statement:

"I left Providence for Denver, knowing Mrs. Barnaby was dead. I went because I thought I ought immediately, as her agent, to assume charge of the body. I did not notify any of her relatives or friends in Providence. I lost the fast train West, and accordingly did not reach Denver until Friday morning. I did not consider the visiting extraordinary at the time. I see now, however, that it looks bad. I didn't hear any particulars or even the cause of Mrs. Barnaby's death until I got to Denver."

Dr. Graves says he is positive that Mrs. Barnaby was murdered because she refused to pay blackmail any longer. He says that the murdered woman, although nearly 60 years old and a paralytic, had love affairs, and that this fact became known to some unscrupulous person, who had been blackmailing her until in desperation she went West to escape the demands.

The Doctor accuses Mrs. Barnaby of drunkenness, at the same time admitting that she was his best friend and best paying patient. He says he makes these charges public in order to square himself. His close relations with her arose from professional attendance in the treatment of paralysis, in the cure of which disease he is an expert.

He says that he spent last season in the Adirondacks with Mr. Barnaby. Their headquarters were at Edward A. Bennett's at Blue Mountain. The scenes witnessed there were shocking. He says that one day he found Mrs. Barnaby and Bennett asleep in an old ice house. Both were beastly intoxicated. This caused a big row, and the result was that Mrs. Bennett said that Mrs. Barnaby should never come into her house again.

The doctor's charges blackening the character of the dead woman have roused a cyclone of indignation among the friends, the family and even the servants of the deceased, who deny that she drank alcoholic liquor, or was aught but an intelligent, refined and most charitable woman. The maid, Miss Sallie Hanley, who was in the Adirondacks with the Barnaby party last summer, will say nothing about the stories concerning Mrs. Barnaby's habits.

The police have discovered a clue which satisfies them that a conspiracy of some kind is afoot in this mysterious case.

Sold to the Rothschilds.

BUTTE, Mont., April 29.—A rumor is current here that the Anaconda mines have been sold to the Rothschilds.

Printers on Strike in Rome.

ROME, April 29.—Owing to the strike of the printers, no papers will be published on Thursday.

THE PRESIDENT'S EXCURSION.

He Is Accompanied by 10,000 Persons on His Trip Around San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 29.—A reception was held at the Palace Hotel by the President before he left on his marine trip in the morning, which was attended by over 100 clergymen of all denominations of this city and vicinity.

Shortly before 10:30 President Harrison and party boarded the steamer City of Pueblo for a trip around the bay. Promptly at that hour the steamer left the wharf and started in the direction of Alcatraz Island, near which were stationed the Charleston, the Hassler, the Madrono, Corwin and the Rush.

In passing the squadron the Presidential salute of 21 guns was fired, and then the cruiser and the cutters fell behind the Pueblo and the naval procession moved slowly toward the Golden Gate.

Ten thousand or more persons left the shore to accompany the President on his trip. The yacht clubs of neighboring cities and towns decked their boat houses with flags and bunting. The cruiser Charleston was one of the most conspicuous objects, and was resplendent in her new dress.

The President received a dispatch from Mrs. Eaton saying that she was much better, and requesting that no change of plans be made by the President on account of her injuries.

THE NEW YORK FIGHT.

Gov. Hill Will Call an Extra Session of the Legislature To-morrow.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 29.—At the conclusion of the session on Thursday it is asserted by Democratic Senators to-day that Governor Hill will send an order for an extra session for 4 o'clock that afternoon.

The especial business they will be called for is the passage of the World's Fair bill.

The Senators on the Republican side will refuse to do any business and will then adjourn, and then, the next day, the Governor will call them back to pass an Enumeration bill. If they refuse to do this, and adjourn, then the Governor will call an extra session for the passage of an Excise bill; and so the thing may go on for weeks until the Governor exhausts the measures left over.

A BOYCOTT ON CARNEGIE.

New York Iron Manufacturers Combine Against the Pittsburg Man.

NEW YORK, April 29.—J. R. & J. W. Cornell and other New York iron manufacturers have formed an alliance against Andrew Carnegie and his associates.

The Carnegie associations do not make any cast iron and have to give out contracts for all the iron they have used on buildings they want. Instead of contracting indirectly with persons building Carnegie's agents make what is known as a direct contract. The result of this, it is said, has been the formation of a combine against the Carnegie associations.

As Mr. Cornell's office a member of the firm said that he knew of no organized movement to boycott Mr. Carnegie, although he admitted the protest against the system of direct contracting with the mills.

Connecticut's Military in Trouble.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 29.—The refusal of the Senate to confirm Watson, of Bridgeport, leaves the militia of the State without an active head. The action of the Senate virtually throws Watson and his whole staff out of office. On the other hand, there is much doubt expressed as to whether Graham is reinstated. His friends assert that he is, but the prevailing belief is that should he attempt to act the same imbroglio which now characterizes the Gubernatorial question is likely to arise. The military foes of Bulkeley are jubilant over the decision in the case.

A Daughter's Shame Caused His Death.

LANCASTER, Pa., April 29.—Edward Goshkey, aged 45, a dairyman near this city, arose at 4 a. m., seized an axe and started for the woods with suicidal intent. His 14-year-old son followed him. The father leaped a fence, jumped into the Canestoga River with his axe and was drowned. The son followed him and had to be pulled out. A daughter's shame caused Goshkey's act.

Ray Hamilton's Drinking Fountain.

NEW YORK, April 29.—The board of aldermen received a petition from the family of the late Robert Ray Hamilton opposing a bequest in his will of $10,000 for the erection of a drinking fountain in this city. The petition prays that no such permission be given "for the honor of all concerned, past, present and future." The petition was placed on file.

Agree to the Short-Hour Demand.

PITTSBURG, April 29.—Over 2,070 carpenters about here will not strike on May 1. Many bosses outside of the Builders' Association have agreed to the short-hour demand and expect to reap a rich harvest. Numbers of journeymen have completed arrangements to start shops of their own.

The Testimonial to Senator Gorman.

BALTIMORE, April 29.—The committee having in charge the testimonial to Senator Gorman have decided to make the presentation at the Fifth Regiment Armory on May 14. The cost of the testimonial and public reception is estimated at $6,000, all of which has been contributed.

Will Ignore the Clergy.

MONTREAL, April 29.—The committee appointed by the local branch of the Irish National League to arrange for the reception on May 8th of the Parnell delegates, have decided to ignore the opposition of the clergy and to go on with arrangements for the reception of the delegates.

An Old Swindler Sent to Prison.

NEW YORK, April 29.—William Hudson, a gray-bearded man, who has maintained himself for many years by defrauding the gullible, was sentenced to eight years' imprisonment. Poor immigrants have been Hudson's prey.

BLAIR NOT WANTED

China Unwilling to Receive Him as Minister.

ANTI-CHINESE SPEECHES DID IT.

The Ex-Senator is Now on His Way to San Francisco.

A Report that He Will be Offered the Japanese Mission—An Objectionable Immigrant from Germany Sent Back by Order of Secretary Foster—Rumored Changes in the New York Custom House.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The Chinese government has notified the government of the United States through the Department of State of its unwillingness to receive the Hon. Henry W. Blair as United States Minister to China.

It is well understood here that the objection to Mr. Blair is based upon his utterances on the Chinese question, and that the republication of extracts from his speeches produced a deep impression upon the minds of leading Chinese officials, which finally resulted in the notification received by the Department of State.

The notification caused great excitement here, as this government recognizes the right of a foreign power to express its unwillingness to receive a Minister who is not entirely acceptable.

Ex-Senator Blair reached Chicago today on his way to San Francisco. He will probably return and be offered the Japanese mission.

RETURNED TO GERMANY.

An International Case that May Cause Some Trouble.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—An international question has sprung up between the United States and Germany through the action of the German officials in sending to this country an insane German criminal.

The matter is one of importance, coming on the heels of the New Orleans troubles, and indicates an intention on the part of the United States government to institute a more rigid inspection of immigrants.

The case that gives rise to the action taken is that of Nikolaus Bader, who recently arrived in New York. In an affidavit on file with the Treasury Department Bader states that he is 59 years of age and that he arrived from Germany at the port of New York April 25, by steamship Waesland from Antwerp; that his passage to this country was paid for him by the authorities in the town of Stauzach, Germany; that he has with him one dollar in money; that he has no relatives or friends in this country; that in 1864 he murdered a girl with whom he was in love, for which crime he was imprisoned one year, when he was declared insane and was confined in an insane asylum for 24 years; and from which he was discharged somewhat over a year ago; that he requested to be sent to America and the authorities then sent him here.

Secretary Foster has ordered that Bader be returned to Germany by the steamship company which brought him hither, and the fact that he was transported to the United States at the expense of the public authorities in Germany has been called to the attention of the State Department for such action as may be deemed expedient.

The New Orleans Lynching.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Attorney-General Miller admitted that he had received the report of United States District-Attorney Grant, of New Orleans, containing official details as to the lynching of the Mafia prisoners. Mr. Miller stated that he was unwilling to make the report public, at least until he and Secretary Blaine had fairly digested it.

Custom House Removals.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—There will be stirring times in the New York Custom House within the next few days particularly in the Appraiser's department. It is pretty well understood that the resignation of Appraiser Cooper will either be tendered or asked for within a very brief period.

DUEL WITH PISTOLS.

One of the Men Pierced by Several Bullets —The Other Shot Twice.

ROANOKE, Va., April 29.—A terrible tragedy occurred at Marshall's cafe in this city at 6 o'clock last evening.

N. K. Flood, son of Major John H. Flood, a prominent tobacconist of Lynchburg, and Charles L. Ross, who came here from Washington in February last, met at the cafe and engaged in a duel with pistols.

Ross soon fell, pierced by several bullets, and died in a few minutes. Flood was shot in the mouth and breast, but will probably recover.

Both men were gamblers, and the shooting was the result of a quarrel at the card table six weeks ago.

Caught in the Machinery and Killed.

SING SING, N. Y., April 29.—Frank Merritt, of this village, was killed in the plaster room of Brandreth's pill and plaster works during the morning. Shortly after the machinery was started he ventured too near the belt, which caught him by the trousers. He was badly bruised and died within a few minutes. He was employed in the factory for over 20 years.

Will Close Up the Gambling Houses.

CHICAGO, April 29.—Mayor Washburne's first official act on entering upon his duties was to issue an order to the police to close up every gambling house in Chicago. In an interview the mayor said that in case the men detailed to do the work should miss any place in which gambling is carried on, and which shall be afterward found out by newspaper men, or anybody else, he should have those discharged.

THE WARRIOR'S FUNERAL.

Simple Services Over the Remains of Count Von Moltke—Bismarck Absent.

BERLIN, April 29.—It had already become quite evident that Prince Bismarck had no intention of meeting the Kaiser in this city at Count von Moltke's funeral, so his absence occasioned no surprise. Bismarck's newspaper gave it out that he was too ill to be present.

Services were held at 11 o'clock in the General Staff building, where Moltke died. When the coffin had been carried out of the edifice on the shoulders of the active pallbearers, followed by the honorary bearers, it was reverently placed within the hearse, which was drawn by six of the Emperor's horses. The hearse was preceded by one carriage containing Colonel Von Gossler, Aide-de-Camp on the staff of Count Waldersee. Colonel Von Gossler bore with him the Field Marshal's baton of the dead soldier.

The officers of the General Staff, carrying the insignia of the late Field Marshal's various orders followed. Then came the Kaiser and the members of the royal family.

Carriages filled with members of the diplomatic corps and men prominent in the civil and military life of the Nation passed along in rapid succession, to the Lehrte station, through lines of troops and throngs of people.

HE HAD TO MUCH WORK.

The Presence of an Operator Would Have Prevented a Bad Railroad Wreck.

PITTSBURG, April 29.—At the inquest at Elyria, Ohio, over the Lake Shore accident at Kipton, in which two engineers and six mail clerks were killed, E. C. Prentice, station agent and telegraph operator at Kipton, testified that train 21 was three minutes late when the fast mail crashed into it.

He received an order for the trains to pass at Kipton, but that order was afterward cancelled. He did not get the second message until the trains were almost together, because his manifold duties called him away from his instrument.

The accident would have been prevented had there been an operator on duty when the second order was sent.

A Wall Street Broker Attempts Suicide.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Leopold Lindauer, the Wall street broker, shot himself at the Cooper Union Hotel last night and will die. His wife Cora had been granted a divorce from him on statutory grounds during the day.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

John Devine, 30 years old a lineman fell from a pole in New York and was instantly killed.

A report is current in London that the unknown man who some three weeks ago committed suicide at Wimbledon has been identified as "Jack the Ripper."

The striking employes of the Michigan Car Company at Detriot did not go to work yesterday, but started a riot with the police. One man was shot in the leg.

Case & Co.'s and McCutcheon's tin, copper and sheet-iron factories on Ohio street, Buffalo, N. Y., were damaged by fire at an early hour to the extent of $50,000.

R. Stevenson has been convicted of perjury at Chambersburg Pa., in swearing that his wife was 28 years old when he married her, whereas she was ten years younger.

State Senator Charles T. Saxton of Clyde, N. Y., has been appointed to the Chancellorship of Union University. He will deliver an address at its commencement, which will be on June 24th.

Deacon J. Ellery Piper, a wealthy resident of Hyde Park, Mass., was instantly killed by a freight train while trying to board the 7:20 train for Boston on the New York & New England R. R. The deceased carried on a large coal business.

General Butler is preparing to take to the Supreme Court of the United States the case of Mrs. Johnson, over which he has had so much trouble with Judge Carpenter of Boston. The case will go up on a writ of error.

Dr. Henry M. Leach, an eclectic physician, of Boston, was arrested at Somerville, Mass., charged with performing an operation in the case of Mary Murphy, a domestic in his family, aged 19, who died in the house of her sister, Mrs. Mahoney, a victim of malpractice.

Fire broke out at 6 a. m. in the basement of Kaens & Co.'s dry goods house at Franklin, Pa. The store was in the center of the finest business block in the town. The flames spread and in a short time the eastern half of the block was in ruins. The losses aggregate $140,000; insurance, $66,500.

The Buffalo Smelting Works, said to be an off-shoot from the great Calumet & Hecla Mining Company, of Northern Minnesota, will on May 10 break ground at Black Rock, N. Y., for buildings in which will be carried on one of the largest industries of Western New York. The works will employ 400 men.

Weather Indications.

THE DAILY PRESS.

W. L. & A. L. FORCE, Publishers and Proprietors.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - Managing Editor.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—A mothers' meeting of the Woman's Temperance Aid Society will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the parlors of Reform Hall.

—The public schools of this city if they have no patriotism, should at least have politeness. They have all been presented with flags, yet few fly them.

—Catharine, the aged wife of William Kenney, was found dead in her bed at her home in Pruden's alley this morning. She was taken ill with the grip yesterday, and died of heart failure.

—Religious service will be held at the Monroe Avenue chapel Friday evening at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be led by L. C. Batsen, and the subject will be "Diligence in God's Service."

—Sherwin can fit you out with low-cut shoes. He has the proper kinds for you to wear, and if you want an easy shoe try those that are sewed by the French process. They are very flexible and require no breaking in.

—The news of Monday—published yesterday—had 14 cent-a-word advs, while THE PRESS had 24. THE PRESS contained 19 columns of regular advs, every inch of which is alive, while the news had 12½ columns most of which is dead.

—Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., had a muster at the the post rooms last evening. Col. Mason W. Tyler was initiated. Department Commander Milliken was present, inspected the post, and bestowed hearty commendation on officers and members. A very enjoyable campfire followed.

—At considerable expense, Barnes the confectioner has fitted up his establishment with porcelain-lined freezers from which he is serving iced cream in all flavors including crushed-strawberry that contains the real fruit. "Absolutely pure" is a reputation he has long ago secured for his candies, and he proposes his cream shall be likewise.

PLAINFIELDERS IN CAPTIVITY.

Members of the Melopola Take Part in a Metropolitan Musical Event.

Max Vogrich's oratoria, "The Captivity", was performed last evening in the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, by a chorus of about 400 composed of members of the Melopola of this city and other societies conducted by William R. Chapman.

Among those present from this city who sang were: Mrs. J. K. Myers, Mrs. Charles E. Brooks, Mrs. Samuel F. Kimball, Mrs. Fred. F. Beals, Mrs. J. Parker Mason, Mrs. H. M. Stockton, Mrs. William T. Kaufman, Mrs. Charles F. Abbott, the Misses Holmes, the Misses Van-Boskerck, the Misses Demarest, Miss Florence Clark, Miss Emma Miller, Miss Kitty Glen, Miss Amy Green, Miss Madeline Harberger, and the Messrs. I. C. Pierson, C. A. Marsh, George Schoonmaker, Max Munger, Fred Walz, George Stevens, Charles Brooks, William Kaufman, William Hubbard, Arthur Freeman, Clarence Murphy, and A. W. Duxbury.

The New York Sun of this morning says:

Too much credit cannot be given to Mr. Chapman for the earnest and untiring endeavor which brought last evening's performance to such a highly successful fulfilment.

Every detail was carefully studied, and excellent judgment went hand in hand with incessant drill to gain the desired end.

The New York Times says:

The performance was not as fine as the oratorio deserved. The chorus was powerful in tone, but had some difficulty with the continued high pitch of its measures, which caused stridency at times and frequent flatness. Delicacy of shading was almost wholly absent, and there were uncertainties in attack in some places. Among the soloists Mme. Vogrich, a singer new to the local stage, achieved the most decided success. She possesses a voice of lovely quality, which was produced with rare art, and her phrasing was altogether admirable. She sang with care, judgment, and sometimes with a warmth that evoked the heartiest plaudits. Mme. Vogrich is a valuable acquisition to our list of vocalists, and will be heard again. Mr. Fischer sang in his customary broad and dignified manner, but Mr. Dippie was in poor voice, and did himself little credit.

These three soloists, as already announced in THE PRESS exclusively, will sing at the next and last concert of The Melopola, at The Casino, this city, May 25. Mme. Miike will not sing at this concert as the Central Times and New York World still insist, nor will it occur on May 4 as they published last week again.

House-Warming at the Chapel.

The house-warming of the new Monroe Avenue chapel was held last evening, and was a very enjoyable occasion. The beautiful room was tastefully decorated, and with its brilliant lights afforded a pleasant and hospitable picture to the large number present.

The entertainment included a programme of music and recitations, and refreshments were served to about three hundred people.

The religious and the social work of the new chapel has begun most auspiciously, and the sojourners in that new "Sabbath Home" rejoice to be gathering within its doors the many who come glad when it is said unto them, "Let us go unto the house of the Lord."

There is no better remedy to give relief to children suffering with whooping cough than Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Do not be without it at any time. Price only 25 cents. At all dealers.

TENTH CONVENTION OF THE Y... C. E.

The Greatest Religious Gathering the World Has Ever Known.

It is none too early for Christian Endeavor Societies to begin talking and thinking about the great International Convention to be held at Minneapolis, July 9-12, in the magnificent exposition building, the ground floor of which is to be altered for the use of the convention. Plans have been drawn for the putting in of seats to accommodate 10,000 people, so that all will be comfortable. The gallery has a seating capacity of 4,000.

During the absence of the State Secretary in Europe, Miss Spangenberg of this city is the acting Secretary for New Jersey. The State Executive Committee hope that a very large delegation may be sent from New Jersey, to this, the greatest religious convention the World has ever known, to learn more about the glorious work for "Christ and His Church," and also to carry back to their homes new life and a burning zeal to do more for him.

Each Society of Christian Endeavor should, if possible, send a delegate, as no society can afford to miss the privilege of being represented. Those who have attended the International Conventions can testify that it is time and money well spent, and that it infinitely more than pays for any expense connected with it.

The committee of '91 are endeavoring to make the convention a grand success in every way. They want every one to carry home the best impressions, and they are going to do everything in their power to bring about this result.

The hotel committee are preparing to care for 15,000 wide-awake, energetic young people, and they are doing their part nobly in making all arrangements so complete for the accommodation of the delegates, that there will be nothing lacking in their enjoyment of the convention.

It is estimated that 150 special trains will be used, as some of the larger States will need two or three trains. New Jersey and Delaware will probably go with Pennsylvania, yet this fact has not been positively decided upon.

Anyone desiring to obtain definite information in regard to transportation, may correspond with the Rev. Wm. Hoppough, of Springfield, who is the local transportation agent for New Jersey.

The Bulletin is the official organ of the committee of '91. It is an eight-page paper filled with information regarding Minneapolis, and all matters of interest connected with the preparation of the coming great convention. The subscription price of The Bulletin for the first four numbers, which are being issued previous to the convention, is only two cents, and should be sent to John S. Hughes, 625 New York Life Building, Minneapolis, Minn.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Williams and Mr. Yettman, both well-known members of Plainfield's colored society, will be married at Mount Olive church, this evening, at 8:30. Mr. George Randolph will be best man.

Even the State Disgusted.

Governor Abbett, Secretary of State Kelsey and Comptroller Heppenheimer, yesterday designated the Constitutionalist and the Times, of this city, to print the laws of New Jersey passed by the last Legislature.

In past years the news of Somerset street, has been appointed, but the State has now followed the City's example and dropped the sheet as beneath recognition and without readers.

MY CATARRH was very bad. For thirty years I have been troubled with it—have tried a number of remedies without relief. A druggist advised Ely's Cream Balm. I have used only one bottle and I can say I feel like a new man. I make this voluntary statement that others may know of the Balm.—J. W. Mathewson, lawyer, Pawtucket, R. I.

WITH Ely's Cream Balm a child can be treated without pain and with perfect safety. It cures catarrh, hay fever and colds in the head. It is easily applied into the nostrils and gives immediate relief. Price 50 cents.

Destructive Fire Caused by Children.

PALMER, Mass., April 29.—At West Brimfield some school children built a small fire. It got beyond their control, and the high wind carried it into the brush and timber. About 400 acres of land have been burned over. A large force of men are fighting the fire, but have not as yet been able to subdue it.

Prominent Labor Leader Dead.

CHICAGO, April 29.—Richard Griffiths, founder of the Knights of Labor in Chicago, died during the morning of heart enlargement, aged 66 years. For several terms he occupied the position of Grand Worthy Foreman, the second highest office in the order of the Knights.

A Crisis in Honolulu.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 29.—Honolulu advices report that that Minister Carter has resigned from the Cabinet, and that the people are clamoring for a republic. It is said that the life of the Queen is in danger. No particulars are obtainable at this hour.

Compulsory Education.

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 29.—The Compulsory Education bill finally passed the House by a vote of 116 to 49. Under the provisions of the bill children between the ages of 8 and 12 years must attend school at least 16 weeks each year.

Miss Cousins Will Fight.

CHICAGO, April 29.—Miss Phoebe Cousins applied to the Circuit Court to prevent her removal as secretary of the Ladies' Board of the World's Fair.

When your dealer sends you something "just as good" when Hires's Root Beer is asked for, the proper thing is to send it back. He delights in selling substitutes, because the profit is large.

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING.

ONE-half of the people born die before the age of sixteen.

A FIFTEEN-year-old boy has just died in Brooklyn of too rapid growth. At the time of his death he was six feet two inches tall, but did not weigh a hundred pounds.

NO LESS than seventeen thousand young girls and women—homeless, friendless, helpless and foodless—sleep in the open-all-night shelters of Stepney Green, London, in a year.

A RECENTLY launched Baltimore schooner was christened with water instead of wine, the liquor always heretofore used on such occasions. The vessel's owners are said to be strict temperance men.

A PITTSBURGH (Pa.) man has been cleaning his eyeglasses for years with bank notes, and says they are far better for the purpose than anything else and at the same time the bills are not injured by it.

IN the Silvester-basilica of Rome have been discovered the tombs of six popes, among them that of Silvester, who succeeded in converting Constantine to Christianity, and who lived at the time of the council of Nice.

A FLOCK of twenty-one fine geese belonging to Asher Werts, of Crawfordsville, Ind., spent a night on his fish pond. It froze during the night, and next morning the birds were found fast in the ice, every one of them dead.

TWO ATCHISON (Kan.) society young men recently had a fight. It is said that after they had decided to fight they removed their hats and coats; then one asked the other to excuse him while he removed his necktie, collar and cuffs.

JUMPING claims in Idaho is dangerous business. A man at Wallace named Harris found three men putting up a cabin on a lot owned by him. They refused to leave, whereupon he got his gun, shot two of them dead and dangerously wounded the third.

WITTY, WISE AND CHEERING.

LET a man lead a crooked life long enough and he will soon be in straits.

THE man who first wrote about the pleasures of giving was probably the inventor of the charity ball.

SCIENCE is making wonderful strides nowadays. An agricultural exchange has just discovered that if a cow's hind legs are tied together she can't kick.

THE man who takes off his hat in the presence of ladies in a draughty elevator may have great politeness, but he will also have a great cold in his head.

"I DREAMED of you last night," she said, with a lingering glance. "Did you, really?" he inquired, eagerly. "Yes; I always dream when I eat lobster and pie at night."

MATHEMATICIANS figure that a man sixty years old has spent three years in buttoning his collar. How much time has been consumed by a woman of forty-five in putting her hat on straight?

A—"THERE is a most remarkable echo in a cave in Kentucky." B—"What is there remarkable about it?" A—"If you call out: 'Hello, Smith!' the echo says: 'What Smith do you mean?' no less than fourteen distinct times."

THE most powerful king on earth is wor-king; the laziest, shir-king; a very doubtful king, smo-king; the most common king, jo-king; the leanest one, thin-king; thirstiest one, drin-king; the slyest, win-king; and the most dangerous, tal-king.

CURIOUS to Know.—A prisoner who had been convicted at least a dozen times was placed at the bar. "Your honor, I should like to have my case continued for a week; my lawyer is ill." "But you were captured with your hand in this gentleman's pocket. What can your counsel say in your defense?" "Precisely so, your honor; that is what I am curious to know."

GEORGIA AND ALABAMA.

THE cotton crop of Alabama is valued at $50,000,000.

A SOLID train of seventy-five cars of lumber arrived in Savannah, Ga., recently.

IT is reported that white servants are rapidly replacing colored help in the towns of southwestern Georgia.

WASHINGTON county, Georgia, produces annually 35,000 bales of cotton, worth about $1,500,000. This is one of the largest cotton-producing counties in the state.

THERE are two counties in Georgia that have not a lawyer. They are Echols and Charlton. The returns for 1890 show further that Charlton has neither a doctor nor a dentist.

THE negroes of Terrell county, Ga., are steadily increasing in prosperity and acquiring real estate, for which they have an especial liking. They own some of the best farm lands in the county.

GOV. JONES, of Alabama, has arranged with the state commissioner of agriculture to procure for him trees from all the most notable battlefields of Virginia, to be transplanted to the capitol grounds at Montgomery.

Here's our card.

It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are not straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public esteem accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for telling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of Shoes.

NUGGETS OF LOCAL NEWS, WITH GRAINS OF FREE-LANCE COMMENT.

Plainfield youths who complain of the lack of opportunity to win fame and riches might well take lesson and example from the case of Thomas Nevins, President of the Plainfield Street Railway Company. When Mr. Nevins—then a mere lad, familiarly known as "Tom"—landed in America, fresh from the sod of the Emerald Isle, he had scarcely a cent in his pocket. But he was quick and energetic, shrewd and far-sighted; his brain was always planning, and his hands were always doing. From driving a hack and working at odd jobs during the hours when his horses were resting he came to be coachman for a wealthy family in Orange. He was careful with his savings, and accepted every chance to turn an honest penny. By wise investments and judicious speculations he kept doubling his money till he had such a snug sum of cash at his disposal that he was dubbed by his friends "the millionaire cabby". At the end of three years he was enabled to buy the horses he drove, the stables that sheltered them, and his employer's house and grounds. To-day his fortune is very large; in the gardens of the estate which not many years ago was his employer's—in the gardens alone he has at least $20,000, laid out in plants and flowers.

***

Mr. Nevins is even more generous than he is wealthy. One has but to mention "Tom Nevins's big heart" among certain deserving poor people of Orange and Newark to hear expressions of deepest gratitude pour from lips which except in this instance speak with bitter cynicism of "Christian charity" because they have so rarely experienced it at the hands of the world. His two generous palms—and big and brawny arms they are that wield them—are lavish with his wealth; and, best of all, neither hand ever knows what the other member does.

***

Here is an instance of Mr. Nevins's bigheartedness. One day he and a number of other gentlemen were discussing a financial project in the office of a lawyer in Newark. The lawyer was a bright young man, who had achieved the fame but not yet acquired the fortune that invariably come, in the course of time, to worthy members of his profession. During the conversation Mr. Nevins casually spoke of a new span of blooded horses he had purchased, and as the talk drifted to the topic of driving very pleasant scenes of that delightful recreation were pictured before the ambitious, struggling lawyer.

"Ah, Mr. Nevins," he said, in laughing protest—"please don't talk before a poor man of luxuries that only arouse within him an insatiable longing."

"Oh, you're getting up in the world"—Mr. Nevins responded.—"You won't have to travel afoot very long."

Next day, to the lawyer's great astonishment, a groom brought to his door a valuable horse—one of the finest beauties from the Nevins stables.

"With the compliments of Thomas Nevins" was all that the accompanying note contained. The lawyer's face flushed with pleasure and gratefulness, but he immediately sought out the generous donor and protested that he couldn't accept such a gift. When Mr. Nevins cornered him he had no acceptable excuse except that he couldn't afford to keep it. Mr. Nevins speedily disposed of that.

"That's all right"—he said.—"Nothing's too good, young man, for you. I'll pay for the horse's keep till you feel able to assume the expense." And that's the plan he compelled the lawyer to adopt.

***

Not all Plainfielders who would like to ride are going to get gift-horses from Thomas Nevins, but a great many will be greatly benefited by the enterprises which that gentleman is going to give to Plainfield through his rapid transit railway. And every one who through the coming of the railway gets to know Mr. Nevins will get to esteem and love him just as he is esteemed and loved elsewhere.

A story came to the ears of The Paragrapher, some days ago, that was decidedly unpleasant for him to hear, but in which was involved so important a principle that he felt impelled to call public attention to it. The story was that certain outside parties had suggested to certain educational authorities the advisability of having fire drills introduced into the public schools under the supervision of the Board of Fire Engineers, and that the school authorities had responded "Our teachers know their business". This response seemed a curt one, as repeated to The Paragrapher, and the inference that he was led to draw was that just because an outsider had suggested it there were to be no fire drills, though fire drills are a highly commendable thing.

Happily, the response was not really meant to be curt, but only terse. The teachers do know their business, in this as in other matters. Fire drills, it seems, are already an established feature of the local public schools. How well the pupils have been trained was evidenced yesterday noon at the Franklin building. At five minutes of twelve Miss J. N. Bullock, the principal, quietly sent out the cue word, "Fire", from room to room. In just two minutes and a half the entire building was emptied of its human occupants, and a great dense mass of children was poured into the street. There was no excitement, no confusion. "If there had actually been a fire"—said the teachers—"the result would have been the same."

***

A group of fashionably dressed young women gathered at the soda-water fountain of a local pharmacy, Monday, and a very neat, cleanly and polite young colored man employed in the store stepped up and awaited their order. The girls bestowed on the colored young man a haughty glance in which contempt and insolence were mingled. Their pretty noses tilted upwards a moment, and with a sneer on her face the leader of the party approached the manager.

"Do you"—she asked, with a gasp of horrified amazement—"do you permit—ah—colored persons—ah—to serve ladies at your counter?"

The manager smiled blandly as he replied, with a trifle of emphasis on the word "ladies":

"Ladies, madam, have never yet objected in this store to having their wants attended to by colored gentlemen."

The proud beauty whirled angrily about. "Come, girls"—she said, and they all swept indignantly from the store.

"This"—mused the manager—"in the enlightened nineteenth century, and in these United States of America!"

***

A still more censurable instance of violation of the spirit of the Constitution which cements our Union, but one that smacks somewhat of improbability, is related by a local election inspector. He says that a young Englishman who had just taken out the papers naturalizing him as a citizen of the great republic advanced towards the ballot box, with his ticket ready, to cast his first vote on the free soil of America. Just then a burly negro elbowed his way along and deposited his ballot. The fact that the United States government recognized for negroes as for all others the inalienable rights of citizenship was a revelation to the Englishman. He had been made a citizen before he had been educated on some of the most important points of the Constitution to which he had sworn allegiance. He was too ignorantly fastidious to accept civil rights in which a negro had an equal share, and he refused to vote, and went away in disgust. The inspector concludes the story by saying that the boorish fellow soon afterwards left "the blawsted country" for "the gentleman's sovereignty", his native British Isles—which was a very good thing for America.

The beautiful strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin, which so often have added to the charming effect of the ceremony which transforms blushing maidens into lovely brides, have at last found ears on which they pall.

The auricular organs which have become satiated from too frequent and too oft repeated listening to the harmony belong to a Plainfield society girl. At a very pretty wedding, recently, just as the moment came for the bride and groom to enter the church, there came from the big organ the opening strains of the familiar march. The society girl was instantly all listlessness. "Oh, chestnuts! Rats!"—she muttered.—"I'm tired of hearing that old tune. Those who heard the semi-languid, semi-angry remark turned and looked and wondered that there was cloaked within so attractive a face and so dainty a costume such gross ill-breeding. The organ did n't cease its melody, in spite of the maiden's protest, and the wedding went on as merrily as if there had not been a bit of ugly churlishness off in one corner of the church. But if prospective brides in that happiest of wedding months, the leafy month of June, want to please this tired, dispirited, monotony-bored young woman, they must get up for her especial benefit a brand-new wedding march or else write down in a corner of her invitation "Lohengrin" or "Mendelssohn" and thus give her fair warning so that she can stay away from the nuptial ceremony and avoid the music which reminds her so strongly of prickly burrs and rodents.

NATHANIEL FAIRFIELD.

Don't Be Spring Frisky.

The warning not to turn off heat too early and not to make haste to put away stoves in the spring needs to be spoken often. Many serious cases of illness have been traced to the foolish practice of letting down the winter fire as soon as the first mild breezes of spring blow. It is time enough in this changeable climate to let the winter fire down by May, and there are cold days in May when a fire is needed. The spring, when the stoves are taken down, and not the fall, when they are put up again, is the proper time to see that stove flues and chimneys and all parts of the paraphernalia of the heating apparatus of the house are cleaned. It is an easy matter for a man to attend to this cleaning in the spring, before the general housecleaning is done. If everything is done now, at one time, instead of putting dirty stoves away to stand for six months, to be cleaned when they are needed, a great deal of trouble will be saved.—New York Tribune.

A TIN-PLATE MYSTERY.

Edward P. Williams of West Seventh Street Shouts "Hurrah for McKinley!" and Says that His Firm Will Make U. S. Tin Plate, But He Won't Say Where.

The Evening Post of New York city last night contained the following:

"A friend of The Evening Post sent the following postal-card to this office a day or two ago, saying that he had received it as an advertisement through the mails in the regular way:

"HURRAH FOR McKINLEY!
"'U. S.' BRIGHT TIN.

"As a beginning, we can now furnish 14x20 I C and I X Bright Tin, of superior ductility, and heavy coated for durability. All 'U. S.' iron and steel products excel those made in Great Britain. Address orders to
"ELY & WILLIAMS,
"38 Park Row, New York.

"A reporter of The Evening Post called at the office of Messrs. Ely & Williams, No. 38 Park Row (the Potter Building), on Monday, and giving his name, inquired of Mr. Williams how much of the 'U. S. Bright Tin 14x20 I C and I X' his firm could contract to deliver in a week, and at what figure. Mr. Williams, far from seeming overjoyed at the prospect of a customer, immediately took on an air of suspicion and asked the reporter what business he was in, where he lived, what he wanted the tin for, and a few other questions of that character, concluding by saying that the reason he asked the questions was because some time ago a reporter of the New York Times called at his office in his absence, and obtained some trade secrets from his clerk, and then lied about them. Mr. Williams then proceeded to abuse the New York Times and The Evening Post at great length, and not in the choicest language (although it may be mentioned, incidentally, that he is greatly esteemed among some temperance and religious people of Plainfield, N. J., where he lives), and after finally declaring that the Times and The Evening Post were unmitigated liars, said that his firm did not care to quote prices to or deal with strangers.

"The reporter, however, asked Mr. Williams where his tin-plate factory was situated. This Mr. Williams also declined to state. The reporter then told him that he was a representative of The Evening Post, and that his object was to ascertain the whereabouts of the factory where the U. S. Bright Tin 14x20 I C and I X that he offered to sell was made. This caused Mr. Williams to indulge in another quarter of an hour's abuse of The Evening Post, but through it all he persistently refused to state the whereabouts of his factory. After he had exhausted himself, however, so far as abuse of The Evening Post and the Times was concerned, he talked at some length on the beauties of the McKinley bill, the beautiful tin plate his firm was making, etc., and how superior it was to the imported article. Among other things, he said that the importers of tin plate had swindled the public by raising the price of tin, although the new tariff had not yet gone into effect; that when the tariff did go into effect, the canned-goods people who put up goods for export would really get their tin cheaper than they did now, by reason of the drawback; but that the consumers in this country would of course have to pay more for American canned goods than the English, because they earned more, got more wages than the English people did. Just where the benefit of protection to the consumer came in under those circumstances Mr. Williams declined to say; in fact, he would not discuss that question. He maintained, however, apropos of his tin plate, that it was a far superior article to any that was imported, and declared that in a very short time arrangements would be perfected by which tin plate would be made in this country on a scale that would practically drive the English tin out of the market."

The New York Times publication which Mr. Williams found so much fault with was an article concerning the "sample of American tin plate" sent to every newspaper office in the land, some months ago, by the Harlem Republican Club. The article in The Times was nearly a column long, and consisted of a series of interviews with different people, all of which showed that the "sample of American tin" was a fraud. None of the officers or members of the club knew really anything about the matter. They had accepted the statement that the "samples" were actually American tin from ex-Senator James L. Miller of Westfield, and on the strength of his representation had pasted the following statement on each "sample" of tin sent out:

Sample of American Tin Plate.

Made from American ores, dug by American miners, manufactured into tin plate at the United States Iron and Tin Plate Company's Works at Demmler, Penn., by American workmen who now make their own dinner pails. Thus are American industries protected.
Compliments of the
HARLEM REPUBLICAN CLUB.

The "samples" were sown broadcast through the country just at the time when F. X. Schoonmaker of Putnam avenue was going about the country making speeches full of McKinley promises—promises which had a pretty toy-balloon appearance, and which secured for the plausible argumentative man who made them the distinguished title of "the great tin-plate liar", under which sobriquet he achieved much fame through the columns of the great daily newspapers.

When the people of the Harlem Republican Club referred the Times reporter to New Jersey's ex-Senator, the newspaper man went promptly to that gentleman's New York office, at the establishment of Frank Miller & Sons, and there Mr. J. L. Miller was found. The same interrogatory was addressed to him which had been put to President Winsor: "What do you know of your own knowledge about this Harlem Club tin plate?"

Mr. Miller said that he didn't know anything about it of his own knowledge. He had obtained it from the New York representatives of the United States Iron and Tin Plate Company, Messrs. Ely & Williams [the Plainfield Mr. Williams's firm], and had understood from them that it was an American article throughout.

"Having found out what Mr. Miller did not know,"—The Times went on to say—"the reporter proceeded at once to the office of Ely & Williams, 38 Park Row. Neither member of the firm was in the office, but a representative of the firm kindly volunteered to furnish whatever information should be called for which it was in his power to give. He was asked to state if it was true that the tin plate which had been sent out by the Harlem Club answered the description of it given in the label.

"'No, it does not'—he said—'We made the black sheets and tinned them, but we did not tin them with American tin. The tin was imported from England.'"

"The attention of the gentleman was next called to the statement, implied in the Harlem Club literature, that an American factory was actually engaged in manufacturing tin plate in a commercial way and offering it for sale in open market. Then the question was asked. 'To what extent are you manufacturing plate?'

"'Only 400 boxes a week just now.'

"'And how long have you been at work?'

"'About a fortnight. We expect to go into the business more extensively later on.'

"'And the price?'

"'Oh, we have n't fixed any price yet, but the presumption is that we shall not sell at a loss.'

"Can you sell in competition with the imported article and not sell at a loss?'

"The person interrogated was unable to answer this question categorically. The most that he could say was that he believed that if the duty should be kept as fixed by the McKinley bill the Demmler Company would have no difficulty in competing with the foreign article.

"It appears"—The Times concluded—"that the demand for the Demmler tin plate comes largely from sentimental tinmen and tinkers throughout the country, who wish to put shears and soldering iron in contact with American tin plate, just for the sake of saying that they have done it. It is not probable that an order for any amount exceeding a box has been filled yet for anybody. It is possible that the company proposes to engage extensively in the manufacture of tin plate, but the indications are that it is not at present undertaking to do more than to show that tin plate can be made in this country, which has never been denied, and to make it appear by judicious explanation of a small output that the McKinley bill has already resulted in the establishment of an American tin-plate factory, whereas, as a matter of fact, no new tin-plate machinery has been set up at Demmler, the small production which is now taking place coming from an old plant which the company gave up using years ago."

SUNOL TO BE QUEEN.

Budd Doble Gossips About the Great Trotters of the Day.

He Says the Coming Season Is Likely to Be the Greatest in Turf History—Maud S. and Her Prospects—How to Study a Horse.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891.]

"There are no fixed rules for driving a trotter. Years of experience have taught me that men are left-handed, right-handed and often handicapped with prejudices and temper that prevent them being good drivers. They have certain penchants about the use of a rein and often their manner of handling a horse is simply a matter of condition, excitement and interest. It is exceedingly difficult to understand an animal that you are piloting along a race track, unless you have had a chance of controlling it in training. Of course I am in love with a horse, and have had a bit of responsibility in controlling some of the best of them. I began early and my relations with the trotting turf represent not only my childhood, but my mature life. The lessons I learned while pursuing this avocation are of great value to me. It gives me the power of controlling myself, as well as to handle the stock which comes in my hand. My admiration for a trotter began when I was a boy."

AXTELL.

Budd Doble, one of the most famous, if not the most famous, driver of trotting horses in the world, spoke thus while beginning a most interesting conversation about his experiences on the turf. Mr. Doble is a small man in stature; but big in power on the track, not only for himself, but for other people. When he opened his budget of good stories he said:

"I drove and campaigned Goldsmith Maid for ten years, and put her into her home in Trenton after all those days of hard work the fall she was twenty years of age as sound as when she came into my hands. She was, taking it all in all, the most remarkable animal for the race track of which this country has any knowledge. It is impossible to tell what Maud S. might do, or could have done, had she been subjected to the same exactions as was the Maid; but taking the record as it stands, no horse of this or any other day has stood the test which my old pet took care of with comparative ease. In all climates, under all conditions, in rain or shine, on a hard or soft track, she was always ready, and you could rely upon her doing her best at any time. Before I put her in the stall in Mr. Smith's stable on the Fashion stud farm and we bade each other good-by in 1882 she had earned over three hundred and sixty thousand dollars in purses. Hence, her financial record was as strong as her physical one.

"Dexter was a great horse. In many respects he was the most perfectly equipped animal for a race that I ever saw. He could always be relied on, and had lots of brains, which is a very important thing in a trotter. He never lost his head, no matter what the confusion, and during the years I drove him never broke or left his feet but three times. In the days when he was supreme he had plenty of speed, and knew how to use it as well as any animal in the world.

"Brains? Yes, that is what I say. I mean that he had sense, just like a human being. So did Goldsmith Maid. There is just as much difference in horses as there are in men and women. What I may call the intellectual quality in a horse is all important, and the man driving him in a race feels secure when he knows that his animal has good sense. Some animals lose their heads and go all to pieces in the confusion of scoring up; others drop their nerve in a close finish, and often I have seen a horse with superior speed beaten out by his rival, simply because the one had brains and the other had bad habits or weakness in the head. It is worth a great deal to a driver to have a horse upon whose brains you can rely in an emergency. All these things one has to study and know well before he can get the best out of his horse. In fact a driver must study his animal just like a mechanic studies his machinery, only the driver's needs are far greater than the engineer's because he has temper and caprice to deal with, rather than cold conditions. To do well you must understand the disposition of the horse you are behind. A good driver must know the length of the stride of his horse. In fact, a man, to be successful, must be a first-class judge of pace, and know when to crowd his horse and when to ease him off. Above all he must be a thorough master of himself. To lose his temper or his head is to lose a race, nine times out of ten. A man who drives a trotting horse must study well all his elements of power. He has not only his hands, but his head full. When you come to add to these intellectual demands the hazards of the track, and the necessity for taking advantage of the slightest mistake of your opponents, which are important matters, and crowded upon you after the excitement and necessities of the race begin, self-possession in a driver is as essential to success as having a good horse.

GOLDSMITH MAID DRIVEN BY BUDD DOBLE.

"The powers and purposes of the trotting horse interests have been wonderfully changed and advanced within the past few years. Trotting stock has grown more valuable and been put in training much earlier than when I began. I don't like that idea. I do not think that a horse ought to be put in a race until he or she is five or six years old; but they are developing them so early now that at three and even two years they are raced. My opinion is that this shortens the active life of the animals and therefore makes them of less value on the turf than as though they had gone to the hardening age of five or six before being called upon to do hard work. I believe it is well enough to educate them from the time they are colts, and have them in perfect form by the time they are five; but we are a rapid people, and do not like to wait for results. You must remember that 'Goldsmith Maid' did her best work after she was fourteen years of age, and many of our best horses have lived to ripe old ages and been fit to the last. By beginning too early you take off more or less from the mature and stronger years.

"A horse that five years ago would bring only one thousand dollars would now fetch from twenty-five hundred to three thousand dollars, and perhaps more if he had some extra good points. Think of the stallion Axtell bringing one hundred and five thousand dollars, the highest price ever paid for a horse in the world. There are any number of stallions in the United States that are worth $30,000. This in itself is the best illustration of the remarkable advance made in the price and grade of trotters within the past few years. This is partly due to the growth of wealth in many pursuits, and the demand of rich gentleman for fast road horses. A case in point is 'Jack,' which came into my hands three years ago with a record of 2:29½. I reduced it to 2:12¼ and then sold him to a gentleman in Boston for a road horse. The man wanted to be sure that no one could throw dust in his eyes, and I think he has found in 'Jack' what he was looking after.

"The sales of young horses this year illustrate the fact that the present season promises to be the most prosperous that the trotting turf has ever known. There are plenty of purses on the hanger worth from five to twenty thousand dollars for young horses. This tends to attract the attention of breeders and to advance the grade of animals. But more than all it gives the old ones a good place and shows how substantial the trotters are. While it may be true that in and around some of the big cities the running horses are attracting the bulk of attention, it must be borne in mind that large running tracks are scarce and confined to half a dozen places. Trotting grounds can be found in almost every populous county of the United States, and meetings are held thereon every year, and sometimes twice a year. As a rule the agricultural interests prefer trotting to running; while the sporting men hang to the thoroughbreds. In other words, the running interests represent a class, while the trotters command the general public, not only in a few, but in many localities. That is another prime reason why the trotting horse has so rapidly developed the country over, even if he does lose his hold in and about the great cities. That is also why such big prices are being paid for that class of stock this year.

"I have often been asked the question whether I think Maud S.'s record will be beaten. I certainly do. Trotters are being better bred, better equipped and better handled now than ever before, and the present season is liable to develop some remarkable horses. 'Sunol' is probably the most liable of any that I can now think of to go a faster mile than Maud S. has ever done; but the limit of speed and endurance has by no means been reached then. You do not get fine horses without good blood and good breeding. A thoroughbred never comes of a dunghill."

Curious Facts About Bats.

"It is a curious fact," says a naturalist, "that bats have the power of directing their flight as well as if they saw, even when deprived of their eyes. Under such conditions they will fly around a room with perfect ease, avoiding with accuracy the furniture and other objects against which they might be expected to strike. With equal address blinded bats will shun the most delicate obstacles, even silken threads stretched in such a manner as to leave just space enough for them to pass with their wings expanded. When the threads are placed nearer together they will contract their wings in order to go between them without touching. The reason for this is that the large membraneous wings of the bat, which sustain him in strong and rapid flight and enable him to make abrupt turns in the noiseless pursuit of insect prey, are organs of touch of marvelous delicacy, being provided with most acutely sensitive nerve fibers at the roots of the fine hairs with which the winged membrane is covered. Through this perceptive means the animal is warned of its approach to any object."—Chicago Journal.

THE TARIFF DINNER

Everything on the Tables Was of Home Production.

500 GUESTS ENJOY THE FEAST.

Major McKinley Was the Idol of the Evening.

He Spoke on the Effects of the Bill that Bears His Name—Secretary Noble Praised the President—Many Distinguished Men Responded to Toasts and There Was Great Enthusiasm.

NEW YORK, April 30.—There was not a vacant seat at the banquet of the American Protective Tariff League held in Madison Square Garden Assembly room last night. The dining room was handsomely decorated with flags and flowers. Everything about the affair was emblematic of American industries. The dishes, cutlery, table cloths, napkins, wines and cigars, and even the menu cards, were all American in manufacture. All were of a quality and finish that gratified the American pride.

Conspicuous among the decorations was an immense bank of palms behind the speakers' table, in the center of which was the banner of the American Protective Tariff League. The tables and room were luxuriant with flowers and foliage plants.

The Prominent Guests.

At the 15 tables there were 500 guests. Cornelius N. Bliss presided. At the speakers' tabel at either side of the chairman sat Vice-President Morton on the right, and Hon. William McKinley on the left. Others at this table were Secretary Noble, Senator Hiscock, J. P. Dolliver, of Iowa; Nelson W. Aldrich, Joel B. Erhardt, Joseph N. Dolph, of Oregon; J. S. Clarkson, C. F. Hanson, Murat Halstead, J. M. Farquhar and George E. Sheridan. Among others present were Robert P. Porter, William Penn Nixon, of the Chicago Inter-Ocean, L. H. Crallof, of the St. Paul Pioneer press; William Laffan, and ex-Senator Platt.

Praise for the President.

It was 9 o'clock when Mr. Bliss began the speech-making. At the close of his remarks he introduced Mr. Noble, who said in part: "My expressions here to-night are my own. This is an auspicous time for the members of the Republican party to assemble and take counsel together. The protection of our industries are uniting our countrymen once more. We rejoice to-night with exceeding joy. There is indeed a President of the United States, and you will all agree with me in saying that he is a good President. Let us maintain peace with honor, looking not abroad for directions or approval. Let us depend upon the judgment of our own people for our own interests." Mr. Noble was loudly applauded.

Mr. Bliss then proposed the health of Vice-President Morton, who briefly thanked the assemblage, saying he was there as a member of the Protective Tariff League. He was loudly applauded.

Major McKinley's Speech.

Major McKinley was then introduced. In the introduction he was spoken of as the next Governor of Ohio, and cheers lasting fully five minutes followed this sally. The speaker, in brief, said: "I am hardly able to speak to-night. If I ever regretted that I was a protectionist, that regret does not exist to-night. I am glad to belong to a party advocated by such men as Webster, Clay, Lincoln, Grant, Hayes, Garfield and Harrison (cheers). No man should feel insecure in the efficiency of a great principle when every President has been on the same side. We will have a tariff so long as we have a government. All of us will agree, whether Democrat or Republican, that tariff is the wisest and best mode of raising the great bulk of revenue required to conduct our government. The questions is shall it be levied alone for the purpose of revenue or to add to the development of our industries and to give employment to our workingmen."

Mr. McKinley was compelled to stop several times while speaking to wipe the perspiration from his face. He appeared to be far from a well man. The applause the Ohioan received amounted to an ovation.

Mr. McKinley closed with the prophecy of the success of his party. All during his speech there was loud cheering, and some cries of McKinley, our next President.

Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island spoke to the toast, "The Maintenance of the Protective System Indispensable to a Profitable Foreign Commerce."

He began his speech by saying: "Notwithstanding the fact that our course has been most bitterly assailed and more thoroughly misrepresented during the past year than ever before, we are not here to apologize for the past nor to seek immunity from attack in the future. Our opponents assert that in the election of 1890 the protective policy was finally overthrown and still the American people then rendered against it a verdict of permanent condemnation. Yet I see around these tables no traces of the consciousness of defeat; no evidence of that despondency which would characterize the minority representatives of a lost cause."

Hon. John P. Jones of Nevada, who was to have responded to the toast "Our Mining resources. Their development under protection the basis of our industrial growth," wrote a letter of regret to the chairman.

The other toasts were answered as follows:

"The Empire State and the Tariff of 1890"—Senator Hiscock.

"Abundance vs. Cheapness"—J. P. Dolliver, of Iowa.

"The Wage Earners' Interest in Protection"—George Gunton.

"Free Raw Materials and Foreign Markets"—Gen. George A. Sheridan.

"The New South, the Product and Now the Bulkwork of Protection"—J. F. Hanson, of Georgia.

"The Fruits of Protection as Shown by the Eleventh Census"—Robert P. Porter.

"Agriculture and the Tariff: The American Protection System the Farmer's Policy"—J. H. Walker, of Massachusetts.

Ex-Congressman Scott Has Retired.

NEW YORK, April 30.—The Hon. William L. Scott, ex-Congressman from Pennsylvania, was asked at the Fifth Avenue Hotel if the Pennsylvania Democrats were still for ex-President Cleveland. "My opinion is not worth recording," replied Col. Scott, "for I am out of politics for good. I don't even think of or care for politics now."

REALIZED HE WAS INSANE.

A Wealthy Citizen Threatens to Kill Several Persons in Elmira.

ELMIRA, N. Y., April 30.—H. B. Larne, a wealthy resident of Hornellsville, induced Miss Jennie O'Neil Potter, the well known elocutionist of New York city, to go to Hornellsville recently, where she was to give a reading to-night.

Monday Mr. Larne came to Elmira and claimed to have hired the Opera House for Miss Potter to give a reading last night. He persuaded Miss Potter to come here, but she found that the Opera House had not been rented.

Larne threatened to kill the manager and also threatened several others in the place. The police were called, and it required the combined efforts of four of the officers to remove him to the station.

He was examined by physicians, who declared him to be violently insane. He will be removed to the Willard State Hospital.

Miss Potter is with Mrs. Larne, who is prostrated by her husband's misfortune. Larne is worth $50,000, but thinks he has $1,000,000.

THE BARNABY MYSTERY.

Dr. Graves Thinks that Bennett, the Guide, Was the Murderer.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 30.—The hunt for the murderer of Mrs. Barnaby has begun with renewed vigor. Dr. Graves now says that the murderer was either Edward A. Bennett, the mountain guide, or his wife. He declares that Bennett might have been influenced by anger at Mrs. Barnaby's refusal to pay him any more hush money, and that the wife might have been moved by jealousy at the questionable relations that had been said to exist between her husband and Mrs. Barnaby.

Dr. Graves' residence, on Benefit street, is under the watchful eyes of a couple of strangers, who never leave their post night or day. They are supposed to be Inspector Byrnes' men, who are detailed, not to arrest the suspected man, but to keep him under constant surveillance.

Says Dr. Graves' Statements Are False.

DENVER, April 3.—Mr. Edward Worrel, at whose house Mrs. Jerothmel B. Barnaby stopped while in Denver, was seen in regard to the statements of Dr. Graves regarding Mrs. Barnaby's moral or immoral attributes. He said that the allegations made by Dr. Graves were false in every particular. He says Mrs. Barnaby was a lady in every sense of the word. He was surprised when told th at his mother was mentioned in Mrs. Barnaby's will, and does not know how much the bequest amounts to.

Enforcing the Eight-Hour Rule.

PITTSBURG, April 30.—"On Monday there will be 1,000 carpenters working under the eight-hour work day rule system in this city," said Special Agent Irwin, of the Brotherhood of Carpenters, to-day. His estimate is based on the number of contractors who will continue at work irrespective of the Builders' Exchange. The last work day under the present scale ends at 3 o'clock this evening.

$17,000 in Treasury Notes Burned.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Treasurer Nebeker was informed that $17,000 in United States Treasury notes were burned up in the wreck on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad near Waring Station, Md. The money was in possession of the United States Express Company, and was destined for points west of St. Louis, Mo The loss will fall upon the express company.

"A Very Neat Sum" Received.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 30.—The trustees of the Johns Hopkins University announce the gift of "a very neat sum" to be added to the Woman's Medical School fund of $100,000 established by Miss Mary Garrett. Mrs. Henry Winter Davis is president of the fund. The required $400,000 will certainly be raised, say the trustees.

No Jack the Ripper Yet.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Police interest in the Water street murder begins to lag with the interest of the public. It is popularly accepted that the murderer will not be captured until he commits another such crime.

The Dominion Parliament Opened.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 30.—The Dominion Parliament was informally opened at noon. Nearly all the Senators and Commoners were present. Sir John Macdonald received an ovation when he entered the Commons chamber. He took the oath with his son, Hugh John Macdonald, M. P., for Winnipeg. Peter White, M. P., for North Renfrew, was elected Speaker on the first ballot.

STRIKERS ARE WILD

Socialists Creating Trouble in the Coke Region.

THEY ISSUE A FIERY CIRCULAR.

An Appeal to the Workingmen to Arm and Fight.

The Importation of Cheap Labor is Arousing the Men—They Are Holding Meetings in Various Places—One Operator Recognizes the Union—The Strike Has Already Cost Both Sides $3,000,000.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., April 30.—Coke Operator Keister, of the Franklin plant, has effected a settlement with the labor leaders, and his 60 employes resumed work to-day. The specifications are that the old rate of wages be paid; that only union men be employed, and that no coke be sold to Frick. This makes four companies now working under the Knights of Labor agreement.

About 50 Italians arrived at Frick's plant at Kyle on a special train. Two hundred men are at work at Leisenring No. 2.

The cost of the strike thus far on both sides will aggregate about $3,000,000.

Socialists Creating Trouble.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., April 30.—Affairs are again becoming agitated in the coke region by the importation of cheap labor and new trouble is anticipated. The strikers are becoming stirred up over the action of the coke companies in replacing them by new men, and are holding meetings in various places and are denouncing it in the wildest terms.

To add fuel to their already inflamed passions, the Socialist leaders are distributing circulars at the different works, which excel anything yet for downright Socialist doctrines.

Jonas, the fiery Socialist leader, is the author of the circular. It is arrayed against the capitalists and among other things says:

"To revolutionize the affairs of to-day is the true way; and the only way, to bring relief, genuine and lasting relief to the working people.

"Are you ready? Forward then! We are with you! Where is the coward that would draw back? Form your battalions! To arms! Have you not weapons enough? There are the arsenals of the counter-jumper militia, stocked with military stores, repeating rifles and ammunition. Fling the police in the gutter, the militia in the river! Drag the venal politicians and corrupt judges from their seats, chase the capitalist hyenas from the town, the priests from the churches! Take possession of the land that belongs to you, of the factories and machinery that you build! Why delay an instant? Are you not hundreds, thousands, millions? Into the street! Forward! Forward!"

PARIS ANARCHISTS ACTIVE.

Troops Under Orders to Remain at Their Headquarters.

PARIS, April 30.—The Anarchists continue their agitation here, despite the vigilance of the police and numerous arrests. Manifestoes intended to inflame the minds of the troops have been assiduously circulated by the Anarchist propaganda. In some instances these incendiary documents have urged the troops to revolt against what they term the "Oligarchical Republic."

The police destroyed the posters as soon as possible and the residences of the leaders of the discontented are subjected to domiciliary visits.

Orders confining the men of the garrison of Paris to their quarters until after May Day have been issued, and the officers of the garrison have been instructed to remain with their commands during the same period.

In case of an outbreak and hasty summons of the troops each man will be provided with one hundred rounds of ball-cartridge.

BALMACEDA'S CLOSE CALL.

A Bomb Thrown Into the Chilian President's Parlor.

VALPARAISO, April 30.—President Balmaceda, of Chili, escaped death by assassination during the day as by a miracle.

He and his family were seated in a parlor of the Presidential mansion, when a dynamite bomb was thrown into one of the rooms through a window. The bomb exploded and did much damage to the room and furnishings, but no one in the palace was hurt.

The most intense excitement was caused by the attempted assassination, and the streets in the vicinity of the palace have been crowded with excited multitudes since the occurrence.

There is no clue to the perpetrator of the outrage, but the authorities are using every effort to establish his identity and capture him.

Many Anarchists Arrested in Italy.

ROME, April 30.—The police have arrested many Anarchists in Naples and Turin on the charge of inciting the military to sedition.

"OLD HUTCH" MISSING.

The Great Speculator's Disappearance Disturbs the Chicago Market.

CHICAGO, April 30.—B. P. Hutchinson, the veteran wheat speculator, known the country over as "Old Hutch," has been missing since Tuesday evening, at which time he bid a friend good-bye and said he would never be seen again. He has many heavy open trades, and the many rumors circulated in regard to his disappearance have greatly disturbed the market.

His son, Charles L. Hutchinson, president of the Corn Exchange Bank and ex-president of the Board of Trade, says that his father has been mentally unsound for two years. A few months ago it was reported that Mr. Hutchinson's fortune had been almost entirely dissipated in speculation. At that time a number of Mr. Hutchinson's friends and his son tried to induce the old man to give up speculation and lead a quiet life, but their efforts met with no success.

PENNED IN BY FIRE.

Fifteen Thousand Acres of Timber Burned in New Jersey.

POINT PLEASANT, N. J., April 30.—Much property and timber have been destroyed in this region by fire. The fire began in a barn at Herbertsville and spread northwesterly over seven miles of the country, eating up 15,000 acres of timber in its progress. A number of cranberry bogs, barns and outbuildings were also destroyed. The citizens of Toms River and Point Pleasant are fighting the flames. Herbertsville is penned in by fire. West Point Pleasant and Toms River are now threatened by the flames.

An Engineer Blown to Pieces.

OGWEGO, N. Y., April 30.—While shifting a caboose in the yard of the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg railroad, a freight locomotive mysteriously exploded. James Cummings, the engineer, was instantly killed, his body being blown 200 yards over a house and falling in a horribly mangled mass in the garden. One of his legs was found 100 feet further away. The fireman who was on the tender at the time of the explosion was blown on to the top of the caboose and terribly scalded but will recover.

Deny the Bribery Charge.

SCRANTON, April 30.—The City Councils are investigating the charges made by Edmund Bartl, the defeated candidate for the office of City Engineer, that Councilmen McGrail, Golden, Archibald and Kelly asked him for $300 for their votes. The accused Councilmen deny the charge and assert that Bartl attempted to bribe them.

Transacting Business as Usual.

NEW YORK, April 30.—The Ninth National Bank is transacting business as usual and the amount of deposits are more than the average, notwithstanding the discovery that the bank had been robbed of over $400,000 by the late president, John T. Hill.

"Not Guilty by Reason of Insanity."

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., April 30.—The case of Thomas McCracken, who shot and killed his father in this city last February, which has been on trial here for over a week, was concluded by the jury rendering a verdict of "not guilty by reason of insanity."

AS A LAST RESORT

Physicians Cannot Save Dr. Bothwell's Life.

THEY TRIED TO OPEN HIS CHEST.

All Efforts Futile to Remove the Cork Which He Swallowed.

The Surgical Operation of Bronchotomy Unsuccessful—Dr. Rushmore's Cork-screw Fails—There Was Danger of Suffocation—The Brave Patient Will Fight to the Last—Joy Turned to Grief.

BROOKLYN, April 30.—In the hope of being able to remove the cork which the Rev. George H. Bothwell inhaled nearly two weeks ago, the surgical operation of bronchotomy was performed on the doctor last evening, but it was unsuccessful.

After the patient had been placed under the influence of ether, Surgeon W. D. Rushmore performed the operation, assisted by Dr. W. H. Bates. There were also present Drs. Ormiston, Hitchins, Sherwood and Bingham.

A flexible catheter containing a small corkscrew was first passed through the hole made two or three days ago into the windpipe, but after several probings the patient's respiration became so labored that this was suspended.

Tried to Open His Chest.

A consultation was held, and it was decided to open his chest at the point where Dr. Bothwell thought the cork was located. An incision was made, but the flow of blood became so excessive that it became necessary to desist. Another consultation was then held and the idea was suggested to introduce an electric light in order to locate the cork, but it was finally concluded that the excessive flow of blood would render this useless.

There now seems to be but little hope of Dr. Bothwell's recovery.

Joy Turned to Grief.

Up to the unlucky morning when the clergyman drew the cork from the medicine bottle with his teeth his family were supremely happy. Dr. Bothwell was looking forward to the time when his church would be a foremost one in a city known as the City of Churches. The future was rosy with hope. Even after the cork was drawn into the pastor's windpipe no one thought of a fatal result. He was so big and strong and confident that he inspired all who were brought in contact with him with his own deep confidence that all would end well. The chances now are that Dr. Bothwell will not long survive the shock of the last operation. But he says he will fight to the last. He has the frame of an Ajax and the heart of a lion—a strong man and a brave one—but in all probability he will be vanquished by the cork.

THE GRIEVANCE OF CHINA.

Secretary Blaine Says the Matter is Entirely a Diplomatic Affair.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Secretary of State Blaine declines to talk about Minister Blair being unacceptable to the Chinese government further than to say that the matter was a diplomatic affair, and that he did not care to say anything about it for publication, or to notice and reply to newspaper speculations about it.

Minister Yen at the Chinese Legation would only say through an interpreter that he had received a dispatch from his home government expressing the unwillingness of the Emperor to receive Mr. Blair, which he was instructed to lay before Secretary Blaine without delay. This, he said, was the only instruction he had received on the subject, but he declined to furnish a copy of the dispatch or to state the reasons given for this action.

The published report that Mr. Blaire's commission had been made out, with his location abroad left blank, so that if he was not acceptable to China he could be sent to Japan, is regarded as absurd everywhere in diplomatic circles.

Blair Summoned to Washington.

CHICAGO, April 30.—Ex-United States Senator Blair, who arrived yesterday in Chicago en route to China, will return to Washington to-day. Last night he received a dispatch from Secretray Blaine containing nothing but a request to that effect.

THE NATION'S CASH.

Secretary Foster Says the Government Can Use the Gold Reserve.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Secretary Foster, speaking on the financial condition of the Treasury, said that some of the $350,000,000 of available cash mentioned by Director Leech, "might be regarded as trust funds—might be, I say. It would be correct to say that about seventy millions are unquestionably available cash—that is about twenty-eight millions in the banks, twenty-one millions of subsidiary coin, four millions in trade-dollar bullion, twenty millions of current cash and five millions in silver against which no certificates have been issued.

"As to the $100,000,000 of gold reserve, it is held against the $350,000,000 greenbacks to make the credit of the government impregnable, for no one would be able to get together enough greenbacks to take all the gold out of the Treasury, and therefore they do not take any. But these notes outstanding are legal tender, and the government could and would use this gold reserve if it needed to on a pinch. It should, therefore, appear on the debt statement as available cash."

"Hipe" Ferguson Died in Jail.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., April 30.—James H. Ferguson, better known as "Hipe" Ferguson, who some time ago fired a shot gun at some children at St. Mary's school, in this city, died at the county jail at Goshen during the morning.

Stansbury Will Row O'Connor.

NEW YORK, April 30.—A cable dispatch from Sydney, N. S. W., says Stansbury accepts O'Connor's challenge and will row on any suitable course in the United States.

SENSATIONAL STATEMENT.

One of the Accused Prisoners Tells How Reed Was Murdered.

EXETER, N. H., April 30.—Daniel Murphy, Frank Woods and Mrs. Reed, who pleaded guilty to the murder of the woman's husband, were in court again and the trial resumed.

Wood, one of the accused, created a sensation by testifying that Murphy, on the day of the murder, after beating Reed threw him upon the bed.

Reed called to his wife for assistance and Murphy said that he might as well finish him as he would have to go to jail for five years anyhow for the assault.

Wood said that at this time he left the house and went out of doors. Subsequently Murphy came out and told him that Reed was dead.

Witness then assisted Murphy in carrying Reed's body to the barn.

It is stated officially that the sentence of the prisoners will be transmitted to-morrow by Chief Justice Doe to the sheriff through the clerk of the court. The court itself will not convene again this week.

THE WALLS COLLAPSED.

Two Killed and Twenty Injured by a Theatre Falling In.

TROY, Ala., April 30.—The wall of the opera house here collapsed without warning last evening, while a party of young people were rehearsing an amateur performance.

About 20 persons were buried in the ruins.

The dead are: Miss Annie Foster, of Eastman, Ga., and Miss Fannie Lou Starke, only child of Judge B. W. Starke, of Troy.

The seriously injured are: Miss Maggie Burnett, lately of Bainbridge, Ga., and Miss Eula Downing. The others were hurt, but not seriously.

The accident resulted from the spreading of the roof, which was intended to be self-supporting, but which was faulty in construction.

SWINDLERS CAPTURED.

They Claimed to be Drovers and Worked Several Banks.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Inspector Byrnes' detectives have arrested two men for whom complaints have been pouring in from all over the country.

The names of the prisoners are James Hall and J. Conover. They represented themselves as horse and mule traders, put up at hotels where horse-dealers stopped and made themselves acquainted. They would then go to banks and deposit drafts. Soon after this they would draw on the drafts deposited, after having been identified by some of the acquaintances they had made. They had the bank drafts printed in New York by purporting to be representatives of Clinton Backus & Co.

Officers of the Union Pacific Railroad.

BOSTON, Mass., April 30.—The directors of the Union Pacific Railroad elected the following officers: President, Sidney Dillon; vice-president, S. H. H. Clark; second vice-president, C. M. Lane; comptroller, Oliver W. Minks; treasurer, O. Harris, and secretary, Alexander Miller.

Ready for Traffic.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 30.—Only a little remains to be done along the Erie canal before the opening of the waterway. The masonry work on the locks has been completed.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

To-day at Sing Sing, N. Y., Warden Brown will take possession of Sing Sing prison and Warden Brush will retire after 12 years' service.

Mrs. Hattie Beckman, who killed her husband at Saybrook, N. H., while the latter was drunk and abusing her, pleaded guilty to manslaughter. She was remanded for sentence.

The East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia depot and many other buildings in the vicinity at Chattanooga, Tenn., were burned during the morning. Loss $350,000, on which there is a total insurance of $150,000.

Sixty representative business men of Philadelphia have organized the Trades League, the objects of which are the securing of stop over privileges for passengers, cheaper tonnage on coal from the mines to the city, equalization of freight and passenger rates to and from the city, and the building of a bridge to Camden.

Fire which started in Emory Fish's grain store in Dedham, Mass., consumed $50,000 worth of property, including a barn in the rear of the grain store, where ten horses were burned. Isaac Fish's residence and Mr. Caston's slipper manufactory were also burned. The property is insured.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—All admit that Peck's new store, new goods and new prices are far in advance of any other's.

—The Rev. Mr. Dilts has a bicycle now. It is a "Victor" from the establishment of W. H. Rogers, 42 Central avenue.

—Mayor Gilbert this morning tried his hand at holding court and sent John Hallahan to jail for 30 days. The charge was drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

—Judge Codington's many friends will be pleased to learn that the turning-point in his daughter's serious illness has been reached, and that she is now improving nicely.

—A delegation of the Oriental Circle of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., of this city, attended the first anniversary of the Oriental Circle of Union Council, at Rahway, last evening.

—Some of the things that men ought to know will be the subject of the practical talk to be given by Dr. J. H. Cooley at the hall of the Young Men's Christian Association this evening at 8 o'clock. The admission will be free, and all men are invited.

—A very pleasing entertainment is to take place in the Warren Union Mission chapel this week Thursday evening. Through the kindness of Ernest Marx a free exhibition of the Edison phonograph will be given to the mission people and their friends. The doors will be open at 7:30 and will be closed at 8:10 sharp. This is done in order to secure perfect quietness while the phonograph is working, thereby enabling those present the opportunity of fully enjoying the occasion.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. B. Volk, of Cherryville, Hunterdon County, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Vanderbeek of Park avenue. Mrs Vanderbeek is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Volk.

The marriage of Miss Mary Alice Dunn to Charles Augustus Sturtevant, nephew of Mrs. Wallace Vail of this city, took place at Montclair on the 15th inst. The Rev. W. F. Jenkins, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Montclair, officiated. Both the contracting parties are of Philadelphia.

Next Sunday evening the Rev. Charles B. Mitchell will preach in the Methodist Episcopal church a sermon to mechanics of all trades. This is at the request of some mechanics, and all manual toilers are invited. Mr. Mitchell learned a trade, spending three years in a printing office, before he entered college.

Israel C. Pierson of this city read a paper on "Double Endowments" before the great insurance men of the Actuarial Society of America, at its annual meeting in New York yesterday. Last autumn the society convened in the chamber of the Connecticut Senate at Hartford and was as grave and reverend as any body of Senators that ever sat there.

The death occurred at Plattsburg, N. Y., yesterday, of John W. Bailey in the 85th year of his age. He is the father of Mrs. Charles I. Ames, of Crescent avenue, and distantly connected with the Myers of this city, and Mrs. J. N. Moore of Broadway and Fifth street. Mr. Bailey is a brother of the late Admiral Bailey, and also of Nathaniel P Bailey, whose wife was a Miss Lorillard of New York, where they still reside. He will be buried from his late home.

Somerville Defeated for the Third Time.

Last evening on the Crescent League's alleys, Captain VanEmburgh's bowlers defeated the Somerville team for the third time this season. The score is given below. Pellctreau finished high man, although on the ninth frame Thiers led him by seven pins:

The Westfield Athletic Club have sent word that they will not be able to send a team of bowlers to Plainfield, Friday evening, as they had proposed. The Crescent scores have rather frightened everybody.

The Wedding Not Postponed.

The wedding of Miss Florence Shepherd, of Trenton, and Samuel C. Coward, cousin of City Clerk Coward of Plainfield, has not been postponed today on account of the illness of the bride, but on that account the ceremony will be private and will not be held in the Third Presbyterian church at Trenton. The reception will take place, however, as previously announced.

Miss Shepherd has been suffering with a fever for more than a week, but she was very much improved yesterday and the day before, and was able to be about her room.

No use to deny the fact that Salvation Oil is fast taking the place of all other liniments. It is better and cheaper than most of them.

AN EXPENSIVE POKER GAME.

Richard Mattis Found Guilty and Fined for Keeping a Gambling House.

A mixed assemblage of white and colored people gathered in the police station this morning anxious to know what Judge Codington was going to do with Richard Mattis, who was charged with the offence of keeping a disorderly house. Policemen Kiely and Cooney were the principal witnesses for the city. They said that they had noticed lights in Mattis's house at the corner of Spooner avenue and Third street and had listened outside the window. They had heard money being handled, and heard voices "raising" the amount of "the pot". A man coming out of the place had told them, in response to their questioning, that there was gambling going on inside, so they had entered the house. There were cards and money on the table, around which were seated Mr. Mattis, a white man named Schinn, and two colored men, a Mr. O'Neill and Leander Brown. Another man lay on the sofa, evidently sleeping off an overdose of liquor. When the officers entered Schinn grabbed up the money, and Kiely took it away from him. O'Neill tried to get out, but Cooney caught him.

The officers said further that Mattis and the others had admitted to them that they were gambling, and Brown when put on the stand admitted that gaming for money had been going on.

The policemen said that Mattis had pleaded that this was the first time the men had ever been in the house and had said that he was sorry for it and hoped the judge would be lenient.

Brown had told the policeman: "Yes: we were gambling, but let us go this time and we'll never do it again."

O'Neill had said: "If you had n't come in when you did there would have been a fight, for I was just going to lamn a man in the jaw for not keeping his promise to set up the beer."

Mattis insisted that he was n't in the habit of having card playing going on in his house, and that in this instance the men had come without his knowledge, and by the invitation of another. It was only a sociable, friendly game—he added.

Brown said that the poker games were in progress from some time before 12 Saturday night to nearly 4 Sunday morning.

Judge Codington said that the court "was determined to break up this kind of business, these games of chance, which were damaging and ruining people." He accordingly judged Mattis guilty and fined him $30 "If the fine is n't paid"—he added—"you will go to the county jail for thirty days."

Mattis gave notice of appeal. C. J. Noel promised to file an appeal bond for him at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Meetings for Little Folks.

The Rev. Charles Bayard Mitchell, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, holds each year two series of meetings for children 12 years of age and under. These meetings are held in Vincent Chapel Friday afternoons at 3:45 o'clock. The first meeting of the spring series will be held to-morrow afternoon. All boys and girls of the above age are welcomed, as Mr. Mitchell does not confine the membership of his Junior League to the members of the Methodist Sunday-school. Three hundred children will be admitted. No new members will be received after the second meeting, unless in the case of former members of the League and of the Methodist Sunday-school who are kept away from the first two meetings on account of illness. Eight meetings will be held this spring. Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. D. E. Davis, Mrs. L. M. French, Mrs. A. A. Taft, Mrs. Harry D. French and Mrs. Edwin Loomis, assist the pastor. The members are admitted by a ticket which is punched on entering the chapel at each meeting thus keeping track of the attendance. Each member wears a beautiful badge, and a reward is given at the close of the series to those who have been perfect in attendance. Music, recitations by the children, and talks and lessons by the pastor, constitute the programme each Friday afternoon. Parents of all denominations or of none, who desire their children to attend these meetings may send or take them to-morrow afternoon to Vincent chapel at 3:45 o'clock.

Oh, What a Cough

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

Mrs. Eaton Gaining Strength.

CINCINNATI, April 30—Mrs. Eaton, the President's sister, is steadily gaining strength and there is no danger of a relapse. She sat up last night for a short time, and will soon be over the shock of the accident. Her injuries are not regarded as at all dangerous.

Life Imprisonment for Murderer Smith.

COLUMBUS, O., April 30.—Gov. Campbell has commuted the death sentence of Isaac Smith to imprisonment for life, on the ground that newly discovered evidence shows that there is a doubt as to his guilt. He was charged with murdering his mother.

There is no better remedy to give relief to children suffering with whooping cough than Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Do not be without it at any time. Price only 25 cents. At all dealers.

"Good Night".....Leslie.

An Unparalleled Aggregation of Vocalists.

The grandest musical event in this country, at least, will take place next week upon the occasion of the inauguration of the Andrew Carnegie Music Hall, at 57th street and Seventh avenue, New York.

The new Music Hall, which is in every respect the most complete building for the purpose intended in the world, will be opened to the public by a Music Festival, comprising four evening and two afternoon concerts, beginning Tuesday, May 5, and ending Saturday, May 9. In this will take part The Symphony Society Orchestra, The Oratorio Society Chorus, Boys' Choir of 100, (Wenzel Raboch, Choirmaster,) and the following artists:

P. Tschaikowsky, the eminent Russian composer, who will conduct several of his own works. Frau Antonia Mielke, Mlle Clemetine De Vere, Mrs. Gerrit Smith, Mrs. Th. J. Toedt, Miss Anna Luella Kelly, Mrs. Koert Kronold, Soprani; Frau Marie Ritter-Goetze, Mrs. Carl Alves, Mrs. Clapper-Morris, Contralti; Signor Italo Campanini, Herr Andreas Dippel, Mr. Thomas Ebert, Tenors; Herr Theodor Reichmann, Baritone; Herr Emil Fischer, Herr Conrad Behrens, Mr. Ericson Bushnell, Bassos; Frl. Adele Aus Der Ohe, Pianist; Mr. Frank L. Sealy, Organist; Walter Damrosch, Conductor.

Seats may now be secured at the ticket office daily from 9 a. m., to 6 p. m., or by addressing Morris Reno, President, Music Hall Company, of New York. (Ltd.) 57th street and Seventh avenue. Scale of prices for single performances—Boxes, (6 seats), $15.00; Parquet Seat, $2.00; Dress Circle, $1.50; Balcony, $1.00; General Admission, $1.00.

It is Even Stupid as a Thief.

[From The Elizabeth Herald.]

Would it not be more honest for the Plainfield Evening News to give credit to the various newspapers from whose columns it makes up its information? It is mean on its part to palm off as original matter what it has taken word for word from another source. Yet in its impression of Thursday last it gave to its readers as original matter the long article on the Passover, which was written expressly for the HERALD and appeared in its columns of Wednesday. The only changes made were, the substitution of "Plainfield" for "Elizabeth" and "yesterday" for "to-day." The only "originality" displayed on the part of the Plainfield News was in the blunders it made through its inconsistency in making these alterations. By not altering the "next eight days" into the "next seven days" it spread the Passover feast over nine instead of eight days, and by retaining the words "this evening" instead of altering them into "last evening," it caused the Feast of Passover to begin on Thursday instead of Wednesday evening. But it needs a clever man to be a skillful conveyer of the fruit of other men's brainwork to his columns. The News was just a little stupid in its inconsistency, and might easily have avoided the ridiculous blunders into which it fell in stealing an article by simply crediting it to the HERALD of the day before. But then where would the originality have come in?

Entertainment in the German Church.

This evening, commencing at 8 o'clock, an entertainment will be given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the German church, in the lecture room of the church, on Craig place, North Plainfield. A cordial invitation to be present is extended to all the members and friends of the church and to all members of the Ladies' Aid Society.

CATARRH was very bad. For thirty years I have been troubled with it—have tried a number of remedies without relief. A druggist advised Ely's Cream Balm. I have used only one bottle and I can say I feel like a new man. I make this voluntary statement that others may know of the Balm.—J. W. Matheson, lawyer, Pawtucket, R. I.

WITH Ely's Cream Balm a child can be treated without pain and with perfect safety. It cures catarrh, hay fever and colds in the head. It is easily applied into the nostrils and gives immediate relief. Price 50 cents.

It Depends Upon How You Figure.

The question now agitating the minds of the community is whether or not it is worth forty cents and a long walk to see the Crescents play ball. The first answer will come next Saturday, when the season will be regularly opened.—Camel Toes.

The Crescent ball team managers say that with so expensive a nine, and the cost of new grounds, etc., this season, they cannot "afford" to play for less than twenty-five cents admission. But they must have a queer way of figuring. Two hundred people at 25 cents is $50. Six hundred people at 15 cents is $90. So the fact is that they can't afford to play ball at 25 cents admission, but can at 15 cents.

Water-Testing.

Having lately added to my chemical outfit I am now—better than heretofore—prepared to test and report upon the quality of Drinking-Waters. If desired, testing will include Relative Hardness, Organic Impurities, Ammonia and Chlorides, (with estimate of latter, if required).

Containers furnished and terms explained at Pharmacies, corner North and Park avenues, and corner Front street and Park avenue.

Here's our card.

It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are not straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public esteem accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for telling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of Shoes.

IMITATION BUTTER IN NEW JERSEY.

Inspectors Searching All the Stores. Preparatory to Bringing Suits.

State Dairy Commissioner George McGuire has begun a vigorous campaign against oleomargarine. The Philadelphia and New York dealers have flooded the State with imitation butter, and in the short time that the searching has been going on by the deputies they have found enough to warrant the institution of twelve suits. The State Chemist, Shippen Wallace, is kept busy in his laboratory, making analyses of samples sent to him by the deputies, and other suits will follow in rapid succession. New Jersey has been for several years kept free from oleomargarine and colored butter, but since the decision in the Pennsylvania Supreme Court that the stuff could be handled in original packages, the Philadelphia merchants have been imposing upon the general ignorance of the New Jersey merchants and unloading considerable of it in this State. In some sections of the State there is scarcely a town or city in which the law is not violated. This is known to be a fact, because letters are pouring in on the Dairy Commissioner from merchants in these towns complaining that competitors are selling "alleged butter" below the wholesale price. Deputy-Inspector Vandergrift is now making a tour of these southern towns, and has located considerable of it, and is arranging to bring suits in Trenton, Camden and Gloucester City.

Deputy Tracy is at work in the upper and central part of the State, particularly in Newark and Jersey City. He will give Plainfield and other Jersey Central towns a visit at an early date. The goods in the lower part of the State come from a Philadelphia market, and many of the dealers are not complying with the law because the jobbers are leading them astray as to its requirements. Wherever oleo or colored butter is found the dealers make the excuse that if they have failed to comply with the law they did it because they were imposed on by the person from whom they purchased the goods. One dealer in Trenton last Monday paid a fine of $100 because he did not have his tubs properly marked. Yesterday inspectors again went through his place and found twenty tubs of colored butter, and he is again to be arrested. He makes the excuse that the concern from whom he purchased the invoice stated that it was not against the law to sell colored butter. The law is strong in its provisions against the adding of coloring matter to butter substitutes in imitation of the color of genuine butter. The inspectors can tell the colored butter as soon as they see it, but the law requires a chemical analysis before proceedings can be taken, and on this account Mr. Wallace is at work night and day. Dairy Commissioner McGuire says there is considerable bogus butter sold in Jersey City. There are two distributing concerns there, but they are more or less careful to put out their goods to retail dealers who have a license. In Newark there is not so much of the stuff sold in the stores, because of the watchfulness of several large dealers in dairy goods. Nearly all the restaurants in Newark use it, but it seems impossible to reach them by law, as they set up the defence that they do not sell the stuff, but give it away with the meals.

The position of the State Dairy Commissioner is not to stop or interfere with the sale of bogus butter, but require it to be sold for what it actually is. The law requires that the tubs shall be properly marked so that all who buy can see what they are getting. This department of the New Jersey Government has given more attention to the physiological and hygienic bearing of imitation butter than any other State in the Union. It employed Henry R. Cornwall, Ph. D., Professor of Analytical Chemistry at the College of New Jersey. He states that the fats in imitation butter are practically in a raw state, and are liable to contain parasitic organisms or impurities likely to injure the consumer. In regard to the possible presence of parasites, it may be said that while the assertion that there is often danger of introducing such organisms through the medium of beef fat seems to rest on slight foundation, yet the recent experience of lard-renders makes the question an important one. Many scientific men are firm in the belief that parasites are found in the fat of animals. Therefore, the making of oleomargarine should be a matter of State inspection, which it is not; only in this way can it be observed whether the fat from sound animals is used in its manufacture. He, however, does not think that there is any danger from the use of chemicals in refining the fat.—Post.

New Jersey to Help the Big Fair.

The Hon. Garret A. Hobart of Passaic, the Hon. Edward Bettle of Camden, Prof. John G. Smock of Mercer, Millard F. Ross of Middlesex, Walter Lennox of Mercer, Peter E. Swarzweller of Warren, Peter Hauck of Hudson, and Stephen J. Meeker of Essex, members of the New Jersey World's Fair Commission, at Trenton Tuesday, met and elected S. J. Meeker, President, E. Bettle, Vice President and W. Lennox, Secretary and Treasurer. The Executive Committee will consist of the President and Vice President, with three members to be named by the President, and will go to Chicago to select a site for the New Jersey building at the World's Fair ground as soon as appointed. The commission has $20,000 at its disposal, and is determined to make the New Jersey exhibit at the fair a creditable one.

Playing Comedy While Having Her Teeth Filled.

Miss Henriette Crossman, who plays the part of Mrs. Dickerson—one of Wilkinson's widows—in Gillette's comedy now running so successfully at Proctor's Theatre, Twenty-third street, New York, has had rather a remarkable career. Miss Crossman was born in a tent out in the Indian country while her parents were visiting the far West, not so many years ago, either, as she is still quite young. At the age of nine she could speak the language of three different tribes of Indians. Miss Crossman is a young woman of magnificent figure and her well turned head rests upon a neck that might excite the envy of the Queen of Love herself.

She has a bright and twinkling eye and the delicate curves of her mouth are sweetened by the archness of expression that can only be compared to the smile of Thalia, when she has made merry at the expense of her tragic sister. Miss Crossman is one of the bright features in "Wilkinson's Widows" and is winning popular favor in the character she assumes in the comedy.

A few evenings ago she was suffering very much with one of her teeth which gave her great pain. Rather than not play her part that evening, she summoned a dentist in the neighborhood of the theatre, had the pain in her tooth eased and the tooth prepared for filling at some future time. She went on with her part just the same and had the dentist do his work during the waits between her scenes, notwithstanding the fact that she was playing a comedy role, which she played that evening the same as on preceding evenings.

DeWolf and Della in "Wang."

The well-known and popular opera comedian, DeWolf Hopper, assisted by an admirable ensemble of comedians and singers, will inaugurate his second annual season, at the Broadway Theatre, New York city, on May 4, presenting for the first time, a sprightly operatic burlesque, entitled, "Wang", writen and composed by J. Cleever Goodwin, and Woolson Morse. The principals of the Hopper organization include Della Fox, Anna O'Keefe, Jaennette St. Henry, Marion Singer, Louis Apgar, May Levinge, Helen Beresford, Sallie Madden, Agnes Reiley, Samuel Reed, Edmund Stanley. Alfred Kline, Herbert A. Cripps, George Wade, Louis Shrader, and other prominent and well-known favorites.

Mr. Hopper and his merry associates are busily engaged in a series of final rehearsals of the operetta, a large force of stage architects and scenic artists are actively employed in the construction of appropriate stage settings and novel mechanical effects, while the brilliant costumes to be worn in the production, are being fashioned and completed by a small army of designers and costumers. The sale of seats for the initial performances opened on Monday, April 27. Plainfield people can secure seats either by mail or telegraph.

All to Appear at The Casino, May 26.

(From The New York Post.)

It was Robert Burns who wrote that "the best laid schemes o' mice and men gang aft a-gley." An illustration of this was given last evening at the Metropolitan Opera-house, where Mr. Max Vogrich's oratorio, "The Captivity," had its first performance. There were brought together for this occasion about 800 singers, including the members of the Metropolitan Society, the Plainfield Melopia, the Kingston Philharmonic Club, and the soloists were Mrs. Vogrich and Messrs. Dippel and Fischer. The performance was under the direction of Mr. Chapman, who is not a great conductor, but who acquitted himself fairly well on this occasion.

There are some vigorous, animated choruses in "The Captivity" some pretty, but not new, bits of Oriental color, and the recitatives are good on the whole, while the a'capella numbers were the weakest of all. The best singing was by Mrs. Vogrich and Mr. Fischer. Herr Dippel was not at his best at first, but improved later on.

Killed the Snake and Saved the Frog.

A copperhead snake four and a half feet long was killed on the lawn of Dr. J. H. Cooley, North Plainfield, Tuesday afternoon. The snake crawled unobserved under the stoop. The gardener in cutting the grass knocked the lawn-mower against the lattice work under the steps, and heard a peculiar noise. He knocked again, and his snakeship thrust out his head. The gardener watched the snake while another man ran to the barn for a pitchfork, and the snake was then speared. Children who had been playing on the lawn crushed the writhing coil with stones. The snake's skin burst and out popped a frog.

COLLEGE NICKNAMES.

They Are Queer Things, but All "Good Fellows" Have Them.

College nicknames are queer things, anyway. A student is, as the phrase goes, "no good" unless he has a nickname, and a professor has no place in the college world unless he has a label of this sort. Nicknames for the undergraduates are generally fixed early in the college career, and often express the sophomoric idea of a freshman's characteristics. With the professors it is different, for their nicknames are based on traditions dear to the college heart, says a writer in the New York Tribune. Thus, a professor goes along from year to year with the label fastened upon him way back in the fifties it may be, and, queerly enough, time, which changes all things, never sees fit to question the appropriateness of these nicknames or to change an old one for a new one.

The president is sure to have a handle to his name. He may be "Prexy," as at Yale; "Jimmy," as every graduate of Princeton loves to call ex-President McCosh, or "Charlie," as they dub President Eliot at Harvard. For the professors there are a thousand and one names suggested by personal characteristics, affiliations, duties, habits, etc. A college in New Jersey, where nicknames are as thick as leaves in Vallombrosa, has its "Dean," its "Duff," its "Charlie," a gray-haired reverend; its "General," an old army officer; its "Daddy," a fatherless teacher; its "Pat," from Erin's Isle; its "Big Mac," so called because there is no "Little Mac" there; its "Sister," its "Baby," its "Granny," its "Fatty," its "Mary," its "Billy," etc., etc., and so on through all sorts of ludicrous names suggestive, at least to the student, of some well-known peculiarity of the person whose name has been taken in vain. Of course the professor is aware of the fact that he is dubbed in this undignified way, but nothing he can do or say can change the sanction of tradition, and the nickname sticks.

With the students the range of sobriquets is wider and more varied, a condition due to the close relations between the nicknamer and the nicknamed. Some well defined rules obtain, however, which show there is some method in this phase of undergraduate madness. Surnames often carry the same nicknames, although the persons may not be related, and may be separated by five or ten years in the time of their residence at college. For instance, Jones, '79, is dubbed "Buck," and the chances are excellent that Jones, '89, will receive the same nickname. Why, no one knows, but it is a curious instance of persistent personality. Again, nicknames received previously at school or at home count for naught, for the collegian is no respecter of traditions outside of the college word. So "Billy" becomes "Sister," "Jack" is transformed into "Reddy," "Joe" is elevated into "Senator," etc.

A DEPARTMENTAL PICTURE.

The Pleasant Situation of a Chief of a Government Bureau.

I saw a picture in one of the bureaus of the customs divisions in the treasury department yesterday, a picture which explains, perhaps, the chief charm of official existence, says a Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune. Here was a great, rotund, portly, comfortable-looking chief of a bureau. He was in a large, elegantly-furnished room, well lighted and ventilated. A bright wood fire sparkled under a broad oak mantel at one side of the room. He sat in a great leather-cushioned chair, at one side of a blue-covered desk, littered with papers. Upon the opposite side of this broad desk sat a blonde-haired, regular-featured, ladylike looking typewriter secretary. She was neatly dressed in black. She sat with her note-book in front of her, pencil poised, and a look of earnest devotion to duty in her eyes, as she gazed into the rugged-featured face of her chief, ready to take down every word he should utter. At his left, in response to a call of an electric bell, stood a colored servant, dressed in black, in an attitude of respectful attention. At his right was a chief of division, also bowing low as he presented a knotty point involving some construction of the tariff law for the consideration of the mighty intellect of his chief. At the doors on the right and the left stood messengers and clerks in attitudes of frozen attention gazing at the dignitary who sat enthroned in the center of the room, not daring to advance until he should nod his Jovelike head. At the moment of my call official duty for the moment had relaxed. The dignitary turned from the mighty task of oiling the wheels of the government of the United States and was relating a pleasant story. Every face was turned with a prepared smile which foreshadowed the hearty laughter sure to come at the end of the story. It was an interesting picture, and perhaps explains the happiness that men have in official life and their reluctance to retiring to the rude buffets and cold disrespect often found in the transaction of private business.

They Put It to a Vote.

Down at one of the big St. Augustine hotels there has been a controversy about the dinner hour—whether it should be at six or one o'clock. A ballot was finally taken and the matter decided in true American style. A majority of thirty-five favored a late dinner, and accordingly a late dinner it is. The young women guests of the place, says the New York Times, took a spirited part in the contest, voting in a solid phalanx for the six o'clock service, and it is needless to say they electioneered among the sterner sex to good purpose. Dinner gowns are much more effective by gaslight, are, in fact, not admissible in their full elegance at the noon meal, and everybody knows to what lengths a woman will go when she is fighting for the effect of a pretty frock. If the midday dinner can be abolished at winter resort hotels it is possible that it will be done away with at summer watering places, notably at Saratoga, where its existence is a serious blot upon the happiness of midsummer life at that charming resort.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup meets the wants of suffering humanity. It will cure a cold or cough better or sooner than any other cough medicine.

SENATOR STANFORD'S GUEST.

The President Visits Palo Alto and Will Remain in Monterey To-night.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30.—President Harrison and party left by train at 9 o'clock for Palo Alto. Mayor Sanderson and a committee of citizens accompanied the President on his trip. At San Mateo and Redwood City short stops were made. Large and enthusiastic crowds were gathered at these places, whom the President briefly addressed.

At 10 o'clock Menlo Park was reached, where the President was met at the station by Senator and Mrs. Stanford, Senator Felton, Governor and Mrs. Markham, and a party of friends. The party then visited the Palo Alto stock farm and the Stanford University buildings.

At 3 o'clock the train started for Monterey, where the party will remain to-night, enjoying the town's hospitality, returning to San Francisco to-morrow morning.

To-morrow the President will be the guest of the Grand Army of the Republic and assist in celebrating the first Grand Army day ever observed in San Francisco. In the evening he will be banqueted at the Palace Hotel.

Gen. Foster Back from Spain.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Gen. J. W. Foster and James G. Blaine, jr., arrived here on the Teutonic. General Foster comes from Madrid, where he went on behalf of the United States government to negotiate for a reciprocity treaty with the Spanish government.

Will Adjourn To-morrow.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 30.—The Legislature decided upon Friday, May 1, as the day of final adjournment. The bill providing for an exhibition of Rhode Island's products and exhibits at the Columbian Fair was indefinitely postponed by the Senate.

Picked His Pocket of $4,000.

PHILADELPHIA, April 30.—Frank Cassell reported to the detective department last night that he had lost or had his pocket picked of $4,000 in a street car. It is being investigated.

Murdered His Family.

PESTH, April 30.—A postoffice employe murdered his wife, his mother-in-law and three children, and then drowned himself in the Danube.

Five Miners Killed and Several Injured.

BERLIN, April 30.—A serious colliery accident is reported from Munster. Firedamp caused an explosion in a coal mine at a time when it was filled with workmen. Five men were killed, several seriously hurt and 20 remain entombed by the falling debris, though it is said there is every hope of rescuing them alive.

Col. Fred Grant in Paris.

PARIS, April 30.—United States Minister Whitelaw Reid presented Col. Fred Grant, United States Minister at Vienna, to President Carnot. Col. Grant and his wife have been in this city for some days and are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Reid.

After suffering for years with the worst form of Dyspepsia, such as bloating, dizziness, vertigo, acid stomach, etc., I came across Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills. Using them as directed two months, and still continuing, find great relief. Would not be without, and cheerfully recommend to any suffering with the above symptoms.

FURNISHING A HOUSE.

Mrs. Sherwood Presents Some Seasonable Suggestions to Ladies.

How to Make the Country House a Pleasant Stopping Place — How to Furnish the Guest Chamber and Living Rooms—Inexpensive But Sumptuous Accessories.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891, BY M. E. W. SHERWOOD.]

The hostess should, in furnishing her house, lay in a number of bath tubs. The tin ones, shaped like a hat, are most convenient. There are also india rubber portable baths which are very convenient. If there is not a bath-room belonging to every room this will enable an Englishman to "take his tub" as cold as he pleases, or allow the American to take the warmer sponge bath which Americans generally prefer.

The house should also be well supplied with lunch baskets for picnics and for the railway journey. These come now cheap, and well fitted up with drinking cups, knives and forks, and spoons, corkscrews sandwich boxes, etc. These and a great supply of unbreakable cups for the lawn-tennis ground are very valuable.

Also any number of tin painted pails, and small pitchers to carry hot water, several services of plain tea things, and Japanese waiters, on which to send tea to the bedrooms; and in every room should be placed a table thoroughly furnished with writing materials, and with all the conveniences for writing, sealing and posting a letter.

Shakespeare's bequest to his wife of his second best bed has passed with a bit of post-mortem ungallantry which has dimmed his fame as a model husband; but it would to-day, "that second best bed," be a very handsome bequest, not only that it was Shakespeare's but because it was doubtless a "tester," for which there is a craze. All the old four-posters which our grandmas sent to the garret are on their way back again to the model bedroom. With all our rage for ventilation and fresh air we no longer fear the bed curtains which a few years ago were supposed to foster disease and death; because the model bedroom can be now furnished with an inlet ventilator for admitting the fresh air from without as well as an outlet one for permitting the egress of the air. Each gas bracket is provided with a pipe placed above it and piercing the wall through which the product of combustion is carried out of the house. This is a late sanitary improvement in London, and is being introduced in New York.

As for the bed curtains, they are hung on rods with brass rings, no canopy on top, so that the curtains can be shaken and dusted freely. This is a great improvement on the old upholstered top, which recalls Dickens' description of Mrs. Todger's boarding house, where at the top of the stairs "the odor of many generations of dinners had gathered and had never been dispelled," so the unpleasant feeling that perhaps whole generations of sleepers had breathed into the same upholstery overhead used to haunt the wakeful in old English inns to the murdering of sleep.

There is a growing admiration unfortunately for tufted bedsteads. They are in the long run neither clean nor wholesome and not easily kept from vermin; but they are undeniably handsome, and recall the imperial beds of state apartments, where kings and queens are supposed to seek that repose which comes so unwillingly to them, but so readily to the ploughboy. These upholstered tufted satin-covered bedsteads should be fitted with a canopy, and from this should hang a baldachin and side curtains. Certain very beautiful specimens of this regal arrangement bought in Italy are in the Vanderbilt palaces in New York. Opulent purchasers can get copies at the great furnishing houses, but it is becoming difficult to get the real antiques. Travelers in Brittany find the most wonderful carved bedsteads built into the wall, and are always buying them of the astonished fisher folk, who had no idea how valuable was their smoke-stained carved oak.

But as to the making up of the bed. There are nowadays, cleanly springs and hair mattresses piled high, in place of the old feather beds; and as to stiff, white bedcovers, pillow slips and shams, false sheets and valenciennes trimmings, monogrammed and ruffled fineries, there is a truce. They were so slippery, so troublesome and so false withal, that the beds that have known them shall know them no more forever. They had always to be unpinned and unhooked before the sleeper could enter his bed; and they were the torment of the housemaid. They entailed a degree of washing and ironing which was endless, and yet many a young housekeeper thought them indispensable. That idea has gone out completely. The bed now is made up with its fresh linen sheets, its clean blankets and its Marseilles quilt with square or long pillows, as the sleeper fancies, with bolster in plain linen sheath. Then over the whole is thrown a light lace cover lined with Liberty silk. This may be as expensive or as cheap as the owner pleases. Spreads of satin might be used, covered with Chinese embroidery, or with patchwork designs, now so fashionable. One light and easily aired drapery succeeds the four or five pieces of unmanageable linen. If the bed is a tester and the curtains of silk or chintz, the bedcovering should match in tint, and in a very pretty bedroom the walls should be covered with chintz or silk.

The modern highly glazed tile paper for walls and ceiling is an admirable covering, as it refuses to harbor dirt. The housemaid's brush can well keep it sweet and clean. Wall papers are so pretty and so exquisite in design (and the makers of it no longer use arsenical green or white lead) that it seems hardly necessary to put in any other suggestion. The aggravating old rectangular patterns, which have confused so many weary brains and haunted so many a feverish pillow, let us hope are gone forever.

The floors should be of plain, painted wood, varnished. Nothing can be cleaner. Or perhaps polished or oiled wood of the natural color, with parquetried borders. If this is impossible, cover your floor with dark stained mattings, which are as clean and healthy as possible. These may remain down all winter.

Readily lifted and shaken rugs have all the comfort of carpets, and none of their disadvantages.

Much is said of the unhealthiness of gas in bedrooms, but if it does not escape it is not unhealthy. The prettiest illumination is by candles in the charming new candlesticks in tin and brass, which are as nice as Roman lamps.

In the old posters of Cromwell's time we find a shelf running across the bed, just above the sleeper's head—placed there for the posset cup. This is now utilized with a safety lamp, for those who indulge in the pernicious practice of reading in bed; but it is even better used as a receptacle for the book, the letter case, the many little things which an invalid may need, and saves calling a nurse.

All paint used in a model bedroom should be unpoisonous. The fireplace should be tiled, and the windows made with a deep beading on the sill. This is a piece of wood like the rest of the frame, which comes up two or three inches in front of the lower part of the window. The object of this is to admit of the lower sash being raised without causing draught. The room is thus ventilated by the air filtering through the slight aperture between the upper and lower sashes. Above all things have an open fireplace in the bedroom. Abolish stoves from that sacred precinct. Use wood if possible, if not, the softest of cannel-coal. Have brass rods placed to hand portieres in winter.

Portieres and curtains may be cheaply made of ingrain carpet embroidered, Turkish or Indian stuffs, splendid Delhi pulgasies (a mass of gold silk embroidered with bits of looking-glass worked in), velvet, camel's hair shawls, satin, chintz, cretonne.

"As costly thy portieres as thy purse can buy," nothing so pretty and so ornamental, only get woolen; something which will not be easily ignited; nearly all the fires in apartment houses are caused by the Irish servants setting fire to the portieres.

The glazed chintzes may be hung at the windows without lining as the light shines through the flowers, making a good effect.

Chenille curtains of soft rich colors are appropriate for the modern bedroom. Madras muslin curtains will do for the windows, but are not heavy enough for portieres.

There are hangings made of willow bamboo, which can be looped back or left hanging down, which give a window a furnished look without intercepting the light. Low wooden tables painted red, tables for writing materials, brackets on the walls for vases, candlesticks and photograph screens, a long couch with many pillows, a shaker rocking chair, a row of hanging book shelves—these with bed and curtains in fresh tints make a pretty room in a country house.

If possible people who entertain much should have a suite of bedrooms for guests, so that no one need be turned out of his room to make way for a guest.

Brass beds are to be recommended as cleanly, handsome and durable. Many ladies have, however, found fault with them because they show the under mattress, where the clothes are tucked in over the upper one. This can be remedied by making a valence which is finished with a ruffle at top, which can be fluted; the whole tied on by tapes. Two or three of these will be all that a housekeeper needs in white, and if made of pretty colored merino to match the room, they will last clean a long time.

As for baths, the guest should be asked if he prefers hot or cold water, and the hour at which he will have it filled. If it be a tin hat bath or an India rubber the maid should enter and arrange it in this manner: First lay a rubber cloth upon the floor and then place the tub upon it. Then bring a large pail of cold water and a can of hot. Place near the tub a towel rack hung with fresh towels, both damask and Turkish and if a full-length Turkish towel be added it will be a great luxury.

Some visitors are very fussy and hate to be waited upon; to such the option must be given: "Will you prefer to light your own fire, or to turn on your bath; to make your own tea, or shall the maid enter at eight o'clock and do it for you?"

Such questions are often asked in an English country house.

Every facility for doing the work would of course be supplied to the visitor. Now the bedroom being made so attractive, the guest should stay in it as much as possible, if he or she find that the hostess will like to be let alone; that is to say, give the hostess an occasional absence of your company. Do your letter writing and some reading in your room. Most people prefer this freedom and like to be let alone in the morning.

Now, at a country house, gentlemen should be very particular to dress for dinner, if not in the regulation claw-hammer, still with a change of garment. There is a very good garment called a smoker, which is worn by gentlemen in the summer, a sort of light jacket of black cloth, which goes well with either black or white cravat; but with all the laissez aller of a country visit, this is not included in attention to the proprieties of dress.

A guest must go provided with lawn tennis costume if he plays that noble game which has become the great consolation of our rising generation. No doubt the hostess blesses the invention of this great time killer, as she sees her men and maidens trooping out to the ground, under the trees; and here comes in the out-of-door refreshment, the claret cup, the champagne cup, the shandy gaff, the fresh cider, and the thousand and one throat coolers, for which our American genius seems to have been inspired to meet the drain of a very dry climate.

M. E. W. SHERWOOD

"IN A MINUTE."

What May Happen In that Short Space of Time.

"Don't fret. I'll be there in a minute." But, my friend, a minute means a good deal, notwithstanding you affect to hold it of no consequence. Did you ever stop to think what may happen in a minute? No. Well, while you are murdering a minute for yourself and one for me, before we get ready for the business we have in hand, I will amuse you by telling you some things that will happen meantime.

In a minute we shall be whirled around on the outside of the earth by its diurnal motion a distance of thirteen miles. At the same time we shall have gone along with the earth on its grand journey around the sun 1,080. Pretty quick traveling, you say. Why, that is slow work compared with the rate of travel of that ray of light which now just reflected from that mirror. I minute ago that ray was 11,160,000 miles away.

In a minute, over all the world, about eighty new-born infants have each raised a wail of protest, as if against thrusting existence upon them; while as many more human beings weary with the struggle of life, have opened their lips to utter their last sigh.

In a minute the lowest sound your ear can catch has been made by 690 vibrations, while the highest tone reached you after making 2,238,000 vibrations.

In a minute an express train goes a mile, and a street car thirty-two rods; the fastest trotting horse 148 rods, and an average pedestrian has got over sixteen rods.

Each minute, night and day, by the official reports, the United States collects $639 and spends $461. The interest on the public debt was $96 a minute last year, or just exactly equal to the amount of silver mined in that time. The telephone is used 595 times, the telegraph 136 times. Of tobacco 925 pounds are raised, and part of it has been used in making 6,673 cigars, and some more of it has gone up in the smoke of 2,292 cigarettes.

But I am afraid that you will forget that we are talking about a minute, sixty seconds of time. No? Well, then, every minute 600 pounds of wool grow in this country, and we have to dig sixty-one tons of anthracite coal and 200 tons of bituminous coal, while of pig-iron we turn out twelve tons, and of steel rails three tons. In this minute you have kept me waiting fifteen kegs of nails have been made, twelve bales of cotton have been taken from the fields and thirty-six bushels of grain have gone into 149 gallons of spirits, while $66 of gold have been dug from the earth. In the same time the United States mints turned out coin to the value of $121, and forty-two acres of the public domain have been sold or given away.—Cleveland Press.

CO-OPERATIVE HOUSEKEEPING.

What the Future May Have In Store For Us In This Matter.

Our homes are half a century behind what co-operation aided by science might have made them. We have got so far as to send spinning and weaving to the factory, and to secure water and light from a common center of supply. But we still carry on in the old fashion the preparation of food and the generation of heat. We still keep in each house servants to attend to matters which would be better disposed of by employing the agents of a company to attend to each department of household work.

The house of the future will be warmed as well as watered and lighted by contract. It will be supplied with motive power from some central reservoir of force, to work elevators and sewing machines, to cool its heated air in summer by fanning, and to draw off dust and effluvia to a distance by exhaustion. It inmates will be fed from a co-operative kitchen. A piece of coal never will enter its walls, except as an addition to the collection of minerals. The work of its mistress will be simplified by the elimination of a score of industries for which women have no proper vocation—such as cookery—and which act as serious obstructions to her proper work.—Robert Ellis Thompson, in the Chautauquan.

PASTOR KOENIG'S NERVE TONIC

St. Vitus Dance Cured!

SAN ANDREAS, CAL. Co., Cal., Feb. 1890.

My boy, 13 years old, was so affected by it, that he could not go to school for 2 years. Two bottles of Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic restored his natural health, and he is now attending school again.

The Best in the World.

Providence, R. I., May, 1890.

I used Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic for my son, who was out of his mind for some time, but came back to his senses as soon as he took the Tonic. I consider it my duty to speak in the highest praise of this remedy for nervousness and fits, but cannot praise it enough as the best in the world. MRS. M. A. COUGHLIN, 164 Chalkstone Ave.

Our Pamphlet for sufferers of nervous diseases will be sent free to any address, and poor patients can also obtain this medicine free of charge from us.

A Startling Thing!

Smiling under the sunlight lies Naples, The fairest picture of calm serenity.

Yet there stands the volcano, Vesuvius, with its gently curling smoke floating on the quiet breeze, giving no intimation of the terribly destructive power which has already buried two cities in awful ruin. It is calm and quiet now, but in an instant, at any moment, it may overwhelm Naples and bury it from the world, as it once did Pompeii and Herculaneum. But the Neapolitons eat and sleep, go and come, dance and sing, as though they did not live in imminent danger of sudden and terrible death.

You wonder how they can thus live so thoughtlessly in the face of almost certain destruction.

You are doing the same thing.

You are living over a volcano.

And you take little or no heed of your danger.

If you are nervous, weak, get tired easily, lack energy and ambition, wake as tired mornings as when you go to bed, you are living over the volcano—NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

If you have nervous weakness, giddiness, strange faint feelings, short breath, sinking sensation, fluttering or palpitation of the heart, a feeling of apprehension or anxiety as of impending danger, you are standing over the volcano—HEART FAILURE.

If you have Spring debility, cannot eat well, have no appetite, food hurts you, or there is gas, bloating, biliousness, etc., the volcano is—PHYSICAL EXHAUSTION.

If you have cold feet and legs, weakness, and weariness of the limbs, trembling, numbness or prickling sensation, you are on the verge of the volcano—PARALYSIS.

If you have headache, loss of memory, confused mind dull and heavy feeling in head, are drowsy during the day and wakeful at night, feel gloomy and depressed, think with difficulty and thoughts leave you suddenly, mind and brain get tired at mental exertion and you are irritable, cross and discouraged, you are over the yawning volcano—INSANITY.

These volcanos of disease are now quiescent, but their symptoms warn you as the gently rising smoke from Vesuvius should warn the Neapolitans of the frightful end—and when the awful disruption comes it means annihilation and death.

Is it not the maddest folly to linger in daily, hourly, yea, momentary danger of such a terrible doom? Especially when you know that Dr. Greene's Nervura, if taken in time, will cure every symptom, and ward off all danger of the fatal attack? This great nerve cure and wonderful restorative is a perfect specific for just these diseases, and if you will use it NOW—before it is too late—it will surely restore you to health and strength, as it did in the following case, and has thousands of others. Dr. Greene's Nervura is purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, and does not contain a single particle of any poisonous or dangerous drug. All druggists keep it for $1.00 per bottle.

NO VOLCANO FOR HIM.

I am 67 years old and had a nervous trembling in the limbs for over 8 years, and for the last two or three years have been very bad. The doctors I called in could not relieve me nor tell me what was the matter. After taking four bottles of Dr. Greene's Nervura, I felt like a new man. I was terribly constipated, but now my bowels are all right. I could not sleep at night, I suffered so much with pain, but the first bottle made me so much better that I felt encouraged to continue, and to-day I feel 10 years younger, and can eat, sleep and walk like a young man. I recommend everybody I know to take Dr. Greene's Nervura.

JOHN MULLANE, 133 E. 70th St., New York City.

Dr. Greene, of 35 West Fourteenth St., New York, its discoverer, is the famous specialist in the cure of nervous and chronic diseases. The doctor has devoted special attention to the treatment of all forms of chronic diseases through letter correspondence, and will give by mail his opinion and advice in any case free of charge. The perfection of this system renders a complete cure almost assured, as his success in treatment by correspondence is wonderful and unequalled.

N. B. Send for symptom blank to fill out, or write Dr. Greene about your case, and a carefully considered letter, fully explaining your disease and giving you a perfect understanding of all its symptoms will be returned, free of charge. 18 v eod
